

P. o. angl. 5767

<36610716530012

0

<36610716530012

Bayer. Staatsbibliothek

PHYLOSOPHIA.

HISTORIA.

C. CÆSAR

Epistolæ Ho Ehanæ
FAMILIAR LETTERS
DOMESTIC & FORREN

Historical.
Political.
Phylosophical.

M. AVRELIUS.

M. TUL. CICERO

BY James Howel Esq; one of the Clerks of his Ma^{ties} most Hoble Privy Counsel

L. ANNÆVS SENECA

sold by Thomas Guy. F.H. Van. Hove. fec.

60
Epistolæ Ho - Elianæ.

Familiar Letters,

DOMESTICK and FOREIGN.

Divided into FOUR BOOKS;

Partly { HISTORICAL,
POLITICAL,
PHILOSOPHICAL.

UPON

Emergent Occasions.

By JAMES HOWELL, Esq;

One of the Clerks of His late Majesty's most Honourable Privy-Council.

The Eighth Edition.

Ut clavis portam, sic pandit Epistola pectus.

L O N D O N,

Printed, and are to be Sold by the Booksellers of London and Westminster. 1713.

90/49/527

Bayerische
Staatsbibliothek
MÜNCHEN

TO His MAJESTY.

S I R,

THese Letters, address'd (most of them) to Your best Degrees of Subjects, do, as so many Lines drawn from the Circumference to the Centre, all meet in Your Majesty, who, as the Law styles You the Fountain of Honour and Grace, so You should be the Centre of our Happiness. If Your Majesty vouchsafe them a gracious Aspect, they may all prove Letters of Credit, if not Credential Letters, which Sovereign Princes use only to Authorize: They venture to go Abroad into the vast Ocean of the World, as Letters of Mart, to try their Fortunes; and Your Majesty being the greatest Lord of Sea under Heaven, is fittest to protect them, them, and then they will not fear any humane Power. Moreover, as this Royal Protection secures them from all Danger, so it will infinitely conduce to the Prosperity of their Voyage, and bring them to safe Port with rich Returns.

The Epistle Dedicatory.

Nor would these Letters be so familiar, as to presume upon so high a Patronage, were not many of them Records of Your own Royal Actions: And 'tis well known, that Letters can treasure up, and transmit Matters of State to Posterity, with as much Faith, and be as authentick Registers, and safe Repositories of Truth, as any Story whatsoever.

This brings them to lye all prostrate at Your Feet, with their Author, who is,

S I R,

Your Majesty's most Loyal

Subject and Servant,

HOWELL.

The

The VOTE, or a POEM-ROYAL,

Presented to His MAJESTY for a NEW-TEARS-GIFT, by way of Discourse 'twixt the Poet and his Muse.

Calendis Januarii, 1641.

P O E M A.

ΣΤΕΦΑΝΕΤΙΚΟΝ.

TH E World's bright Eye, Time's Measurer, begun
Through watry Capricorn his Course to run;
Old Janus hasten'd on, his Temples bound
With Ivy, his gray Hairs with Holly crown'd;
When in a serious Quest my Thoughts did muse
What Gift, as best becoming, I should chuse,
To Britain's Monarch (my dread Sovereign) bring,
Which might supply a New-Years Offering.
I rummag'd all my Stores, and search'd my Cells,
Where nought appear'd, God wot, but Bagatels:
No far-fetch'd Indian Gem cut out of Rock,
Or fish'd in Shells, were trusted under Lock;
No Piece which Angelo's strong Fancy hit,
Or Titian's Pencil, or rare Hillyard's Wit;
No Ermines, or black Sables, no such Skins
As the grim Tartar hunts or takes in Gins;
No Medals, or rich Stuff of Tyrian Dye,
No costly Bowls of frosted Argentry;
No curious Landskip, or some Marble Piece
Digg'd up in Delphos, or elsewhere in Greece;
No Roman Perfumes, Buffs, or Cordovans,
Made drunk with Amber by Moreno's Hands;
No Arras or rich Carpets freighted o'er
The surging Seas from Asia's doubtful Shore;
No Lions Cub, or Beast of strange Aspect,
Which in Numidian's fiery Womb had slept;
No old Toledo Blades, or Damaskins,
No Pistoles, or some rare-spring Carrabins;
No Spanish Ginnet, or choice Stallion sent
From Naples, or hot Africk's Continent.
In fine, I nothing found I could descry
Worthy the Hands of Cæsar, or his Eye.

My Wits were at a Stand, when, lo, my Muse (None of the Quire, but such as they do use
For Laundresses or Handmaids of mean Rank,
I knew sometimes on Po and Isis Bank)
Did softly buz, ———

Muse.

——— Then let me something bring,
May handsel the New-Year, to CHARLES my King,
May usher in bifronted Janus ———

Poet.

Thou fond fool-hardy Muse, thou silly Thing,
Which 'mongst the Shrubs and Reeds do'st use to sing,
Dar'st thou perk up, and the tall Cedar clime,
And venture on a King with gingling Rhime?
Though all thy Words were Pearls, thy Letters Gold,
And cut in Rubies, or cast in a Mould
Of Diamonds, yet still thy Lines would be Too mean a Gift for such a Majesty.

Muse.

I'll try, and hope to pass without Disdain,
In New-Year's-Gifts the Mind stands for the Main.
The Sophy, finding 'twas well meant, did daign
Few drops of running-water from a Swain.
Then sure, 'twill please my Liege, if I him bring
Some gentle Drops from the Castalian Spring;
Though Rarities I want of such account,
Yet have I something on the forked Mount:
'Tis not the first, or third Access I made
To Cæsar's Feet, and thence departed glad.
For as the Sun with his male Heat doth render Nile's muddy slime fruitful, and apt t'engender,
And daily to produce new kind of Creatures
Of various Shapes, and thousand differing Features;
So is my Fancy quickned by the Glance
Of His benign Aspect and Countenance,
It makes me pregnant, and to supersæte,
Such is the Vigour of His Beams and Heat.

Once in a Vocal Forrest I did sing,
And made the Oak to stand for CHARLES my King,
The best of Trees, whereof (it is no Vaunt)
The greatest Schools of Europe sing and chant:
There you shall also find Dame (a) ARHETINE,
Great Henry's Daughter, and Great Britain's Queen,

Her

*Her Name engraven in a Laurel Tree,
And so transmitted to Eternity.
For now I hear that Grove speaks besides mine,
The Language of the Loire, the Po, and Rhine.
(And to my Prince (my sweet Black Prince) of late,
I did a youthful Subject dedicate.)
Nor do I doubt but that in time my Trees
Will yield me Fruit to pay Apollo's Fees,
To offer up whole Hecatombs of Praise
To Cæsar, if on them he cast his Rays:
And if my Lamp have Oil, I may compile
The Modern Annals of great Albion's Isle,
To vindicate the Truth of CHARLES his Reign
From scribbling Pamphleteers, who Story stain
With loose imperfect Passages, and thrust
Lame things upon the World, ta'en up on Trust.*

*I have had Audience (in another Strain)
Of Europe's greatest Kings, when German Main,
And the Cantabrian Waves I cross'd, I drank
Of Tagus, Seine, and sat at Tyber's Bank;
Through Scylla and Charybdis I have steer'd,
Where restless Ætna's belching Flames appear'd;
By Greece, once Pallas's Garden, then I pass'd,
Now all o'erspread with Ignorance and waste;
Nor hath fair Europe her vast Bounds throughout,
An Academy of Note I found not out.*

*But now I hope in a successful prore,
The Fates have fix'd me on sweet England's Shore;
And by these various Wandrings true I found,
Earth is our common Mother, every Ground
May be ones Country, for by Birth each Man
Is in this World a Cosmopolitan,
A free-born Burgeß, and receives thereby
His Denization from Nativity:
Nor is this lower World but a huge Inn,
And Men the rambling Passengers, wherein
Some do warm Lodgings find, and that as soon
As out of Nature's Closets they see Noon,
And find the Table ready laid; but some
Must for their Commons trot, and trudge for room:
With easy pace some climb Promotions Hill,
Some in the Dale, do what they can, stick still;
Some through false Glasses, Fortune smiling spy,
Who still keeps off, though she appears hard by;*

Some

Some like the Ostrich, with their Wings do flutter,
But cannot fly or soar above the Gutter:
Some quickly fetch, and double Good-Hopes Cape,
Some ne'er can do't, though the same Course they shape.
So that poor Mortals are so many Balls,
Toss'd some o'er line, some under Fortune's Walls.

And it is Heaven's high Pleasure, Man should lye Obnoxious to this Partiality,

That by industrious ways he should contend
Nature's short pittance to improve and mend:

Now, Industry ne'er fail'd, at last t'advance
Her patient Sons above the reach of Chance.

Poet.

But whither rov'st thou thus——?

Well; since I see thou art so strongly bent,

And of a gracious Look so confident,

Go, and throw down thyself at Caesar's Feet,

And in thy best Attire thy Sovereign greet.

Go, an auspicious and most blissful Year

Wish Him, as e'er shin'd o'er this Hemisphere:

Good may the Entrance, better the Middle be,

And the Conclusion best of all the three:

Of Joy ungrudg'd may each Day be a Debter,

And every Morn still usher in a better:

May the soft gliding Nones, and every Ide,

With all the Calends still some Good betide;

May Cynthia with kind Looks, and Phœbus Rays,

One clear his Nights, the other gild his Days:

Free Limbs, unphysick'd Health, due Appetite,

Which no Sauce else but Hunger may excite:

Sound Sleeps, green Dreams be his, which represent

Symptoms of Health, and the next Day's Content;

Chearful and vacant Thoughts, not always bound

To Counsel, or in deep Ideas drown'd:

(Though such late Traverses, and Tumults might Turn to a Lump of Care the airiest Wight.)

And since while fragile Flesh doth us array,

The Humours still are combating for Sway,

(Which were they free from this Reluctancy

And counterpois'd, Man would immortal be)

May Sanguin o'er the rest predominate

In Him, and their malignant Flux abate.

May his great Queen, in whose Imperious Eye

Reigns such a World of winning Majesty,

Like

*Like the rich Olive, or Falernian Vine Swell with more Gems of Cions masculine;
And as her Fruit sprung from the Rose and Luce,
(The best of Stems Earth yet did e'er produce)
Is tied already by a Sanguin Lace
To all the Kings of Europe's high-born Race,
So may they shoot their youthful Branches o'er
The surging Seas, and graff with every Shore.*

*May Home-Commerce and Trade increase from far,
That both the Indies meet within his Bar,
And bring in Mounts of Coin His Mints to feed,
And Bankers (Traffick's chief Supporters) breed;
Which may enrich his Kingdoms, Court, and Town,
And ballast still the Coffers of the Crown;
For Kingdoms are as Ships, the Prince his Chests
The Ballast, which if empty, when distressed
With Storms, their Holds are lightly trimm'd, the Keel
Can run no steady Course, but tofs and reel.
May his Imperial Chamber always ply
To his Desires her Wealth to multiply,
That she may prize his Royal Favour more
Than all the Wares fetch'd from the Great Mogor.
May the (b) Grand Senate, with the Subjects Right Put in the Counter-scale the Regal Might,
The Flowers o'th' Crown, that they may prop each other,
And like the Grecian Twins, live, love together:
For the chief Glory of a People is,
The Power of their King, as theirs is His.
May He be still within himself at home,
That no just Passion make the Reason rome.
Yet Passions have their Turns to rouse the Soul,
And stir her slumbring Spirits, not controul:
For as the Ocean besides Ebb and Flood
(Which (c) Nature's greatest Clerk ne'er understood)
Is not for sail, if an impregning Wind
Fill not the flagging Canvass; so a Mind
Too calm is not for Action, if Desire
Heats not itself at Passion's quickning Fire;
For Nature is allow'd sometimes to muster
Her Passions, so they only blow, not bluster.
May Justice still in her true Scales appear,
And Honour fix'd in no unworthy Sphere,
Unto whose Palace all Access should have Through Virtue's Temple, not through Pluto's Cave.*

May

May his true Subjects Hearts be his chief Fort,
Their Purse his Treasure, and their Love his Port,
Their Prayers as sweet Incense, to draw down
Myriads of Blessings on his Queen and Crown.

And now that his glad Presence did assuage
That fearful Tempest in the North did rage,
May those Frog Vapours in the Irish Sky
Be scatter'd by the Beams of Majesty,
That the Hibernian Lyre give such a Sound,
May on our Coasts with joyful Echoes bound.

And when this fatal Planet leaves to low'r,
Which too too long on Monarchies doth pour
His direful Influence, may Peace once more Descend from Heaven on our tottering Shore,
And ride in Triumph both on Land and Main,
And with her Milk-white Steeds draw Charles his Wain;
That so, for those Saturnian Times of Old,
An Age of Pearl may come in Lieu of Gold.

Virtue still guide his Course, and if there be A Thing as Fortune, Him accompany.

May no ill Genius haunt Him, but by's Side
The best protecting Angel ever bide.

May He go on to vindicate the Right
Of Holy Things, and make the Temple bright,
To keep that Faith, that Sacred Truth entire,
Which he received from (d) Solomon his Sire.

And since we all must hence by th' Iron Decree
Stamp'd in the black Records of Destiny;

Late may his Life, his Glory ne'er wear out,
Till the great Year of Plato wheel about.

So prayeth,

The worst of Poets,

to

The best of Princes,

yet

The most Loyal of

His

Votaries and Vassals,

Comment.

(a) Arhetine, idest, virtuous,

Anagram of Henrietta.

(b) The Parliament.

(c) Hippocrates.

(d) King James.

JAMES HOWELL

To

To the Knowing R E A D E R, touching
Familiar Letters.

LOVE is the Life of Friendship, Letters are
The Life of Love, the Loadstones that by rare
Attraction, make Souls meet, and melt, and mix,
As when by Fire exalted Gold we fix.

They are those wing'd Postillions that can fly,
From the Antartic to the Artic Sky;
The Heralds and swift Harbingers that move
From East to West, on Embassies of Love;
They can the Tropics cut, and cross the Line,
And swim from Ganges to the Rhone or Rhine,
From Thames to Tagus, thence to Tyber run,
And terminate their Journey with the Sun.

They can the Cabinets of Kings unscue,
And hardest intricacies of State unclue;
They can the Tartar tell, what the Mogor,
Or the Great Turk doth on the Asian shore;
The Knez of them may know what Prestor John
Doth with his Camels in the Torrid Zone;
Which made the Indian Inca think they were Spirits, who in white Sheets the Air did tear.

The lucky Goose sav'd Jove's beleaguer'd Hill,
Once by her Noise, but oftner by her Quill:
It twice prevented Rome, was not o'er-run
By the tough Vandal, and the rough-hewn Hun.

Letters can Plots, though moulder'd under Ground
Disclose, and their fell Complices confound,
Witness that fiery Pile, which would have blown
Up to the Clouds, Prince, People, Peers, and Town, Tribunals, Church, and Chappel, and had dry'd
The Thames, though swelling in her highest pride,
And parboil'd the poor Fish, which from her Sands
Had been toss'd up to the adjoining Lands;
Lawyers as Vultures had soar'd up and down,
Prelates like Magpies, in the Air had flown,
Had not the Eagles Letter brought to Light,
That subterranean, horrid work of Night.

Credential Letters, States and Kingdoms tye,
And Monarchs knit in Leagues of Amity;
They are those golden Links that do enchain
Whole Nations, though discind'd by the Main;
They are the soul of Trade, they make Commerce
Expand itself throughout the Universe.

To the Reader.

Letters may more than History inclose,
The choicest Learning both for Verse and Prose :
They Knowledge can unto our Souls display,
By a more gentle, and familiar way ;
The highest Points of State and Policy,
The most severe parts of Philosophy,
May be their Subject, and their Themes enrich,
As well as private Busineses, in which
Friends use to correspond, and Kindred greet ;
Merchants negotiate, the whole World meet.

In Seneca's rich Letters is enshrin'd,
Whate'er the Ancient Sages left behind :
Tully makes his the secret symptoms tell
Of those Distempers which proud Rome besel ;
When in her highest Flourish she would make Her Tyber from the Ocean Homage take.
Great Antonin the Emperor did gain
More Glory by his Letters than his Reign ;
His Pen outlasts his Pike, each golden Line,
In his Epistles doth his Name enshrine :
Aurelius by his Letters did the same,
And they in cheif immortalize his Fame.

Words vanish soon, and vapour into Air,
While Letters on Record stand fresh and fair,
And tell our Nephews who to us were Dear,
Who our choice Friends, who our Familiars were.

The bashful Lover, when his stammering Lips
Falter, and fear some unadvised slips,
May boldly Court his Mistress with the Quill,
And his hot Passions to her Breast instill :
The Pen can furrow a fond Females Heart,
And pierce it more than Cupid's feigned Dart :
Letters a kind of Magic Vertue have,
And like strong Philtres humane Souls inflave.

Speech is the Index, Letters Ideas are,
Of the informing Soul, they can declare,
And shew the inward Man, as we behold
A Face reflecting in a Chrystal Mould,
They serve the Dead and Living, they become Attorneys and Administers : In sum,

Letters like Gordian Knots, do Nations tye,
Else all Commerce, and Love, 'twixt Men would die.

J. H.

These

These ensuing Letters contain for their principal Subject, a faithful relation of the privatest Passages that happen'd at Court, a good part of King James's Reign, and that of his late Majesty. As much also of Foreign Affairs which had Reference to these Kingdoms ;

Viz. Of

THE Wars of Germany, and the Transactions of the Treaties about restoring the Palatinate, with the House of Austria and Sweden.

The Treaty and Traverses of the Match with Spain.

The Treaty of the Match with France.

An exact Survey of the Netherlands.

Another of Spain, Italy, France, and of most Countries in Europe, with their chief Cities and Governments.

Of the Hanse Towns, and the famous Quarrel between Queen Elizabeth and them.

Divers Letters of the Extent of Christianity, and of other Religions upon Earth.

Divers Letters of the Languages up and down the Earth.

Accounts of sundry Embassies from England to other States.

Some pieces of Poetry wherewith the Prose goes interlarded.

Divers new Opinions in Philosophy descanted upon.

Passages of former Parliaments, and of this present, &c.

Among these Letters, there goes along a Legend of the Author's Life, and of his several Employments, with an account of his Foreign Travels and Negotiations ; wherein he had occasion to make his Address to these Personages, and Persons under-written.

Letters to Noble-Men.

TO his late Majesty.

To the D. of Buckingham.

To the Earl of Cumberland.

To the Earl of Dorset.

To the Earl of Rutland.

To the Earl of Leicester.

To the Earl of Sunderland.

To the Earl of Bristol.

To the Earl of Rivers.

To the Earl of Strafford.

To the Earl of Carberry.

To the L. Viscount Conway, Secretary.

To the L. Viscount Savage.

To the L. Herbert of Cherberry.

To the L. Cottington.

To the L. Mohun.

To the L. Digby.

To the Lady Marchioness of Winchester.

To the Lady Scroope.

To the Countess of Sunderland.

To the Lady Cornwallis.

To the Lady Digby.

To the Viscountess of St John.

To Bishop Usher, Lord Primate of Ireland.

To Bp. Field.

To Bp. Duppa.

To the Bp. of London.

To Bp. Howell.

To the Bp. of Rochester.

To Knights, Doctors, Esquires, Gentlemen, and Merchants.

TO Sir Robert Mansel.
To Sir James Crofts.
To Sir John North.
To Sir Edward Spencer.
To Sir Kenelm Digby.
To Sir Edward Savage.
To Sir John Smith.
To Sir Will. Saint-Geon.
To Sir Thomas Savage.
To Sir Francis Cottington.
To Sir Robert Napier.
To Sir Peter Wichts.
To Sir Sackvil Trever.
To Sir Sackvil Crow.
To Sir Arthur Ingram.
To Sir Thomas Lake.
To Sir Eubule Theloall.
To Sir Alex. Ratcliff.
To Sir Philip Manwayring.
To Sir Bevis Theloall.
To Doctor Mansel.
To Dr. Howell.
To Dr. Prichard.
To Dr. Wicham.
To Dr. J. Day.
To Mr. Alder. Clethro.
To Mr. Alder. Moulson.
To the Town of Richmond.
To Mr. R. Altham.
To Mr. D. Caldwell.

To Capt. Francis Bacon.
To Mr. Ben. Johnson.
To Mr. End. and Capt. Thomas Porter.
To Mr. Simon Digby.
To Mr. Walsingham Grestey.
To Mr. Thomas Gwyn.
To Mr. John Wroth.
To Mr. William Blois.
To Mr. Howell Gwyn.
To Mr. Robert Baron.
To Mr. Thomas Manno.
To Mr. John Savage.
To Mr. Hugh Penry.
To Mr. Christopher Jones.
To Mr. R. Brown.
To Mr. William Martin.
To Capt. Nicholas Leat.
To Mr. R. Brownrigg.
To Mr. John Batty.
To Mr. Will. Saint-Geon.
To Mr. James Howard.
To Mr. Ed. Noy.
To Mr. William Austin.
To Mr. Rowland Gwyn.
To Mr. William Vaughan.
To Mr. Arthur Hopton.
To Mr. Thomas Jones.
To Mr. John Price.
To Capt. Ol. Saint-Geon.

With divers others.

Epistolæ

Epistolæ Ho-Elianæ.

Familiar LETTERS.

I.

To Sir J. S. at Leeds Castle.

S I R,

T was a quaint difference the Ancients did put 'twixt a Letter, and an Oration, that the one should be attir'd like a Woman, the other like a Man: The latter of the two is allowed large side robes, as long periods, parenthesis, similes, examples, and other parts of Rhetorical flourishes: But a Letter or Epistle should be short-coated, and closely couched; a Hungerlin becomes a Letter more handsomely than a gown. Indeed we should write as we speak; and that's a true familiar Letter which expresseth ones mind, as if he were discoursing with the party to whom he writes in succinct and short Terms. The Tongue and the Pen, are both of them Interpreters of the mind; but I hold the Pen to be the more faithful of the two: The Tongue in uno posita, being seated in a moist slippery place, may fail and falter in her sudden extemporal expressions; but the Pen having a greater advantage of premeditation, is not so subject to error, and leaves things behind it upon firm and authentic record. Now, Letters, though they be capable of any subject, yet commonly they are either Narratory, Objurgatory, Consolatory, Monitory, or Congratulatory. The first consists of Relations, The second of Reprehensions, The third of Comfort, The last two of Counsel and Joy: There are some who in lieu of Letters write Homelies, they Preach when they should Epistolize; There are others that turn them to tedious Traçtats; this is to make Letters degenerate from their true nature. Some modern Authors there are, who have expos'd their Letters to the world, but most of them, I mean among you Latin Epistolizers, go freighted with meer Bartholomew ware, with trite and trivial phrases only, list'd with pedantick shreds of School-boy verses, Others there are among our next transmarin neighbours Eastward, ward, who write in their own Language, but their stile is so soft and easie, that their Letters may be said to be like bodies of loose flesh without sinews, they have neither joynts of art, nor arteries in them; they have a kind of simpering and lank heftick expressions made up of a bombast of words and finical affected complements only: I cannot well away with such sleazy stuff, with such cobweb compositions, where there is no strength of matter, nothing for the Reader to carry away with him, that may enlarge the notions of his Soul: One shall hardly find an apothegm, example, simile, or any thing of Philosophy, History, or solid Knowledge, or as much as one new created Phrase, in a hundred of them; and to draw any Observations out of them, were as if one went about to distil cream out of froth; Insomuch that it may be said of them, what was said of the Eccho, That she is a meer sound, and nothing else.

A

I return you your Balzac by this bearer, and when I found those Letters, wherein he is so familiar with his King, so flat, and those to Richelieu, so puff'd with profane hyperboles, and larded up and down with such gross flatteries, with others besides which he sends as Urinals up and down the world to look into his water, for discovery of the crazy condition of his body, I forbore him further: So I am

Your most affectionate servitor,

Westminster, 25. Julii, 1625.

J. H.

II.

To my Father upon my first going beyond Sea.

S I R,

I Should be much wanting to myself, and to that obligation of Duty, the Law of God, and his Handmaid Nature hath imposed upon me, if I should not acquaint you with the course and quality of my Affairs and Fortunes, specially at this time, that I am upon point of crossing the Seas to eat my bread abroad. Nor is it the common relation of a Son that only induc'd me hereunto, but that most indulgent and costly Care you have been pleased (in so extraordinary a manner) to have had of my breeding (though but one child of fifteen) by placing me in a choice methodical School (so far distant from your dwelling) under a learned (though lashing) Master; and by transplanting me thence to Oxford, to be graduated; and so holding me still up by the chin, until I could swim without Bladders. This Patrimony of liberal Education, you have been pleased to endow me withal, I now

I now carry along with me abroad, as sure inseparable Treasure; nor do I feel it any burden or encumbrance unto me at all: And what danger soever my person, or other things I have about me, do incur, yet I do not fear the losing of this, either by Shipwrack, or Pyrats at Sea, nor by Robbers, or Fire, or any other Casualty ashore: And at my return to England, I hope, at leastwise I shall do my indeavour, that you may find this Patrimony improved somewhat to your Comfort.

The main of my imployment, is from that gallant Knight, Sir Robert Mansell, who, with my Lord of Pembroke, and divers other of the prime Lords of the Court, have got the sole Patent of making all sorts of Glass with Pit-cole, only to save those huge proportions of Wood which were consumed formerly in the Glass Furnaces: And this Business being of that nature, that the Workmen are to be had from Italy, and the chief Materials from Spain, France, and other Forren Countries; there is need of an Agent abroad for this use; (and better then I have offered their service in this Kind) so that I believe I shall have Employment in all these Countreys before I return.

Had I continued still Steward of the Glass-house in Broad-Street, where Captain Francis Bacon hath succeeded me, I should in a short time have melted away to nothing amongst those hot Venetians, finding my self too green for such a Charge; therefore it hath pleased God to dispose of me now to a condition more suitable to my Years, and that will, I hope, prove more advantageous to my future Fortunes.

In this my Peregrination, if I happen, by some accident, to be disappointed of that allowance I am to subsist by, I must make my address to you, for I have no other Rendevous to flee unto; but it shall not be, unless in case of great indigence.

Touching the News of the Time: Sir George Villiers, the new Favorite, tapers up apace, and grows strong at Court: His Predecessor, the Earl of Somerset hath got a Lease of ninety years for his Life, and so hath his articulate Lady, called so, for articling, against the frigidity and impotence of her former Lord. She was afraid that Cook the Lord Chief Justice (who had used extraordinary art and industry in discovering all the circumstances of the poisoning of Overbury) would have made white Broth of them, but that the Prerogative kept them from the Pot: Yet the subservient instruments, the lesser flies could not break thorow, but lay entangled in the Cobweb; amongst others Mistress Turner, the first inventress of yellow Starch was executed in a Cobweb Lawn Ruff of that colour at Tyburn, and with her I believe that yellow Starch, which so much disfigured our Nation, and rendered dered them so ridiculous and fantastick, will receive its Funeral. Sir Gervas Elwaies, Lieutenant of the Tower, was made a notable Example of Justice and Terror to all Officers of Trust: for being accessory, and that in a passive way only to the murder, yet he was hanged on Tower-Hill: And the Caveat is very remarkable which he gave upon the Gallows, That people should be very cautious how they make Vows to Heaven, for the breach of them seldom pass without a Judgment, whereof he was a most ruthless Example; for being in the Low-Countries, and much given to Gaming; he once made a solemn Vow, (which he brake afterwards) that if he plaid above such a sum, he might be hanged. My Lord, (William) of Pembroke did a most noble Act like himself; for the King having given him all Sir Gervas Elwai's Estate, which came to above 1000 Pound per An. he freely bestowed it on the Widow and her Children.

The latter end of this Week I am to go a Ship-board, and first for the Low-Countries. I humbly pray your Blessing may accompany me in these my Travels by Land and Sea, with a continuance of your Prayers, which will be as so many good Gales to blow me to safe Port: For I have been taught, That the Parents benedictions contribute very much, and have a kind of Prophetick vertue to make the child prosperous. In this opinion, I shall ever rest,
Broad-Street in London, this Your dutiful Son,
1. of March, 1618. J. H.

III.

To Dr. Francis Mansell, since Principal of Jesus-Colledge in Oxford.

S I R,

BEing to take leave of England, and to lanch out into the world abroad, to breath forren air a while, I thought it very handsome, and an act well becoming me, to take my leave also of you, and of my dearly honoured Mother Oxford: Otherwise both of you might have just grounds to exhibit a Bill of Complaint, or rather, a Protest, against me, and cry me up; you for a forgetful friend; she, for an ungrateful Son, if not some spurious Issue. To prevent this, I salute you both together: you with the best of my most candid affections; her, with my most dutiful observance, and thankfulness for the milk she pleased to give me in that Exuberance, had I taken it in that measure she offered it me while I slept in her lap: Yet that little I have sucked, I carry with me now abroad, and hope that this course of life will help to concoct it to a greater advantage, having opportunity, by the nature of my

my employment, to study Men as well as Books. The small time I supervis'd the Glass-House, I got amongst those Venetians some smatterings of the Italian Tongue, which, besides the little I have, you know, of School-languages, is all the Preparatives I have made for travel. I am to go this Week down to Gravesend, and so embark for Holland. I have got a Warrant from the Lords of the Council to travel for three years any where, Rome and S. Omer excepted. I pray let me retain some room, though never so little, in your thoughts, during the time of this our separation, and let our Souls meet sometimes by intercourse of Letters; I promise you that yours shall receive the best entertainment I can make them, for I love you dearly, dearly well, and value your friendship at a very high rate: So with appreciation of as much Happiness to you at Home, as I shall desire to accompany me Abroad, I rest ever,

London, this 20. of
March, 1618.

Your friend to serve you,
J. H.

IV.

To Sir James Crofts, Knight, at S. Osith.

S I R,

I Could not shake Hands with England, without kissing your Hands also; and because, in regard of your distance now from London, I cannot do it in Person, I send this Paper for my Deputy.

The News that keeps greatest noise here now, is the return of Sir Walter Raleigh from his Mine of Gold in Guiana the South parts of America, which at first was like to be such a hopeful boon Voyage, but it seems that that Golden Mine is proved a meer Chymera, an imaginary airy Mine: And indeed, his Majesty had never any other conceipt of it: But what will not one in Captivity (as Sir Walter was) promise, to regain his freedom? who would not promise not only Mines, but Mountains of Gold, for Liberty? and 'tis pity such a knowing well-weigh'd Knight had not had a better Fortune) for the Destiny (I mean that brave Ship which he built himself of that Name, that carried him thither) is like to prove a fatal Destiny to him, and to some of the rest of those gallant Adventurers which contributed for the setting forth of thirteen Ships more, who were most of them his Kinsmen and Younger Brothers, being led into the said Expedition by a general conceit the World had of the Wisdom of Sir Walter Raleigh; and many of these are like to make Shipwrack of their Estates by this Voyage. Sir Walter landed at Plymouth, whence he thought to make an escape ; and some say he hath tampered with hisbody by Physick, to make him look sickly, that he may be the more pitied, and permitted to lye in hisown house. Count Gondamar the Spanish Ambassador speaks high language, and sending lately to desire Audience of his Majesty, he said he had but one word to tell him, his Majesty wondring what might be delivered in one word ; when he came before him, he said only, Pyrats, Pyrats, Pyrats, and so departed.

'Tis true that he protested against this Voyage before, and that it could not be but for some predatory design : And that if it be as I hear, I fear it will go very ill with Sir Walter, and that Gondamar will never give him over, till he hath his head off his shoulders, which may quickly be done, without any new Arraignment, by virtue of the old sentence that lies still dormant against him, which he could never get off by Pardon, notwithstanding that he mainly laboured in it before he went ; but his Majesty could never be brought to it, for he said he would keep this as a Curb to hold him within the bounds of his Commission, and the good behaviour.

Gondamar cries out, that he hath broke the sacred Peace 'twixt the two Kingdoms, That he hath Fired and Plundered santo Thoma a Colony the Spaniards had planted with so much Blood, near under the Line, which made it prove such hot service unto him, and where, besides others, he lost his eldest Son in the Action : And could they have preserved the Magazin of Tobacco only, besides other things in that Town, something might have bin had to countervail the charge of the Voyage. Gondamar alleadgeth further, that the enterprize of the Mine failing, he propounded to the rest of his Fleet to go and intercept some of the Plate-Galeons, with other Designs which would have drawn after them apparent acts of Hostility, and so demands Justice : Besides other disasters which fell out upon the dashing of the first design, Captain Remish, who was the main instrument for discovery of the Mine, pistoll'd himself in a desperate Mood of discontent in his Cabin, in the Convertine.

This return of Sir Walter Raleigh from Guiana, puts me in mind of a facetious tale I read lately in Italian (for I have a little of that Language already) how Alphonso King of Naples sent a Moor, who had been his Captive a long time, to Barbary, with a considerable sum of Money to buy Horses, and to return by such a time. Now there was about the King a kind of Buffoon or Jester who had a Table-Book or Journal, wherein he was used to register any absurdity, or impertinence, or merry passage that happened upon the Court. That day the Moor was dispatched for Barbary, the said Jester waiting upon the King at supper, the King call'd for his Journal, and askt what he had observed that day; thereupon he produced his Table-Book, and amongst other things, he read how Alphonso King of Naples had sent Beltram the Moor, who had been a long time his Prisoner, to Morrocco (his own Country) with so many thousand Crowns, to buy Horses. The King asked him why he inserted that, Because said he, I think he will never come back to be a Prisoner again, and so you have lost both Man and Money. But if he do come, then your Jest is marr'd, quoth the King: No Sir; for if he return I will blot out your Name, and put him in for a Fool.
for

The Application is easie and obvious: But the World wonders extreamly, that so great a Wise Man as Sir Walter Raleigh, would return to cast himself upon so inevitable a Rock, as I fear he will; and much more, that such choice Men, and so great a Power of Ships, should all come home and do nothing.

The Letter you sent to my Father, I conveyed safely the last Week to Wales. I am this Week, by Gods Help, for the Netherlands, and then I think for France. If in this my Foreign Employment I may be any way Serviceable unto you, you know what Power you have to dispose of me, for I honour you in a very High Degree, and will Live and Die,

London, 28. of March,
1618.

Your humble and ready
Servant,
J. H.

V.

To my Brother, after Dr. Howel, and now Bp. of Bristol, from Amsterdam.

BROTHER,

I Am newly landed at Amsterdam, and it is the first forreign Earth I ever set Foot upon. I was pitifully sick all the Voyage for the Weather was rough, and the Wind untoward; and at the Mouth of the Texel we were surpris'd by a furious Tempest, so that the Ship was like to split upon some of those old stumps of Trees wherewith that River is full; for in Ages passed, as the Skipper told me, there grew a fair Forrest in that Channel where the Texel makes now her bed. Having been so rocked and shaken at Sea; when I came ashore I began to incline to Copernicus his opinion, which hath got such a sway lately in the World, viz. That the Earth, as well as the rest of her fellow-Elements, is in perpetual motion, for she seem'd so to me a good while after I had landed. He that observes the site of position of this Country, will never hereafter doubt the truth of that Philosophical Problem which keeps so great a noise in the Schools, viz. That the Sea is higher than the Earth, because, as I sailed along these Coasts, I visibly found it true; for the Ground here which is all 'twixt Marsh and Moorish, lyes not only level, but to the apparent sight of the Eye far lower than the Sea, which made the Duke of Alva say, That the Inhabitants of this Country were the nearest Neighbours to Hell (the great Abyſſe) of any People upon Earth, because they dwell lowest: Most of that Ground they tread, is plucked as it were out of the very Jaws of Neptune, who is afterwards pent out by high Dikes, which are preserved with incredible charge, insomuch, That the chief Dike-grave here, is one of the greatest Officers of trust in all the Province, it being in his Power, to turn the whole Country into a Salt lough when he list, and so to put Hans to swim for his Life, which makes it to be one of the chiefest parts of his Leta-ny, From the Sea, the Spaniard, and the Devil, the Lord deliver me. I need not tell you who preserves him from the last, but from the Spaniard, his best Friend in the Sea it self, notwithstanding that he fears him as an Enemy another way: For the Sea stretching himself here into divers Arms, and meeting with some of those fresh Rivers that descend from Germany to disgorge themselves into him through these Provinces, most of their Towns are thereby incompass'd with Water, which by Sluces they can contract or dilate as they list: This makes their Towns inaccessible, and out of the reach of Cannon; so that Water may be said to be one of their best Fences, otherwise I believe they had not been able to have born up so long against the Gigantick power of Spain.

This City of Amsterdam, though she be a great Staple of News, yet I can impart none unto you at this time, I will defer that till I come to the Hague.

I am lodged here at one Monsieur De la Cluze, not far from the Exchange, to make an Introduction into the French: Because I believe I shall steer my course hence next to the Country where that Language is spoken; but I think I shall sojourn here about two Months longer, therefore I pray direct your Letters accordingly, or any other you have for me: One of the prime comforts of a Traveller, is to receive Letters from his Friends, they beget new Spirits in him, and present joyful objects to his Fancy, when his Mind is clouded sometimes with Fogs of melancholy; thereof I pray make me happen as often as your conveniency will serve with yours: You may send or deliver them to Captain Bacon at the Glass-House, who will see them safely sent.

So my dear Brother, I pray God Bless us both, and send us after this large distance a joyful Meeting.

Amsterdam, April 1.

1617.

Your loving Brother,

J. H.

VI.

To Dan. Caldwell Esq; from Amsterdam.

My dear Dan.

I Have made your Friendship so necessary unto me for the contentment of my Life, that Happiness it self would be but a kind of infelicity without it: It is as needful to me, as Fire and Water, as the very Air I take in ; and Breath out ; It is to me not only necessitudo, but necessitas : Therefore I pray let me enjoy it in that fair proportion, that I desire to return unto you by way of correspondence and retaliation. Our first league of love, you know, was contracted among the Muses in Oxford ; for no sooner was I matriculated to her, but I was adopted to you ; I became her son, and your friend, at onetime : You know I followed you then to London, where our love received confirmation in the Temple, and else-where. We are now far asunder, for no less than a Sea separates us, and that no narrow one, but the German Ocean : Distance sometimes endears Friendship, and absence sweetneth it, it much enhanceth the value of it, and makes it more precious : Let this be verified in us, Let that love which formerly used to be nourished by personal communication, and the Lips, be now fed by Letters ; let the Pen supply the Office of the Tongue : Letters have a strong operation, they have a kind of art like embraces to mingle Souls, and make them meet, though millions of paces asunder ; by them we may converse and know how it fares with each other as it were by intercourse of spirits. Therefore amongst your civil speculations, I pray let your thoughts sometimes reflect on me (your absent self) and wrap those thoughts in Paper, and so send them me over ; I promise you they shall be very welcome, I shall embrace and hug them with my best Affections.

Commend me to Tom. Bowyer, and enjoyn him the like : I pray be no niggard in distributing my Love plentifully amongst our Friends at the Inns of Court : Let Jack Toldervy have my kind commends with this caveat, That the Pot which goes often to the water, comes home crack'd at last : therefore I hope he will be careful how he makes the Fleece in Cornhill his thorowfare too often. So may my dear Daniel live happy, and love his

From Amsterdam, April

the 10th, 1619.

J. H.

VII.

To my Father, from Amsterdam.

S I R,

I Am lately arrived in Holland in a good plight of Health, and continue yet in this Town of Amsterdam, a Town I believe, that there are few her fellows, being from a mean Fishing Dorp, come in a short revolution of time, by a monstrous encrease of Commerce and Navigation, to be one of the greatest Marts of Europe: 'Tis admirable to see what various sorts of Buildings, and new Fabrics, are now here erecting every where; not in houses only, but in whole Streets and Suburbs: So that 'tis thought she will in a short time double her proportion in bigness.

I am lodg'd in a French-Mans House, who is one of the Deacons of our English Brownists Church here; 'tis not far from the Synagogue of Jews, who have free and open exercise of their Religion here: I believe in this Street where I lodge, there be well near as many Religions as there be Houses; for one Neighbour knows not, nor cares not much what Religion the other is of, so that the number of Conventicles exceeds the number of Churches here. And let this Country call it self as long as it will, the United Provinces one way, I am perswaded in this place, there's no place so Disunited.

The Dog and Rag Market is hard by, where every Sunday Morning there is a kind of publick Mart for those commodities, notwithstanding their precise observance of the Sabbath.

Upon Saturday last I hapned to be in a Gentlemans Company, who shew'd me as I walk'd along in the Streets, a long-Bearded old Jew of the Tribe of Aaron; when the other Jews met him, they fell down, and kiss'd his Foot: This was that Rabbi, with whom our Country-Man Broughton had such a dispute.

This City, notwithstanding her huge Trade, is far inferiour to London for populousness; and this I infer out of their weekly Bills of Mortality, which come not at most but to fifty or thereabout; whereas in London, the ordinary number is 'twixt two and three hundred, one Week with another: Nor are there such Wealthy Men in this Town as in London; for by reason of the generality of Commerce, the Banks, Adventures, the Common shares and stocks which most have in the Indian and other Companies, the Wealth doth diffuse it self here in a strange kind of equality, not one of the Bourgers being exceeding Rich, or exceeding Poor: Insomuch, that I believe our Four and Twenty Aldermen, may buy a Hundred of the richest Men in Amsterdam. It is a rare thing thing to meet with a Begger here, as rare to see a Horse, they say, upon the Streets of Venice, and this is held to be one of their best pieces of Government; for besides the strictness of their Laws against Mendicants, they have Hospitals of all sorts for young and old, both for the relief of the one, and the employment of the other; so that there is no object here to exercise any act of charity upon. They are here very neat, though not so magnificent in their Buildings, specially in their Frontispieces, and first Rooms; and for cleanliness they may serve for a pattern to all People. They will presently dress half a dozen Dishes of Meat, without any noise or shew at all: For if one goes to the Kitchen, there will be scarce appearance of any thing, but a few covered Pots upon a Turf-fire, which is their prime fuel; after dinner they fall a scowring of those Pots, so that the outside will be as bright as the inside, and the Kitchen suddenly so clean, as if no Meat had been Dressed there a Month before: They have neither Well or Fountain, or any Spring of Fresh-Water, in, or about all this City, but their Fresh-Water is brought unto them by Boats; besides, they have Cesterns to receive the Rain-water which they must use: So that my Landress bringing my Linnen to me one day, and I commending the Whiteness of them, she answered, That they must needs be White and Fair, for they were washed in Aqua Cælestis, meaning Skie-water.

'Twere cheap living here, were it not for the monstrous Accises which are impos'd upon all sorts of Commodities, both for Belly and Back; for the Retailer pays the States almost the one Moity as much as he pay'd for the Commodity at first, nor doth any murmur at it, because it goes not to any Favorit, or private Purse, but to preserve them from the Spaniard, their common Enemy as they term him; so that the saying is truly verified here, Defend me, and spend me: With this Accise principally, they maintain all their Armies by Sea and Land, with their Garrisons at Home and Abroad, both here, and in the Indies, and defray all other publick charges besides.

I shall hence shortly for France, and in my way take most of the prime Towns of Holland and Zealand, especially Leyden (the University) where I shall sojourn some days. So humbly craving a continuance of your Blessing and Prayers, I rest

May the 1,
1619.

Your dutiful Son,

J. H.

VIII. 7.

VIII.

To Dr. Tho. Prichard, at Jesus Colledge in Oxford, from Leyden.

S I R,

IT is the Royal Prerogative of Love, not to be confined to that small local Compass which circumscribes the Body, but to make his Sallies, and Progresses abroad, to find out, and enjoy his desired object, under what Region soever: Nor is it the vast Gulph of Neptune, or any distance of Place, or difference of Clime can bar him of this Priviledge: I never found the Experiment hereof, so sensibly, nor felt the Comfort of it so much, as since I shook hands with England: For though you be in Oxford, and I at Leyden, albeit you be upon an Island, and I now upon the Continent, (though the lowest Part of Europe) yet those swift Postillions my Thoughts find you out daily, and bring you unto me: I behold you often in my Chamber, and in my Bed; you eat, you drink, you sit down, and walk with me, and my Fancy enjoys you often in my Sleep, when all my Senses are lock'd up, and my Soul wanders up and down the World, sometimes through pleasant Fields and Gardens, sometimes through odd uncouth Places, over Mountains and broken confused Buildings. As my Love to you doth thus exercise his Power, so I desire yours to me may not be idle, but rows'd up sometimes to find me out, and summon me to attend you in Jesus Colledge.

I am now here in Leyden, the only Academy besides Francker of all the United Provinces: Here are Nations of all sorts, but the Germans swarm more than any: To compare their University to yours, were to cast New-Inn in counter scale with Christ-Church Colledge, or the Alms-Houses on Tower-Hill to Suttons Hospital. Here are no Colledges at all, God-wot, (but one for the Dutch) nor scarce the face of an University, only there are general Schools where the Sciences are read by several Professors, but all the Students are Oppidanes: A small time, and less Learning, will suffice to make one a Graduate; nor are those Formalities of Habits, and other Decencies here, as with you, much less those Exhibitions and Support for Scholars, with other Encouragements; insomuch, that the Oxonians and Cantabrigians ——— Bona si sua norint, were they sensible of their own Felicity, are the happiest Academians on Earth: yet Apollo hath a strong Influence here; and as Cicero said of them of Athens, Athinis pingue cælum, tenuia ingenia, The Athenians had a thick Air, and thin Wits; so I may say of these Lagdunensians, They have a gross Air, but thin subtle Wits,

Wits, (some of them) Witness else Heinsius, Grotius, Arminius, and Baudius; of the two last I was told a Tale, that Arminius meeting Baudius one day disguis'd with Drink (wherewith he would be often) he told him, Tu Baudi dedecoras nostram Academiam, & tu Armeni nostram Religionem: Thou Baudius disgracest our University; and thou Arminius our Religion. The Heaven here hath always some Cloud in his Countenance; and from this Grossness and Spissitude of Air proceeds the slow Nature of the Inhabitants; yet this Slowness is recompenc'd with another Benefit, it makes them patient and constant, as in all other Actions, so in their Studies and Speculations, though they use

——— Crassos transire Dies, lucemque palustrem.

I pray impart my Love liberally amongst my Friends in Oxford, and when you can make Truce with your more serious Meditations, bestow a Thought, drawn into a few Lines, upon

Leyden, May the 30th, 1619.

Yours, J. H.

IX.

To Mr. Richard Altham, at his Chamber in Grays-Inn.

Dear Sir,

THough you be now a good way out of my reach, yet you are not out of my remembrance; you are still within the Horizon of my Love. Now the Horizon of Love is large and spacious, it is as boundless, as that of the Imagination; and where the Imagination rangeth, the Memory is still busie to usher in, and present the desired Object it fixeth upon: it is Love that sets them both on work, and may be said to be the highest Sphere whence they receive their Motion. Thus you appear unto me often in these Foreign Travels, and that you may believeme the better, I send you these Lines as my Ambassadors (and Ambassadors must not lie) to inform you accordingly, and to salute you.

I desire to know how you like Ployden; I heard it often said, That there is no Study requires Patience and Constancy more than the Common-Law, for it is a good while before one comes to any known Perfection in it, and consequently to any gainful Practice. This (I think) made Jack Chaundler throw away his Littleton, like him that when he could not catch the Hare, said, A Pox upon her, she is but dry tough Meat, let her go: It is not so with you; for I know you are of that disposition, that when you mind a thing, nothing can frighten you in making constant Pursuit after it, till you have obtained it: For if the Methametics with their Crab-

bedness

bedness and intricacy, could not deter you, but that you waded through the very midst of them, and arriv'd to so excellent a perfection ; I believe it is not in the power of Ployden, to Dastardize or Cowe your Spirits, until you have overcome him, at leastwise have so much of him as will serve your turn. I know you were always a quick and pressing Disputant in Logick and Philosophy, which makes me think your Genius is fit for Law, (as the Baron your excellent Father was) for a good Logician makes always a good Lawyer : And hereby one may give a strong conjecture of the aptness or ineptitude of ones capacity to that study and profession ; and you know as well as I, that Logicians who went under the name of Sophisters, were the first Lawyers that ever were.

I shall be upon incertain removes hence, until I come to Rouen in France, and there I mean to cast Anchor a good while ; I shall expect your Letters there with impatience. I pray present my Service to Sir James Altham, and to my good Lady, your Mother, with the rest to whom it is due in Bishopsgate-Street, and elsewhere : So I am

Yours in the best degree of Friendship,

Hague, 30. of May,
1619.

J. H.

X.

To Sir James Crofts : From the Hague.

S I R,

THE same observance that a Father may challenge of his child, the like you may claim of me, in regard of the extraordinary care you have been pleas'd to have always, since I had the happiness to know you, of the course of my Fortunes.

I am now newly come to the Hague, the Court of the six (and almost seven) Confederated Provinces ; the Council of State with the Prince of Orange, makes his firm Residence here, unless he be upon a march, and in motion for some design abroad. This Prince (Maurice) was cast in a mould suitable to the temper of this people: He is slow and full of wariness, and not without a mixture of fear, I do not mean a pusillanimous, but polittick fear : He is the most constant in the quotidian course and carriage of his life, of any that I have ever heard or read of ; for whosoever knows the customs of the Prince of Orange, may tell what he is a doing here every hour of the day, though he be in Constantinople. In the morning he awaketh about six in Summer, and seven in Winter ; the first thing he doth, he sends one of his Grooms or Pages, to see how

how the wind sits, and he wears or leaves off his Wascot accordingly, then he is about an hour dressing himself, and about a quarter of an hour in his Closet, then comes in the Secretary, and if he hath any private or publick Letters to write, or any other dispatches to make, he doth it before he stirs from his Chamber; then comes he abroad, and goes to his Stables if it be no Sermon-day, to see some of his Gentlemen or Pages (of whose breeding he is very careful) ride the great Horse: He is very accessible to any that hath business with him, and sheweth a winning kind of familiarity, for he will shake hands with the meanest Boor of the Country, and he seldom hears any Commander or Gentleman with his Hat on: He dines punctually about twelve, and his Table is free for all comers, but none under the degree of a Captain useth to sit down at it: After dinner he stays in the Room a good while, and then any one may accost him, and tell his Tale; then he retires to his Chamber, where he answers all Petitions that were delivered him in the Morning, and towards the Evening, if he goes not to Counsel, which is seldom, he goes either to make some visits, or to take the Air abroad, and according to this constant Method he passeth his Life.

There are great stirs like to arise betwixt the Bohemians, and the elected King the Emperour, and they are come already to that height, that they consult of deposing him, and to chuse some Protestant Prince to be their King, some talk of the Duke of Saxony, others of the Palsgrave: I believe the States here, would rather be for the latter, in regard of conformity of Religion, the other being a Lutheran.

I could not find in Amsterdam a large Ortelius in French, to send you, but from Antwerp I will not fail to serve you.

So wishing you all happiness and health, and that the Sun may make many progresses more through the Zodiac, before those comely gray hairs of yours go to the grave, I rest

Your very humble servant,

J. H.

June the 3. 1619.

XI.

To Captain Francis Bacon, at the Glass-house in Broadstreet.

S I R,

MY last to you was from Amsterdam, since which time I have travers'd the prime parts of the United Provinces, and I am now in Zealand, being newly come to this Town of Middleborough, which is much crest-faln since the Staple of English

English Cloth was removed hence, as is Flishing also her next Neighbor, since the departure of the English Garrison: A good intelligent Gentleman told me the manner how Flishing and the Brill, our two cautionary Towns here were redeem'd, which were thus: The nine hundred and odd Soldiers at Flishing and the Rammakins hard by, being many weeks without their pay, they borrow'd divers sums of Money of the States of this Town, who finding no hopes of supply from England, Advice was sent to the States-General at the Hague, they consulting with Sir Ralph Winwood our Ambassador (who was a favorable Instrument unto them in this Business, as also in the Match with the Palsgrave) sent Instructions to the Lord Caroon, to acquaint the Earl of Suffolk (then Lord Treasurer) herewith; and in case they could find no satisfaction there, to make his Address to the King himself, which Caroon did, His Majesty being much incens'd, that his Subjects and Soldiers should starve for want of their pay in a Foreign Country, sent for the Lord Treasurer, who drawing His Majesty aside, and telling how empty his Exchequer was, His Majesty told the Ambassador, that if his Masters the States would pay the Money they ow'd him upon those Towns, he would deliver them up; the Ambassador returning the next Day, to know whether his Majesty persisted in the same resolution, in regard that at his former Audience, he perceived him to be a little transported, His Majesty answered, That he knew the States of Holland to be his good Friends and Confederates, both in point of Religion and Policy; therefore he apprehended not the least fear of any difference, that should fall out between them, in contemplation whereof, if they desir'd to have their Towns again, he would willingly surrender them: Hereupon the States made up the Sum presently, which came in convenient time, for it serv'd to defray the expenceful progress he made to Scotland, the summer following. When that Money was lent by Queen Elizabeth, it was Articled, that Interest should be paid upon Interest; and besides, that for every Gentleman who should lose his Life in the States Service, they should make good five pounds to the Crown of England: All this his Majesty remitted, and only took the Principal; and this was done in requital of that Princely Entertainment, and great Presents, which my Lady Elizabeth had received in divers of their Towns, as she pass'd to Heydelberg.

The Bearer hereof, is Seign. Antonio Miotti, who was Master of a Crystal-Glass Furnace here a long time, and as I have it by good Intelligence, he is one of the ablest, and most knowing Men, for the Guidance of a Glass-Work in Christendom; Therefore according to my Instructions I send him over, and hope to have done

done Sir Robert good service thereby. So with my kind respects unto you, and my most humble Service where you know it is due, I rest

June the 6.
1619.

Your affectionate Servant,
J. H.

XII.

To Sir James Crofts. Antwerp.

S I R,

I Presume that my last to you from the Hague came to safe hand. I am now come to a more cheerful Country, and amongst a People somewhat more vigorous and metal'd, being not so heavy as the Hollander, or homely as they of Zealand. This goodly ancient City methinks looks like a disconsolate Widow, or rather some superannuated Virgin, that hath lost her Lover, being almost quite bereft of that flourishing Commerce, wherewith before the falling off of the rest of the Provinces from Spain, she abounded, to the envy of all other Cities and Marts of Europe. There are few places on this side the Alps better built, and so well Streeted as this, and none at all so well girt with Bastions and Ramparts, which in some places are so spacious, that they usually take the Air in Coaches upon the very Walls, which are beautified with divers rows of Trees and pleasant Walks. The Citadel here tho' it be an addition to the State-lines and strength of the Town, yet it serves as a shrewd Curb unto her, which makes her chomp upon the Bit, and Foam sometimes with anger, but she cannot help it. The Tumults in Bohemia now grow hotter and hotter, they write how the great Council at Prague fell to such a hurlyburly, that some of those Senators who adher'd to the Emperor, were thrown out at the Windows, where some were maim'd, some broke their Necks. I am shortly to bid farewell to the Neatherlands, and to bend my course for France, where I shall be most ready to entertain any Commands of yours. So may all Health and Happiness attend you, according to the wishes of July 5. 1619.

Your obliged Servant,
J. H.

XIII.

To Dr. Tho. Richard at Oxford. From Rouen.

I Have now taken firm footing in France, and tho' France be one of the chiefest Climates of Complement, yet I can use none towards you, but tell you in plain downright Language, That in the list of those Friends I left behind me in England, you are one of the prime Rank, one whose name I have mark'd with the whited Stone: If you have gain'd such a place amongst the choicest Friends of mine, I hope you will put me somewhere amongst yours, though I but fetch up the Rear, being contented to be the infima species, the lowest in the predicament of your Friends.

I shall sojourn a good while in this City of Rouen, therefore I pray make me happy with the comfort of your Letters, which I shall expect with a longing impatience: I pray send me ample advertisement of your welfare, and of the rest of our Friends, as well upon the Banks of Isis, as amongst the British Mountains. I am but a fresh-man yet in France, therefore I can send you no news, but that all is here quiet, and 'tis no ordinary news that the French should be quiet: But some think this Calm will not last long, for the Queen Mother, (late Regent) is discontented being restrain'd from coming to the Court, or to the City of Paris, and the Tragical death of her Favourite, (and Foster-Brother) the late Marquis of Ancre, lieth yet in her stomach undigested: She hath the Duke of Aspernon, and divers other potent Princes, that would be strongly at her devotion (as 'tis thought) if she would stir. I pray present my service to Sir Eubule Theloall, and send me word with what pace, Jesus College new Walls go up: I will borrow my conclusion to you at this time of my Countryman Owen.

*Uno non possum quantum te diligo versu
Dicere, si satis est distichon, ecce duos.
I cannot in one Verse my Love declare,
If two will serve the turn, lo here they are.*

Whereunto I will add this surname Anagram.

Tours whole,
J. Howel.

Aug. 6. 1619.

XIV.

To Dan. Caldwell Esq; from Rouen.

MY deer Dan. when I came first to this Town, among other objects of contentment which I found here, whereof there are variety, a Letter of yours was brought me, and 'twas a She-Letter, for two more were enwomb'd in her Body, she had an easie and quick deliverance of that Twin; but besides them, she was big and pregnant of divers sweet pledges, and lively evidences of your own Love towards me, whereof I am as fond as any Mother

Mother can be of her Child: I shall endeavour to cherish and foster this dear love of yours, with all the tenderness that can be, and warm it at the fuel of my best affections, to make it grow every day stronger and stronger, until it comes to the state of perfection, because I know it is a true and real, it is no spurious or adulterated love; If I intend to be so indulgent and careful of yours, I hope you will not suffer mine to starve with you; my Love to you needs not much tending, for it is a lusty strong love, and will not easily miscarry.

I pray when you write next, to send me a dozen pair of the best white Kidskin Gloves the Royal Exchange can afford; as also two pair of the purest white worsted Stockings you can get of Women size, together with half a dozen pair of Knives. I pray send your Man with them to Vacandary the French Post upon Tower-hill, who will bring them me safely. When I go to Paris, I shall send you some Curiosities, equivalent to these; I have here inclos'd return'd an answer to those two that came in yours, I pray see them safely delivered. My kind respects to your Brother Serjeant at Court, to all at Battersey, or any where else, where you think my Commendations may be well plac'd.

No more at this time, but that I recommend you to the never failing Providence of God, desiring you to go on in nourishing still between us, that love, which for my part,

*No Traverses of Chance, of Time, or Fate,
Shall ere extinguish till our lives last date:
But as the Vine her lovely Elm doth wire,
Grasp both our Hearts, and flame with fresh desire.*

Rouen, Aug.
13. 1619.

Yours J. H.

XV.

To my Father, from Rouen.

S I R,

Yours of the third of August, came to safe hand in an enclos'd from my Brother, you may make easie conjecture how welcome it was unto me, and to what a height of comfort it rais'd my Spirits, in regard it was the first I received from you, since I cross'd the Seas, I humbly thank you for the Blessing you sent along with it.

I am now upon the fair Continent of France, One of Nature's choicest Master-pieces; one of Ceres chiefest Barns for Corn; one of Bacchus prime Wine-Cellars, and of Neptunes best Salt-pits; a compleat self-sufficient Country, where there is rather a superfluity, than defect of any thing, either for necessity or pleasure, did the policy of the Country correspond with the bounty of Nature, in the equal distribution of the Wealth amongst the Inhabitants; for I think there is not upon the Earth a richer Country and poorer People. 'Tis true, England hath a good repute abroad for her fertility, yet be our Harvests never so kindly, and our Crops never so plentiful, we have every Year commonly some Grain from thence, or from Danzic, and other places imported by the Merchant: Besides, there be many more Heaths, Commons, Bleak Barren-Hills, and waste-Grounds in England, by many degrees, than I find here; and I am sorry our Country of Wales, should give more Instances hereof, than any other part.

This Province of Normandy, once an Appendix of the Crown of England, tho' it want Wine, yet it yields the King as much Def-mans as any one of the rest: The lower Norman hath Syder for his common Drink; and I visibly observ'd, that they are more plump and replet in their Bodies, and of a clearer complexion than those that drink altogether Wine. In this great City of Rouen, there be many Monuments of the English Nation yet extant. In the outside of the highest Steeple of the great Church there is the word of GOD engraven in huge Golden Characters, every one almost as long as my self to make them the more visible. In this Steeple hangs also the greatest Bell of Christendom, call'd d' Amboise, for it weighs near upon forty thousand pound weight. There is also here Saint Oen, the greatest Sanctuary in the City, founded by one of our Compatriots, as the name imports: This Province is also subject to Wardships, and no other part of France besides: But whether the Conqueror transported that Law to England from hence, or whether he sent it over from England hither, I cannot resolve you. There is a marvellous quick Trade beaten in this Town, because of the great Navigable River Se-quana (the Seine) that runs hence to Paris, whereon there stands a strange Bridge that ebbs and flows, that rises and falls with the River, it being made of Boats, whereon Coach and Carts may pass over as well as Men: Besides, this is the nearest Mercantil City that stands twixt Paris and the Sea.

My last unto you was from the Low-Countries, where I was in motion to and fro above four Months; but I fear it miscarried, in regard you make no mention of it in yours.

I begin more and more to have a sense of the sweetness and advantage of foreign Travel: I pray when you come to London, to find a time to visit Sir Robert, and acknowledge his great Favours

yours unto me, and desire a continuance thereof, according as I shall endeavour to deserve them. So with my due and daily Prayers for your Health, and a speedy successful issue of all your Law-busineses, I humbly crave your Blessing, and rest,

Your dutiful Son,

Septemb. the 7th, 1619.

J. H.

XVI.

To Captain Francis Bacon, from Paris.

S I R,

I Received two of yours in Rouen with the Bills of Exchange, there inclos'd, and according to your directions, I sent you those things which you wrote for.

I am now newly come to Paris, this huge Magazine of Men, the Epitome of this large populous Kingdom, and rendezvous of all Foreigners. The Structures here are indifferently fair, though the Streets generally foul all the four Seasons of the Year, which I impute first to the Position of the City, being built upon an Isle (the Isle of France, made so by the branching and serpentine course of the River of Seine) and having some of her Suburbs seated high, the filth runs down the Channel, and settles in many places within the body of the City, which lieth upon a flat; as also for a world of Coaches, Carts and Horses of all sorts that go to and fro perpetually, so that some times one shall meet with a stop half a mile long of those Coaches, Carts and Horses, that can move neither forward nor backward by reason of some sudden encounter of others coming a cross-way; so that oftentimes it will be an hour or two before they can dis-intangle: In such a stop the great Henry was so fatally slain by Ravillac. Hence comes it to pass, that this Town, (for Paris is a Town, a City, and an University) is always dirty, and 'tis such a dirt, that by perpetual motion is beaten into such a thick black unctious Oyl, that where it sticks, no Art can wash it off of some colours, insomuch that it may be no improper comparison to say, That an ill name is like the Crot, (the dirt) of Paris, which is indelible; besides the stink this dirt leaves, it gives also so strong a scent, that it may be smelt many miles off, if the wind be in ones face as he comes from the fresh Air of the Country: This may be one cause why the Court is always in some corner or other of this vast City, which now is call'd as once Scythia was, Vagina populorum, or (as mankind is call'd by a great Philosopher) a great Mole-hill of Ants: But I believe this City is not so populous as she seems to be, but her from being round (as the whole Kingdom is) the Passengers wheel about, and meet oftner than they us'd to do in the long continued Streets of London, which makes London appear less populous than she is indeed, so that London for length (though not for latitude) including Westminster, exceeds Paris, and hath in Michaelmas Term more Souls moving within her in all places. 'Tis under one hundred Years that Paris is become so sumptuous, and strong in Buildings; for her Houses were mean until a Mine of White Stone was discover'd hard by, which runs in a continued Vein of Earth, and is digg'd out with ease being soft, and is between a White Clay and Chalk at first, but being pullied up, with the open Air it receives a Crusty kind of hardness, and so becomes perfect Free-stone; and before it is sent up from the Pit, they can reduce it to any form: Of this Stone the Louvre, the King's Palace is built, which is a vast Fabric, for the Gallery wants not much of an Italian mile in length, and will easily lodge 3000 Men, which some told me, was the end for which the last King made it so big, that lying at the fag end of this great mutinous City, if she perchance should rise, the King might powre out of the Louvre so many thousand Men unawares into the heart of her.

I am lodg'd here hard by the Bastile, because it is furthest off from those places where the English resort; for I would go on to get a little Language as soon as I could. In my next, I shall impart unto you what State-news France affords, in the interim, and always I am,

Your humble Servant,

J. H.

Paris the 30. of March, 1620.

XVII.

To Richard Altham Esquire, from Paris.

Dear Sir,

Love is the Marrow of Friendship, and Letters are the Elixir of Love; they are the best fuel of affection, and cast a sweeter Odour than any Frankincense can do; such an odour, such an Aromatick perfume your late Letter brought with it, proceeding from the fragrancy of those dainty Flowers of Eloquence, which I found blossoming as it were in every Line; I mean those sweet Expressions of Love and Wit, which in every period were intermingled with so much Art, that they seem'd to contend for Mastery which was the strongest: I must confess, that you put me to hard shifts to correspond with you in such exquisit strains and pressures of Love, which were so lively, that I must needs judge them to proceed from the motions, from the Diastole and Systole of a Heart truly affected ; certainly your Heart did dictate every Syllable you writ, and guided your Hand all along : Sir, give me leave to tell you, that not a dram, nor a doze, not a scruple of this precious Love of yours is lost, but is safely treasur'd up in my Breast and answer'd in like proportion to the full, mine to you is as cordial, it is passionate and perfect as Love can be.

I thank you for the desire you have to know how it fares with me abroad ; I thank God I am perfectly well, and well contented with this wandering course of Life a while, I never enjoy'd my health better, but I was like to endanger it two nights ago ; for being in some jovial Company abroad, and coming late to our Lodging, we were suddenly surprized by a crew of Filous of night Rogues, who drew upon us, and as we had exchang'd some blows, it pleas'd God the Chevalieur de Guet, an Officer, who goes up and down the Streets all night a Horseback to prevent disorders, pass'd by, and so rescu'd us ; but Jack White was hurt, and I had two thrusts in my Cloak. There's never a night passeth, but some Robbing or Murther is committed in this Town, so that it is not safe to go late any where, specially about the Pont-Neuf, the New Bridge, though Henry the Great himself lies Centinel there in Arms, upon a huge Florentine Horse, and sits bare to every one that passeth, an improper posture methinks for a King on Horseback : not long since, one of the Secretaries of State (whereof there are here always four) having been invited to the Suburbs of Saint *Germain*s to Supper, left order with one of his Lacqueys to bring him his Horse about nine ; it so happen'd, that a mischance befel the Horse, which lam'd him as he went a warring to the Seine, insomuch that the Secretary was put to beat the hoof himself, and Foot it home ; but as he was passing the Pont-Neuf with his Laquay carrying a Torch before him, he might ore-hear a noise of clashing of Swords and Fighting, and looking under the Torch, and perceiving they were but two, he bad his Laquay go on ; they had not made many paces, but two armed Men with their Pistols cock'd and Swords drawn, made puffing towards them, whereof one had a Paper in his Hand, which he said, he had casually took up in the Streets, and the difference between them was about that Paper ; therefore they desir'd the Secretary to read it, with a great deal of complement ; the Secretary took out his Spectacles, and fell a reading of the said Paper, whereof the substance was, That it should be known to all Men, that whosoever did pass over that Bridge after nine a Clock at night in Winter, and ten in Summer, was to leave his Cloak behind him, and in case of no Cloak, his Hat. The Secretary starting at this, one of the Camerades told him, That he thought that Paper concern'd him ; so they unmantled him of a new plush Cloak, and my Secretary was content to go home quietly, and en Cuerpo. This makes me think often of the excellent Nocturnal Government of our City of London, where one may pass and repass securely all hours of the night, if he give good words to the Watch. There is a gentle calm of Peace now throughout all France, and the King intends to make a progress to all the Frontier Towns of the Kingdom, to see how they are fortified. The Favourite Luines strengthneth himself more and more in his minionship, but he is much murmured at, in regard the access of Suitors to him is so difficult, which made a Lord of this Land say, That three of the hardest things in the World were, To quadrat a Circle, to find out the Philosophers Stone, and to speak with Duke of Luines.

I have sent you by Vacandary the Post, the French Bever and Tweezes you writ for: Bever-hats are grown dearer of late, because the Jesuits have got the Monopoly of them from the King.

Farewel dear Child of Vertue and Minion of the Muses, and continue to love

Your J. H.

Paris 1 of May, 1620.

XVIII.

To Sir James Crofts, from Paris.

S I R,

I Am to set forward this week for Spain, and if I can find no commodity of imbarcation at St. Malo's, I must be forc'd to journey it all the way by Land, and clamber up the huge Pyrencey Hills, but I could not bid Paris adieu, till I had conveyed my true and constant Respects to you by this Letter. I was yesterday to wait upon Sir Herbert Croft at St. Germain's, where I met with a French Gentleman, who amongst other Curiosities, which he pleased to shew me up and down Paris, brought me to that place where the late King was slain, and to that where the Marquis of Ancre was shot, and so made me a punctual relation of all the circumstances of those two acts, which in regard they were rare, and I believe two of the notablest Accidents that ever happen'd in France, I thought it worth the labour to make you partaker of some part of his Discourse.

France, as all Christendom besides (for there was then a truce betwixt Spain and the Hollander) was in a profound Peace, and had continued so twenty years together, when Henry the Fourth fell upon some great Martial design, the bottom whereof is not known to this day; and being rich (for he had heap'd up in the Bastile a mount of Gold that was as high as a Lance) he levied a huge Army of 40000 men, whence came the Song, The King of France with forty thousand men; and upon a sudden he put this Army in perfect Equipage, and some say he invited our Prince Henry to come unto him to be a sharer in his Exploits; but going one afternoon to the Bastile, to see his Treasure and Ammunition, his Coach stopp'd suddenly by reason of some Colliers and other Carts that were in that narrow Street, whereupon one Ravillac a lay-Jesuit, (who had a whole twelve month watch'd an opportunity to do the act) put his foot boldly upon one of the wheels of the Coach, and with a long Knife stretch'd himself over their Shoulders who were in the Boot of the Coach, and reach'd the King at the end, and stab'd him right in the left side to the Heart, and pulling out the fatal Steel, he doubled his thrust; the King with a ruthless voice cried out Je suis blesse (I am hurt) and suddenly the blood issued at his mouth? The Regicide Villain was apprehended, and command given, that no violence should be offer'd him, that he might be reserv'd for the Law, and some exquisite Torture. The Queen grew half distracted hereupon, who had been crown'd Queen of France the day before in great triumph? but a few days after she had something to countervail, if not to overmatch her Sorrow; for according to St. Lewis's Law, she was made Queen Regent of France during the King's Minority, who was then about ten years of Age. Many Consultations were held how to punish Ravillac, and there were some Italian Physicians that undertook to prescribe a Torment, that should last a constant torment for three days, but he scap'd only with this, His body was pull'd between four horses, that one might hear his Bones crack, and after the dislocation, they were set again, and so he was carried in a Cart standing half naked, with a Torch in the hand which had committed the murther; and in the place where the act was done, it was cut off, and a Gauntlet of hot Oyl was clap'd upon the Stump, to stanch the blood, whereat he gave a doleful shriek, then was he brought upon a Stage, where a new pair of Boots was provided for him, half fill'd with boyling Oyl, then his body was pincer'd, and hot Oyl pour'd into the holes; in all the extremity of this torture, he scarce shew'd any sense of pain, but when the Gauntlet was clap'd upon his Arms to stanch the Flux, at which time he was reaking in blood, gave a shriek only; He bore up against all these torments about three hours before he dyed: all the Confession that could be drawn from him, was, That he thought to have done God good service, to take away that King, which would have embroil'd all Christendom in an endless War.

Bastile

A fatal thing it was, that France should have three of her Kings come

come to such violent Deaths, in so short a revolution of time. Henry the Second running at Tilt with Monfieur Montgomery, was kill'd by a splinter of a Lance that pierc'd his Eye: Henry the Third, not long after, was kill'd by a young Fryer, who in lieu of a Letter which he pretended to have for him, pull'd out of his long Sleeve a Knife, and thrust him into the bottom of the Belly, as he was coming from his Close-stool, and so dispatch'd him; but the Regicide was hack'd to pieces in the place by the Nobles: The same Destiny attended this King by Ravillac, which is become now a common name of Reproach and Infamy in France.

Never was King so much lamented as this, there are a world not only of his Pictures, but Statues up and down France, and there's scarce a Market-Town, but hath him erected in the Market-place, or o'er some Gate, not upon Sign-posts, as our Henry the Eighth, and by a publick Act of Parliament which was confirmed in the Consistory at Rome, was entitled Henry the Great, and so plac'd in the Temple of Immortality. A notable Prince he was, and of an admirable temper of Body and Mind; he had a graceful facetious way to gain both love and awe, he would be never transported beyond himself with choler, but he would pass by any thing with some repartee, some witty strain, wherein he was excellent; I will instance in a few which were told me from a good hand. One day he was charg'd by the Duke of Briillon to have chang'd his Religion, he answer'd, No Cousin, I have chang'd no Religion, but an Opinion; and the Cardinal of Perron being by, he enjoyn'd him to write a Treatise for his Vindication, the Cardinal was long about the Work, and when the King ask'd from time to time where his Book was, he would still answer him, That he expected some Manuscripts from Rome before he could finish it. It happen'd, that one day the King took the Cardinal along with him to look on his Workmen, and new Buildings at the Louvre, and passing by one corner which had been a long time begun, but left unfinished. The King ask'd the chief Mason, why that corner was not all this while perfected? Sir, it is because I want some choice Stones; no, no, said the King, looking upon the Cardinal, It is because thou wantest Manuscripts from Rome. Another time, the old Duke of Main, who was used to play the drol with him, coming softly into his Bed-chamber, and thrusting in his Bald-head, and Long-neck, in a posture to make the King merry, it happened the King was coming from doing his Ease, and spying him, he took the round Cover of the Close-stool, and clap'd it on his Bald-Sconce, saying, Ah Cousin, you thought once to have taken the Crown off of my head, and wear it on your own, but this of my Tail shall now serve your turn. Another

Another time, when at the Siege of Amiens, he having sent for the Count of Soissons (who had 100000 Franks a Year Pension from the Crown) to assist him in those Wars, and that the Count excused himself by reason of his Years, and Poverty, having exhausted himself in the former Wars, and all that he could do now, was to pray for his Majesty, which he would do heartily. This answer being brought to the King, he replied, Will my Cousin, the Count of Soissons do nothing else but pray for me, tell him that Prayer without Fasting, is not available; therefore I will make my Cousin Fast also, from his Pension of 100000 Franks per Annum.

He was once troubled with a fit of the Gout, and the Spanish Ambassador coming then to visit him, and saying, he was sorry to see his Majesty so lame, he answered, As lame as I am, if there were occasion, your Master the King of Spain, should no sooner have his foot in the Stirrop, but he should find me on Horse-back.

By these few you may guess at the Genius of this sprightly Prince. I could make many more Instances, but then I should exceed the bounds of a Letter. When I am in Spain you shall hear further from me, and if you can think on any thing wherein I may serve you, believe it Sir, that any employment from you, shall be welcom to 1620.*

Your much obliged Servant,

*Paris 12. of May,

J. H.

XIX.

To my Brother Dr. Howel.

BROTHER,

BEing to morrow to part with Paris, and begin my Journey for Spain, I thought it not amiss to send you this, in regard I know not when I shall have opportunity to write unto you again.

This Kingdom since the young King hath taken the Scepter into his own hands, doth flourish very much with Quietness and Commerce; nor is there any motion or the least tintamar of trouble in any part of the Country, which is rare in France. 'Tis true, the Queen Mother is discontented since she left her Regency, being confin'd, and I know not what it may come unto in time, for she hath a strong Party, and the murdering of her Marquis of Ancre will yet bleed as some fear.

I was lately in society of a Gentleman, who was a Spectator of that Tragedy, and he pleas'd to relate unto me the particulars of it, which was thus: When Henry the Fourth was slain, the Queen Dowager took the Reins of the Government into her hands during the young King's Minority; and amongst others whom she advanc'd, Signior Conchino, a Florentin, and her Foster-Brother was one; Her Countenance came to shine so strongly upon him, that he became her only confident and favourite, inso-much, that she made him Marquis of Ancre, one of the twelve Marshals of France, Governor of Normandy, and conferred divers other Honours and Offices of trust upon him, and who but he: The Princes of France could not endure this domineering of a Stranger, therefore they leagu'd together to suppress him by Arms; the Queen Regent having Intelligence hereof, surprized the Prince of Conde, and clap'd him up in the Bastile; the Duke of Main fled hereupon to Peronne in Picardy, and other Great Men put themselves in an armed posture, to stand upon their guard: The young King being told, that the Marquis of Ancre was the ground of this Discontentment, commanded Monsieur de Vitry, Captain of his Guard, to Arrest him, and in case of resistance, to kill him. This Business was carried very closely till the next Morning that the said Marquis was coming to the Louvre with a ruffling train of Gallants after him, and passing over the Draw-bridge at the Court-Gate, Vitry stood there with the King's Guards about him, and as the Marquis entred, he told him, that he had a Commission from the King to apprehend him, therefore he demanded his Sword: the Marquis hereupon put his hand upon his Sword, some thought to yield it up, others to make opposition; in the mean time Vitry discharg'd a Pistol at him, and so dispatch'd him: The King being above in his Gallery, ask'd what noise that was below, one smilingly answered, nothing, Sir, but that the Marshal of Ancre is slain; who slew him? the Captain of your Guard: why? Because he would have drawn his Sword at your Majesty's Royal Commission: Then the King replied, Vitry hath done well, and I will maintain the act: Presently the Queen Mother had all her Guard taken from her, except six Men and sixteen Women, and so she was banished Paris, and commanded to retire to Blois. Ancre's Body was buried that night in a Church hard by the Court; but the next morning when the Lacqueys and Pages, (who are more unhappy here than the Apprentices in London) broke up his Grave, tore his Coffin to pieces, rip'd the Winding-Sheet, and tied his Body to an Ass's Tail, and so dragg'd him up and down the Gutters of Paris, which are none of the Sweetest; they then slic'd off his Ears, and nail'd them upon the Gates of the City; they cut off his Genitories (and they say he was hung like an Ass) and sent them for a Present to the Duke of Main, the rest of his Body they carried to the New-Bridge, and hung him his Heels upwards, and Head downwards upon a new Gibbet that had been set up a little before to punish them who should speak ill of the present Government, and it was his chance to have the Maiden-head of it himself: His Wife was hereupon apprehended, imprisoned, and beheaded for a Witch some few days after, upon a surmise that she had enchanted the Queen to doat so upon her Husband; and they say, the young king's Picture was found in her Closet in Virgin-Wax, with one leg melted away; a little after a Process was formed against the Marquis (her Husband) and so he was condemn'd after death. This was a right act of a French popular fury, which like an angry torrent is irresistible, nor can any Banks, Boundaries, or Dikes, stop the impetuous rage of it. How the young King will prosper after so high, and an unexampled act of violence, by beginning his Reign, and embruing the Walls of his own Court with blood in that manner, there are divers censures.

Queen

When I am settled in Spain, you shall hear from me, in the interim, I pray let your Prayers accompany me in this long journey, and when you write to Wales, I pray acquaint our Friends with my welfare. So I pray God bless us both, and send us a happy interview,

Paris, 8 Septemb.
1620.

Your Loving Brother,
J. H.

XX.

To my Cousin W. Vaughan Esq; from St. Malo.

Cousin,

I Am now in French Britany, I went back from Paris to Rouen, and so through all low Normandy, to a little Port call'd Granville, where I embark'd for this Town of St. Malo, but I did purge so violently at Sea, that it put me into a burning Fever for some few days, whercof (I thank God) I am newly recovered, and finding no opportunity of Shipping here, I must be forc'd to turn my intended Sea-voyage to a long Land-journey.

Since I came to this Province, I was curious to converse with some of the lower Bretons, who speak no other Language but our Welsh, for their radical words are no other, but 'tis no wonder, for they were a Colony of Welsh at first, as the Name of this Province doth imply, as also the Latin name Armorica, which though it pass for Latin, yet it is but pure Welsh, and signifies a Country bordering up the Sea, as that Arch-heretick was call'd Pelagius, a Pelago, his name being Morgan. I was a little curious to peruse peruse the Annals of this Province, and during the time that it was a Kingdom, there were four Kings of the name Hoel, whereof one was called Hoel the Great.

This Town of St. Malo hath one Rarity in it, for there is here a perpetual Garrison of English, but they are of English Dogs, which are let out in the night to guard the Ships, and eat the Carrens up and down the Streets, and so they are shut up again in the Morning.

It will be now a good while before I shall have conveniency to send to you, or receive from you; howsoever, let me retain still some little room in your memory, and sometimes in your meditations, while I carry you about me perpetually, not only in my Head, but in Heart, and make you travel all along with me thus from Town to Country, from Hill to Dale, from Sea to Land, up and down the World; and you must be contented to be subject to these incertain removes and perambulations, until it shall please God to fix me again in England: nor need you, while you are thus my concomitant through new places every day, to fear any ill usage, as long as I fare well.

St. Malo, 25 of Sept.
1620.

Yours χρησταις κὶ κλησταις
J. H.

XXI.

To Sir John North, Knight; from Rochel.

S I R,

I Am newly come to Rochel, nor am I sorry that I went somewhat out of my way to see this Town, not (to tell you true) out of any extraordinary love I bear to the People; for I do not find them so gentle and debonair to Strangers, nor so Hospitable as the rest of France, but I excuse them for it, in regard it is commonly so with all Republick and Hans Towns, whereof this smels very rank; nor indeed hath any Englishman much cause to love this Town, in regard in Ages past, she play'd the most treacherous part with England of any other place in France. For the Story tells us, That this Town having by a perfidious Stratagem (by forging a counterfeit Commission from England) induc'd the English Governour to make a general muster of all his Forces out of the Town; this being one day done, they shut their Gates against him, and made him go shake his Ears, and to shift for his Lodging, and so rendred themselves to the French King, who sent them a Blank to write their own Conditions. I think they have the strongest Ramparts by Sea of any place of Christendom, nor have have I seen the like in any Town of Holland, whose safety depends upon Water. I am bound to morrow for Bordeaux, then through Gascony, to Tholouse, so through Languedoc ore the Hills to Spain; I go in the best season of the Year, for I make an Autumnal journey of it. I pray let your Prayers accompany me all along, they are the best Officers of Love, and Fruits of Friendship: So God prosper you at home, as me abroad, and send us in good time a joyful conjuncture.

Rochel, 8. of Octob. 1620.

Yours, J. H.

XXII.

To Mr. Tho. Porter, after Capt. Porter, from Barcelona.

MY dear Tom. I had no sooner set Foot upon this Soyl, and breath'd Spanish Air, but my Thoughts presently reflected upon you: Of all my Friends in England, you were the first I met here, you were the prime Object of my Speculation, methought the very Winds in gentle whispers did breath out your name and blow it on me; you seem'd to reverberate upon me with the beams of the Sun, which you know hath such a powerful influence, and indeed too great a stroke in this Country: And all this you must ascribe to the operations of Love, which hath such a strong virtual force, that when it fastneth upon a pleasing Subject, it sets the Imagination in a strange fit of working; it employs all the faculties of the Soul, so that not one Cell in the Brain is idle, it busieth the whole inward Man, it affects the Heart amuseth the Understanding, it quickneth the fancy, and leads the Will as it were by a silken thread to cooperate with them all: I have felt these motions often in me, specially at this time, that my Memory fixed upon you: But the reason that I fell first upon you in Spain, was, that I remembred I had heard you often discoursing how you have received part of your Education here, which brought you to speak the Language so exactly well: I think often of the Relations I have heard you make of this Country, and the good instructions you pleas'd to give me.

I am now in Barcelona, but the next week I intend to go on through your Town of Valencia to Alicant, and thence you shall be sure to hear from me further, for I make account to Winter there. The Duke of Offuna pass'd by here lately, and having got leave of his Grace to release some Slaves, he went aboard the Cape-Galley, and passing through the Churma of Slaves, he ask'd divers of them what their offences were, every one excus'd himself, one one saying, That he was put in out of malice, another by bribery of the Judge, but all of them unjustly; amongst the rest, there was one sturdy little black Man, and the Duke asking him what he was in for; Sir, said he, I cannot deny but I am justly put in here, for I wanted money, and so took a Purse hard by Tarragona, to keep me from starving. The Duke with a little Staff he had in his Hand, gave him two or three blows upon the Shoulders, saying, You Rogue, what do you do amongst so many honest innocent men? get you gone out of their company; so he was freed, and the rest remain'd still in statu quo prius, to tug at the Oar.

I pray commend me to Signior Camillo, and Mazalao, with the rest of the Venetians with you, and when you go aboard the Ship behind the Exchange, think upon

Yours J. H.

Barcelona, 10 of Novemb. 1620.

XXIII.

To Sir James Crofts.

S I R,

I am now a good way within the Body of Spain, at Barcelona, a proud wealthy City, situated upon the Mediterranean, and is the Metropolis of the Kingdom of Catalonia, call'd of old Hispania Tarraconensis: I had much ado to reach hither, for besides the monstrous abruptness of the way, these parts of the Pyrenees that border upon the Mediterranean, are never without Thieves by Land (call'd Bandeleros) and Pyrats on the Sea-side, which lie sculking in the hollows of the Rocks, and often surprize Passengers unawares, and carry them slaves to Barbary on the other side. The safest way to pass, is to take a Bordon in the habit of a Pilgrim, whereof there are abundance that perform their Vows this way to the Lady of Monferrat, one of the prime places of Pilgrimage in Christendom; it is a stupendous Monastery, built on the top of a huge Land-Rock, whither it is impossible to go up, or come down by a direct way, but a path is cut out full of windings and turnings; and on the Crown of this craggy-hill there is a flat, upon which the Monastery and Pilgrimage-place is founded, where there is a Picture of the Virgin Mary, Sun-burnt and Tann'd it seems, when she went to Egypt; and to this Picture a marvelous confluence of People from all parts of Europe resort.

As I pass'd between some of the Pyrencey hills, I observ'd the poor Labradores, some of the Country people live no better then brute Animals in point of Food, for their ordinary Commons is Grass and Water, only they have always within their Houses a Bottle of Vinegar, and another of Oyl, and when Dinner or Supper-time time comes, they go abroad and gather their Herbs, and so cast Vinegar and Oyl upon them, and will pass thus two or three days without Bread or Wine, yet are they strong lusty Men, and will stand stily under a Musket.

There is a Tradition, that there were divers Mines of Gold in Ages past amongst those Mountains: And the Shepherds that kept Goats then, having made a small Fire of Rosemary-stubs, with other combustible stuff to warm themselves, this fire graz'd along, and grew so outrageous, that it consum'd the very Entrails of the Earth, and melted those Mines, which growing fluid by liquefaction, ran down into the small Rivelets that were in the Valleys, and so carried all into the Sea, that monstrous Gulph which swalloweth all, but seldom disgorgeth any thing; and in these Brooks to this day some small Grains of Gold are found.

The Viceroy of this Country hath taken much pains to clear these Hills of Robbers, and there hath been a notable havock made of them this year; for in divers Woods as I pass'd, I might spie some Trees laden with dead Carcases, a better Fruit far then Diogenes Tree bore, whereon a Woman had hang'd her self, which the Cynick cried out to be the best bearing Tree that ever he saw.

In this place there lives neither English Merchant or Factor, which I wonder at, considering that it is a Maritim Town, and one of the greatest in Spain; her chiefest Arsenal for Gallies, and the Scale by which she convoys her Money to Italy; but I believe the reason is, that there is no commodious Port here for Ships of any burthen, but a large Bay. I will inlarge my self no further at this time, but leave you to the guard and guidance of God, whose sweet hand of protection hath brought me through so many uncouth places and difficulties to this City: So hoping to meet your Letters in Alicant, where I shall anchor a good while, I rest

Barcelona, 24. Novemb.
1620.

Yours to dispose of,
J. H.

XXIV.

To Dr. Fr. Mansell; from Valentia.

S I R,

THOUGH it be the same glorious Sun that shines upon you in England, which illuminates also this part of the Hemisphear though it be the Sun that ripeneth your Pippins, and our Pomgranates, your Hops, and our Vineyards here, yet he dispenseth his heat in different degrees of strength; those Rays that do but warm you in England, do half roast us here; those Beams that

C

irradiate

irradiat only, and guild your Honey-suckled fields, do scorch and parch this chinky gaping soil, and so put too many wrinkles upon the Face of our common Mother the Earth. O blest Clime, O happy England where there is such a rare temperature of Heat and Cold, and all the rest of Elementary Qualities, that one may pass (and suffer little) all the Year long without either shade in Summer, or Fire in Winter.

I am now in Valentia, one of the noblest Cities of all Spain, situate in a large Vegue or Valley, above threescore Miles compass, here are the strongest Silks, the sweetest Wines, the excellentst Almonds, the best Oils, and beautifullest Females of all Spain, for the prime Courtisans in Madrid and else-where are had hence; The very Brut Animals make themselves Beds of Rosemary, and other Fragrant Flowers hereabouts; and when one is at Sea, if the Wind blow from the shore, he may smell this soil before he come in sight of it, many leagues off, by the strong odoriferous scent it casts; As it is the most pleasant, so it is also the temperatst Clime of all Spain, and they commonly call it the second Italy, which made the Moors, whereof many thousands were disterr'd and banished hence to Barbary, to think that Paradise was in that part of the Heavens, which hung over this City. Some twelve Miles off, is old Sagunto, call'd now Morviedre, through which I pass'd, and saw many Monuments of Roman Antiquities there; amongst others, there is the Temple dedicated to Venus, when the Snake came about her Neck, a little before Hannibal came thither. No more now, but that I heartily wish you were here with me, and I believe you would not desire to be a good while in England. So I am Valentia, 1. of March, 1620.

Yours J. H.

XXV.

To Christopher Jones, Esq; at Grays-Inn.

I Am now (thanks be to God) come to Alicant, the chief Rendezvous I aim'd at in Spain; for I am to send hence a commodity call'd Barillia to Sir Robert Mansell, for making of Crystal-Glass, and I have treated with Signior Andriotti, a Genoa Merchant for a good round parcel of it, to the value of 2000 Pound, by Letters of credit from Master Richant, and upon his credit, I might have taken many Thousand Pounds more, he is so well known in the Kingdom of Valentia. This Barilla is a strange kind of Vegetable, and it grows no where upon the surface of the Earth, in that perfection, as here: The Venetians have it hence, and it is a commodity whereby this Maritim Town doth partly subsist, for it is an ingredient that goes to the making of the best Castile-Soap. It grows thus, 'tis a round thick Earthy shrub that bears Berries like Barberies, but 'twixt blew and green, it lies close to the ground, and when it is ripe, they dig it up by the roots, and put it together in Cocks, where they leave it to dry many days like Hay, then they make a Pit of a fathom deep in the Earth, and with an Instrument like one of our Prongs, they take the Tuffs and put fire to them, and when the flame comes to the Berries they melt and dissolve into an Azure Liquor, and fall down into the Pit till it be full, then they dam it up, and some days after they open it, and find this Barillia-juice turn'd to a Blew Stone, so hard, that it is scarce Malleable, it is sold at one hundred Crowns a Tun, but I had it for less; there is also a spurious Flower call'd Gazull, that grows here, but the Glass that's made of that is not so resplendent and clear. I have been here now these three Months, and most of my Food hath been Grapes and Bread, with other Roots, which have made me so Fat, that I think if you saw me, you would hardly know me, such nourtriture this deep Sanguin Alicant Grapes gives, I have not receiv'd a syllable from you since I was in Antwerp, which transforms me to wonder, and engenders odd thoughts of Jealousie in me, that as my body grows Fatter, your love grows sanker towards me; I pray take off these scruples, and let me hear from you else it will make a schism in Friendship, which I hold to be a very holy league, and no less then a Piacle to infringe it; in which opinion I rest

Your constant Friend

Alicant, March 27.

J. H.

1621.

XXVI.

To Sir John North, Knight.

S I R,

HAVING endur'd the brunt of a whole Summer in Spain, and tryed the temper of all the other three Seasons of the Year, up and down the Kingdoms of Catalonia, Valentia, and Mercia, with some parts of Aragon, I am now to direct my course for Italy; I hoped to have embark'd at Carthagera, the best Port upon the Mediterranean, for what Ships and Gallies get in thither, are shut up as it were in a Box from the violence and Injury of all Weathers, which made Andrea Doria being asked by Philip the second, which were his best Harbours? He Answer'd, June, July, and Carthagera, meaning that any Port is good in those two Months, but Carthagera was good any time of the Year. There was a most ruth-ful accident had happen'd there a little before I came, for whereas five Ships had gone thence laden with Soldiers for Naples, amongst whom there was the Flower of the Gentry of the Kingdom of Murca; those Ships had hardly sail'd three Leagues, but they met with sixteen sails of Algier Men of War, who had lain skulking in the Creeks thereabout, and they had the Winds, and all things else so favourable, that of those five Ships they took one, sunk another, and burnt a third, and two fled back to safe Harbor; the report thereof being bruited up and down the Country, the Gentlewomen came from the Country to have tidings, some of their Children, others of their Brothers, and Kindred, and went tearing their Hair, and houlung up and down the streets in a most piteous manner: the Admiral of those five Ships, as I heard afterwards, was sent for to Madrid, and hang'd at the Court-gate, because he did not fight: Had I come time enough to have taken the opportunity, I might have been made, either food for Hadocks, or turn'd to Cinders, or have been by this time a Slave in the Banner at Algier, or tugging at an Oar; but I hope God hath reserv'd me for a better destiny: so I came back to Alicant, where I lighted upon a lusty Dutchman, who hath carried me safe hither, but we were near upon forty days in the Voyage: We pass'd by Majorca, and Minorca, the Baleares Insula by some Ports of Barbary, by Sardinia, Corfica, and all the Islands of the Mediterranean Sea, we were at the mouth of Tyber, and thence forc'd our course for Sicily; we pass'd by those Sulphureous fiery Islands, Mongibel, and Strombolo, and about the dawn of the day we shot through Scylla and Carybdis, and so into the Phare of Messina, thence we touch'd upon some of the Greek Islands, and so came to our first intended course, into the Venetian Gulph, and are now here at Malamocca, where we remain yet aboard, and must be content to be so, to make up the month before we have pratic, that is, before any be permitted to go a shore, and negotiate, in regard we touch'd at some infected places: For there are no People upon Earth so fearful of the Plague, as the Italians, especially the Venetian, though their Neighbours the Greeks hard by, and the Turks, have little or no apprehension at all of the danger of it, for they will visit and commerce with the sick without any scruple, and will fix their longest finger in the midst of their Forehead, and say, Their destiny and manner of death is pointed there. When we have gain'd yon Maiden-City, which lieth before us, you shall hear farther from me: So leaving you to his holy protection who hath thus graciously vouchsaf'd to preserve this Ship, and me, in so long and dangerous a Voyage, I rest Malamocca, April the 30. 1621.

Yours, J. H.

XXVII. To

XXVII.

To my Brother Dr. Howel, from a Shipboard before Venice.

BROTHER,

IF this Letter fail either in point of Orthography or Style, you must impute the first to the tumbling posture my Body was in at the writing hereof, being a Shipboard, the second the muddiness of my Brain, which like Lees in a narrow Vessel, hath been shaken at Sea in divers Tempests near upon forty days, I mean natural days, which include the nights also, and are compos'd of four and twenty hours, by which number the Italian computes his Time, and tells his Clock, for at the writing hereof, I heard one from Malamocca strike one and twenty hours: When I shall have saluted yonder Virgin City that stands before me, and hath tantaliz'd me now this sevensnight, I hope to cheer my Spirits, and settle my Pericranium again.

In this Voyage we pass'd thorow, at least touch'd, all those Seas, which Horace and other Poets sing of so often, as the Ionian, the Ægean, the Icarian, the Tyrrhene, with others, and now we are in the Adrian Sea, in the mouth whereof, Venice stands like a Gold Ring in a Bear's Muzzle: We pass'd also by Ætna, by the Infames Scopules, Acroceraunia, and through Scylla and Charibdis, about which the ancient Poets, both Greek and Latin, keep such a coyl, but they are nothing so horrid or dangerous, as they make them to be, they are two white keen-pointed Rocks, that lie under Water diametrically opposed, and like two Dragons defying one another, and there are Pilots, that in small Shallops, are ready to steer all Ships that pass: This amongst divers others, may serve for an instance, That the old Poets used to heighten and hoise up things by their airy fancies above the reality of truth, Ætna was very furious when we pass'd by, as she useth to be sometimes more than other, especially when the Wind is Southward, for then she is more subject to belching out flakes of Fire (as Stutterers use to stammer more when the Wind is in that hole) some of the sparkles fell aboard of us, but they would make us believe in Syracusa, now Messina, that Ætna in times past, hath eructated such huge gobbets of Fire, that the sparks of them have burnt Houses in Malta, above fifty Miles off, transported thither by a direct strong Wind: We pass'd hard by Corinth, now Ragusa, but I was not so happy as to touch there, for you know

Non cuivis homini contingit adire Corinthum:

I convers'd with many Greeks, but found none that could understand, much less practically speak any of the old Dialects of
the

the Latin-Greek, is so adulterated by the vulgar, as a bed of Flowers by Weeds, nor is there any People, either in the Islands, or on the Continent, that speaks it conversably, yet there are in the Morea seven Parishes call'd Zacones, where the Original Greek is not much degenerated, but they confound divers Letters of the Alphabet with one Sound; for in Point of pronuntiation there is no difference twixt Upsilon, Iota; and Eta.

The last I received from you was in Latin, whereof I sent you an answer from Spain in the same Language, though in a courser Dialect: I shall be a guest to Venice a good while, therefore I desire a frequency of correspondence between us by Letters, for there will be conveniency every Week of receiving and sending; when you write to Wales, I pray send advice, that I am come safe to Italy, though not landed there yet: So my dear Brother, I pray God bleis us both, and all our friends, and reserve me to see you again with comfort, and you me, who am

May the 5. 1621.

Your loving Brother,
J. H.

XXVIII.

To the Honourable Sir Robert Mansell, Vice-Admiral of England; from Venice.

S I R,

AS soon as I came to Venice, I applyed my self to dispatch your business according to Instructions, and Mr. Seymor was ready to contribute his best furtherance: These two Italians who are the Bearers hereof, by report here, are the best Gentlemen-Workmen that ever blew Chrystal, one is allied to Antonio Miotti, the other is Cousin to Mazalao; for other things they shall be sent in the Ship Lion, which rides here at Malamocca, as I shall send you account by conveyance of Mr Symns: Herewith I have sent a Letter to you from Sir Henry Wotton the Lord Ambassador here, of whom I have received some favours. He wish'd me to write, that you have now a double interest in him: For whereas before he was only your Servant, he is now your Kinsman by your late Marriage.

I was lately to see the Arsenal of Venice, one of the worthiest things of Christendom; they say there are as many Gallies, and Galeasses of all Sorts, belonging to Saint Mark, either in Course, at Anchor, in Dock, or upon the Carine, as there be Days in the Year; here they can build a compleat Gally in half a Day, and put the float in perfect Equipage, having all the ingredients fitted before-before-hand, as they did in three hours, when Henry the Third pass'd this way to France from Poland, who wish'd, that besides Paris, and his Parliament-Towns, he had this Arsenal in exchange, for three of his chiefest Cities: There are three hundred People perpetually here at Work, and if one comes young, and grows old in Saint Marks service, he hath a Pension from the State during Life: Being brought to see one of the Clarissimos that governs this Arsenal, this huge Sea Store-House, amongst other matters reflecting upon England, he was saying, That if Caraglier Don Roberto Mansell were now here, he thought verily the Republick would make a proffer to him to be Admiral of that Fleet of Gallies, and Galeons, which are now going against the Duke of Offuna, and the Forces of Naples, you are so well known here.

I was, since I came hither, in Murano, a little Island about the distance of Lambeth from London, where Chrystal-Glass is made, and 'tis a rare sight to see a whole Street, where on the one side there are twenty Furnaces together at work; They say here, that although one should transplant a Glass-Furnace from Murano to Venice her self, or to any of the little assembly of Islands about her, or to any other part of the Earth besides, and use the same Materials, the same Workmen, the same Fuel, the self-same Ingredients every way, yet they cannot make Chrystal Glass in that perfection, for beauty and lustre, as in Murano; some impute it to the quality of the circumambient Air, that hangs over the place, which is purified and attenuated by the concurrence of so many Fires that are in those Furnaces Night and Day perpetually, for they are like the Vestal Fire which never goes out: And it is well known, that some Airs, make more qualifying Impressions then others, as a Greek told me in Sicily, of the Air of Egypt, where there be huge common Furnaces to hatch Eggs by the thousands in Camels Dung; for during the time of hatching, if the Air happen to come to be overcast, and grow cloudy, it spoils all; if the Sky continue still serene and clear, not one Egg in a hundred will miscarry.

I met with Camillo your Consaorman here lately, and could he be sure of entertainment, he would return to serve you again, and I believe for less salary.

I shall attend your commands herein by the next, and touching other particulars, whereof I have written to Captain Bacon: So I rest

Your most humble and ready Servant,
J. H.

Venice, May the 30, 1621.

XXIX.

To my Brother from Venice.

Brother,

I Found a Letter of yours that had lain dormant here a good while in Mr. Symms Hands, to welcome me to Venice, and I thank you for the variety of News wherewith she went freighted; for she was to me, as a Ship richly laden from London useth to be to our Merchants here, and I esteem her Cargazon at no less a Value, for she enriched me with the Knowledge of my Father's Health, and your own, with the rest of my Brothers and Sisters, in the Country, with divers other Passages of Contentment; besides, she went also ballasted with your good Instructions, which as Merchants use to do of their Commodities, I will turn to the best Advantage, and Italy is no ill Market to improve any thing; the only Procede (that I may use the mercantil Term) you can expect, is Thanks, and this way I shall not be wanting to make you rich Returns.

Since I came to this Town I dispatched sundry Busineses of good value for Sir Robert Mansel, which I hope will give Content. The Art of Glass-making here is very highly valued; for whosoever be of that Profession, are Gentlemen ipso facto, and it is not without Reason, it being a rare kind of Knowledge and Chymistry, to transmute Dust and Sand (for they are the only main Ingredients) to such a diaphanous, pelluced dainty Body as you see a Crystal-Glass is, which hath this Property above Gold or Silver, or any other Mineral, to admit no Poyson; as also, that it never wastes or loseth a whit of its first weight, though you use it never so long. When I saw so many sorts of curious Glasses made here, I thought upon the Complement which a Gentleman put upon a Lady in England, who having five or six comely Daughters, said, He never saw in his Life, such a dainty Cupboard of Crystal Glasses; the Complement proceeds it seems from a Saying they have here, That the first handsome Woman that ever was made, was made of Venice-Glass, which implies Beauty, but Brittleness withal, (and Venice is not unfurnish'd with some of that Mould, for no Place abounds more with Lasses and Glasses) but considering the Brittleness of the Stuff, it was an odd kind of Melancholy in him that could not be perswaded, but he was an Urinal, surely he deserv'd to be piss'd in the Mouth: But when I pried into the Materials, and observ'd the Furnaces and the Calcinations, the Transubstantiations, the Liquefactions that are incident to this Art, my Thoughts were rais'd to a higher Speculation; that that if this small Furnace-fire hath vertue to convert such a small lump of dark Dust and Sand into such a precious clear Body as Crystal, surely, that grand Universal-fire, which shall happen at the day of Judgment, may by its violent ardor vitrisie and turn to one lump of Crystal, the whole Body of the Earth, nor am I the first that fell upon this conceit.

I will enlarge my self no further to you at this time, but conclude with this Tetrastick which my Brain ran upon in my Bed the Morning.

Vitre a sunt nostræ comissa negotia curæ,

Hoc oculis speculum mittimus ergo tuis :

Quod speculum ? est insta speculi me a litera, per quod

Vivida fraterni cordis imago nitet.

Adieu my dear Brother, live happily and love

Ven. the 1. of June 1621.

Your Brother,
J. H.

XXX.

To Mr. Richard Altham at Gray's-Inn, from Venice.

Gentle Sir,

——— O dulcior illo

Mille quod in ceris Attica ponit apes,

O thou who dost in sweetness far excel.

That Juice the Attic Bee stor's in her Cell.

My dear Dick,

I Have now a good while since taken footing in Venice, this I admired Maiden City, so call'd, because she was never defloured by any Enemy since she had a Being, nor since her Rialto was first erected, which is now above twelve Ages ago.

I protest unto you at my first landing, I was for some days ravished with the high beauty of this Maid, with her lovely countenance, I admired her magnificent buildings, her marvellous situation, her dainty smooth neat streets, whereon you may walk most Days in the Year in a silk Stocking and Sattin-slippers, without soiling them, nor can the Streets of Paris be so foul, as these are fair. This beautilous Maid hath been often attempted to be vitiated, some have courted her, some brib'd her, some would have forc'd her, yet she hath still preserved her chastity intire: and though she

These Wishes come to you from Venice, a Place where there is nothing wanting that Heart can wish; Renowned Venice, the admiredst City in the World, a City that all Europe is bound unto, for she is her greatest Rampart against that huge Eastern Tyrant the Turk by Sea, else I believe he had over-run all Christendom by this time. Against him this City hath perform'd notable Exploits, and not only against him, but divers others; She hath restored Emperors to their Thrones, and Popes to their Chairs, and with her Gallies often preserved Saint Peter's Bark from sinking: for which by way of reward, one of his Successors espous'd her to the Sea, which Marriage is solemnly renewed every Year in solemn Procession by the Doeg and all the Clarissimos, and a Gold Ring cast into the Sea out of the great Galleass, called the Bucentoro, wherein the first Ceremony was performed by the Pope himself, above three hundred Years since, and they say it is the self-same Vessel still, though often put upon the Carine, and trim'd: This made me think on that famous Ship at Athens; nay, I fell upon an abstracted Notion in Philosophy, and a Speculation touching the Body of Man, which being in perpetual Flux, and a kind of Succession of Decays, and consequently requiring ever and anon, a Restauration of what it loseth of the Virtue of the former Aliment, and what was converted after the third Concoction into Blood and fleshly Substance, which as in all other sublunary Bodies that have internal Principles of Heat, useth to transpire, breath out, and waste away through invisible Pores by Exercise, Motion, and Sleep, to make room still for a Supply of new Nourriture: I fell, I say, to consider whether our Bodies may be said to be of like Condition with this Bucentoro: which though it be reputed still the same Vessel, yet I believe there's not a Foot of that Timber remaining which it had upon the first Dock, having been as they tell me, so often plank'd and ribb'd, caulk'd and piec'd: In like manner our Bodies may be said to be daily repaired by new Sustenance, which begets new Blood, and consequently new Spirits, new Humours, and I may say new Flesh, the old by continual Deperdition, and insensible Transpirations evaporating still out of us, and giving way to fresh; so that I make a question, whether by reason of these perpetual Preparations and Accretions, the Body of Man may be said to be the same numerical Body in his Old Age that he had in his Manhood, or the same in his Manhood, that he had in his Youth, the same in his Youth that he carried about him in his Childhood, or the same in his Childhood which he wore first in the Womb: I make a doubt, whether I had the same identical individually numerical Body, when I carried a Calf-Leather Satchel to School in Hereford, as when I wore a Lambskin Hood in Oxford,

Oxford, or whether I have the same mass of Blood in my Veins, and the same Flesh now in Venice which I carried about me three years since, up and down London Streets, having in lieu of Beer and Ale, drunk Wine all this while, and fed upon different Viands: now the stomach is like a crucible, for it hath a chymical kind of virtue to transmute one body into another, to transubstantiate Fish and Fruits into Flesh within, and about us; but though it be questionable, whether I wear the same flesh which is fluxible, I am sure my Hair is not the same, for you may remember I went flaxen-hair'd out of England, but you shall find me return'd with a very dark Brown, which I impute not only to the heat and air of these hot Countries I have eat my bread in, but to the quality and difference of food; but you will say that hair is but an excrementitious thing, and makes not to this purpose; moreover, methinks I hear you say, that this may be true, only in the blood and spirits, or such fluid parts, not in the solid and heterogeneal parts: but I will press no further at this time this Philosophical Notion which the sight of Bucentoro infus'd into me, for it hath already made me exceed the bounds of a Letter, and I fear me to trespass too much upon your patience; I leave the further disquisition of this point to your own contemplations, who are a far riper Philosopher than I, and have waded deeper into, and drunk more of Aristotle's Well, but to conclude, though it be doubtful whether I carry about me the same body or no, in all points that I had in England, I am well assur'd, I bear still the same mind, and therein I verifie the old Verse.

Caelum non animum mutant qui trans mare currunt.

The air but not the mind they change,

Who in Outlandish Countries range.

For what alterations soever happen in this Microcosm, in this little World, this small bulk and body of mine, you may be confident, that nothing shall alter my affections, especially towards you, but that I will persevere still the same,

The very same, J. H.

Ven. 25. June, 1621.

XXXII.

To Richard Altham, Esquire.

Dear Sir,

I Was plung'd in a deep fit of Melancholly, Saturn had cast his black influence ore all my intellectuals, methought I felt my Heart as a lump of Dow, and heavy as Lead within my Breast; when a Letter of yours of the third of this month was brought me, me, which presently begot new Spirits within me, and made such strong impressions upon my Intellectuals, that it turn'd and transform'd me into another Man. I have read of a Duke of Milan and others, who were poyson'd by reading of a Letter, but yours produc'd contrary effects in me, it became an Antidote, or rather a most Sovereign Cordial to me, more operative then Bezar, of more vertue than Potable Gold, or the Elixir of Amber, for it wrought a sudden Cure upon me: That fluent and rare mixture of Love, and Wit, which I found up and down therein were the Ingredients of this Cordial: they were as so many choice Flowers, strew'd here and there, which did cast such an Odoriferous Scent, that they reviv'd all my Senses, and dispell'd those dull fumes which had formerly ore-clouded my Brain: Such was the operation of your most ingenious and affectionate Letter, and so sweet an entertainment it gave me: If your Letter had that vertue, what would your Person have done? And did you know all, you would wish your Person here a while; did you know the rare Beauty of this Virgin City, you would quickly make love to her, and change your Royal-Exchange for the Rialto, and your Gray's-Inn Walks for Saint Marks-place for a time. Farewel dear Child of Vertue, and minion of the Muses; and love still,

Ven. I. July 1621.

Your J. H.

XXXIII.

To my much honoured Friend, Sir John North, Knight, from Venice.

Noble Sir,

THE first office of gratitude is, to receive a good turn civilly, then to retain it in memory, and acknowledge it, thirdly, to endeavour a requital, for this last office; it is in vain for me to attempt it; especially towards you, who have laden me with such a variety of Courtesies, and weighty Favours, that my poor stock comes far short of any retaliation: but for the other two, reception and retention, as I am not conscious to have been wanting in the first act, so I shall never fail in the second, because both these are within the compass of my power; for if you could pry into my memory, you should discover there a huge Magazine of your favours (you have been pleas'd to do me present and absent) safely stor'd up and coacervated; to preserve them from mouldring away in oblivion; for Courtesies should be no perishable Commodity: Should I attempt any other requital, I should extenuate your favours, and derogate from the worth of them; yet if to this of the memory

Memory, I can contribute any other Act of Body or Mind, to enlarge my Acknowledgments towards you; you may be well assured that I shall be ever ready to court any Occasion, whereby the World may know how much I am

Venice, 13 Jul. 1621.

Your thankful Servitor, J. H.

XXXIV.

To Dan. Caldwell, Esq; from Venice.

My dear D.

COULD Letters fly with the same Wings as Love useth to do, and cut the Air with the like Swiftneſs of Motion, this Letter of mine ſhould work a Miracle, and be with you in an Inſtant; nor ſhould ſhe fear Interception or any other Caſualty in the way, or coſt you one Penny the Poſt, for ſhe ſhould paſs inviſibly: but 'tis not fitting, that Paper which is made but of old Rags, where-with Letters are ſwadled, ſhould have the ſame Priviledge as Love, which is a ſpiritual thing, having ſomething of Divinity in it, and partakes in Celerity with the Imagination, than which there is not any thing more ſwift you know, no, not the Motion of the upper Sphere, the Primum Mobile, which ſnatcheth all the other nine after, and indeed the whole Macrocoſm, all the World beſides, except our Earth, (the Center) which upper Sphere the Aſtronomers would have to move ſo many degrees, ſo many thouſand Miles in a Moment; ſince then, Letters are denied ſuch a Velocity, I allow this of mine twenty days, which is the ordinary time allow'd 'twixt Venice and London, to come unto you, and thank you a thouſand times over for your laſt of the tenth of June, and the rich Veniſon Feaſt you made, as I underſtand not long ſince, to the remembrance of me, at the Ship-Tavern: Believe it, Sir, you ſhall find that this Love of yours, is not ill imployed, for I eſteem it at the higheſt degree, I value it more than the Treſury of Saint Mark, which I lately ſaw, where among other things there is a huge Iron Cheſt as tall as myſelf, that hath no Lock, but a Crevice through which they caſt in the Gold that's bequeath'd to Saint Mark in Legacies, whereon there is ingraven this proud Motto:

*Quando queſto ſcrimino S' Aprira
Tutto 'l mundo tremera.*

When this Cheſt ſhall open, the whole World ſhall tremble. The Duke of Oſſuna late Vice-Roy of Naples, did what he could to force them to open it, for he brought Saint Mark to waſte much of this Treſure in the late Wars, which he made purpoſely to that end, which made them have Recourſe to us, and the Hollander for Ships, not long ſince.

Amongſt

Amongst the rest of Italy, this is call'd the Maiden-City (notwithstanding her great number of Courtisans) and there is a Prophecy, That she shall continue a Maid until her Husband forsake her, meaning the Sea, to whom the Pope married her long since, and the Sea is observ'd not to love her so deeply as he did, for he begins to shrink, and grow shallower in some Places about her; nor doth the Pope also, who was the Father that gave her to the Sea, affect her so much as he formerly did, especially since the Extermination of the Jesuits: so that both Husband and Father begin to abandon her.

I am to be a Guest to this Hospitable Maid, a good while yet, and if you want any Commodity that she can afford (and what cannot she afford for humane Pleasure or Delight?) do but write, and it shall be sent you.

Farewel gentle Soul, and correspond still in pure Love with

Venice, 29 Jul. 1621.

Your J. H.

XXXV.

To Sir James Crofts, Kt. from Venice.

S I R,

I Receiv'd one of yours the last week, that came in my Lord Ambassador Wotton's Packet, and being now upon point of parting with Venice, I could not do it without acquainting you (as far as the Extent of a Letter will permit) with her Power, her Policy, her Wealth, and Pedigree: She was built of the Ruins of Aquileia, and Padoua, for when those swarms of tough Northern People over-ran Italy, under the Conduct of that Scourge of Heaven Attila, with others, and that this soft voluptuous Nation after so long a Desuetude from Arms, could not repel their Fury, many of the ancient Nobility and Gentry fled into these Lakes and little Islands amongst the Fishermen, for their Security, and finding the Air good and commodious for Habitation, they began to build upon those small Islands, whereof there are in all threescore; and in tract of Time, they conjoyn'd and leagu'd them together by Bridges, whereof there are now above 800, and this makes up the City of Venice; who is now above twelve Ages old, and was contemporary with the Monarchy of France; but the Signiory glorieth in one thing above the Monarchy, that she was born a Christian, but the Monarchy not. Though this City be thus hem'd in with the Sea, yet she spreads her Wings far wide upon the Shore; she hath in Lombardy six considerable Towns, Padova, Verona, Vicenza, Brescia, Cromo, and Bergamo, she hath in the Merquisat, Bassan and Castelfranco; she hath all Friuli and Istria; she command commands the Shores of Dalmatia and Slavonia; she keeps under the Power of Saint Mark, the Islands of Corfu, (anciently Corcyra) Ceptalonia, Zant, Cerigo, Lucerigo, and Candy (Jove's Cradle;) she had a long time the Kingdom of Cypres, but it was quite rent from her by the Turk, which made that high spirited Bassa, being taken Prisoner at the Battel of Lepanto, where the Grand Seignior lost above 200 Gallies, to say, That that Defeat to his great Master was but like the shaving of his Beard, or the pairing of his Nails; but the taking of Cypres was like the cutting off of a Limb, which will never grow again: This mighty Potentate being so near a Neighbor to her, she is forc'd to comply with him, and give him an Annual Present in Gold: She hath about thirty Gallies most part of the Year in Course to scowre and secure the Gulph; she entertains by Land in Lombardy, and other Parts 25000 Foot, besides some of the Cantons of Suisses, whom she gives Pay unto; she hath also in constant Pay 600 Men of Arms, and every of these must keep two Horses a piece, for which they are allowed 120 Duckats a Year, and they are for the most part Gentlemen of Lombardy: When they have any great Expedition to make, they have always a Stranger for their General, but he is supervis'd by two Proveditors, without whom he cannot attempt any thing.

Her great Council consists of above 2000 Gentlemen, and some of them meet every Sunday and Holiday, to chuse Officers and Magistrates, and every Gentleman being past 25 Years of Age, is capable to sit in this Council. The Doeg or Duke (their Sovereign Magistrate) is chosen by Lots, which would be too tedious here to demonstrate, and commonly he is an aged Man who is created, like that Course they hold in the Popedom. When he is dead there be Inquisitors that examin his Actions, and his Misdemeanors are punishable in his Heirs: There is a superintendent Council of Ten, and Six of them may dispatch Business without the Doeg, but the Doeg never without some of them, not as much as open a Letter from any Foreign State, though address'd to himself, which makes him to be call'd by other Princes, Testa di ligno, A Head of Wood.

The Wealth of this Republic hath been at a Stand, or rather declining, since the Portugal found a Road to the East-Indies by the Cape of a Good Hope; for this City was us'd to fetch all those Spices, and other Indian Commodities, from the Grand Cairo down the Nile, being formerly carried to Cairo from the Red-Sea, upon Camels, and Dromedaries backs, threescore Days Journey; And so Venice us'd to dispense those Commodities through all Christendom, which not only the Portugal, but the English, and Hollander, now transport, and are Masters of the Trade. Yet there is no out-

outward appearance at all of Poverty, or any decay in this City, but she is still gay, flourishing, and fresh, and flowing with all kind of bravery and delight, which may be had at cheap rates. Much more might be written of this ancient wise Republick, which cannot be comprehended within the narrow inclosure of a Letter. So with my due and daily Prayers, for a continuance of your Health, and increase of Honour, I rest,

Ven. 1 of August,
1621.

Your most humble and ready
Servitor, J. H.

XXXVI.

To Robert Brown Esq; at the Middle-Temple:
From Venice.

ROBIN,

I Have now enough of the Maiden-City, and this Week I am to go further into Italy; for though I have been a good while in Venice, yet I cannot say I have been hitherto upon the Continent of Italy; for this City is nought else but a knot of Islands in the Adriatic Sea, joyn'd in one Body by Bridges, and a good way distant from the firm Land: I have lighted upon very choice Company, your Cousin Brown and Master Web, and we all take the Road of Lombardy, but we made an Order amongst our selves, that our Discourse be always in the Language of the Country, under penalty of a Forfeiture, which is to be indispensably pay'd: Rendal Symns made us a curious Feast lately, where in a Cup of the richest Greek we had your Health, and I could not tell whether the Wine or the Remembrance of you was sweeter; for it was naturally a kind of Aromatic Wine, which left a fragrant perfuming kind of farewell behind it; I have sent you a Runlet of it in the Ship Lion, and if it come safe and unprick'd, I pray bestow some Bottles upon the Lady (you know) with my humble Service. When you write next to Mr. Symns, I pray acknowledge the good Hospitality, and extraordinary Civilities I received from him. Before I conclude, I will acquaint you with a common Saying that is used of this dainty City of Venice.

Venetia, Venetia, chi non te vede, non te Pregia,
Ma chi t'ha troppo veduto te Despreggia.

English'd and Rhim'd thus (though I know you need no Translation, you understand so much of Italian.)

Venice, Venice, none Thee unseen can prize,
Who hath seen too much will Thee despise.

D

I will

I will conclude with that famous Hexastie which Sanazzaro made of this great City, which pleaseth me much better.

*Viderat Hadriacis Venetam Neptunus in undis Stare Urbem, & toti ponere jura Mari;
Nunc mihi Tarpeias quantum vis, Jupiter, Arces
Objice, & illa tui mania Martis ait,
Sic Pelago Tibrim præfers, Urbem aspice utramque, Illam homines dices, hanc posuisse Deos.*

When Neptune saw in Adrian Surges stand
Venice, and give the Sea Laws of command:
Now Jove, said he, Object thy Capitol,
And Mars's proud Walls: this were for to extol
Tiber beyond the Main, both Towns behold,
Rome Men thou'lt say, Venice the Gods did mould.

Sanazzaro had given him by Saint Mark a hundred Zecchins for every one of these Verses, which amounts to about 300 pounds: it would be long before the City of London would do the like. Witness that cold Reward, or rather those cold drops of Water which were cast upon my Country-man Sir Hugh Middleton, for bringing Ware-River through her Streets, the most serviceable and wholsome Benefit that ever she received.

The parcel of Italian Books that you write for, you shall receive from Mr. Leat, if it please God to send the Ship to safe Port; and I take it as a favour, that you employ me in any thing that may conduce to your Contentment; because

Ven. 12 Aug.
1628.

I am your serious Servitor,
J. H.

XXXVII.

To Capt. Thomas Porter: from Venice.

My dear Captain,

AS I was going a Shipboard in Alicant, a Letter of yours in Spanish came to hand: I discovered two things in it, first, what a Master you are of that Language; then how mindful you are of your Friend: For the first, I dare not correspond with you yet; for the second, I shall never come short of you, for I am as mindful of you, as possibly you can be of me, and some hours my Pulse doth not beat more often, than my Memory runs on you, which is often enough in conscience; for the Physicians hold, that in every well-disposed Body there be above 4000 Pulsations every hour, and some Pulses have been known to beat above 30000 times an hour in acute Feavers.

I understand you are bound with a gallant Fleet for the Mediterranean, if you come to Alicant, I pray commend me to Francisco Marco my Land-lord, he is a merry drole, and good Company: One night when I was there, he sent his Boy with a Borracha of Leather under his Cloak for Wine, the Boy coming back about ten a Clock, and passing by the Guard, one ask'd him whether he carried any Weapons about him (for none must wear any Weapons there after ten at night) No, quoth the Boy, being pleasant, I have but a little Dagger; the Watch came and search'd him, and finding the Borracha full of good Wine, drunk it all up, saying, Sirrah, you know no man must carry any Weapons so late; but because we know whose Servant you are, there's the Scabbard of your Dagger again; and so threw him the empty Borracha. But another passage pleas'd me better of Don Beltran de Rosa, who being to marry a rich Labrador's (a Yeoman's) Daughter hard by, which was much importun'd by her Parents to the Match, because their Family should be thereby enobled, he being a Cavalier of St. Jago: the young Maid having understood that Don Beltran had been in Naples, and had that Disease about him, answered wittily, En verdad por adobar me la Sangre, no quiero dannarmi la Carne: Truly, Sir, To better my Blood, I will not hurt my Flesh. I doubt I shall not be in England before you set out to Sea, if not, I take my leave of you in this Paper, and wish you a prosperous Voyage, and an honourable Return. It is the hearty Prayer of

Ven. 21 Aug. 1621.

Yours, J. H.

XXXVIII.

To Sir William Saint John, Knight: from Venice.

S I R,

HAVING seen Antenor's Tomb in Padoua, and the Amphitheater of Flaminius in Verona, with other brave Towns in Lombardy, I am now come to Rome; and Rome, they say, is every Man's Country, she is called Communis Patria; for every one that is within the compass of the Latin Church, finds himself here as it were at home, and in his Mother's House, in regard of interest in Religion, which is the cause that for one Native there be five Strangers that sojourn in this City, and without any distinction or mark of strangeness, they come to Preferments and Offices, both in Church and State, according to Merit, which is more valued and sought after here, than any where.

But whereas I expected to have found Rome elevated upon seven Hills, I met her rather spreading upon a Flat, having humbled herself since she was made a Christian, and descended from those Hills to Campus Martius, with Trastevere, and the Suburbs of St. Peter; she hath yet in compass about fourteen Miles, which is far short of that vast circuit she had in Claudius his time; for Vopiscus writes she was then of fifty Miles circumference, and she had five hundred thousand free Citizens in a famous Cense that was made, which allowing but six to every Family in Women, Children, and Servants, came to three Millions of Souls, but she is now a Wilderness in comparison of that number: The Pope is grown to be a great Temporal Prince of late years, for the State of the Church extends above 300 miles in length, and 200 miles in breadth; it contains Ferrara, Bologna, Romagnia, the Marquisate of Ancona, Umbria, Sabina, Perugia, with a part of Tuscany, the Patrimony, Rome her self and Latium: In these there are above fifty Bishopricks; the Pope hath also the Dutchy of Spoletto, and the Exarchate of Ravenna; he hath the Town of Benevento in the Kingdom of Naples, and the Country of Venisse, call'd Avignon in France, he hath title also good enough to Naples it self, but rather than offend his Champion the King of Spain, he is contented with a white Mule and purse of Pistols about the Neck, which he receives every year for a Heriot or Homage, or what you will call it: He pretends also to be Lord Paramount of Sicily, Urbino, Parma, and Mascherano, of Norway, Ireland, and England, since King John did prostrate our Crown at Pandolfo his Legate's Feet.

The State of the Apostolic See here in Italy lies 'twixt two Seas, the Adriatic and the Tyrrhene, and it runs through the midst of Italy, which makes the Pope powerful to do good or harm, and more capable than any other to be an Umpire or an Enemy: His Authority being mixt 'twixt Temporal and Spiritual, disperseth it self into so many Members, that a young Man may grow old here, before he can well understand the Form of Government.

The Consistory of Cardinals meet but once a Week, and once a Week they solemnly wait all upon the Pope. I am told there are now in Christendom but sixty eight Cardinals, whereof there are six Cardinal-Bishops, fifty one Cardinal-Priests, and eleven Cardinal-Deacons, The Cardinal-Bishops attend and sit near the Pope, when he celebrates any Festival: The Cardinal-Priests assist him at Mass, and the Cardinal-Deacons attire him. A Cardinal is made by a short Breve or Writ from the Pope, in these words, Creamus te Socium Regibus, superiorem Ducibus, & fratrem nostrum: We create thee a Companion to Kings, superior to Dukes, and our Brother. If a Cardinal-Bishop should be question'd for any offence, there must be twenty four Witnesses produc'd against him; The

The Bishop of Ostia hath most Priviledge of any other, for he Consecrates and Instals the Pope, and goes always next to him: All these Cardinals have the repute of Princes, and besides other incomes, they have the Annots of Benefices to support their Greatness.

For point of Power, the Pope is able to send 50000 Men into the Field, in case of necessity, besides his Naval strength in Gallies. We read how Paul the Third sent Charles the Third twelve thousand Foot, and 500 Horse. Pius the Fifth sent a greater Aid to Charles the Ninth: And for Riches, besides the Temporal Dominions he hath in all the Countries before named, the Datary or dispatching of Bulls; the Triennial Subsidies, Annats, and other Ecclesiastic Rights, mount to an unknown Sum; and it is a common Saying here, That as long as the Pope can finger a Pen he can want no Pence. Pius the Fifth, notwithstanding his expences in Buildings, left four Millions in the Castle of St. Angelo, in less than five Years, more I believe than this Gregory the Fifteenth will, for he hath many Nephews; and better it is to be the Popes's Nephew, than to be Favourite to any Prince in Christendom.

Touching the Temporal Government of Rome, and Oppidan Affairs, there is a Pretor, and some choice Citizens, which sit in the Capitol: Amongst other pieces of Policy, there is a Synagogue of Jews permitted here (as in other places of Italy) under the Popes's Nose, but they go with a mark of distinction in their Hats, they are tolerated for the advantage of Commerce, wherein the Jews are wonderful dextrous, tho' most of them be only Brokers and Lombardeers; and they are held to be here, as the Cynic held Women to be, malum necessarium. There be few of the Romans that use to pray heartily for the Pope's long Life, in regard the oftner the change is, the more advantagious it is for the City, because commonly it brings Strangers, and a recruit of new People. This Air of Rome is not so wholesome as of old; and amongst other reasons one is, because of the burning of Stubble to fatten their Fields: For her Antiquities it would take up a whole Volume to write them, those which I hold the chiefest are Vespasian's Amphitheater, where fourscore thousand People might sit; the Stoves of Anthony, divers rare Statues at Belveder and Saint Peters, specially that of Laocoon, the Obelisk; for the Genius of the Roman hath always been much taken with Imagery, Limning and Sculptures, inso-much, that as in former times, so now, I believe the Statues and Pictures in Rome, exceed the number of living People: One antiquity among others is very remarkable, because of the change of Language; which is an ancient Column erected as a Trophy for Quillius the Consul, after a famous Naval Victory obtain'd against the the Carthaginians in the second Punic War, where these words are engraven and remain legible to this day. Exemet lecoines Macistratis Castreis exfocient pugnandos capet enque, navebos marid Consul, &c. And half a dozen lines more it is call'd Columna restrata, having the Beaks and Proes of Ships engraven up and down, whereby it appears that the Latin then spoken was much differing from that which was us'd in Cicero's time, 150 Years after. Since the dismembring of the Empire, Rome hath run through many Vicissitudes and turns of Fortune: and had it not been for the Residence of the Pope, I believe she had become a heap of Stones, a mount of Rubbish by this time; and howsoever that she bears up indifferent well, yet one may say,

*Qui miseranda videt veteris vestigia Romæ,
Ille potest merito dicere Roma fuit.*

*They who the Ruins of first Rome behold,
May say, Rome is not now, but was of Old..*

Present Rome may be said to be but the Monument of Rome pass'd, when she was in that flourish that St. Austin desired to see her in: She who tam'd the World, tam'd her self at last, and falling under her own weight, fell to be a prey to Time, yet there is a Providence seems to have a care of her still; for though her Air be not so good, nor her circumjacent Soil so kindly as it was, yet she hath wherewith to keep Life and Soul together still, by her Ecclesiastic Courts, which is the sole cause of her Peopling now: So that it may be said, When the Pope came to be her Head, she was reduc'd to her first Principles; for as a Shepherd was Founder, so a Shepherd is still her Governor and Preserver. But whereas the French have an odd saying, That

*Jamais Cheval ny Homme,
S' amenda pour aller à Rome.*

*Ne'er Horse or Man did mend,
That unto Rome did wend.*

Truly I must confess, that I find my self much better'd by it; for the sight of some of these Ruines did fill me with symptoms of Mortification, and made me more sensible of the frailty of all Sublunary things, how all Bodies, as well inanimate as animate, are subject to dissolution and change, and every thing else under the Moon, except the Love of 1621.

Your faithful Servitor,

Rome Septemb. 13.

J. H.
XXXIX. To

XXXIX.

To Sir T. H. Knight : From Naples.

S I R,

I Am now in the Gentle City of Naples, a City swelling with all Delight, Gallantry, and Wealth; and truly, in my opinion, the King of Spain's Greatness appears here more eminently, than in Spain it self: This is a delicate luxurious City, fuller of true bred Cavaliers, than any place I saw yet. The Clime is hot, and the Constitutions of the Inhabitants more hot.

The Neapolitan is accounted the best Courtier of Ladies, and the greatest embracer of Pleasure of any other People: They say, there is no less here than twenty thousand Curtizans registred in the Office of Savelli. This Kingdom with Calabria, may be said to be the one moiety of Italy, it extends it self 450 miles, and spreads in breadth 112; it contains 2700 Towns, it hath 20 Arch-Bishops, 127 Bishops, 13 Princes, 24 Dukes, 25 Marquisses, and 800 Barons. There are three Presidial Castles in this City; and though the Kingdom abound in rich Staple Commodities, as Silks, Cottons, and Wine, and that there is a mighty Revenue comes to the Crown; yet the King of Spain when he casts up his account at the Year's end, makes but little benefit thereof, for it is eaten up 'twixt Governors, Garisons and Officers: He is forc'd to maintain 4000 Spanish Foot, call'd the Tercia of Naples; in the Castles he hath 1600 in perpetual Garison; he hath a thousand Men of Arms, 450 Light-Horse; besides there are five Footmen enroll'd for every hundred Fire: And he had need to do all this, to keep this voluptuous People in awe; for the Story musters up seven and twenty famous Rebellions of the Neapolitans in less than 300 Years; but now they pay soundly for it, for one shall hear them groan up and down under the Spanish Yoak: And commonly the King of Spain sends some of his Grandeess hither to repair their decay'd Fortunes; whence the saying sprung, That the Vice-Roy of Sicily Gnaws, the Governor of Milan Eats, but the Vice-Roy of Naples Devours: Our English Merchants here have a considerable Trade, and their Factors live in better Equipage, and in a more splendid manner than in all Italy besides, than their Masters and Principals in London; they ruffle in Silks and Sattins, and wear good Spanish-Leather Shooes, while their Masters Shooes upon our Exchange in London shine with blacking. At Puzzoli not far off amongst the Grotes there are so many strange stupendous things, that Nature her self seem'd to have studied of purpose how to make herself there admir'd: I reserve the discoursing of them with the nature of the Tarantola and Manna, which is gather'd here and no where else, with other things till I see you, for they are fitter for Discourses than a Letter, I will conclude with a Proverb they have in Italy for this People.

Napolitano

Largo di bocca, stretto di mano.

The Neapolitans

Have wide Mouths, but narrow Hands.

They make strong Masculine Promises, but Female Performances, (for Deeds are Men, but Words are Women) and if in a whole flood of Compliments one find a drop of Reality, 'tis well. The first acceptance of a Courtesy is accounted the greatest Incivility that can be amongst them, and a ground for a Quarrel, as I heard of a German Gentleman, that was baffled for accepting one only Invitation to a Dinner. So desiring to be preserv'd still in your good Opinion, and in the rank of your Servants, I rest always most ready

At your Disposing,

Naples Octob. the 1st.

1621.

J. H.

XL.

To Christopher Jones Esquire, at Grays-Inn : From Naples.

Honoured Father,

I Must still stile you so, since I was adopted your Son by so good a Mother as Oxford: My Mind lately prompted me, that I should commit a great Solæcism, if amongst the rest of my Friends in England, I should leave you unsaluted, whom I love so dearly well, specially having such a fair and pregnant opportunity as the Hand of this worthy Gentleman your Cousin Morgan, who is now posting hence for England. He will tell you how it fares with me; how any time these thirty odd Months I have been toss'd from Shore to Shore, and pass'd under various Meridians, and am now in this voluptuous and luxuriant City of Naples: And tho' these frequent removes and tumblings under Climes of differing Temper were not without some danger, yet the delight which accompanied them was far greater; and it is impossible for any Man to conceive the true pleasure of Perigrination, but he who actually enjoys, and puts it in practise; believe it Sir, that one Year well employ'd abroad by one of mature Judgment (which you know I want very much) advantageth more in point of useful and solid Knowledge, than three in any of our Universities. You know Running-waters are the purest, so they that traverse the World up and down, have the clearest Understanding; being faithful Eye-witnesses of those things which others receive but in trust, whereunto they must yield an intuitive consent, and a kind of implicit Faith. When I pass'd through some parts of Lombardy, amongst other things I observ'd the Physiognomies and Complexions of the People, Men and Women, and I thought I was in Wales, for divers of them have a cast of Countenance, and a nearer resemblance with our Nation, than any I ever saw yet; and the reason is obvious, for the Romans having been near upon three hundred Years amongst us, where they had four Legions (before the English Nation or Language had any being) by so long a coalition and tract of Time, the two Nations must needs copulate and mix: Insomuch that I believe there is yet remaining in Wales many of the Roman Race, and divers in Italy of the British. Amongst other resemblances, one was in their Prosody, and vein of Versifying or Riming, which is like our Bards, who hold Agnominations, and enforcing of Consonant Words or Syllables one upon the other, to be the greatest Elegance. As for Example, in Welsh, Tewgris todyrris ty'r derryu, gwillt, &c. So have I seen divers old Rimes in Italian running so; Donne, O danno, che Febo affronto affronta: In selva salvo a me. Piu caro cuore, &c.

Univers

Being lately in Rome, amongst other Pasquils, I met with one that was against the Scot, though it had some Gaul in't, yet it had a great deal of Wit, specially towards the Conclusion: So that I think if King James saw it, he would but laugh at it.

As I remember some Years since there was a very abusive Satyr in Verse brought to our King; and as the Passages were a reading before him, he often said, That if there were no more Men in England, the Rogue should hang for it: At last being come to the Conclusion, which was (after all his Railing)

*Now God preserve the King, the Queen, the Peers,
And grant the Author long may wear his Ears.*

This pleas'd his Majesty so well, that he broke into a Laugh, and said, By my sol so thou shalt for me: Thou art a bitter, but thou art a witty Knave.

When you write to Monmouth-shire, I pray send my Respects to my Tutor, Master Moor Fortune, and my Service to Sir Charles Williams: And according to that Relation which was 'twixt us in Oxford, I rest,

Your constant Son to serve you,
J. H.

Naples 8. Octob.
1621.

XLI.

To Sir J. C. from Florence.

S I R,

His Letter comes to kiss your Hands from fair Florence, a City so beautiful, that the great Emperor (Charles the Fifth) said, That she was fitting to be shewn and seen only upon Holy-days: She marvelously flourisheth with Buildings, with Wealth and Artisans; for it is thought that in Serges, which is but one Commodity, there are made two Millions every Year: All degrees of People live here not only well, but splendidly well, notwithstanding the manifold Exactions of the Duke upon all things: For none can buy here Lands or Houses, but he must pay eight in the hundred to the Duke; none can hire or build a House but he must pay the tenth Penny; none can Marry or commence a Suit in Law, but there is a Fee to the Duke: none can bring as much as an Egg or a Sallet to the Market, but the Duke hath share therein. Moreover, Leghorn, which is the Key of Tuscany, being a Maritim and a great Mercantil Town, hath mightily enrich'd this Country, by being a Frank Port to all comers, and a safe Rendezvous to Pyrats, as well as to Merchants. Add hereunto, that the Duke himself in some respect is a Merchant, for he sometimes ingrosseth all the Corn of the Country, and retails it at what rate he pleaseth. This enables the Duke to have perpetually 20000 Men enroll'd, train'd up and paid, and none but they can carry Arms; he hath four hundred Light-Horse in constant Pay, and a hundred Men at Arms besides; and all these quartered in so narrow a compass, that he can command them all to Florence in twenty four Hours. He hath twelve Gallies, two Galeons, and six Galeasses besides; and his Gallies are call'd The Black Fleet, because they annoy the Turk more in the bottom of the Straits, than any other.

This State is bound to keep good quarter with the Pope, more than others; for all Tuscany is fenc'd by Nature her self, I mean with Mountains, except towards the Territories of the Apostolic See, and the See it self, therefore it is call'd A Country of Iron.

The Duke's Palace is so spacious, that it occupieth the room of fifty Houses at least; yet though his Court surpasseth the bounds of a Duke's, it reacheth not to the Magnificence of a King's. The Pope was solicited to make the Grand Duke a King, and he answered, That he was content he should be King in Tuscany, not of Tuscany; whereupon one of his Counsellors replied,
That

That it was a more glorious thing to be a Grand Duke, than a petty King.

Among other Cities which I desir'd to see in Italy, Genoa was one, where I lately was, and found her to be the proudest for Buildings of any I met withal, yet the People go the plainest of any other, and are also most parsimonious in their Diet: They are the subtilest, I will not say the most subdolous dealers: They are wonderful wealthy, specially in Mony. In the Year 1600, the King of Spain owed them eighteen Millions, and they say it is double as much now.

From the time they began to finger the Indian Gold, and that this Town hath been the Scale by which he hath conveyed his Treasure to Flanders, since the Wars in the Neatherlands, for the support of his Armies, and that she hath got some Privileges for the exportation of Wools, and other Commodities (prohibited to others) out of Spain, she hath improved extreamly in Riches, and made Saint George's Mount swell higher than Saint Mark's in Venice.

She hath been often ill-favour'dly shaken by the Venetian, and hath had other Enemies, which hath put her to hard shifts for her own defence, specially in the time of Lewis the Eleventh of France; at which time, when she would have given her self up to him for Protection, King Lewis being told that Genoa was content to be his, he answer'd, She should not be his long; for he would give her up to the Devil, and rid his Hands of her.

Indeed the Genoufes have not the fortune to be so well belov'd, as other People in Italy, which proceeds I believe from their Cunningness, and Over-reaching in bargaining, wherein they have something of the Jew. The Duke is there but Biennial, being chang'd every two Years: He hath fifty Germans for his Guard. There be four Centurions that have two Men apiece, which upon occasions, attend the Signory abroad, in Velvet-Coats; there be eight Chief Governors, and four hundred Counsellors, amongst whom there be five Sovereign Syndics, who have authority to censure the Duke himself, his time being expir'd, and punish any Governor else, though after Death, upon the Heir.

Amongst other Customs they have in that Town, one is, That none must carry a pointed Knife about him, which makes the Hollander, who is us'd to Snick and Snee, to leave his Hornsheath and Knife a Shipboard when he comes a-shoar: I met not with an Englishman in all the Town: nor could I learn of any Factor of ours that ever resided there.

There is a notable little active Republic towards the midst of Tuscany.

Tuscany call'd Lucca, which in regard she is under the Emperor's protection, he dares not meddle withal, though she lie as a Partridge under a Falcon's Wings, in relation to the Grand Duke; besides there is another reason of the State, why he meddles not with her, because she is more beneficial unto him now that she is free, and more industrious to support this Freedom, than if she were become his Vassal; for then it is probable, she would grow more careless and idle, and so could not vent his Commodities so soon, which she buys for ready Money, wherein most of her Wealth consists: There is no State that winds the Penny more nimbly and makes quicker returns.

She hath a Council call'd the Discoli, which pries into the Profession and Life of every one, and once a Year they rid the State of all Vagabonds: So that this petty pretty Republic, may not be improperly paralell'd to a Hive of Bees, which have been always the emblems of Industry and Order.

In this splendid City of Florence, there be many Rarities, which if I should insert in this Letter, it would make her swell too big, and indeed they are fitted for Parol Communication. Here is the prime Dialect of the Italian spoken, tho' the pronunciation but a little more guttural, than that of Siena, and that of the Court of Rome, which occasions the Proverb,

Lingua Toscana in bocca Romana,

The Toscan Tongue sounds best in a Roman Mouth.

The People here generally seem to be more generous and of a higher comportment than elsewhere, very cautious and circumspect in their negotiation; whence ariseth the Proverb,

Chi ha da far con Tosco

Non bisogna che sia Losco.

Who dealeth with a Florentine,

Must have the use of both his Eyn.

I shall bid Italy farewell now very shortly, and make my way o'er the Alps to France, and so Home by God's Grace, to make a review of my Friends in England, amongst whom the sight of your self will be as gladsome to me, as of any other; for I profess my self, and purpose to be ever

Your thrice affectionate

Servitor, J. H.

Florence, 1 Novemb.

XLII.

To Capt. Francis Bacon, from Turin.

S I R,

I Am now upon point of shaking Hands with Italy; for I am come to Turin, having already seen Venice, the rich Padua, the learned, Learned, Bologna the Fat, Rome the Holy, Naples the Gentle, Genoa the Proud, Florence the Fair, and Milan the Great; from this last I came hither, and in that City also appears the Grandeur of Spain's Monarchy very much: The Governor of Milan is always Captain-General of the Cavalry to the King of Spain throughout Italy. The Duke of Feria is now Governor, and being brought to kiss his Hands, he us'd me with extraordinary respect, as he doth all of our Nation, being by the Maternal side a Dormer. The Spaniard entertains there also 3000 Foot, 1000 Light-Horse, and 600 Men at Arms in perpetual Pay; so that I believe the benefit of that Dutchy also, though seated in the richest Soil of Italy; hardly countervails the Charge. Three things are admir'd in Milan, the Dome, or great Church (built all of white Marble within and without) the Hospital and the Castle, by which the Cittadel of Antwerp was trac'd, and is the best condition'd Fortrefs of Christendom; though Nova Palma, a late Fortrefs of the Venetian would go beyond it, which is built according to the exact Rules of the most Modern Enginry, being of a round form with nine Bastions, and a Street level to every Bastion.

The Duke of Savoy, though he pass for one of the Princes of Italy, yet the least part of his Territories lie there, being squander'd up and down amongst the Alps, but as much as he hath in Italy, which is Piedmont, is as well Peopled, and passing good Country.

The Duke of Savoy Emanuel, is accounted to be of the Ancientest and purest Extraction of any Prince in Europe, and his Knights also of the Annunciade, to be one of the ancientest Orders; tho' this present Duke be little in Stature, yet is he of a lofty Spirit, and one of the best Soldiers now living; and tho' he be Valiant enough, yet he knows how to patch the Lion's Skin with a Fox's Tail: and whosoever is Duke of Savoy had need be cunning, and more than any other Prince, in regard that lying between two potent Neighbours, the French and the Spaniard, he must comply with both.

Before I wean my self from Italy, a word or two touching the Genius of the Nation. I find the Italian a degree higher in Compliment than the French, he is longer and more grave in the delivery of it, and more prodigal of words; insomuch that if one were to be worded to death, Italian is the fittest Language, in regard of the fluency and softness of it: for throughout the whole body of it, you have not a word ends with a Consonant, except some few Monasyllable Conjunctions, and Prepositions, and this renders the Speech more smooth; which made one say, That when the confusion of Tongues happen'd at the building of the Tower of Babel,
if

If the Italian had been there, Nimrod had made him a Plasterer. They are generally indulgent of themselves, and great embracers of Pleasure, which may proceed from the luscious rich Wines and luxurious Food, Fruits, and Roots, wherewith the Country abounds; insomuch, that in some places, Nature may be said to be Lena sui, A Bawd to herself. The Cardinal de Medecis's Rule is of much authority amongst them, That there is no Religion under the Navil. And some of them are of the Opinion of the Asians, who hold, that touching those Natural Passions, Desires, and Motions, which run up and down in the Blood, God Almighty and his Hand-maid Nature, did not intend they should be a Torment to us, but to be used with Comfort and Delight. To conclude, in Italy there be Virtutes magna, nec minora Vitia; Great Virtues, and no less Vices.

So with a tender of my most affectionate Respects unto you,
I rest

Turin, 30 Novemb.

Your humble Servitor,
J. H.

XLIII.

To Sir J. H. from Lions.

S I R,

I Am now got o'er the Alps, and returned to France; I had crossed and clambered up the Pyreneans to Spain before, they are not so high and hideous as the Alps; but for our Mountains in Wales, as Eppint and Penwinmaur, which are so much cried up amongst us, they are Mole-hills in comparison of these, they are but Pigmeys compared to Giants, but Blisters compared to Impostumes, or Pimples to Warts: Besides, our Mountains in Wales bear always something useful to Man or Beast, some Grass at least; but these uncouth huge monstrous excrescences of Nature, bear nothing (most of them) but craggy Stones: the tops of some of them are blanced over all the Year long with Snows, and the People who dwell in the Valleys, drinking for want of other, this Snow-water, are subject to a strange Swelling in the Throat, called Goytre, which is common amongst them.

As I scaled the Alps, my Thoughts reflected upon Hannibal, who with Vinegar and Strong-waters, did eat out a Passage through those Hills, but of late Years they have found a speedier way to do it by Gun-powder.

Being at Turin, I was by some Disaster brought to an extream low ebb in Money, so that I was forced to foot it along with some Pilgrims, and with gentle pace and easy Journeys, to climb up those Hills till I came to this Town of Lions, where a Country-

man

man of ours, one Mr. Lewis, whom I knew in Alicant, lives Factor, so that now I want not any thing for my accommodation.

This is a stately rich Town, and a renowned Mart for the Silks of Italy, and other Levantin Commodities, and a great Bank for Mony, and indeed the greatest of France; before this Bank was founded, which was by Henry the First, France had but little Gold and Silver, insomuch that we read how King John their Captive King could not in four Years raise sixty thousand Crowns to pay his Ransom to our King Edward: And Saint Lewis was in the same case when he was Prisoner in Egypt, where he had left the Sacrament for a gage. But after this Bank was erected, it filled France full of Mony; they of Lucca, Florence, and Genoa, with the Venetian, got quickly over the Hills, and brought their Monies hither to get twelve in the hundred profit, which was the Interest at first, though it be now much lower.

In this great Mercantil Town, there be two deep Navigable Rivers, the Rhone and the Soane; the one hath a swift rapid course, the other slow and smooth; and one day as I walked upon their Banks, and observed so much difference in their course, I fell into a contemplation of the Humours of the French and Spaniard, how they might be not improperly compared to these Rivers; the French to the swift, and the Spaniard to the slow River.

I shall write you no more Letters until I present my self unto you for a speaking Letter, which I shall do as soon as I may tread London Stones.

Your affectionate Servitor,

Lions, 6 Novemb. 1621.

J. H.

XLIV.

To Mr. Tho. Bowyer: from Lions.

Being so near the Lake of Geneva, curiosity will carry any one to see it: The Inhabitants of that Town, methinks, are made of another Paste differing from the affable nature of those People I had conversed withal formerly; they have one Policy, lest that their petty Republic should be pester'd with Fugitives, their Law is, That what Stranger soever flies thither for Sanctuary, he is punishable there, in the same degree, as in the Country where he committed the Offence.

Geneva is Govern'd by four Syndics, and four hundred Senators: She lies like a Bone 'twixt three Mastifs, the Emperor, the French King, and the Duke of Savoy, they all three look upon the Bone, but neither of them dare touch it singly, for fear the other two would flie upon him. But they say the Savoyard hath the justest Title, for there are Imperial Records extant, That although she

the Bishops of Geneva were Lords Spiritual and Temporal, yet they should acknowledge the Duke of Savoy for their Superior. This Man's Ancestors went frequently to the Town, and the Keys were presently tender'd to them. But since Calvin's time, who had been once Banish'd, and then call'd in again, which made him to apply that Speech unto himself, The Stone which the builders refused, is become the head stone of the corner: I say, since they were refin'd by Calvin, they seem to shun and scorn all the World besides, being cast as it were into another Mould, which hath quite alter'd their very natural disposition in point of Moral Society.

Before I part with this famous City of Lions, I will relate unto you a wonderful strange accident that happened here not many Years ago. There is an Officer called Le Chevalier du Guet, which is a kind of Night-guard here, as well as in Paris; and his Lieutenant call'd Faquette, having Supp'd one night in a rich Merchant's House, as he was passing the Round afterwards, he said, I wonder what I have eaten and drunk at the Merchant's House, for I find my self so hot, that if I met with the Devil's Dam to night, I should not forbear using of her: Hereupon a little after he overtook a young Gentlewoman Mask'd, whom he would needs usher to her Lodging, but discharg'd all his Watch, except two; she brought him to his thinking, to a little low Lodging hard by the City wall, where there were only two Rooms; and after he had enjoy'd her, he desir'd, that according to the custom of French Gentlemen, his two Comerades might partake also of the same Pleasure; so she admitted them one after the other: And when all this was done, as they sat together, she told them, if they knew well who she was, none of them would have ventur'd upon her; thereupon she Whistl'd three times, and all vanish'd: The next Morning, the two Soldiers that had gone with the Lieutenant Faquette, were found dead under the City Wall amongst the Ordure and Excrements, and Faquette himself a little way off half dead, who was taken up, and coming to himself again, confess'd all this, but died presently after.

The next Week I am to go down the Loire towards Paris, and thence as soon as I can for England, where amongst the rest of my Friends, whom I so much long to see after this Triennial separation, you are like to be one of my first Objects: In the mean time, I wish the same Happiness may attend you at home, as I desire to attend me homeward; for I am Truly yours,

Lions, 5 Decemb.

1621.

J. H.

Familiar

Familiar LETTERS.

SECTION II.

I.

To my Father.

S I R,

IT hath pleased God after almost three Years Peregrination by Land and Sea, to bring me back safely to London; but although I am come safely, I am come sickly: for when I landed in Venice, after so long a Sea-Voyage from Spain, I was afraid the same defluxion of Salt Rheum which fell from my Temples into my Throat in Oxford, and distilling upon the Uvula, impeached my Utterance a little to this Day, had found the same Channel again, which caused me to have an Issue made in my left Arm for the diversion of the Humour. I was well ever after till I came to Rouen, and there I fell sick of a Pain in the Head, which, with the Issue, I have carried with me to England. Doctor Harvy, who is my Physician, tells me, that it may turn to a Consumption, therefore he hath stopped the Issue, telling me there is no danger at all in it, in regard I have not worn it a full Twelvemonth. My Brother, I thank him, hath been very careful of me in this my Sickness, and hath come often to visit me. I thank God I have pass'd the brunt of it, and am recovering, and picking up my crumbs apace. There is a flaunting French Ambassador come over lately, and I believe his Errand is nought else but Complement, for the King of France being lately at Calais, and so in Sight of England, he sent his Ambassador Monsieur Cadenet expressly to visit our King, he had Audience two days since, where he with his Train of ruffling long-hair'd Monsieurs, carried himself in such a light Garb, that after the Audience, the King ask'd my Lord Keeper Bacon what he thought of the French Ambassador; he answer'd, that he was a tall proper Man; Ay, his Majesty replied, but what think you of his Headpiece? is he a proper Man for the Office of an Ambassador? Sir, said Bacon, Tall Men are like high Houses of four or five Stories, wherein commonly the uppermost Room is worst furnished.

So desiring my Brothers and Sisters, with the rest of my Cousins and Friends in the Country, may be acquainted with my safe Return to England, and that you would please to let me hear from you by the next conveniency, I rest,

E

turn

London, Feb. 2.

Your dutiful Son,

1621.

J. H.

II.

To Rich. Altham, Esq; at Norberry.

S Alve pars animæ dimidiata meæ; Hail half my Soul, my dear Dick, &c. I was no sooner returned to the sweet Bosom of England, and had breath'd the Smoak of this Town, but my Memory ran suddenly on you, the Idea of you hath almost ever since so fill'd up and ingross'd my Imagination, that I can think on nothing else, the Love of you swells both in my Breast and Brain with such a Pregnancy that nothing can deliver me of this violent high Passion but the sight of you: Let me despair if I lye, there was never Female long'd more after any thing by reason of her growing Embryo, than I do for your presence: Therefore I pray you make haste to save my Longing, and Tantalize me no longer, ('tis but three hours riding) for the Sight of you will be more precious to me than any one Object I have seen, (and I have seen many rare ones) in all my three Years Travels; and if you take this for a Complement (because I am newly come from France) you are much mistaken in London, Feb. 1. 1621.

Your J. H.

III.

To D. Caldwell, Esq; at Batterfay.

MY dear Dan. I am come at last to London, but not without some danger, and through divers difficulties, for I fell sick in France, and came so over to Kent; And my Journey from the Sea-side hither, was more tedious to me than from Rome to Rouen where I grew first indisposed; and in good faith, I cannot remember any thing to this hour how I came from Gravesend hither, I was so stupified, and had lost the Knowledge of all things: But I am come to myself indifferently well since, I thank God for it, and you cannot imagin how much the Sight of you, much more your Society, would revive me: your Presence would be a Cordial unto me more restorative than exalted Gold, more precious than the powder of Pearl, whereas your Absence if it continue long, will prove unto me like the Dust of Diamonds, which is incurable Poyson: I pray be not accessory to my Death, but hasten to comfort your so long weather-beaten Friend,

London, Feb. 1. 1621.

Yours J. H.

IV. To

IV.

To Sir James Crofts, at the L. Darcy's in S. Ofith.

S I R,

I Am got again safely this side of the Sea, and though I was in a very sickly Case when I first arriv'd, yet Thanks be to God I am upon point of perfect Recovery, whereunto the sucking in of English Air, and the Sight of some Friends conduc'd not a little.

There is fearful News come from Germany; you know how the Bohemians shook off the Emperor's Yoak, and how the great Council of Prague fell to such a hurly burly, that some of the Imperial Counsellors were hurl'd out at the Windows; you heard also, I doubt not, how they offer'd the Crown to the Duke of Saxony, and he waving it, they sent Ambassadors to the Palsgrave, whom they thought might prove par negotio, and to be able to go through-stitch with the work, in regard of his powerful Alliance, the King of Great Britain being his Father in Law, the King of Denmark, the Prince of Orange, the Marquis of Brandenburg, the Duke of Bouillon his Uncles, the States of Holland his Confederates, the French King his Friend, and the Duke of Bavaria his near Ally: The Prince Palsgrave made some difficulty at first, and most of his Counsellors opposed it, others incited him to it, and amongst other hortatives, they told him, That if he had the Courage to venture upon a King of England's sole Daughter, he might very well venture upon a Sovereign Crown when it was tendered him. Add hereunto that the States of Holland did mainly advance the Work, and there was good Reason in Policy for it; for their twelve Years Truce, being then upon point of expiring with Spain, and finding our King so wedded to Peace, that nothing could divorce him from it, they lighted upon this design to make him draw his Sword, and engage him against the House of Austria, for the Defence of his sole Daughter, and his Grand-Children. What his Majesty will do hereafter, I will not presume to foretell, but hitherto he hath given little Countenance to the Business, nay, he utterly disliked it first; for whereas Doctor Hall gave the Prince Palsgrave the Title of King of Bohemia in his Pulpit-Prayer, he had a Check for his pains; for I heard his Majesty should say, That there is an implicit Tye amongst Kings, which obligeth them, though there be no other Interest or particular Engagement, to stick unto, and right one another upon Insurrection of Subjects: Therefore he had more Reason to be against the Bohemians, than to adhere to them in the Deposition of their Sovereign Prince. The King of Denmark sings the same Note, nor will he also allow him the Appellation of King. But the fearful News I told you of at the beginning of this Letter is, that there are fresh tidings brought how the Prince Palsgrave had a well appointed Army of about 25000 Horse and Foot near Prague, but the Duke of Bavaria came with scarce half the number, and notwithstanding his long march, gave them a sudden Battel, and utterly routed them; insomuch that the new King of Bohemia having not worn the Crown a whole twelvemonth, was forc'd to flie with his Queen and Children: And after many difficulties they write, that they are come to the Castle of Castrein, the Duke of Brandenburgh's Country his Unkle. This News affects both Court and City here with much heaviness.

I send you my humble thanks for the noble correspondence you pleased to hold with me abroad, and I desire to know by the next, when you come to London, that I may have the comfort of the sight of you, after so long an absence.

March the 1. 1619.

Your true Servitor, J. H.

V.

To Dr. Fr. Mansell, at All-Souls in Oxford.

I Am returned safe from my foraign employment, from my three years travel, I did my best to make what advantage I could of the time, though not so much as I should; for I find that Peregrination (well us'd) is a very profitable School; it is a running Academy, and nothing conduceth more to the building up and perfecting of a Man. Your honourable Uncle Sir Robert Mansell, who is now in the Mediterranean, hath been very notable to me, and I shall ever acknowledge a good part of my education from him. He hath melted vast Sums of Money in the Glass Business, a Business indeed more proper for a Merchant than a Courtier. I heard the King should say, that he wondred Robin Mansell being a Sea-man, whereby he hath got so much honour, should fall from Water to tamper with Fire, which are two contrary Elements; my Father fears that this glass employment will be too brittle a foundation for me to build a Fortune upon, and Sir Robert being now at my coming back so far at Sea, and his return uncertain: My Father hath advised me to hearken after some other condition. I attempted to go Secretary to Sir John Ayres to Constantinople, but I came too late; you have got your self a great deal of good repute by the voluntary resignation you made of the Principality of Jesus Colledge, to Sir Eubule Theloall, in hope that he will be a considerable benefactor to it: I pray God he perform what he promisseth, and that he be not over-partial to North-Wales Men. Now that I give you the first summon, I pray you make me happy with your correspondence by Letters, there is no excuse or impediment at at all; left now, for you are sure where to find me, whereas I was a Landloper, as the Dutch-man saith, a wanderer, and subject to incertain removes, and short sojourns in divers places before. So with apprecation of all happiness to you here and hereafter; I rest, March 5. 1618. At your friendly dispose, J. H.

VI.

To Sir Eubule Theloall, Knight and Principal of Jesus Colledge in Oxford.

SIR, I send you most due and humble thanks, that notwithstanding I have played the Truant, and been absent so long from Oxford, you have been pleas'd lately to make choice of me to be Fellow of your new Foundation in Jesus Colledge, whereof I was once a Member; as the quality of my Fortunes, and course of Life run now, I cannot make present use of this your great Favour, or Promotion rather, yet I do highly value it, and humbly accept of it, and intend, by your permission, to reserve and lay it by, as a good warm Garment against rough weather if any fall on me. With this my Expression of Thankfulness, I do congratulate the great Honour you have purchas'd both by your own benificence, and by your painful endeavour besides, to perfect that National Colledge, which hereafter is like to be a Monument of your Fame, as well as a Seminary of Learning, and will perpetuate your Memory to all Posterity.

God Almighty prosper and perfect your undertakings, and provide for you in Heaven those rewards which such publick works of Piety use to be crown'd withall; it is the apprecation of

Your truly devoted Servitor, J. H.

London, idibus Mar. 1621.

VII.

To my Father.

SIR, according to the advice you sent me in your last, while I sought after a new course of employment, a new employment hath lately sought after me; my Lord Savage hath two young Gentlemen to his Sons, and I am to go travel with them: Sir James Crofts (who so much respects you) was the main Agent in this business, and I am to go shortly to Long-Melford in Suffolk, and thence to Saint Osith in Essex to the Lord Darcy. Queen Anne is lately dead of a Dropsie in Denmark House, which is held to be one of the fatal events that followed the last fearful Comet that rose in the tail of the Constellation of Virgo, which some ignorant Astronomers that write of it, would fix in the Heavens, and that as far above the Orb of the Moon, as the Moon is from the Earth : but this is nothing in comparison of those hideous fires that are kindled in Germany, blown first by the Bohemians, which is like to be a War without end ; for the whole House of Austria is interested in the quarrel, and it is not the custom of that House to set by any Affront, or forget it quickly. Queen Anne left a world of brave Jewels behind, but one Piero an Outlandish Man who had the keeping of them embazled many, and is run away ; she left all she had to Prince Charles, whom she ever loved best of all her Children, nor do I hear of any Legacy she left at all to her Daughter in Germany ; for that Match some say lessened something of her Affection towards her ever since, so that she would often call her goodly Palsgrave, nor could she abide Secretary Winwood ever after, who was one of the chiefest Instruments to bring that Match about, as also for the rendition of the cautionary Towns in the Low-Countries, Flushing and Brill, with the Rammakins. I was lately with Sir John Walter, and others of your Counsel about Law-business, and some of them told me that Master J. Lloyd your Adversary, is one of the shrewdest Solicitors in all the thirteen Shires of Wales, being so habituated to Law-suits and Wrangling, that he knows any the least starting-hole in every Court : I could wish you had made a fair end with him, for besides the cumber and trouble, especially to those that dwell at such a huge distance from Westminster-hall as you do, Law is a shrewd Pick-purse, and the Lawyer, as I heard one say wittily not long since, is like a Christmas's box, which is sure to get whosoever loseth.

So with the continuance of my due and daily Prayers for your Health, with my Love to my Brothers and Sisters, I rest,

Your Dutiful Son, J. H.

March 20. 1621.

VIII.

To Dan. Caldwell, Esq; from the Lord Savages House in Long-Melford.

My dear D.

THough considering my former condition of life I may now be called a Countrey-man, yet you cannot call me a Rustick, (as you would imply in your Letter) as long as I live in so civil and noble a Family, as long as I lodge in so vertuous and regular a House as any I believe in the Land, both for æconomical Government, and the choice company, for I never saw yet such a dainty Race of Children in all my life together, I never saw yet such an order-orderly and punctual attendance of Servants, nor a great House so neatly kept ; here one shall see no dog, nor a cat, nor cage to cause any nastiness within the body of the House : The kitchen and gutters, and other offices of noise and drudgery are at the fag-end, there's a back-gate for beggars, and the meaner sort of swains to come in at ; the Stables butt upon the Park, which for a chearful rising ground, for groves and browings for the Deer, for rivulets of water, may compare with any for its bigness in the whole land ; it is opposite to the front of the great House, whence from the Gallary one may see much of the game when they are a hunting. Now for the gardning and costly choice flowers, for ponds, for stately large walks, green and gravelly, for orchards and choice fruits of all sorts, there are few the like in England : Here you have your bon Christien piear and Bergamot in perfection, your Mustadel Grapes in such plenty, that there are some bottles of wine sent every year to the King : And one Mr. Daniel a worthy Gentleman hard by, who hath been long abroad, makes good store in his Vintage. Truly this House of Long-Melford, though it be not so great, yet it is so well compacted and contrived with such dainty conveniencies every way, that if you saw the Landskip of it, you would be mightily taken with it, and it would serve for a choice pattern to build and contrive a House by ; if you come this Summer to your Mannor of Sheriff in Essex, you will not be far off hence : If your Occasions will permit, it will be worth your coming hither, though it be only to see him, who would think it a short journey to go from Saint David's-head to Dover-cliffs to see and serve you, were there occasion : If you would know who the same is, 'tis

Yours, J. H.

20 Mar. 1621.

IX.

To Robert Brown, Esquire.

SIR,

Thanks for one courtesie, is a good Usher to bring on another, therefore it is my policy at this time to thank you most heartily for your late copious Letter to draw on a second : I say, I thank you a thousand times over for yours of the third of this present, which abounded with such variety of news, and ample well-couch'd relations, that I made many friends by it ; yet I am sorry for the quality of some of your news, that Sir Robert Mansell being now in the Mediterranean with a considerable Naval Strength of ours against the Moors, to do the Spaniard a pleasure, Marquis Spinola should in a hogling way change his Master for the time, and taking commission from the Emperor, become his servant for invading the Palatinate with the forces of the King of Spain in the Netherlands: I am sorry also the Princes of the Union should be so stupid as to suffer him to take Oppenheim by a Parthian kind of back stratagem, in appearing before the Town, and making semblance afterwards to go for Worms, and then perceiving the Forces of the United Princes to go for succouring of that, to turn back and take the Town he intended first, whereby I fear he will be quickly master of the rest. Surely I believe there may be some treachery in't, and that the Marquis of Ansback the General was overcome by Pistols made of Indian Ingots, rather than of Steel, else an Army of 40000, which he had under his Command might have made its party good against Spinol's, less than 20000, though never such choice Veterans, but what will not Gold do? it will make a Pigmy too hard for a Gyant, there's no fence or fortress against an Ass laden with Gold; It was the saying you know of His Father, whom partial and ignorant Antiquity cries up to have conquered the World, and that he sigh'd there were no more Worlds to conquer, though he had never one of the three old parts of the then known World entirely to himself. I desire to know what is become of that handful of Men his Majesty sent to Germany under Sir Horace Vere, which he was bound to do as he is one of the Protestant Princes of the Union, and what's become of Sir Arthur Chichester, who is gone Ambassador to those parts.

Dear Sir, I pray make me happy still with your Letters, it is a mighty pleasure for us Country-folks to hear how matters pass in London and abroad: You know I have not the opportunity to correspond with you in like kind, but may happily hereafter when the tables are turn'd, when I am in London, and you in the West, Whereas you are desirous to hear how it fares with me, I pray know that I live in one of the noblest Houses, and the best Air of England: There is a dainty Park adjoyning, where I often wander up and down, and I have my several walks. I make one to represent the Royal-Exchange, the other the middle Isle of St. Paul's, another Westminster-hall; and when I pass through the herd of Deer, methinks I am in Cheapside. So with a full return of the same measure of love, as you pleas'd to send me, I rest 24 Martii, 1621.

Yours, J. H.

X.

To R. Altham, Esquire, from Saint Osith.

S I R,

L ife it self is not so dear unto me as your friendship, nor Vertue in her best colours as precious as your love, which was lately lately so lively pourtrayed unto me in yours of the fifth of this present: Methinks your Letter was like a piece of Tissue richly embroider'd with rare flowers up and down, with curious representations, and Landskips: Albeit I have as much stuff as you of this kind (I mean matter of love) yet I want such a Loom to work it upon, I cannot draw it to such a curious web; therefore you must be content with homely Polldavice ware from me, for you must not expect from us Country-folks such Urbanities, and quaint invention, that you, who are daily conversant with the Wits of the Court, and of the Inns of Court abound withall.

Touching your intention to travel beyond the Seas the next Spring, and the intimation you make how happy you would be in my company; I let you know, that I am glad of the one, and much thank you for the other, and will think upon it, but I cannot resolve yet upon any thing. I am now here at the Earl Rivers, a noble and great knowing Lord, who hath seen much of the World abroad; my Lady Savage his Daughter is also here with divers of her Children: I hope this Hilary Term to be merry in London, and amongst others to re-enjoy your conversation principally, for I esteem the Society of no Soul upon Earth more than yours: Till then I bid you farewell, and as the season invites me, I wish you a merry Christmas, resting

Yours while

Jam. Howell.

Decem. 20. 1621.

XI.

To Captain Tho. Porter upon his return from Algier Voyage.

Noble Captain,

I Congratulate your safe return from the Streights, but am sorry you were so streightned in your Commission, that you could not attempt what such a brave Naval Power of 20 Men of War, such a gallant General and other choice knowing Commanders might have performed, if they had had line enough; I know the lightness and nimbleness of Algier Ships, when I lived lately in Allicant and other places upon the Mediterranean, we should every week hear some of them chas'd, but very seldom taken; for a great Ship following one of them, may be said to be as a Mastiff dog running after a hare; I wonder the Spaniard came short of the promised supply for the furtherance of that notable adventurous design you had to fire the Ships and Gallies in Algier road; and according to the relation you pleased to send me, it was one of the bravest enterprize, and had prov'd such a glorious exploit, that no
story

story could have parallel'd; but it seems their Hoggies, Magicians and Maribots; were tampering with the ill Spirit of the Air all the while, which brought down such a still cataract of rain waters suddenly upon you to hinder the working of your Fireworks; such a disaster the Story tells us befel Charles the Emperor, but far worse than yours, for he lost Ships and multitudes of Men, who were my Slaves, but you came off with loss of eight Men only, and Algier is another guest thing now, than she was then, being I believe a hundred degrees stronger by Land and Sea, and for the latter strength we may thank our Countryman Ward, and Dansker the Butterbag Hollander, which may be said to have been two of the fatallest and most infamous Men that ever Christendom bred; for the one taking all Englishmen, and the other all Dutchmen, and bringing the Ships and Ordnance to Algier, they may be said to have been the chief Raisers of those Picaroons to be Pirates, which are now come to that height of strength, that they daily endamage and affront all Christendom. When I consider all the circumstances and success of this your Voyage, when I consider the narrowness of your Commission, which was as lame as the Clerk that kept it; when I find that you secured the Seas, and traffick all the while, for I did not hear of one Ship taken while you were abroad; when I hear how you brought back all the Fleet without the least disgrace or damage by foe or foul weather to any Ship, I conclude, and so do far better judgments than mine, that you did what possibly could be done: Let those that repine at the one in the hundred (which was impos'd upon all the Levant Merchants for the support of this Fleet) mutter what they will, that you went first to Gravesend, then to the Lands-end, and after to no end.

I have sent you for your welcome home (in part) two barrels of Colchester Oysters, which were provided for my Lord of Colchester himself, therefore I presume they are good, and all green finn'd; I shall shortly follow, but not to stay long in England, for I think I must over again speedily to push on my fortunes: So my dear Tom. I am de todas mis entranas, from the center of my heart I am,

St. Oseth, Decemb.

Yours, J. H.

XII.

To my Father upon my second going to Travel.

S I R,

I Am lately returned to London, having been all this while in a very noble Family in the Country, where I found far greater respects than I deserv'd; I was to go with two of my Lord Savages Sons

Sons to travel, but finding my self too young for such a charge, and our Religion differing, I have now made choice to go over Camerade to a very worthy Gentleman Baron Altham's Son, whom I knew in Stanes, when my Brother was there. Truly I hold him to be one of the hopefulest young Men of this Kingdom for parts and Person, he is full of excellent solid knowledge, as the Mathematicks, the Law, and other material Studies; besides I should have been tired to have staid three years abroad in the other imployment at least, but I hope to go back from this by God's Grace before a twelvemonth be at an end, at which time I hope the hand of Providence will settle me in some stable home-fortune.

The news is that the Prince Palsgrave, with his Lady and Children are come to the Hague in Holland, having made a long progress, or rather a Pilgrimage about Germany from Prague. The old Duke of Bavaria his Uncle is chosen Elector and Arch-sewer of the Roman Empire in his place (but as they say in an imperfect Diet) and with this proviso, that the transferring of this Election upon the Bavarian, should not prejudice the next Heir. There is one Count Mansfelt that begins to get a great Name in Germany, and he with the Duke of Brunswick, who is a Temporal Bishop of Halverstade, have a considerable Army on foot for the Lady Elizabeth, which in the Low Countries and some part of Germany is called the Queen of Boheme, and for her winning Princely Comportment, the Queen of Hearts: Sir Arthur Chichester is come back from the Palatinate, much complaining of the small Army that was sent thither under Sir Horace Vere, which should have been greater, or none at all.

My Lord of Buckingham having been long since Master of the Horse at Court, is now made Master also of all the wooden Horses in the Kingdom, which indeed are our best Horses, for he is to be High Admiral of England, so he is become Dominus Equorum & Aquarum. The late Lord Treasurer Cranfield grows also very powerful, but the City hates him for having betrayed their greatest secrets which he was capable to know more then another, having been formerly a Merchant.

I think I shall have no opportunity to write to you again till I be t'other side of the Sea; therefore I humbly take my leave, and ask your Blessing, that I may the better prosper in my proceedings: So I am,

Your Dutiful Son, J. H.

March 19. 1621.

XIII.

To Sir John Smith, Knight.

S I R,

THE first ground I set foot upon after this my second transmarine Voyage was Trevere (the Scots Staple) in Zealand, thence we sail'd to Holland, in which passage we might see divers Steeples and Turrets under water, of Towns that as we were told were swallowed up by a deluge within the memory of Man : We went afterwards to the Hague, where there are hard by, though in several places, two wonderful things to be seen, the one of Art, the other of Nature; that of Art is a Waggon or Ship, or a Monster mixt of both, like the Hippocentaure who was half Man, and half Horse ; this Engine hath Wheels and Sails that will hold above twenty People, and goes with the Wind, being drawn or mov'd by nothing else, and will run, the Wind being good, and the Sails hois'd up, above fifteen miles an hour upon the even hard sands : they say this invention was found out to entertain Spinola when he came hither to treat of the last Truce. That Wonder of Nature is a Church-Monument, where an Earl and a Lady are engraven with 365 Children about them, which were all deliver'd at one birth ; they were half male, half female ; the bason hangs in the Church which carried them to be Christned, and the Bishops Name who did it ; and the Story of this Miracle, with the year and the day of the month mentioned, which is not yet 200 years ago ; and the Story is this : That Countess walking about her door after dinner, there came a Begger-woman with two Children upon her back to beg alms, the Countess asking whether those Children were her own, she answered, she had them both at one birth, and by one father, who was her Husband ; the Countess would not only give her any alms, but reviled her bitterly, saying, It was impossible for one man to get two children at once : The begger-woman being thus provok'd with ill words, and without alms, fell to imprecations, that it should please God to shew his judgment upon her, and that she might bear at one birth as many children as there be days in the year, which she did before the same years end, having never born Child before. We are now in North-Holland, where I never saw so many, among so few, sick of Leprosies ; and the reason is, because they commonly eat abundance of fresh Fish. A Gentleman told me that the Women of this Country when they are delivered, there comes out of the womb a living creature besides the child call'd Zucchie, likest a Bat of any other creature, which the Midwifes throw into the fire, holding sheets before the chimney lest it should fly away. Master Altham desires his service be presented to to you and your Lady, to Sir John Franklin, and all at the Hill, the like do I humbly crave at your hands : The Italian and French Manuscripts you pleas'd to favour me withal, I left at Mr. Seils the Stationer, whence if you have them not already, you may please to send for them. So in all affection I kiss your Hands, and am

Trevere 10 of April,
1622.

Your humble Servitor,
J. H.

XIV.

To the Right Honourable, the Lord Vicount Colchester, after Earl Rivers.

Right Honourable,

THE commands your Lordship pleas'd to impose upon me when I left England, and those high favours wherein I stand bound to your Lordship, call upon me at this time to send your Lordship some small fruits of my forreign Travel : Marquis Spinola is return'd from the Palatinate, where he was so fortunate, that like Cesar he came, saw, and overcame, notwithstanding that huge Army of the Princes of the Union, consisting of 40000 Men, whereas his was under twenty, but made up of old tough blades, and veteran Commanders. He hath now chang'd his coat, and taken up his old Commission again from Don Philipppo, whereas during that Expedition, he call'd himself Cesar's Servant. I hear the Emperor hath transmitted the upper Palatinate to the Duke of Bavaria, as caution for those Moneys he hath expended in those Wars : And the King of Spain is the Emperors Commissary for the lower Palatinate : They both pretend that they were bound to obey the Imperial Summons to assist Cesar in these Wars ; the one as he was Duke of Burgundy, the other of Bavaria, both which Countrys are feuderary to the Empire, else they had incur'd the Imperial Ban. It is fear'd this German War will be as the French-man saith, de longue halaine, long breath'd, for there are great Powers on both sides, and they say the King of Denmark is arming.

Having made a leisurely sojourn in this Town, I had spare hours to couch in writing a survey of these Countries, which I have now travers'd the second time ; but in regard it would be a great bulk for a Letter, I send it your Lordship apart, and when I return to England, I shall be bold to attend your Lordship for correction of my faults : In the interim I rest,

Antwerp, May 1.
1622.

My Lord,
Your thrice humble Servitor, J. H.

XV. A

XV.

A Survey of the Seventeen Provinces.My Lord,

TO attempt a precise Description of each of the seventeen Provinces, and of its Progression, Priviledges and primitive Government, were a Task of no less confusion than labour: Let it suffice to know, that since Flanders and Holland were erected to Earldoms, and so left to be an Appendix to the Crown of France, some of them have had absolute and supreme Governors, some subaltern and subject to a superior Power. Amongst the rest the Earls of Flanders and Holland, were most considerab'e; but of them two he of Holland being homageable to none, and having Friesland and Zeland added, was the more potent. In Process of Time all the seventeen met in one; some by Conquest, others by Donation and Legacy, but most by Alliance: In the House of Burgundy this Union received most Growth, but in the House of Austria it came to its full Perfection; for in Charles the Fifth they all met as so many Lines drawn from the Circumference to the Centre, who Lording as supreme Head not only over the fifteen temporal, but the two spiritual, Liege and Utrecht, had a Design to reduce them to a Kingdom, which his Son Philip the second attempted after him, but they could not bring their Intents home to their Aim, the Cause is imputed to that multiplicity and difference of Priviledges which they are so eager to maintain, and whereof some cannot stand with a Monarchy without Incongruity. Philip the second at his Inauguration was sworn to observe them, and at his departure he oblig'd himself by an oath, to send still one of his own Blood to govern them: Moreover at the request of the Knights of the Golden Fleece, he promised that all Foreign Soldiers should retire, and that he himself would come to visit them once every seventh Year: but being once gone, and leaving in lieu of a Sword a Distaff, an unwieldy Woman to govern, he came not only short of his Promise, but procur'd a Dispensation from the Pope, to be absolv'd of his Oath, and all this by the Counsel of the Cardinal Granvill, who, as the States Chronicler writes, was the first Firebrand that kindled that lamentable and longsome War wherein the Netherlands have traded above Fifty Years in Blood: For intending to increase the Number of Bishops, to establish the Decrees of the Council of Trent, and to clip the Power of the Council of State compos'd of the Natives of the Land, by making it appealable to the Council of Spain, and by adding to the former Oath of Allegiance, (all which conduc'd to settle the Inquisition, and to curb the Conscience) the Broils began; to appease which Ambassadors dors were dispatch'd to Spain, whereof the two first came to violent Deaths, the one being beheaded, the other poyson'd : But the two last Egmond and Horn, were nourish'd still with Hopes, until Philip the second had prepar'd an Army under the Conduct of the Duke of Alva, to compose the difference by Arms. For as soon as he came to the Government, he established the Bloet-rad, as the Complainants term'd it, a Council of Blood, made up most of Spaniards : Egmond and Horn were apprehended, and afterwards beheaded ; Citadels were erected, and the Oath of Allegiance, with the Political Government of the Country in divers things alter'd. This pour'd Oil on the Fire formerly kindled, and put all in combustion : The Prince of Orange retires, thereupon his eldest Son was surpriz'd and sent as Hostage to Spain, and above 5000 Families quit the Country, many Towns revolted, but were afterwards reduc'd to Obedience ; which made the Duke of Alva say, that the Netherlands appertain'd to the King of Spain not only by Descent but Conquest, and for cumble of his Victories when he attempted to impose the tenth peny for Maintenance of the Garrisons in the Cittadels he had erected at Grave, Utrecht, and Antwerp, (where he caus'd his Statue made of Canon Brass to be erected, trampling the Belgians under his feet) all the Towns withstood this Imposition, so that at last matters succeeding ill with him, and having had his Cousin Pacecio hang'd at Flushing Gates, after he had trac'd out the Platform of a Cittadel in that Town also, he receiv'd Letters of Revocation from Spain. Him succeeded Don Lewis de Requesens, who came short of his Predecessor in Exploits, and dying suddenly in the Field, the Government was invested for the time in the Council of State. The Spanish Soldiers being without a head, gather'd together to the number of 1600, and committed such Outrages up and down, that they were proclaim'd Enemies to the State : Hereupon the Pacification of Gant was transacted, whereof amongst other Articles one was, that all foreign Soldiers should quit the Country : this was ratified by the King, and observ'd by Don John of Austria who succeeded in the Government ; yet Don John retain'd the Landsknechts at his Devotion still, for some secret Design, and as some conjectur'd for the Invasion of England, he kept the Spaniards also still hovering about the Frontiers ready upon all Occasion : Certain Letters were intercepted that made a discovery of some Projects which made the War to bleed afresh ; Don John was proclaim'd Enemy to the State ; so the Archduke Matthias was sent for, who being a Man of small performance, and improper for the times, was dismiss'd, but upon honorable terms. Don John a little after dies, and as some gave out of the Pox ; then comes in the Duke of Parma, a Man as of a different Nation, being being an Italian, so of a differing temper, and more moderate spirit, and of greater performance than all the rest, for whereas all the Provinces except Luxenburgh and Hanault had revolted, he reduc'd Gaunt, Tournay, Bruges, Malins, Brussels, Antwerp, (which three last he beleager'd at one time) and divers others great Towns to the Spanish obedience again, he had sixty thousand Men in pay ; and the choicest which Spain and Italy could afford. The French and English Ambassadors interceding for Peace, had a short answer of Philip the second, who said, that he needed not the help of any to reconcile himself to his own subjects, and reduce them to conformity, but the difference that was he would refer to his cousin the Emperor : Hereupon the business was agitated at Colen, where the Spaniard stood as high a tiptoe as ever, and notwithstanding the vast expence of treasure and blood he had been at for so many years, and that matters began to exasperate more and more, which were like to prolong the Wars in infinitum, he would abate nothing in point of Ecclesiastick Government : Hereupon the States perceived that King Philip could not be wrought either by the solicitations of other Princes, or their own supplications so often reiterated, that they might enjoy the freedom of Religion, with other infranchisements, and finding him inexorable, being incited also by that ban which was published against the Prince of Orange, that whosoever kill'd him should have 5000 Crowns, they at last absolutely renounced and abjur'd the King of Spain for their Sovereign ; they broke his Seals, chang'd the Oath of Allegiance, and fled to France for shelter ; they inaugurated the Duke of Anjou (recommended unto them by the Queen of England, to whom he was a Sutor) for their Prince, who attempted to render himself absolute, and so thought to surprize Antwerp, where he receiv'd an ill favour'd repulse ; yet nevertheless, the united Provinces, for so they term'd themselves ever after, fearing to distaste their next great neighbour France, made a second proffer of their protection and Sovereignty to that King, who having too many irons in the fire at his own home, the League growing stronger and stronger, he answer'd them, that his shirt was nearer to him than his dublet ; then had they recourse to Queen Elizabeth, who partly for her own security, partly for interest in Religion reacht them a supporting hand, and so sent them Men, Money, and a Governor the Earl of Leicester, who not symbolizing with their humor, was quickly revok'd, yet without any outward dislike on the Queens side, for she left her Forces still with them, but upon their expence : She lent them afterwards some considerable sums of Moneys, and she receiv'd Flushing and the Brill for caution : Ever since the English have been the best sinews of their War, and Achievers of the greatest exploits amongst them. Having thus made sure work with the English, they many years years together held tack with the Spaniard, and during those traverses of War was very fortunate: an Overture of Peace was then propounded, which the States would not hearken unto singly with the King of Spain, unless the Provinces that yet remain'd under him would engage themselves for Performance of what was Articled; besides, they would not treat either of Peace or Truce, unless they were declar'd free States, all which was granted; so by the Intervention of the English and French Ambassadors, a Truce was concluded for 12 years.

These Wars did so drain and discommodate the King of Spain, by reason of his distance (every Soldier that he sent either from Spain or Italy costing him near upon 100 Crowns before he could be rendred in Flanders) that notwithstanding his Mines of Mexico and Peru, it plung'd him so deeply in Debt, that having taken up Moneys in all the chief Banks of Christendom, he was forc'd to publish a Diploma, wherein he dispens'd with himself (as the Holland Story hath it) from Payment, alledging that he had employed those Moneys for the publick Peace of Christendom: This broke many great Bankers, and they say his credit was not current in Sevil or Lisbon his own Towns: and which was worse, while he stood wrestling thus with his own Subjects, the Turk took his Opportunity to get from him Tunis and the Goletta, the Trophies of Charles the fifth his Father. So eager he was in this quarrel that he imploy'd the utmost of his Strength and Industry to reduce this People to his Will, in regard he had an Intent to make these Provinces his main Rendezvouz and Magazine of Men of War, which his Neighbors perceiving, and that he had a kind of Aim to be Western Monarch, being led not so much for Love as Reasons of State, they stuck close to the revolted Provinces, and this was the Bone that Secretary Walsingham told Queen Elizabeth, he would cast the King of Spain that should last him 20 Years, and perhaps make his Teeth shake in his Head.

But to return to my first discourse, whence this digression hath snatch'd me. The Netherlands who had been formerly knit and centred under one Sovereign Prince, were thus dismembred. And as they subsist now, they are a State and a Province: The Province having 10 of the 17, at least, is far greater, more populous, better soil'd, and more stor'd with Gentry. The State is the richer and stronger, the one proceeding from their vast Navigation and Commerce, the other from the quality of their Country, being defensible by Rivers and Sluces, by means whereof they can suddenly overwhelm all the whole Country, witness that stupendous Siege of Leyden and Haerlem; for most of their Towns, the Marks being taken away, are inaccessible, by reason of Shelves of Sands. Touching the transaction of these Provinces which the King of Spain made as a Dowry to the Archduke Albertus, upon Marriage with the Infanta, (who thereupon left his red Hat, and Toledo Miter, the chiefest spiritual Dignity in Christendom for Revenue, after the Papacy) it was fring'd with such cautelous Restraints, that he was sure to keep the better end of the Staff still to himself; for he was to have the tutele and ward of his Children, that they were to marry with one of the Austrian Family recommended by Spain, and in default of Issue, and in case Albertus should survive the Infanta, he should be but Governor only. Add hereunto that King Philip reserv'd still to himself all the Citadels and Castles, with the Order of the Golden Fleece, whereof he is Master, as he is Duke of Burgundy.

The Archduke for the time hath a very princely Command, all Coyns bear his Stamp, all Placarts or Edicts are published in his name, he hath the Election of all civil Officers, and Magistrates; he nominates also Bishops and Abbots, for the Pope hath only the Confirmation of them here, nor can he adjourn any out of the Country to answer any thing, neither are his Bulls of any Strength without the Princes placet, which makes him have always some Commissioners to execute his Authority. The People here grow hotter and hotter in the Roman Cause, by reason of the Mixture with Spaniards and Italians; as also by the Example of the Archduke, and the Infanta, who are devout in an intense degree. There are two supream Councils, the Privy-Council, and that of the State; this treats of Confederations and Intelligence with foreign Princes, of Peace and War, of entertaining or of dismissing Colonels and Captains, of Fortifications, and they have the superintendency of the highest Affairs that concern the Prince, and the Policy of the Provinces, the private hath the granting of all Patents and Requests, the publishing of all Edicts and Proclamations, the prizing of Coin, the looking to the Confines and Extent of the Provinces, and the enacting of all new Ordinances. Of these two Councils there is never a Spaniard, but in the actual Council of War their Voices are predominant. There is also a Court of Finances or Exchequer, whence all they that have the fingring of the King's Money, must draw a discharge. Touching Matters of Justice, their Law is mixt between civil and common, with some Clauses of Canonical: The high Court of Parliament is at Maline, whither all civil Causes may be brought by Appeal from other Towns, except some that have municipal Privileges, and are Sovereign in their own Jurisdictions, as Mons in Hainault, and a few more.

The prime Province for Dignity is Brabant, which amongst many other other Priviledges it enjoyeth, hath this for one, not to appear upon any Summons out of its own Precinct, which is one of the reasons why the Prince makes his Residence there: But the prime for Extent and Fame is Flanders, the chiefeft Earldom in Christendom, which is three days Journey in length; Ghent, its Metropolis, is reputed the greatest Town of Europe, whence arose the Proverb, Les flamen tient un Gan, qui tiendra Paris dedans. But the beautifullest, richest, strongest, and most priviledg'd City is Antwerp in Brabant, being the Marquisate of the holy Empire, and drawing near to the nature of a Hans-Town, for she pays the Prince no other Tax but the Impost. Before the dissociation of the seventeen Provinces, this Town was one of the greatest Marts of Europe, and greatest Bank this side the Alps, most Princes having their Factors here, to take up, or let out Moneys, and here our Gresham got all his Wealth, and built our Royal Exchange by Model of that here. The Merchandize was brought hither from Germany, France and Italy by Land, and from England, Spain, and the Hans-Towns by Sea, was estimated at above twenty Millions of Crowns every Year; but as no violent thing is long lasting, and as 'tis fatal to all Kingdoms, States, Towns and Language to have their period, so this renown'd Mart hath suffer'd a shrewd Eclipse, yet no utter downfall, the Exchange of the King of Spain's Money and some small land Traffick keeping still life in her, though nothing so full of vigor as it was. Therefore there is no Town under the Archduke where the States have more conceal'd Friends than in Antwerp, who would willingly make them her Masters, in hope to recover her former Commerce, which after the last twelve Years Truce began to revive a little, the States permitting to pass by Lillo's sconce, which commands the River of Scheld, and lyeth in the teeth of the Town, some small cross-saild Ships to pass hither: There is no Place hath been more passive than this, and more often pillag'd; amongst other times she was once plunder'd most miserably by the Spaniards under the conduct of a Priest, immediately upon Don John of Austria's Death, she had then her Stat-house burn'd, which had cost a few years before above twenty thousand Crowns the building, and the Spoils that were carried away thence amounted to forty tuns of Gold: Thus she was reduc'd not only to poverty but a kind of captivity, being commanded by a Citadel, which she preferr'd before a Garrison, this made the Merchants retire and seek a more free Rendezvous, some in Zealand, some in Holland, specially in Amsterdam, which rose upon the Fall of this Town, as Lisbon did from Venice upon the Discovery of the Cape of good Hope, though Venice be not near so much crestfall'n.

I will now steer my discourse to the United Provinces, as they term hemfelves, which are fix in number, viz. Holland, Zealand, Friefland, Overyffel, Gronninghen and Utrecht, three parts of Guilderland, and fome Frontier Towns and Places of Contribution in Brabant and Flanders: In all thefe there is no Innovation at all introduc'd, notwithstanding this great Change in Point of Government, except that the Colledge of States represents the Duke or Earl in times past, which Colledge confifts of the chiefest Gentry of the Country, fuperintendants of Towns, and the principal Magift rates: Every Province and great Town choofe yearly certain Deputies, to whom they give plenary Power to deliberate with the other States of all Affairs touching the publick Welfare of the whole Province, and what they vote ftands for Law. Thefe being affembled confult of all matters of State, Juftice and War, the Advocate, who is prime in the Affembly, propounds the Bufinefs, and after collects the Suffrages, firft of the Provinces, then of the Towns, which being put in Form he delivers in pregnant and moving Speeches, and in cafe there be a diffonance and reluctance of Opinions, he labours to accord and reconcile them, concluding always with the major Voices.

Touching the Adminiftration of Juftice, the Prefident, who is monthly chang'd, with the great Council have the fupream Judicature, from whose Decrees there is no Appeal, but a Revision, and then fome of the choicest Lawyers amongst them are appointed.

For their Oppidan Government they have Variety of Offices, a Scout, Burgmafters, a Balue, and Vroetschappens: The Scout is chosen by the States, who with the Balues have the judging of all criminal matters in laft refort without Appeal; they have alfo the determining of civil Causes, but thofe are appealable to the Hague. Touching their chiefest Governor (or General rather now) having made Proof of the Spaniard, German, French, and English, and agreeing with none of them, they lighted at laft upon a Man of their own mould, Prince Maurice, now their General, in whom concurr'd divers parts fuitable to fuch a Charge, having been train'd up in the Wars by his Father, who with three of his Uncles and divers of his kindred, sacrific'd their Lives in the States quarrel; he hath thriven well fince he came to the Government; he clear'd Friefland, Overyffel, and Groninghem, in lefs than 18 months: He hath now continued their Governor and General by Sea and Land above 33 years; he hath the Election of Magift rates, the pardoning of Malefactors, and divers other Prerogatives, yet they are fhort of the reach of Sovereignty, and of the Authority of the ancient Counts of Holland: though I cannot fay 'tis a mercenary Employment, yet he hath a limited Allowance, nor hath he any any implicit command when he goes to the field, for either the Council of War marches with him, or else he receives daily directions for them : Moreover the States themselves reserv'd the power of nominating all Commanders in the Army, which being of sundry Nations deprive him of those advantages he might have to make himself absolute. Martial Discipline is no where so regular as amongst the States, no where are there lesser insolencies committed upon the Burgher, nor robberies upon the Country Boors, nor are the Officers permitted to insult over the common Soldier : When the Army marcheth, not one dares take so much as an apple off a tree, or a root out of the earth in their passage : And the reason is, they are punctually paid their pay, else I believe they would be insolent enough, and were not the pay so certain, I think few or none would serve them. They speak of sixty thousand they have in perpetual pay by Land and Sea, at home, and in the Indies : The King of France was us'd to maintain a Regiment, but since Henry the Great's death the payment hath been neglected. The means they have to maintain these Forces, to pay their Governour, to discharge all other expence, as the preservation of their Dikes which comes to a vast expence yearly, is the ancient revenue of the Counts of Holland, the impropriate Church-livings, Imposts upon all merchandise, which is greater upon exported than imported goods, excise upon all commodities, as well for necessity as pleasure, taxes upon every Acre of ground, which is such, that the whole Countrey returns into their hand every three year : Add hereunto the Art they use in their bank by the rise and fall of money, the fishing upon our Coasts ; whither they send every Autumn above 700 Holks or Busses, which in the voyages they make, return above a Million in Herrings ; moreover their fishing for Greenfish and Salmon amounts to so much more ; and for their Cheese and Butter, 'tis thought they vent as much every year as Lisbon doth Spices. This keeps the common Treasury always full, that upon any extraordinary service or design there is seldom any new tax upon the people. Traffick is their general profession, being all either Merchants or Mariners, and having no Land to manure, they furrow the Sea for their living ; and this universality of Trade, and their Banks of Adventures distributes the wealth so equally, that few amongst them are exceeding rich, or exceeding poor : Gentry amongst them is very thin, and as in all Democracies little respected, and coming to dwell in Towns they soon mingle with the Merchant, and so degenerate : Their soil being all 'twixt marsh and meadow, is so fat in pasturage, that one Cow will give eight quarts of milk a day, so that as a Boor told me, in four little drops near Haerlem, 'tis thought there is as much milk milk'd in the year as there is Rhenish wine brought to Dort, which is the sole Staple of it. Their Towns are beautiful and neatly built, and with uniformity, that who sees one sees all : In some places, as in Amsterdam, the Foundations costs more than the Superstructure, for the ground being soft, they are constrain'd to ram in huge stakes of Timber (with Wool about it to preserve it from Putrifaction) till they come to a firm Basis ; so that as one said, whoſoever could see Amsterdam under ground, ſhould ſee a huge Winter Forreſt.

Amongſt all the Confederate Provinces, Holland is moſt predominant, which being but ſix hours journey in breadth, contains 49 Wall'd Towns, and all theſe within a days journey one of another. Amsterdam for the preſent is one of the greateſt mercantile Towns in Europe : To her is appropriated the East and West-Indies Trade, whether ſhe ſends yearly 40 great Ships, with another Fleet to the Baltick Sea, but they ſend not near ſo many to the Mediterranean as England, other Towns are paſſibly rich, and ſtor'd with Shipping, but not one very poor, which proceeds from the whoſome policy they uſe, to aſſign every Town ſome firm Staple Commodity, as to (their maiden Town) Dort the German Wines and Corn, to Midleburgh the French and Spaniſh Wines, to Trevere (the Prince of Orange his Town) the Scots Trade, Leyden in recompence of her long Siege was erected into an Univerſity, which with Franiker in Frizeland is all they have ; Harlem for knitting and weaving hath ſome privilege, Rotterdam hath the English Cloth, and this renders their Towns ſo equally rich and populous. They allow free harbour to all Nations, with liberty of Religion, (the Roman only excepted) as far as the Jew, who hath two Synagogues allow'd him, but only in Amsterdam, which piece of policy they borrow of the Venetian, with whom they have very intimate intelligence ; only the Jew in Venice, in Rome and other places go with ſome outward mark of diſtinction, but here they wear none : And theſe two Republicks, that in the East, and this in the West, are the two remora's that ſtick to the great Veſſel of Spain, that it cannot fail to the Western Monarchy.

I have been long in the ſurvey of theſe Provinces, yet not long enough, for much more might be ſaid, which is fitter for a Story than a Survey, I will conclude with a mot or two of the People, whereof ſome have been renown'd in times paſt for feats of war : amongſt the States, the Hollanders or Batavian hath been moſt known, for ſome of the Roman Emperors have had a ſeleſted guard of them about their Perſons for their fidelity and valour, as now the King of France hath of the Swiſs : The Friſons alſo have been famous for thoſe large Priviledges wherewith Charlemaix endow'd them, the Flemings alſo have been illuſtrious for the martial exploits they they achiev'd in the East, where two of the Earls of Flanders were crown'd Emperors. They have all a Genius inclin'd to commerce, very inventive and witty in Manufactures, witness the Art of Printing, Painting and colouring in Glass; those curious Quadrants, Chimes and Dials, those kind of Waggon which are us'd up and down Christendom were first us'd by them; and for the Mariners Compass, though the Matter be disputable, 'twixt the Neapolitan, the Portugal, and them, yet there is a strong Argument on their side, in regard they were the first that subdivided the four cardinal Winds to two and thirty, others naming them in their Language.

There is no Part of Europe so haunted with all sorts of Foreigners as the Netherlands, which makes the Inhabitants as well Women as Men so well vers'd in all sorts of Languages, so that in Exchange time one may hear 7 or 8 sorts of Tongues spoken upon their Bourses. Nor are the Men only expert herein, but the Women and Maids also in their common Hostries, and in Holland the Wives are so well vers'd in bargaining, ciphering, and writing, that in the Absence of their Husbands in long Sea-Voyages they beat the Trade at home, and their words will pass in equal credit. These Women are wonderfully sober, though their Husbands make commonly their bargains in drink, and then are they most cautelous. This Confluence of Strangers makes them very populous, which was the Cause that Charles the Emperor said, that all the Netherlands seem'd to him but as one continued Town. He and his Grandfather Maximilian, notwithstanding the choice of Kingdoms they had, kept their Courts most frequently in them, which shew'd how highly they esteem'd them; and I believe if Philip the second had visited them sometimes, Matters had not gone so ill.

There is no part of the Earth, considering the small circuit of the Country, which is estimated to be but as big as the fifth part of Italy, where one may find more differing Customs, Tempers and Humors of People, than in the Netherlands; The Wallon is quick and sprightly, acostable and full of Complement, and gawdy in Apparel, like his next Neighbor the French: The Fleming and Brabanter, somewhat more slow, and more sparing of Speech: The Hollander slower than he, more surly and disrespectful of Gentry and Strangers, homely in his cloathing, of very few words, and heavy in Action, which may be well imputed to the quality of the Soil, which works so strongly upon the Humors, that when People of a more vivacious and nimble Temper come to mingle with them, their Children are observ'd to partake rather of the Soil than the Sire; and so it is in all Animals besides.

Thus have I huddled up some Observations of the Low-Countries,
F 4 beseeching

befeeching your Lopp. would be pleas'd to pardon the imperfections, and correct the errors of them, for I know none so capable to do it as your Lopp. to whom I am

*Antwerp, 1 Maii.
1622.*

A most humble and ready Servitor, J. H.

XVI.

To my Brother, Mr. Hugh Penry, upon his Marriage.

S I R,

YOU have had a good while the interest of a Friend in me, but you have me now in a streighter tie, for I am your Brother by your late Marriage, which hath turn'd Friendship into an Alliance; you have in your arms one of my dearest Sisters, who, I hope, nay, I know will make a good Wife: I heartily congratulate this Marriage, and pray that a Blessing may descend upon it from that place where all Marriages are made, which is from Heaven, the Fountain of all Felicity: To this Prayer I think it no Prophaneness to add the saying of the Lyrick Poet Horace, in whom I know you delight much, and I send it you as a kind of Epithalamium, and wish it may be verified in you both:

Fælices ter & amplius

Quos irrupta tenet copula, nec malis

Divulsus querimoniis

Suprema citius solvet amor die.

Thus English'd,

That Couple's more than trebly blest,

Which Nuptial Bonds do so combine,

That no Distast can them untwine,

Till the last day send both to rest.

So dear Brother, I much rejoyce for this Alliance, and wish you may increase and multiply to your Hearts Content.

May the 20. 1622.

Your affectionate Brother, J. H.

XVII.

To my Brother, Doctor Howell, from Brussels.

S I R,

I Had yours in Latin at Rotterdam, whence I corresponded with you in the same Language; I heard, though not from you, since I came from Brussels, that our Sister Anne is lately Married to Mr. Hugh Penry, I am heartily glad of it, and wish the rest of our Sisters were so well bestow'd; for I know Mr. Penry to be a Gentleman of a great deal of solid worth and integrity, and one that will prove prove a great Husband, and a good Oeconomist.

Here is news that Mansfelt hath receiv'd a foyl lately in Germany, and that the Duke of Brunswick, alias Bishop of Halverstadt hath lost one of his Arms: This makes them vapour here extreamly, and the last Week I heard of a Play the Jesuits of Antwerp made, in derogation, or rather derision of the proceedings of the Prince Palsgrave, where amongst divers other passages, they feign'd a Post to come puffing upon the Stage, and being ask'd what News, he answer'd, how the Palsgrave was like to have shortly a huge formidable Army, for the King of Denmark was to send him a hundred thousand, the Hollanders a hundred thousand, and the King of Great Britain a hundred thousand; but being asked thousands of what? he replied, the first would send 100000 Red Herrings, the second, 100000 Cheeses, and the last, 100000 Ambassadors, alluding to Sir Richard Weston, and Sir Edward Conway, my Lord Carlile, Sir Arthur Chichester, and lastly, the Lord Digby, who have been all imploy'd in Quality of Ambassadors in less then two Years, since the beginning of these German Broils: Touching the last, having been with the Emperor and the Duke of Bavaria, and carried himself with such high Wisdom in his Negotiations with the one, and Stoutness with the other, and having preserv'd Count Mansfelt's Troops from Disbanding, by pawning his own Argenty and Jewels, he pass'd this way, where they say the Archduke did esteem him more than any Ambassador that ever was in this Court, and the report is yet very fresh of his Abilities.

We are to remove hence in Coach towards Paris the next Week where we intend to Winter, or hard by; when you have opportunity to write to Wales, I pray present my Duty to my Father, and my Love to the rest; I pray remember me also to all at the Hill and the Dale, especially to that most vertuous Gentleman, Sir John Franklin. So my dear Brother, I pray God continue and improve his Blessings to us both, and bring us again together with comfort.

June 10. 1622.

Your Brother, J. H.

XVIII.

To Dr. Tho. Prichard at Worcester-House.

S I R,

Friendship is that great Chain of Human Society; and intercourse of Letters is one of the chiefeſt Links of that Chain: You know this as well as I, therefore I pray let our friendship, let our love, that nationality of British love, that vertuous tye of Academick love be still strengthned (as heretofore) and receive daily more and more vigor. I am now in Paris, and there is weekly opportunity to receive and

and send ; and if you please to send, you shall be sure to receive, for I make it a kind of Religion to be punctual in this kind of payment. I am heartily glad to hear that you are become a Domestick member to that most noble Family of the Worcesters, and I hold it to be a very good foundation for future preferment ; I wish you may be as happy in them, as I know they will be happy in you. France is now barren of News, only there was a shrewd brush lately 'twixt the young King and his Mother, who having the Duke of Espernon and others for her Champions, met him in open Field about Pont de Ce, but she went away with the worst ; such was the rare dutifulness of the King, that he forgave her upon his knees, and pardon'd all her complices : And now there is an universal Peace in this Country, which 'tis thought will not last long, for there is a War intended against them of the Reform'd Religion ; for this King though he be slow in speech, yet is he active in Spirit, and loves motion : I am here comrade to a gallant young Gentleman my old acquaintance, who is full of excellent parts, which he hath acquir'd by a choice breeding, the Baron his Father gave him both in the University, and in the Inns of Court, so that for the time, I envy no Man's Happiness. So with my hearty Commends, and much endear'd Love unto you, I rest

Paris, 3. Aug.
1622.

Yours whilst
Jam. Howell.

XIX.

To the Honourable Sir Tho. Savage, (after Lord Savage) at his House upon Tower-hill.

Honourable S I R,

THose many undeserved favours for which I stand oblig'd to your self and my Noble Lady, since the time I had the happiness to come first under your roof, and the command you pleas'd to lay upon me at my departure thence, call upon me at this time to give you account how matters pass in France.

That which for the present affords most plenty of news is Rochel, which the King threatneth to block up this Spring with an Army by Sea, under the command of the D. of Nevers, and by a Land Army under his own conduct : both sides prepare, he to assault, the Rochellers to defend. The King declares that he proceeds not against them for their Religion which he is still contented to tolerate, but for holding an Assembly against his Declarations. They answer, That their Assembly is grounded upon his Majesties Royal Warrant, given at the dissolution of the last Assembly at Lodun whe where he solemnly gave his word, to permit them to re-assemble when they would six months after, if the breaches of their liberty and grievances which they then propounded were not redressed; and they say this being unperform'd, it stands not with the Sacred Person of a King to violate his Promise, being the first that ever he made them. The King is so incens'd against them, that their Deputies can have neither access to his Person, nor audience of his Council, as they stile themselves the Deputies of the Assembly at Rochel; but if they say they come from the whole Body of them of the pretended reform'd Religion, he will hear them. The breach between them is grown so wide, that the King resolves upon a Siege. This resolution of the King's is much fomented by the Roman Clergy, especially by the Celestines, who have 200000 Crowns of Gold in the Arsenal of Paris, which they would sacrifice all to this Service; besides, the Pope sent a Bull to levy what Sums he would of the Gallican Church, for the advancement of this design: This resolution also is much push'd on by the Gentry, who besides the particular employments and pay they shall receive hereby, are glad to have their young King train'd up in Arms to make him a Martial Man. But for the Merchant and poor Peasant, they tremble at the name of this War, fearing their teeth should be set on edge with those sour grapes their Fathers tasted in the time of the League, for if the King begin with Rochel, 'tis fear'd all the four corners of the Kingdom will be set on fire.

Of all the Towns of surety which they of the Religion hold Rochel is the chiefest; a place strong by Nature, but stronger by Art: It is a Maritim Town, and Landward they can by sluices drown a Leagues distance: 'tis fortified with mighty thick walls, bastions. and counterscarps, and those according to the modern rules of Enginry. This amongst other cautionary Towns, was granted by Henry the Fourth, to them of the Religion for a certain term of years, which being expir'd, the King saith they are devolv'd again to the Crown, and so demands them. They of the Religion pretend to have divers grievances; first, they have not been paid these two years the 160000 Crowns which the last King gave them annually to maintain their Ministers and Garrisons: They complain of the King's carriage lately at Pearn (Henry the Great's Country) which was meerly Protestant, where he hath introduc'd two years since the publick exercise of the Mass, which had not been sung there fifty years before; he alter'd also there the Government of the Country, and in lieu of a Viceroy, left a Governor only: And whereas Navarrin was formerly a Court of Parliament for the whole Kingdom of Navar, (that's under France) he hath put it down, and publish'd an Edict, That the Navarrois should come to Toulouse, the chief
Town

Town of Languedock; and lastly, he left behind him a Garrison in the said Town of Navarin. These and other grievances they of the Religion propos'd to the King lately, desiring his Majesty would let them enjoy still those priviledges his Predecessor Henry III. and his Father Henry IV. afforded them by Act of Pacification: But he made them a short answer, That what the one did in this point, he did it out of fear; what the other did, he did it out of love; but he would have them know, that he neither lov'd them, nor fear'd them: So the business is like to bleed fore on both sides; nor is there yet any appearance of prevention.

There was a scuffle lately here 'twixt the Duke of Navers and the Cardinal of Guise, who have had a long suit in law about an Abbey, and meeting the last week about the Palace, from words they fell to blows, the Cardinal struck the Duke first, and so were parted, but in the afternoon there appear'd on both sides no less then 3000 Horse in a Field hard by, which shews the populousness and sudden strength of this huge City, but the matter was taken up by the King himself, and the Cardinal clapt up in the Bastile, where the King saith he shall abide to ripen; for he is but young, and they speak of a Bull that is to come from Rome to Decardinalize him. I fear to have trespass'd too much upon your patience, therefore I will conclude for the present, but will never cease to profess my self

Your thrice humble and ready

Servitor,

J. H.

Paris, Aug. 18.

1622.

XX.

To D. Caldwell, Esq; from Poyssy.

My dear D.

TO be free from English, and to have the more conveniency to fall close to my business, Mr. Alt ham and I are lately retir'd from Paris to this town of Poyssy, a pretty genteel place at the foot of the great Forrest of St. German, upon the River Sequana, and within a mile of one of the King's chiefest standing Houses, and about fifteen miles from Paris, here is one of the prime Nunneries of all France. Lewis IX. who in the Catalogue of the French Kings is call'd St. Lewis, which Title was confirm'd by the Pope, was Baptiz'd in this little Town, and after his return from Egypt and other places against the Saracens, being ask'd by what Title he would be distinguish'd from the rest of his Predecessors after his death, he answer'd, that he desir'd to be call'd Lewis of Poyssy: Reply being made, that there were divers other places and Cities of renown,

renown, where he had perform'd brave exploits, and obtain'd famous Victories, therefore it was more fitting that some of those places should denominate him : No, said he, I desire to be call'd Lewis of Poyssy, because there I got the most glorious Victory that ever I had, for there I overcame the Devil ; meaning that he was Christned there.

I sent you from Antwerp a silver Dutch Table-book, I desire to hear of the receipt of it in your next : I must desire you (as I did once at Rouen) to send me a dozen pair of the whitest kid-skin Gloves for Women, and half a dozen pair of Knives by the Merchants Post, and if you want any thing that France can afford, I hope you know what power you have to dispose of Poyssy, September 7.

1622.

Yours
J. H.

XXII.

To my Father, from Paris.

S I R,

I Was afraid I should never have had ability to write to you again, I had lately such a dangerous fit of sickness, but I have now pass'd the brunt of it, God hath been pleas'd to reprieve me, and reserve me for more days, which I hope to have grace to number better ; Mr. Altham and I having retired to a small Town from Paris for more privacy, and sole conversation with the Nation ; I tied my self to a task for the reading of so many Books in such a compass of time, and thereupon to make good my word to my self, I us'd to watch many nights together, though it was in the depth of Winter, but returning to this Town, I took cold in the head, and so that mass of rheum which had gather'd by my former watching turn'd to an imposthume in my head, whereof I was sick above forty days, at the end they cauteriz'd and made an issue in my cheek to make vent for the imposthume, and that sav'd my life : At first they let me blood, and I parted with above fifty ounces in less than a fortnight, for Phlebotomy is so much practis'd here, that if ones little finger ake, they presently open a vein, and so ballance the blood on both sides, they usually let blood in both arms. And the commonness of the thing seems to take away all fear, insomuch that the very women when they find themselves indispos'd, will open a vein themselves ; for they hold that the blood which hath a circulation and fetcheth a round every 24 hours about the body is quickly repair'd again. I was eighteen days and nights that I had no sleep, but short imperfect slumbers, and those too procur'd by potions : The tumour
at

at last came so about my throat, that I had scarce vent left for respiration, and my body was brought so low with all sorts of Physick, that I appear'd like a meer Skeleton. When I was indifferently well recover'd, some of the Doctors and Chirurgeons that tended me, gave me a visit, and amongst other things they fell in discourse of Wines, which was the best, and so by degrees they fell upon other Beverages, and one Doctor in the Company who had been in England, told me that we have a Drink in England, call'd Ale, which he thought was the wholsom'st Liquor that could go into ones guts, for whereas the Body of Man is supported by two columns, viz. the natural heat and radical moisture, he said, there is no drink conduceth more to the preservation of the one, and the increase of the other than Ale, for while the English-men drank only Ale, they were strong brawny able Men, and could draw an Arrow an ell long, but when they fell to Wine and Beer, they are found to be much impar'd in their strength and Age; so the Ale bore away the Bell among the Doctors.

The next Week we advance our course further into France towards the River of Loire to Orleans, whence I shall continue to convey my Duty to you. In the mean time I humbly crave your Blessing, and your Acknowledgment to God Almighty for my Recovery; be pleas'd further to impart my Love amongst my Brothers and Sisters, with all my Kinsmen and Friends in the Country, so I rest

Paris, Decembris 10.
1622.

Your Dutiful Son,
J. H.

XXII.

To Sir Tho. Savage, Knight and Baronet.

Honourable S I R,

THat of the fifth of this present which you pleas'd to send me was receiv'd, and I begin to think my self something more than I was, that you value so much the slender endeavours of my Pen to do you Service. I shall continue to improve your good Opinion of me as Opportunity shall serve.

Touching the great threats against Rochel, whereof I gave you an ample relation in my last, matters are become now more calm, and rather inclining to an accommodation, for 'tis thought a sum of money will make up the breach; and to this end some think all these Bravado's were made. The Duke of Luyne is at last made Lord high Constable of France, the prime Officer of the Crown, he hath a peculiar Court to himself, a Guard of 100 Men in rich Liveries, and a hundred thousand Livers every Year Pension: The old

old Duke of Lefdiguières, one of the ancientest Soldiers of France, and a Protestant, is made his Lieutenant.

But in regard all Christendom rings of this Favorite, being the greatest that ever was in France, since the Maires of the Palace, who came to be Kings afterwards, I will send you herein his Legend. He was born in Province, and is a Gentleman by descent, though of a petty extraction, in the last King's time he was prefer'd to be one of his Pages, who finding him industrious, and a good waiter allow'd him 300 Crowns Pension per Ann. which he husbanded so well, that he maintain'd himself and his two Brothers in passable good fashion therewith. The King observing that, doubled his Pension, and taking notice that he was a serviceable instrument, and apt to please, he thought him fit to be about his Son, in whose service he hath continued above fifteen years, and he hath flown so high into his favour by a singular Dexterity and Art he hath in Faulconry, and by shooting at Birds flying, wherein the King took great pleasure, that he hath soar'd to this pitch of honour. He is a Man of a passable good understanding and forecast, of a mild comportment, humble and debonnair to all, and of a winning conversation, he hath about him choice and solid heads, who prescribe unto him rules of policy, by whose Compass he steers his Course, which is likely will make him subsist long : He is now come to that transcendent Altitude, that he seems to have mounted above the reach of envy, and made all hopes of supplanting him frustrate, both by the politick guidance of his own actions, and the powerful alliances he hath got for himself and his two Brothers : He is Married to the Duke of Monthazons Daughter, one of the prime Peers of France. His second Brother Cadanet (who is reputed the wisest of the three) married the heiress of Picardy, with whom he had 9000 l. Lands a Year. His third Brother Brand to the great Heiress of Luxemburg, of which House there have been five Emperors; so that these three Brothers and their allies would be able to counterbalance any one faction in France, the eldest and youngest being made Dukes, and Peers of France, the other Marshal. There are lately two Ambassadors extraordinary come hither from Venice about the Valtolin, but their negotiation is at a stand, until the return of an Ambassador extraordinary which is gone to Spain : Ambassadors also are come from the Hague for payment of the French Regiment there, which hath been neglected these ten years, and to know whether his Majesty will be pleas'd to continue their pay any longer ; but their answer is yet suspended : They have brought news that the seven Ships which were built for his Majesty in the Tessel are ready, to this he answer'd, that he desires to have ten more built ; for he intends to finish that design which his Father had a foot a little before his death to establish a Royal Company of Merchants.
his

This is all the News that France affords for the present, the relation whereof, if it prove as acceptable as my endeavours to serve you herein are pleasing unto me, I shall esteem my self happy: So wishing you and my noble Lady continuance of Health, and increase of Honour, I rest,

Your most humble Servitor,

J. H.

Paris, 15 Decembris,
1622.

XXIII.

To Sir John North, Knight.

S I R,

I Confess you have made a perfect conquest of me by your late favours, and I yield my self your Captive, a day may come that will enable me to pay my ransom, in the interim, let a most thankful Acknowledgment be my Bail and Mainprize.

I am now remov'd from off the Sein to the Loire, to the fair Town of Orleans: There was here lately a mixt Procession 'twixt military and ecclesiastick for the maid of Orleans, which is perform'd every year very solemnly, her Statue stands upon the bridge, and her cloaths are preserv'd to this day, which a young Man wore in the Procession; which makes me think that her story, though it sound like a Romance is very true: And I read it thus in two or three Chronicles; when the English had made such firm invasions in France, that their Armies had march'd into the heart of the Countrey, besieg'd Orleans, and driven Charles the seventh to Bourges in Berry, which made him to be call'd, for the time, King of Berry; there came to his Army a Shepherdess, one Ande de Arque, who with a confident look and language, told the King, that she was design'd by Heaven to beat the English, and drive them out of France. Therefore she desir'd a Command in the Army, which by her extraordinary confidence and importunity she obtain'd, and putting on Man's Apparel, she prov'd so prosperous, that the Siege was rais'd from before Orleans, and the English were pursued to Paris, and forced to quit that, and driven to Normandy: She us'd to go on with marvellous Courage and Resolution, and her Word was hara ha: But in Normandy she was taken Prisoner, and the English had a fair Revenge upon her, for by an Arrest of the Parliament ment of Rouen she was burnt for a Witch. There is a great Business now afoot in Paris call'd the Polette, which if it take effect will tend to correct, at leastwise to cover a great Error in the French Government: The Custom is, that all the chief Places of Justice throughout all the eight Courts of Parliament in France, besides a great number of other Offices, are set to sale by the King, and they return to him unless the Buyer liveth forty Days after his Resignation to another: It is now propounded that these casual Offices shall be absolutely hereditary, provided that every Officer pay a yearly Revenue unto the King, according to the Valuation of, and Perquisites of the Office: This Business is now in hot Agitation, but the Issue is yet doubtful.

The last you sent I receiv'd by Vacandary in Paris: so highly honoring your excellent Parts and Merit, I rest, now that I understand French indifferent well, no more your (she) Servant, but Orleance, 3 Martii.

1622.

Your most faithful Servitor,
J. H.

XXIV.

To Sir James Crofts, Knight.

S I R,

W Ere I to freight a Letter with Complements, this Country would furnish me with Variety, but of News a small Store at this present; and for Complement it is dangerous to use any to you, who have such a piercing Judgment to discern semblances from realities.

The Queen Mother is come at last to Paris, where she hath not been since Ancre's death: The King is also return'd Post from Bordeaux, having travers'd most part of his Kingdom, he settled Peace every where he pass'd, and quash'd divers Insurrections, and by his Obedience to his Mother, and his Lenity towards all his Partisans at Pont de Ce, where above 400 were slain, and notwithstanding that he was victorious, yet he gave a general Pardon, he hath gain'd much upon the Affections of his People: His Council of State went ambulatory always with him, and as they say here, never did Men manage things with more Wisdom. There is a War questionless a fermenting against the Protestants, the Duke of Espernon in a kind of Rodomontado way, desired Leave of the King to block up Rochel, and in six weeks he would undertake to deliver her to his Hands, but I believe he reckons without his Host. I was told a merry Passage of this little Gascon Duke, who is now the oldest Soldier of France; Having come lately to Paris he treated with a Pander to procure him a Courtesan, and if she was a

Damoisel

Damoisel (a Gentlewoman) he would give so much, and if a Citizen he would give so much: The Pander did his Office, but brought him a Citizen clad in Damoisels Apparel, so she and her Maquerel were paid accordingly; the next day after, some of his Familiars having understood hereof, began to be pleasant with the Duke, and to jeer him, that he being a viscil Routier, an old tryed Soldier, should suffer himself to be so cozen'd, as to pay for a Citizen after the rate of a Gentlewoman; the little Duke grew half wild hereupon, and commenc'd an Action of Fraud against the Pander, but what became of it I cannot tell you, but all Paris rung of it. I hope to return now very shortly to England, where amongst the rest of my noble Friends, I shall much rejoyce to see and serve you, whom I honour with no vulgar Affection, so I am

Your true Servitor,

Orleance, 5 Martii.

1622.

J. H.

XXV.

To my Cousin Mr. Will. Martin at Brussels, from Paris.

Dear Cousin,

I Find you are very punctual in your Performances, and a precise Observer of the Promise you made here to correspond with Mr. Altham and me by Letters. I thank you for the Variety of German News you imparted unto me, which was so neatly couch'd and curiously knit together, that your Letter might serve for a Pattern to the best Intelligencer. I am sorry the Affairs of the Prince Palsgrave go so untowardly, the Wheel of War may turn, and that Spoke which is now up may down again. For French Occurrences, there is a War certainly intended against them of the Religion here; and there are visible Preparations a foot already; Amongst others that shrink in the Shoulders at it, the King's Servants are not very well pleas'd with it, in regard besides Scots and Switzers, there are divers of the King's Servants that are Protestants. If a Man go to ragion' di stato, to reason of State, the French King hath something to justify this Design; for the Protestants being so numerous, and having near upon fifty presidiary wall'd Towns in their Hands for Caution, they have Power to disturb France when they please, and being abetted by a foreign Prince to give the King Law; and you know as well as I, how they have been made Use of to kindle a Fire in France: Therefore rather than they should be utterly suppress'd, I believe the the Spaniard himself would reach them his Ragged-Staff to defend them.

I send you here inclos'd another from Master Altham, who respects you dearly, and we remembered you lately at la pomme du pin in the best Liquor of the French Grape. I shall be shortly for London, where I shall not rejoyce a little to meet you; the English Air may confirm what foreign begun, I mean our Friendship and Affections, and in Me (that I may return you in English the Latin Verses you sent me)

*As soon a little little Ant
Shall bib the Ocean dry,
A Snail shall creep about the World,
E're these Affections dye.*

So my dear Cousin, may Virtue be your Guide, and Fortune your Companion

Paris, 18 Martii.

1622.

Tours while

Jam. Howel.

Familiar LETTERS.

SECTION III.

I.

To my Father.

SIR,

I Am safely return'd now the second time from beyond the Seas, but I have yet no Employment: God and good Friends I hope will shortly provide one for me.

The Spanish Ambassador Count Gondamar doth strongly negotiate a Match 'twixt our Prince, and the Infanta of Spain, but at his first Audience there happen'd an ill-favour'd Accident, (I pray God it prove no ill Augury) for my Lord of Arundel being sent to accompany him to White-Hall, upon a Sunday in the Afternoon, as they were going over the Terrass, it broke under them, but only one was hurt in the Arm; Gondamar said, that he had not car'd to have dyed in so good Company: He saith there is no other way to regain the Palatinate, but by this Match, and to settle an eternal Peace in Christendom.

The Marquis of Buckingham continueth still in Fulness of Grace and Favor; the Countess his Mother sways also much at Court, she brought Sir H. Montague from delivering Law on the King's Bench to look to his Bags in the Exchequer, for she made him Lord High Treasurer of England, but he parted with his white Staff before the years end, though his Purse had bled deeply for it, (above 20000 l.) which made a Lord of this Land to ask him at his Return from Court, Whether he did not find that Wood was extream dear at New-market, for there he receiv'd the white Staff. There is now a notable stirring Man in the Place, my Lord Cranfield, who from walking about the Exchange, is come to sit chief Judge in the Chequer Chamber, and to have one of the highest Places at the Council Table: He is married to one of the Tribe of Fortune, a Kinswoman of the Marquis of Buckingham. Thus there is rising and falling at Court, and as in our natural pace one Foot cannot be up, till till the other be down, so it is in the Affairs of the World commonly, one Man riseth at the fall of the other.

I have no more to write at this time, but that with tender of my Duty to you, I desire a continuance of your Blessing and Prayers.

Lond. March 22.
1622.

Your Dutiful Son,
J. H.

II.

To the Honourable, M. John Savage, (now Earl Rivers) at Florence.

S I R,

MY love is not so short but it can reach as far as Florence to find you out, and further too if occasion requird, nor are these affections I have to serve you so dull but they can clamber ore the Alps and Appennin to wait upon you, as they have adventur'd to do now in this Paper, I am sorry I was not in London to kiss your Hands before you set to Sea, and much more sorry that I had not the happiness to meet you in Holland or Brabant, for we went the very same road, and lay in Dort and Antwerp in the same lodgings you had lain in a fortnight before. I presume you have by this time tasted of the swetness of Travel, and that you have wean'd your affections from England for a good while, you must now think upon home (as one said) good Men think upon Heaven, aiming still to go thither, but not till they finish their course; and yours I understand will be three years, in the mean time you must not suffer any melting tendernefs of thoughts, or longing desires, to distract or interrupt you in that fair road you are in to virtue, and to beautifie within that comely edifice which nature hath built without you. I know your Reputation is precious to you, as it should be to every noble Mind, you have expos'd it now to the hazard, therefore you must be careful it receive no taint at your return, by not answering that expectation which your Prince and noble Parents have of you: You are now under the chiefest clime of Wisdom, fair Italy, the Darling of Nature, the Nurse of Policy, the Theatre of Virtue; but though Italy give Milk to Virtue with one Dug, she often suffers Vice to suck at the other, therefore you must take heed you mistake not the Dug; for there is an ill-favour'd saying, that Inglese Italionato e Diavolo incarnato; An Englishman Italianat, is a Devil incarnate. I fear no such thing of you, I have had such pregnant proofs of your ingenuity, and noble inclinations to virtue and honour: I know you have a mind to both, but I must tell you, that you will hardly get the good will of the latter, unless the first speak a good word for you : When you go to Rome, you may haply see the ruines of two Temples, one dedicated to Virtue, the other to Honour, and there was no way to enter into the last, but through the first. Noble Sir, I wish your good very seriously, and if you please to call to memory, and examine the circumstance of things, and my carriage towards you since I had the happiness to be known first to your Honourable Family, I know you will conclude that I love and honour you in no vulgar way.

My Lord, your Grandfather was complaining lately that he had not heard from you a good while : By the next Shipping to Leghorn, amongst other things he intends to send you a whole Brawn in collars. I pray be pleas'd to remember my affectionate service to Mr. Thomas Savage ; and my kind respects to Mr. Bold : For English News I know this packet comes freighted to you, therefore I forbear at this time to send any. Farewel noble Heir of Honour, and command always 1622.

Lond. March 24,

Your true Servitor,

J. H.

III.

To Sir James Crofts, Knight, at Saint Osith
in Essex.

S. I. R,

I Had yours upon Tuesday last, and whereas you are desirous to know the Proceedings of the Parliament, I am sorry I must write to you that matters begin to grow boysterous, the King retir'd not long since to Newmarket not very well pleas'd, and his week there went thither twelve from the House of Commons, to whom Sir Richard Weston was the Mouth : The King not liking the Message they brought, call'd them his Ambassadors, and in the large answer which he hath sent to the Speaker, he saith, that he must apply unto them a Speech of Queen Elizabeth's to an Ambassador of Poland, Legatum expectavimus, Heraldum accepimus : We expected an Ambassador, we have received a Herald ; he takes it not well that they should meddle with the match 'twixt his Son and the Infanta, alledging an example of one of the Kings of France, which would not marry his Son without the advice of his Parliament ; but afterwards that King grew so despicable abroad, that no Forreign State would treat with him about any thing without his Parliament. Sundry other high passages there were as a caveat he gave them not to touch the Honour of the King of Spain, with whom he was so far engag'd in a matrimonial monial treaty that he could not go back : He gave them also a check for taking cognizance of those things which had their motion in the ordinary Courts of Justice, and that Sir Edward Coke, (though these words were not inserted in the answer) whom he thought to be the fittest instrument for a Tyrant that ever was in England, should be so bold as to call the Prerogative of the Crown a great Monster. The Parliament after this was not long liv'd, but broak up in discontent, and upon the point of dissolution they made a Protest against divers particulars in the aforesaid, answer of his Majesties. My Lord Digby is preparing for Spain in Quality of Ambassador Extraordinary, to perfect the match 'twixt our Prince and the Lady Infanta, in which business Gondamar hath waded already very deep, and been very active, and ingratiated himself with divers Persons of Quality, Ladies especially, yet he could do no good upon the Lady Hatton, who he desir'd lately, that in regard he was her next neighbour (at Ely-house) he might have the benefit of her back-gate to go abroad into the Fields, but she put him off with a Compliment, whereupon in a private audience lately with the King, among other passages of merriment, he told him that my Lady Hatton was a strange Lady, for she would not suffer her Husband Sir Edward Coke to come in at her fore-door, nor him to go out at her back-door ; and so related the whole business : He was also dispatching a Post lately for Spain, and the Post having receiv'd his Packet, and kiss'd his Hands, he call'd him back and told him he had forgot one thing, which was, that when he came to Spain, he should commend him to the Sun, for he had not seen him a great whils, and in Spain he should be sure to find him. So with my most humble Service to my Lord of Colchester, I rest

London, March 24,

1622.

Your most humble Servitor,

J. H.

IV.

To my Brother, Mr. Hugh Penry.

S I R,

THE Welsh nag you sent me, was deliver'd me in a very good plight, and I give you a thousand thanks for him ; I had occasion lately to try his mettle and his lungs, and every one tells me he is right, and of no mongrel race, but a true Mountaneer, for besides his toughness, and strength of lungs up a hill, he is quickly curried, and content with short Commons : I believe he hath not been long a highway traveller, for whereas other horses, when they pass by an Inn or Ale-house, use to make towards them to give them a friendly visit, this Nag roundly goes on, and scorners to cast as much as a glance upon any of them, which I know not whether I shall impute it to his ignorance, or height of spirit, but conversing with the soft Horses of England, I believe he will quickly be brought to be more courteous.

The greatest news we have now is the return of the Lord Bp. of Landaff, Davenant, Ward, and Belcanquell, from the Synod of Dort, where the Bp. had precedence given him according to his Episcopal Dignity, Arminius and Vorstius were forebaited there concerning Predestination, Election, and Reprobation; as also touching Christ's Death, and Man's Redemption by it; then concerning Man's Corruption, and Conversion; lastly, concerning the Perseverance of the Saints: I shall have shortly the Transaction of the Synod. The Jesuits have put out a jeering Libel against it, and these two Verses I remember in't.

Dordrecht's Synodus? nodus; choras integer? ager;

Conventus? ventus; Sessio stramen; Amen.

But I will confront this Distich with another I read in France of the Jesuits in the Town of Dole, towards Lorain, they had a great House given them, call'd L'arc (arcum) and upon the River of Loir, Henry IV. gave them la fleche, sagittam in Latin, where they have two stately Convents; that is, Bow and Arrow; whereupon one made these Verses:

Aecum Dola dedit, dedit illis alma sagittam

Francia; quis chordam, quam meruere, dabit?

Fair France the Arrow, Dole gave them the Bow,

Who shall the String which they deserve bestow;

No more now, but that with my dear love to my Sister, I rest,

London, April 16.

Your most affectionate Brother,

1622.

J. H.

V.

To the Lord Vicount Colchester.

My good Lord,

I Receiv'd your Lordship's of the last Week, and according to your Command, I send here inclos'd the Venetian Gazzette of Forreign Aviso's, they write that Mansfelt hath been beaten out of Germany, and is come to Sedan, and 'tis thought the Duke of Borillon will set him up again with a new Army: Marquis Spinola hath newly sat down before Bergen op zoom; your Lordship knows well what Consequence that Town is of, therefore it is likely this will be a hot Summer in the Netherlands. The French King is in open War against them of the Religion, he hath already clear'd the Loire by taking

Ferfeaux

Ferfeau and Saumur, where Monsieur du Plessis sent him the keys, which are promis'd to be deliver'd him again, but I think ad Græcis Calendas. He hath been also before St. John d'Angeli, where the young Cardinal of Guyse died, being struck down by the puff of a Cannon-bullet, which put him in a burning feavour, and made an end of him, the last Town that's taken was Clerac, which was put to 50000 Crowns ransom; many were put to the Sword, and divers Gentlemen drown'd as they thought to escape, this is the fifteenth cautionary Town the King hath taken, and now they say he marcheth towards Montauban, and so to Montpellier and Nismes, and then have at Rochel. My Lord Hays is by this time 'tis thought with the Army, for Sir Edward Harbert is return'd, having had some clashings and counterbuffs with the Favorite Luynes, wherein he comported himself gallantly: There is a fresh report blown over, that Luynes is lately dead in the Army of the Plague, some say of the Purples, the next Couzen German to it; which the Protestants give out to be the just judgment of Heaven faln upon him, because he incited his Master to these Wars against them. If he be not dead, let him dye when he will, he will leave a fame behind him, to have been the greatest Favorite for the time that ever was in France, having from a simple Faulconer come to be high Constable, and made himself and his younger Brothers Grand Dukes and Peers; and his second Brother Cadenet Marshal, and all three Married to Princely Families.

No more now, but that I most humbly kiss your Lordship's Hands, and shall be always most ready and chearful to receive your Commandments, because I am

London, 12 Aug.
1622.

Your Lordship's obliged Servitor,
J. H.

VI.

To my Father from London.

S I R,

I Was at a dead stand in the course of my Fortunes, when it ples'd God to provide me lately an employment to Spain, whence I hope there may arise both repute and profit. Some of the Cape Merchants of the Turky Company, amongst whom the chieft were Sir Robert Napper, and Captain Leat, propos'd unto me, that they had a great business in the Court of Spain in agitation many years, nor was it now their business oat the King's, in whose name it is followed: They could have Gentlemen of good Quality that would undertake it; yet if I would take it upon me, they would employ no other, and assur'd me that the employment should tend both both to my benefit and credit. Now the business is this : There was a great Turkey Ship call'd the Vineyard, failing through the Streights toward Constantinople, but by distress of weather she was forc'd to put into a little Port call'd Milo in Sardinia : The searchers came aboard of her, and finding her richly laden, for her cargazon of broad-cloth was worth the first penny near upon 30000*l*. they cavill'd at some small proportion of lead and tin, which they had only for the use of the Ship, which the Searchers alledged to be ropa de contrabando, prohibited goods, for by Article of Peace nothing is to be carried to Turky that may arm or vittle. The Vice-roy of Sardinia hereupon seiz'd upon the whole Ship, and all her goods, landed the Master and Men in Spain, who coming to Sir Charles Cornwallis, then Ambassador at the Court; Sir Charles could do them little good at present, therefore they came to England, and complain'd to the King and Council, his Majesty was so sensible hereof, that he sent a particular Commission in his own Royal Name, to demand a restitution of the ship and goods, and justice upon the Vice-Roy of Sardinia, who had so apparently broke the Peace, and wrong'd his Subjects : Sir Charles (with Sir Paul Pindar a while) labour'd in the business, and commenc'd a Suit in Law, but he was call'd home before he could do any thing to purpose. After him Sir John Digby (now Lord Digby) went Ambassador to Spain, and amongst other things, he had the particular Commission from his Majesty invested in him, to prosecute the Suit in his own Royal Name : Thereupon he sent a well qualified Gentleman, Mr. Walsingham Gresly to Sardinia, who unfortunately meeting with some Men of War in the passage, was carried Prisoner to Algier : My Lord Digby being remanded home, left the business in Mr. Cotington's hands, then Agent, but resum'd it at his return; yet it prov'd such a tedious intricate suit, that he return'd again without finishing the work, in regard of the remoteness of the Island of Sardinia, whence the witnesses and other dispatches were to be fetcht. The Lord Digby is going now Ambassador extraordinary to the Court of Spain, upon the business of the match, the restitution of the Palatinate, and other high affairs of State, therefore he is desirous to transmit the King's Commission touching this particular business to any Gentleman that is capable to follow it, and promiseth to assist him with the utmost of his power, and he saith he hath good reason to do so, in regard he hath now a good round share himself in it. About this business I am now preparing to go to Spain, in company of the Ambassador, and I shall kiss the King's Hands as his Agent touching this particular Commission. I humbly intreat that your blessing and prayers may accompany me in this my new employment, which I have undertaken ken upon very good terms touching expences and reward : So with my dear love to my Brothers and Sisters, with other Kindred and Friends in the Country, I rest

Your Dutiful Son,
J. H.

London, 8 Sept. 1623.

VII.

To Sir Tho. Savage, Knight and Baronet, at his House in Long-Melford.

Honourable Sir,

I Receiv'd your commands in a Letter which you sent me by Sir John North, and I shall not fail to serve you in those particulars. It hath pleased God to dispose of me once more for Spain, upon a business which I hope will make me good returns : there have two Ambassadors and a Royal Agent follow'd it hitherto, and I am the fourth that is employed in it : I defer to trouble you with the particulars of it, in regard I hope to have the happiness to kiss your hand at Tower-hill before my departure ; which will not be till my Lord Digby sets forward. He goes in a gallant splendid Equipage, and one of the King's Ships is to take him in at Plymouth ; and transport him to the Corunnia, or St. Anderas.

Since that sad Disaster which befel Archbishop Abbot, to kill the Man by the glancing of an Arrow as he was shooting at a Deer, (which kind of Death befel one of our Kings once in New-Forrest :) There hath been a Commission awarded to debate, whether upon this fact, whereby he hath shed human Blood, he be not to be depriv'd of his Archbishoprick, and pronounc'd irregular ; some were against him, but Bishop Andrews, and Sir Henry Martin stood stiffly for him, that in regard it was no spontaneous Act, but a meer Contingency, and that there is no degree of Men but is subject to Misfortunes and Casualties, they declar'd positively that he was not to fall from his Dignity or Function, but should still remain a regular, and in statu quo prius ; during this Debate, he petitioned the King that he might be permitted to retire to his Alms-house at Guilford where he was born, to pass the remainder of his Life ; but he is now come to be again rectus in curia, absolutely quitted and restor'd to all things : But for the Wife of him which was kill'd, it was no misfortune to her, for he hath endowed her self, and her Children with such an Estate, that they say her Husband could never have got : So I humbly kiss your Hands, and rest

London, 9 Nov.

1622.

Your most obliged Servitor,
J. H.

VIII.

To Captain Nich. Leat, from Madrid, at his House in London.

S I R,

I Am safely come to the Court of Spain, and although by reason of that Misfortune which befel Mr. Altham and me, of wounding the Serjeants in Lombardstreet, we stayed three Weeks behind my Lord Ambassador, yet we came hither time enough to attend him to Court at his first Audience.

The English Nation is better look'd on now in Spain than ordinary, because of the hopes there are of a match, which the Merchant and Commonalty much desire, though the Nobility and Gentry be not so forward for it: So that in this point the pulse of Spain beats quite contrary to that of England, where the People are averse to this Match, and the Nobility, with most part of the Gentry inclinable.

I have perus'd all the Papers I could get into my hands, touching the business of the Ship-Vineyard, and I find that they are higher than I in bulk, though closely prest together; I have cast up what is awarded by all the sentences of view, and review, by the Council of State and War, and I find the whole Sum, as well Principal, as Interest upon Interest, all sorts of Damages, and processal Charges, come to above two hundred and fifty thousand Crowns. The Conde del Real quondam Viceroy of Sardinia, who is adjudged to pay most part of this Money is here, and he is Mayr domo, Lord Steward to the Infanta Cardinal; if he hath wherewith, I doubt not but to recover the Money, for I hope to have come in a favourable conjuncture of time, and my Lord Ambassador, who is so highly esteem'd here, doth assure me of his best furtherance. So praying I may prove as successful, as I shall be faithful in this great Business, I rest

Yours to dispose of,

J. H.

Madrid, 28 Decem. 1622.

IX.

To Mr. Arthur Hopton, from Madrid.

S I R,

Since I was made happy with your Acquaintance, I have receiv'd sundry strong evidences of your love and good wishes unto me, which have tied me unto you in no common obligation of thanks: I am in despair ever to cancel this bond, nor would I do it, but rather endear the engagement more and more.

The

The Treaty of the Match 'twixt our Prince and the Lady Infanta is now strongly a foot, she is a very comely Lady, rather of a Flemish complexion than Spanish; fair hair'd, and carrieth a most pure mixture of red and white in her face: she is full and big lip'd, which is held a beauty rather than a blemish or any excess in the Austrian Family, it being a thing incident to most of that race: She goes now upon 16, and is of a tallness agreeable to those years. The King is also of such a complexion, and is under 20; he hath two Brothers, Don Carlos, and Don Hernando, who though a youth of 12, yet is he Cardinal and Archbishop of Toledo, which in regard it hath the Chancellorship of Castile annexed to it, is the greatest Spiritual Dignity in Christendom after the Papacy, for it is valued at 300000 Crowns per Ann. Don Carlos is of a differing complexion from all the rest, for he is black-hair'd, and of a Spanish hue, he hath neither Office, Command, Dignity or Title, but is an individual Companion to the King, and what Cloaths soever are provided for the King, he hath the very same, and as often, from top to toe; he is the better lov'd of the People for his complexion; for one shall hear the Spaniard sigh and lament, saying, O when shall we have a King again of our own Colour!

I pray commend me kindly to all at your House, and send me word when the young Gentlemen return from Italy. So with my most affectionate Respects to your self, I rest, Madrid, 5 Jan.

1622.

Your true Friend to serve you,

J. H.

X.

To Captain Nic. Leat, from Madrid.

S I R,

Yours of the tenth of this present I receiv'd by Mr. Simon Digby, with the inclosed to your Son in Alicant, which is safely sent. Since my last unto you I had access to Olivares the Favorite that rules all; I had also Audience of the King, to whom I deliver'd two Memorials since, in his Majesties Name of Great Britain, that a particular Junta of some of the Council of State and War, might be appointed to determine the business: The last memorial had so good success, that the Referees are nominated, whereof the chiefest is the Duke of Infantado. Here it is not the stile to claw and complement with the King, or Idolize him by Sacred, Sovereign, and most Excellent Majesty, but the Spaniard when he petitions to his King, gives him no other Character but Sir, and so relating his business, at the end he doth ask and demand Justice of him.

him. When I have done with the Vice-roy here, I shall hasten Dispatches for Sardinia: Since my last I went to liquidate the account more particularly, and I find that of the 250000 Crowns, there are above 40000 due unto you; which might serve for a good Alderman's Estate.

Your Son in Alicant writes to me of another mischance that is befallen the Ship Amitie about Majorca, whereof you were one of the Proprietaries; I am very sorry to hear of it, and touching any dispatches that are to be had hence, I shall endeavour to procure you them according to Instructions.

Your Couzen Richard Altham remembers his kind Respects unto you, and sends you many thanks for the pains you took in freeing us from that trouble which the Scuffle with the Sergeants brought upon us. So I rest

Yours ready to serve you,

Madrid, 5 Jan. 1622.

J. H.

XI.

To the Lord Vicount Colchester, from Madrid.

Right Honourable,

THE grand business of the match goes so fairly on, that a special Junta is appointed to treat of it, the names whereof I send you here inclos'd: They have proceeded so far that most of the Articles are agreed upon: Mr. George Gage is lately come hither from Rome, a polite and prudent Gentleman, who hath negotiated some things in that Court for the advance of the business with the Cardinals Bandino, Lodovisio, & la Susanna, who are the main Men there to whom the drawing of the Dispensation is referr'd.

The late taking of Ormuz by the Persian from the Crown of Portugal keeps a great noise here, and the rather because the exploit was done by the assistance of the English Ships that were then thereabouts; my Lord Digby went to Court and gave a round satisfaction in this point; for it was no voluntary, but a constrain'd act in the English, who being in the Persians Port were suddenly embark'd for the service; and the Persian herein did no more than what is usual amongst Christian Princes themselves, and which is often put in practice by the King of Spain, and his *Viceroy*s, than by any other, viz. to make an embargo of any strangers Ship that rides within his Ports upon all occasions. It was fear'd this surprizal of Ormuz, which was the greatest Mart in all the Orient for all sorts of jewels, would have bred ill blood, and prejudic'd the proceedings of the Match, but the Spaniard is a rational Man, and will be satisfied with reason: Count Olivares is the main Man who sways all, and 'tis thought he is not so much averse to an alliance with England as his Predecessor the Duke of Lerma was, who set it first a foot 'twixt Prince Henry, and this Queen of France: The Duke of Lerma was the greatest Privado, the greatest Favourite that ever was in Spain since Don Alvaro de Luna, he brought himself, the Duke of Uzeda his Son, and the Duke of Sea his Grandchild to be all Grandees of Spain, which is the greatest Title that a Spanish Subject is capable of, they have a privilege to stand cover'd before the King, and at their election there's no other Ceremony but only these three words by the King, Cobresce por Grande, cover your self for a Grandee, and that's all: The Cardinal Duke of Lerma lives at Valladolid, he officiates and sings Mass, and passeth his old age in Devotion and Exercises of Piety: It is a common, and indeed a commendable custom amongst the Spaniard, when he hath past his gran climacteric, and is grown decrepit, to make a voluntary resignation of Offices be they never so great and profitable (though I cannot say Lerma did so) and sequestering and weaning themselves as it were from all mundan negotiations and incumbrances, to retire to some place of devotion, and spend the residue of their days in meditation, and in preparing themselves for another World: Charles the Emperor shew'd them the way, who left the Empire to his Brother, and all the rest of his Dominions to his Son Philip the second, and so taking with him his two Sisters, he retir'd into a Monastery, they into a Nunnery: This doth not sute well with the Genius of an English-man, who loves not to pull off his cloathes till he goes to bed. I will conclude with some Verses I saw under a huge Rodomontado Picture of the Duke of Lerma, wherein he is painted like a Giant bearing up the Monarchy of Spain, that of France, and the Popedom upon his Shoulders, with this Stanza.

*Sobre les ombres d'este Atlante
Yaxen en aquestos dias
Estas tres Monarquias.*

Upon the Shoulders of this Atlas lies,
The Popedom and two mighty Monarchies.

So I most humbly kiss your Lordship's Hands, and rest ever most ready

Madrid, 3 Febr. 1622.

*At your Lordship's Command,
J. H.*

XII.

To my Father.

S I R,

ALL affairs went on fairly here, especially that of the match when Master Endymion Porter brought lately my Lord of Bristol a dispatch from England of a high nature, wherein the Earl is commanded to represent unto this King how much his Majesty of Great Britain since the beginning of these German Wars hath labour'd to merit well of this Crown, and of the whole House of Austria, by a long and lingring patience, grounded still upon assurances hence, that care should be had of his honour, his Daughters Joynture, and Grand-childrens Patrimony; yet how crossly all things had proceeded in the Treaty at Brussels, manag'd by Sir Richard Weston, as also that in the Palatinate by the Lord Chichester, how in treating-time the Town and Castle of Heidelburgh were taken, Manheim besieg'd, and all acts of Hostility us'd, notwithstanding the fair professions made by this King, the Infanta at Brussels, and other his Ministers: How meerly out of respect to this King he had neglected all Martial Means which probably might have preserv'd the Palatinate: Those thin Garrisons which he had sent thither, being rather for honours sake to keep a footing until a general accommodation, then that he relyed any way upon their strength: And since that there are no other fruits of all this but reproach and scorn, and that those good Offices which he us'd towards the Emperor on the behalf of his Son in Law, which he was so much encouraged by Letters from hence should take effect, have not sorted to any other issue, then to a plain affront and a high injuring of both their Majesties, though in a different degree: The Earl is to tell him that his Majesty of Great Britain hopes and desires, that out of a true apprehension of these wrongs offer'd unto them both, he will as his dear and loving Brother faithfully promise and undertake upon his honour, confirming the same under his hand and seal, either that Heidelberg shall be within seventy days rendred into his hands; as also that there shall be within the said term of seventy days a suspension of arms in the Palatinate, and that a Treaty shall recompence upon such terms as he propounded in November last, which this King held then to be reasonable; and in case that this be not yielded unto by the Emperor, that then this King joyn forces with his Majesty of England, for the recovery of the Palatinate, which upon this trust hath been lost; or in case his forces at this time be otherwise imploy'd, that they cannot give his Majesty that assistance assistance he desires and deserves, that at least he will permit a free and friendly Passage through his Territories, such Forces as his Majesty of Great Britain shall employ into Germany: Of all which, if the Earl of Bristol hath not from the King of Spain a direct Assurance under his Hand and Seal ten Days after his Audience, that then he take his Leave and return to England to his Majesty's Presence, also to proceed in the Negotiation of the Match according to former Instructions.

This was the main substance of his Majesty's late Letter, yet there was a Postil added, that in case a rupture happen 'twixt the two Crowns, the Earl should not come instantly and abruptly away, but that he should send Advice first to England, and carry the Business so, that the World should not presently know of it.

Notwithstanding all these Traverses, we are confident here, that the Match will take, otherwise my Cake is Dough. There was a great difference in one of the Capitulations 'twixt the two Kings, how long the Children which should issue of this Marriage were to continue sub regimine Matris, under the Tutele of the Mother. This King demanded fourteen years at first, then twelve, but now he is come to nine, which is newly condescended unto. I receiv'd yours of the first of September in another from Sir James Crofts, wherein it was no small Comfort to me to hear of your Health. I am to go hence shortly for Sardinia, a dangerous Voyage, by reason of Algier Pirates. I humbly desire your Prayers may accompany

Your dutiful Son,

Madrid, Feb. 23. 1622.

J. H.

XIII.

To Sir James Crofts, Knight.

S I R,

Yours of the second of October came to safe hand, with the inclos'd; you write that there came Dispatches lately from Rome, wherein the Pope seems to endeavour to insinuate himself into a direct Treaty with England, and to negotiate immediately with our King touching the Dispensation, which he not only labours to evade, but utterly disclaims, it being by Article the task of this King to procure all Dispatches thence: I thank you for sending me this news. You shall understand there came lately an Express from Rome also to this Court, touching the Business of the Match which gave very good Content, but the Dispatch and new Instructions, which Mr. Endymion Porter brought my Lord of Bristol lately from England touching the Prince Palatinate, fills us with apprehensions of fear: Our Ambassadors here have had Audience of this King already about those Propositions, and we hope that Master Porter will carry back such things as will satisfy. Touching the two Points in the Treaty wherein the two Kings differ'd most, viz. about the Education of the Children, and the Exemption of the Infanta's Ecclesiastic Servants from secular Jurisdiction: both these points are clear'd, for the Spaniard is come from fourteen years to ten, and for so long time the Infant Princes shall remain under the Mother's Government. And for the other point the Ecclesiastical Superior shall first take Notice of the Offence that shall be committed by any spiritual Person belonging to the Infanta's Family, and according to the Merit thereof either deliver him by Degradation to the secular Justice, or banish him the Kingdom according to the quality of the delict, and it is the same that is practis'd in this Kingdom, and other parts that adhere to Rome.

H

with

The Conde de Monterrey goes Viceroy to Naples, the Marquis de Montesclaros being put by, the gallanter Man of the two. I was told of a witty Saying of his, when the Duke of Lerma had the Vogue in this Court: for going one Morning to speak with the Duke, and having danc'd at tendance a long time, he peep'd through a slit in the Hanging, and spied Don Rodrigo Calderon, a great Man, (who was lately beheaded here for poysoning the late Queen Dowager) delivering the Duke a Paper upon his Knees, whereat the Marquis smil'd and said, Vototal, aquel hombre sube mas a las rodillas, que yono haze a los pies, I swear that Man climbs higher upon his Knees, than I can upon my Feet: Indeed I have read it to be a true Court Rule, that descendendo ascendendum est in Aula, descending is the way to ascend at Court. There is a kind of Humility and Compliance, that is far from any servile Baseness or sordid Flattery, and may be term'd Discretion rather than Adulation. I intend, God willing, to go for Sardinia this Spring; I hope to have better Luck than Master Walsingham Grestly had, who some few Years since in his Passage thither upon the same Business that I have in Agitation, met with some Turks Men of War, and so was carried Slave to Algier. So with my true Respects to you, I rest

Your faithful Servant,

Madrid, March 12.

1622.

J. H.

XIV.

To Sir Francis Cottington, Secretary to his Highness
the Prince of Wales, at Saint James's.

S I R,

I Believe it will not be displeasing unto you to hear of the Procedure and Success of that Business wherein yourself hath been so long vers'd in: I mean the great Suit against the quondam Vice-roy of Sardinia the Conde del Real: Count Gondamar's coming was a great Advantage unto me, who hath done me many Favors; besides a Confirmation of the two Sentences of View and Review, and of the Execution against the Vice-roy, I have procur'd a Royal Cedule, which I caus'd to be Printed, and whereof I send you here inclos'd a Copy, by which Cedule I have Power to arrest his very Person, and my Lawyers tell me there was never such a Cedule granted before: I have also by Virtue of it Priority of all other his Creditors: He hath made an imperfect Overture of a Composition, and shew'd me some trivial old fashion'd Jewels, but nothing equivalent to the Debt. And now that I speak of Jewels, the late Surprisal of Ormus by the Assistance of our Ships sinks deep in their Stomachs here, and we were afraid it would have spoil'd all Proceedings: but my Lord Digby, now Earl of Bristol, (for Count Gondamar brought him o'er his Patent) hath calm'd all things at his last Audience.

There were Luminaries of Joy lately here for the Victory that Don Gonzalez de Cordova got over Count Mansfelt in the Netherlands with that Army which the Duke of Bouvillon had levied for him, but some say they have not much Reason to rejoyce, for though the Infantry suffer'd, yet Mansfelt got clear with all his Horse by a notable Retreat, and they say here it was the greatest piece of Service and Art he ever did; it being a Maxim, that there is nothing so difficult in the Art of War, as an honorable Retreat. Besides the Report of his coming to Breda, caus'd Marquis Spinola to raise the Siege before Berghen, to burn his Tents, and to pack away suddenly, for which he is much censur'd here.

Captain Leat and others have written to me of the favorable Report you pleas'd to make of my Endeavours here, for which I return you humble Thanks: and though you have left behind you multitude of Servants in this Court, yet if Occasion were offer'd, none should be more forward to go on your Errand, than Madrid, Mar. 15.

1622.

Your humble and faithful
Servitor,

J. H.

XV.

To the Honorable Sir Tho. Savage, Knight and Baronet.

Honorable Sir,

THE great Business of the Match was tending to a period, the Articles reflecting both upon Church and State, being capitulated, and interchangeably accorded on both sides, and there wanted nothing to consummate all things, when to the wonderment of the World, the Prince and the Marquis of Buckingham arriv'd at this Court a Friday last, upon the close of the Evening: They lighted at my Lord of Bristol's House, and the Marquis (Mr. Thomas Smith) came in first with a Portmantle under his Arm, then (Mr. John Smith) the Prince was sent for, who staid a while t'other side of the Street in the dark, my Lord of Bristol in a kind of Astonishment brought him up to his Bed-chamber, where he presently call'd for Pen and Ink, and dispatch'd a Post that Night to England, to acquaint his Majesty how in less than sixteen Days he was come safely to the Court of Spain; that Post went lightly laden, for he carried but three Letters: the next day came Sir Francis Cottington and Mr. Porter, and dark rumors ran in every corner how some great Man was come from England, and some would not stick to say amongst the Vulgar, it was the King; but towards the Evening on Saturday the Marquis went in a close Coach to Court, where he had private Audience of this King, who sent Olivares to accompany him back to the Prince, where he kneel'd and kiss'd his Hands, and hug'd his thighs, and deliver'd how unmeasurably glad his Catholick Majesty was of his coming, with other high Complements, which Mr. Porter did interpret. About ten a Clock that Night, the King himself came in a close Coach with Intent to visit the Prince, who hearing of it, met him half way, and after Salutations and divers Embraces which past in the first Interview, they parted late. I forgot to tell you, that Count Gondamar being sworn Counsellor of State that Morning, having been before but one of the Council of War, he came in great haste to visit the Prince, saying, he had strange News to tell him, which was, that an Englishman was sworn Privy-Counsellor of Spain, meaning himself, who, he said, was an Englishman in his Heart. On Sunday following, the King in the Afternoon came abroad to take the Air, with the Queen, his two Brothers, and the Infanta, who were all in one Coach, but the Infanta sat in the boot with a blew Riband about her Arm, of purpose that the Prince might distinguish her: there were above twenty Coaches besides of Grandeas, Noblemen and Ladies that attended them. And now it it was publickly known amongst the vulgar, that it was the Prince of Wales who was come, and the Confluence of People before my Lord of Bristol's house was so great and greedy to see the Prince, that to clear the way, Sir Lewis Dives went out and took Coach, and all the crowd of people went after him; so the Prince himself a little after took Coach, wherein there were the Earl of Bristol, Sir Walter Ashton, and Count Gondamar, and so went to the Prado, a Place hard by, of purpose to take the Air, where they stay'd till the King past by: As soon as the Infanta saw the Prince her colour rose very high, which we hold to be an impression of Love and Affection, for the face is oftentimes a true Index of the heart. Upon Monday morning after the King sent some of his prime Nobles, and other Gentlemen to attend the Prince in quality of Officers, as one to be his Mayordom (his Steward) another to be Master of the Horse, and so to inferior Officers, so that there is a compleat Court now at my Lord of Bristol's House: but upon Sunday next the Prince is to remove to the King's Palace, where there is one of the chief quarters of the house providing for him. By the next Opportunity you shall hear more. In the Interim I take my Leave and rest

Your most humble and
ready Servitor, J. H.

March 27, 1623.

XVI.

To Sir Eubule Theloall, Knight, at Grays-Inn.

S I R,

I Know the Eyes of all England are earnestly fix'd now upon Spain, her best Jewel being here; but his Journey was like to be spoiled in France, for if he had staid but a little longer, or at Bayon the last Town of that Kingdom hitherwards, he had been discover'd, for Monsieur Gramond the Governor had Notice of him not long after he had taken post. The People here do mightily magnify the Gallantry of the Journey, and cry out that he deserv'd to have the Infanta thrown into his Arms the first Night he came: He hath been entertain'd with all the Magnificence that possibly could be devis'd. On Sunday last in the morning betimes he went to Saint Hierom's Monastery, whence the Kings of Spain use to be fetch'd the Day they are crown'd; and thither the King came in Person with his two Brothers, his eight Councils, and the Flower of the Nobility: He rid upon the King's right Hand thorough the Heart of the Town under a great Canopy, and was brought so into his Lodgings to the King's Palace, and the King himself accompanied him to his very Bedchamber. It was a very glorious glorious sight to behold, for the custom of the Spaniard is, though he go plain in his ordinary habit, yet upon some Festival or cause of triumph, there's none goes beyond him in gaudiness.

We daily hope for the Pope's Breve or Dispensation to perfect the business, though there be dark whispers abroad that it is come already, but that upon this unexpected coming of the Prince, it was sent back to Rome, and some new clauses thrust in for their further advantage. Till this dispatch comes, matters are at a kind of stand; yet his Highness makes account to be back in England about the latter end of May. God Almighty turn all to the best, and to what shall be most conducive to his Glory. So with my due Respects unto you, I rest

Your much obliged Servitor,
J. H.

April 1. 1623.

XVII.

To Captain Leat.

SIR,

HAVING brought up the Law to the highest point against the Viceroy of Sardinia, and that in an extraordinary manner, as may appear unto you by that Printed Schedule I sent you in my last, and finding an apparent dilability in him to satisfy the debt, I thought upon a new design, and fram'd a memorial to the King, and wrought good strong means to have it seconded, that in regard that predatory act of seizing upon the Ship Vineyard in Sardinia with all her goods, was done by his Majesties Vice-roy, his Sovereign Minister of State, one that immediately represented his own Royal Person, and that the said Vice-roy was insolvent; I desir'd his Majesty would be pleas'd to grant a Warrant for the relief of both parties to lade so many thousand Sterils or measures of corn out of Sardinia and Sicily custom free. I had gone far in the business when Sir Francis Cottington sent for me, and requir'd me in the Prince his Name to proceed no further herein, till he was departed: So his Highness's presence here hath turned rather to my disadvantage, than otherwise. Amongst other Grandezas which the King of Spain confer'd upon our Prince, one was the release-ment of Prisoners, and that all Petitions of Grace should come to him for the first month, but he hath been wonderful sparing in receiving any, especially from any English, Irish, or Scot. Your Son Nicholas is come hither from Alicant, about the Ship Amity, and I shall be ready to second him in getting satisfaction: So I rest,

Madrid, June 3,

1625.

Yours ready to serve you,

J. H.

XVIII. To

XVIII.

To Captain Tho. Porter.

Noble Captain,

MY last unto you was in Spanish, in answer to one of yours in the same Language, and amongst that confluence of English Gallants, which upon the occasion of his Highness being here, are come to this Court, I fed my self with hopes a long while to have seen you, but I find now that those hopes were imp'd with false feathers. I know your heart is here, and your best affections, therefore I wonder what keeps back your Person: But I conceive the reason to be that you intended to come like your self, to come Commander in chief of one of the Castles of the Crown, one of the Ships Royal: If you come to this Shore side, I hope you will have time to come to the Court, I have at any time a good lodging for you, and my Landlady is none of the meanest, and her Husband hath many good parts; I heard her setting him forth one day, and giving this Character of him, Mi marido es buen musico, buen esgrimido, buen escrivano, excelente Arithmetico, salvo que no multiplica: My Husband is a good Musician, a good Fencer, a good Horseman, a good Pen-man, and an excellent Arithmetician, only he cannot multiply. For outward usage, there is all industry us'd to give the Prince and his Servants all possible contentment, and some of the King's own Servants wait upon them at Table in the Palace, where I am sorry to hear some of them jeer at the Spanish fare, and use other slighting speeches and demeanor. There are many excellent Poems made here since the Princes arrival, which are too long to couch in a Letter, yet I will venture to send you this one Sanza of Lope de Vegas.

Carlos Estuardo SoyQue siendo Amor mi guiaAl cielo d'España voyPar ver mi Estrella Maria.

There are Comedians once a Week come to the Palace, where under a great Canopy, the Queen and the Infanta sit in the middle, our Prince and Don Carlos on the Queens right hand, the King and the little Cardinal on the Infanta's left hand. I have seen the Prince have his eyes immovably fixed upon the Infanta half an hour together in a thoughtful speculative posture, which sure would needs be tedious, unless affection did sweeten it: It was no handsom comparison of Olivares, that he watcht her as a Cat doth a Mouse. Not long since the Prince understanding that the Infanta was us'd to go some mornings to the Casa de Campo, a Summer-house the King hath tother side the River, to gather May Dew, he did rise betimes and went thither, taking your Brother with him, they were let into the House, and into the Garden, but the Infanta was in the Orchard, and there being a high partition wall between, and the door doubly bolted, the Prince got on the top of the wall, and sprung down a great height, and so made towards her, but she spying him first of all the rest, gave a Shriek and ran back; the old Marquis that was then her Guardian, came towards the Prince, and fell on his Knees, conjuring his Highness to retire, in regard he hazarded his Head, if he admitted any to her Company; so the door was open'd, and he came out under that Wall over which he had got in: I have seen him watch a long Hour together in a close Coach in the open Street to see her as she went abroad: I cannot say that the Prince did ever talk with her privately, yet publickly often, my Lord of Bristol being Interpreter; but the King always sat hard by, to over-hear all. Our Cousin Archy hath more Priviledge than any, for he often goes with his Fool's Coat where the Infanta is with her Meninas and Ladies of Honor, and keeps a blowing and blustering amongst them, and flurts out what he list.

One day they were discoursing what a marvellous thing it was, that the Duke of Bavaria with less than 15000 Men, after a long toilsome March, should dare to encounter the Palsgrave's Army, consisting of above 25000, and to give them an utter Discomfiture, and take Prague presently after. Whereunto Archy answered, That he would tell them a stranger thing than that: Was it not a strange thing, quoth he, that in the Year 88, there should come a Fleet of 140 Sails from Spain, to invade England, and that ten of these could not go back to tell what became of the rest? By the next Opportunity I will send you the Cordovan Pockets and Gloves you writ for of Francisco Mareno's perfuming. So my dear Captain live long and love his Madrid, July 10.

J. H.

1623.

XIX.

To my Cousin Tho. Guin, Esq; at his House Trecaſtle.

Cousin,

I Received lately one of yours, which I cannot compare more properly than to a Posie of curious Flowers, there was therein such Variety of sweet strains and dainty expressions of Love: And though it bore an old date, for it was forty days before it came to safe hand, yet the Flowers were still fresh, and not a whit faded, but did cast as strong and as fragrant a Scent, as when your Hands bound bound them up first together, only there was one Flower that did not favor so well; which was the undeserved Character you please to give of my small Abilities, which in regard you look upon me through the prospective of Affection, appear greater unto you than they are of themselves; yet as small as they are, I would be glad to employ them all to serve you upon any Occasion.

Whereas you desire to know how Matters pass here, you shall understand that we are rather in Assurance, than Hopes that the Match will take effect, when one Dispatch more is brought from Rome, which we greedily expect. The Spaniards generally desire it, they are much taken with our Prince, with the bravery of his Journey, and his discreet Comportment since, and they confess there was never Princess courted with more Gallantry. The Wits of the Court here have made divers Encomiums of him, and of his Affection to the Lady Infanta. Amongst others, I send you a Latin Poem of one Marniorius a Valenciazo, to which I add this ensuing Hexastic, which in regard of the difficulty of the Verse, consisting of all Ternaries, (which is the hardest way of versifying) and of the Exactness of the Translation, I believe will give you Content, Fax grata est, gratum est vulnus, mihi grata catena est.

Me quibus astringit, ledit & urit Amor;

Sed flammam extinguere, sonari vulnera, solvi

Vincla, etiam ut possem non ego posse velim:

Mirum equidem genus hoc morbi est, incendia & ictus

Vinclaque, vinctus adhuc, latus & ustas, amo.

Grateful's to me the Fire, the Wound, the Chain,
By which Love burns, Love binds and giveth Pain;
But for to quench this Fire, these Bonds to loose,
These Wounds to heal, I would not could I choose:
Strange Sickness, where the Wounds, the Bonds, the Fire
That burns, that bind, that hurt, I must desire.

In your next, I pray send me your opinion of these Verses, for I know you are a Critick in Poetry. Mr. Vaughan of the Golden-Grove and I were Camerades and Bedfellows here many months together, his Father Sir John Vaughan the Prince his Comptroller, is lately come to attend his Master. My Lord of Carlile, my Lord of Holland, my Lord of Rochfort, my Lord of Denbigh, and divers others are here, so that we have a very flourishing Court, and I could wish you were here to make one of the Number. So my dear Cousin, I wish you all Happiness, and our noble Prince a safe and successful Return to England.

Madrid, Aug. 13.

1623.

Your most affectionate Cousin,

J. H.

XX. To.

XX.

To my noble Friend, Sir John North.

S I R,

THE long look'd for Dispensation is come from Rome, but I hear it is clogg'd with new clauses ; and one is, that the Pope who alledgeth that the only aim of the Apostolical See in granting this Dispensation, was the advantage and ease of the Catholicks in the King of Great Britains Dominions, therefore he desir'd a valuable caution for the performance of those Articles which were stipulated in their favour ; this hath much puzzled the business, and Sir Francis Cottington comes now over about it : Besides there is some distast taken at the Duke of Buckingham here, and I heard this King should say, he will treat no more with him, but with the Ambassadors, who, he saith, have a more plenary Commission, and understand the business better. As there is some darkness hapned 'twixt the two Favourites, so matters stand not right 'twixt the Duke and the Earl of Bristol ; but God forbid that a business of so high a consequence as this, which is likely to tend so much to the universal good of Christendom, to the restitution of the Palatinate, and the composing those Broils in Germany, should be ranvers'd by differences 'twixt a few private Subjects, though now publick Ministers.

Mr. Washington the Prince his Page is lately dead of a Calenture, and I was at his burial under a Fig-tree behind my Lord of Bristol's house. A little before his death, one Ballard an English Priest went to tamper with him, and Sir Edmund Varney meeting him coming down the stairs out of Washington's Chamber, they fell from words to blows ; but they were parted. The business was like to gather very ill blood, and come to a great height, had not Count Gondamar quasht it, which I believe he could not have done, unless the times had been favourable ; for such is the reverence they bear to the Church here, and so holy a conceit they have of all Ecclesiasticks, that the greatest Don in Spain will tremble to offer the meanest of them any outrage or affront : Count Gondamar hath also help'd to free some English that were in the Inquisition in Toledo and Sevil, and I could alledge many instances, how ready and chearful he is to assist any English-man whatsoever ; notwithstanding the base affronts he hath often receiv'd of the London Boys, as he calls them. At his last return hither, I heard of a merry saying of his to the Queen, who discoursing with him about the greatness of London, and whether it was as populous as Madrid, yes, Madam, and more populous when I came away, though I believe there's scarce a man left there now, but all Women and Children ;
for

for all the Men both in Court and City were ready booted and spur'd to go away. And I am sorry to hear how other Nations do much tax the English, of their incivility to publick Ministers of State, and what Ballads, and Pasquils, and Fopperies, and Plays were made against Gondamar for doing his Master's Business. My Lord of Bristol coming from Germany to Brussels, notwithstanding that at his arrival thither, the news was fresh that he had reliev'd Frankindale as he past, yet was he not a whit the less welcome, but valued the more, both by the Arch-dutcheſs her self and Spinola, with all the rest; as also that they knew well that the said Earl had been the sole adviser of keeping Sir Robert Mansell abroad with that Fleet upon the Coast of Spain till the Palsgrave should be restor'd. I pray Sir, when you go to London-wall, and Tower-hill, be pleas'd to remember my humble Service, where you know it is due. So I am Madrid, Aug. 15.

1623,

Your most faithful Servitor,

J. H.

V.

To the Right Honourable, the Lord Vicount Colchester.

My very good Lord,

I Received the Letter and Commands your Lordship pleas'd to send me by Mr. Walsingham Gressy, and touching the Constitutions and Orders of the Contratation-house of the West-Indies in Sevil, I cannot procure it for Love or Money, upon any terms; though I have done all possible diligence therein: And some tell me it is dangerous, and no less then Treason in him, that gives the Copy of them to any, in regard 'tis counted the greatest Mystery of all the Spanish Government.

That difficulty which hapned in the business of the match of giving caution to the Pope, is now overcome; for whereas our King answer'd, that he could give no other caution than his Royal word, and his Sons exemplified under the Great Seal of England, and confirm'd by his Council of State, it being impossible to have it done by Parliament, in regard of the averſeness the common people have to the alliance; and whereas this gave no satisfaction to Rome, the King of Spain now offers himself for caution, for putting in execution what is stipulated in behalf of the Roman Catholics throughout his Majesty of Great Britains Dominions; but he desires to consult his ghostly fathers to know whether he may do it without wronging his conscience; hereupon there hath been a Junta form'd of Bishops and Jesuits, who have been already a good while while about it, and the Bishop of Legovia, who is as it were Lord Treasurer, having written a Treatise lately against the Match, was outed of his Office, banish'd the Court, and confin'd to his Diocess. The Duke of Buckingham hath been ill-dispos'd a good while, and lies sick at Court, where the Prince hath no publick Exercise of Devotion, but only Bed-chamber Prayers, and some think that his lodging in the King's House is like to prove a Disadvantage to the main Business, for whereas most sorts of People here hardly hold us to be Christians, if the Prince had had a Palace of his own, and been permitted to have us'd a Room for an open Chapel to exercise the Liturgy of the Church of England, it would have brought them to have a better opinion of us; and to this end there were some of our best Church-Plate and Vestments brought hither, but never us'd. The slow pace of this Junta troubles us a little, and to the Divines there are some Civilians admitted lately, and the quere is this, whether the King of Spain may bind himself by oath in the behalf of the King of England, to perform such and such Articles that are agreed on in Favor of the Roman Catholicks by virtue of this Match, whether the King may do this salva Conscientia?

There was a great Show lately here of baiting of Bulls with Men for the Entertainment of the Prince; it is the chiefest of all Spanish sports, commonly there are Men kill'd at it, therefore there are Priests appointed to be there ready to confess them: It hath hapned oftentimes that a Bull hath taken up two Men upon his Horns with their guts dangling about them; the Horsemen run with Lances and Swords, the Foot with goads. As I am told the Pope hath sent divers Bulls against this Sport of bullings, yet it will not be left, the Nation hath taken such an habitual delight in it. There was an ill-favour'd Accident like to have hapned lately at the King's House, in that part where my Lord of Carlile, and my Lord Denbigh were lodg'd; for my Lord Denbigh late at night taking a pipe of Tobacco in a Balcony which hung over the King's Garden, he blew down the ashes, which falling upon some patch'd combustible Matter, began to flame and spread, but Master Davis my Lord of Carlile's Barber leapt down a great height, and quencht it. So with Continuance of my most humble Service, I rest ever ready

Madrid, Aug. 16.

At your Lordship's Commands,

1623.

J. H.

XXI.

To Sir James Crofts, from Madrid.

S I R,

THE Court of Spain affords now little News; for there is a Remora sticks to the business of the Match, till the Junta of Divines

Divines give up their Opinion : But from Turkey there came a Letter this week wherein there is the strangest and most tragical News, that in my small reading no Story can parallel, or shew with more Pregnancy the Instability and tottering Estate of humane Greatness, and the sandy Foundation whereon the vast Ottoman Empire is rear'd upon : For Sultan Osman the grand Turk, a Man according to the Humor of that Nation, warlike and flesh'd in Blood, and a violent Hater of Christians, was in the flower of his Years, in the heat and height of his Courage, knockt on the head by one of his own Slaves, and one of the meanest of them, with a Battle-axe, and the Murtherer never after proceeded against or questioned.

The ground of this Tragedy was the late ill Success he had against the Pole, wherein he lost about 100000 Horse for want of forage, and 80000 Men for want of fighting, which he imputed to the Cowardice of his Janizaries, who rather than bear the brunt of the Battel, were more willing to return home to their Wives and Merchandizing, which they are now permitted to do, contrary to their first Institution, which makes them more worldly, and less venturous. This disgraceful return from Poland stuck in Osman's stomach, and so studied a way how to be reveng'd of the Janizaries; therefore by the Advice of his Grand Visier (a stout gallant Man, who had been one of the chief Beglerbegs in the East) he intended to erect a new Soldiery in Asia about Damasco, of the Coords, a frontier People, and consequently hardy and inur'd to Arms. Of these he purpos'd to entertain 40000 as a Life-Guard for his Person; though the main Design was to suppress his lazy and lustful Janizaries, with Men of fresh new Spirits.

To disguise this plot, he pretended a Pilgrimage to Mecha, to visit Mahomet's Tomb, and reconcile himself to the Prophet, who he thought was angry with him, because of his late ill Success in Poland: but this colour was not specious enough, in regard he might have perform'd this Pilgrimage with a smaller Train and Charge; therefore it was propounded that the Emar of Sidon should be made to rise up in Arms, that so he might go with a greater power and treasure, but this plot was held disadvantageous to him in regard his Janizaries must then have attended him: so he pretends and prepares only for the Pilgrimage; yet he makes ready as much treasure as he could make, and to that end he melts his plate, and furniture of horses, with divers Church-Lamps; this fomented some Jealousy in the Janizaries, with certain Words which should drop from him, that he would find Soldiers shortly should whip them. Hereupon he hath sent over to Asia's side his pavilions, many of his servants, with his Jewels and treasure, resolving solving upon the Voyage, notwithstanding that divers Petitions were delivered him from the Clergy, the civil Magistrate and the Soldiery, that he should desist from the Voyage, but all would not do: thereupon, upon the point of his departure, the Janizaries and Saphies came in a tumultuary manner to the Seraglio, and in a high insolent Language dissuaded him from the Pilgrimage, and demanded of him his ill Counsellors. The first he granted, but for the second, he said that it stood not with his Honor, to have his nearest Servants torn from him so, without any legal Proceeding, but he assur'd them that they should appear in the Divan the next day, to answer for themselves; but this not satisfying, they went away in a Fury and plunder'd the Grand Visier's Palace, with divers others: Osman hereupon was advis'd to go from his private Gardens that Night to the Asian Shore, but his Destiny kept him from it: so the next morning they came arm'd to the Court, (but having made a Covenant not to violate the Imperial Throne) and cut in pieces the Grand Visier, with divers other great Officers, and not finding Osman, who had hid himself in a small Lodge in one of his Gardens, they cried out they must have a Musulman Emperor; therefore they broke into a Dungeon, and brought out Mustapha, Osman's Unkle, whom he had clapt there at the beginning of the Tumult, and who had been King before, but was depos'd for his Simplicity, being a kind of Santon or holy Man, that is, 'twixt an Innocent and an Idiot: This Mustapha they did re-inthronize and place in the Ottoman Empire.

The next day they found out Osman, and brought him before Mustapha, who excus'd himself with Tears in his Eyes for his rash Attempts, which wrought Tendernefs in some, but more Scorn and Fury in others, who fell upon the Capi Aga, with other Officers, and cut them in pieces before his Eyes: Osman thence was carried to Prison, and as he was getting on Horseback, a common Soldier took off his Turban, and clapt his upon Osman's Head, who in his Passage beg'd a draught of water at a Fountain: The next day the new Visier went with an Executioner to strangle him, in regard there were two younger Brothers more of his to preserve the Ottoman's Race, where after they had rush'd in, he being newly awak'd and staring upon them, and thinking to defend himself, a robust boisterous Rogue knockt him down, and so the rest fell upon him and strangled him with much adoe.

Thus fell one of the greatest Potentates upon Earth, by the hands of a contemptible Slave, for there is not a free-born Subject in all that vast Empire: Thus fell he that Entitles himself most puissant and highest Monarch of the Turks, King above all Kings, a King that dwelleth upon the earthly Paradise, Son of Mahomet, Keeper of the Grave of the Christian God, Lord of the Tree of Life, and of the River Flesky, Prior of the earthly Paradise, Conqueror of the Macedonians, the Seed of great Alexander, Prince of the Kingdoms of Tartary, Mesopotamia, Media, and of the Martial Mam-malucks, Anatolia, Bithynia, Asia, Armenia, Servia, Thracia, Morea, Valachia, Moldavia, and of all warlike Hungary, Sovereign Lord and Commander of all Greece, Persia, both the Arabia's, the most noble Kingdom of Egypt, Tremisen, and African, Empire of Trabesond, and the most glorious Constantinople, Lord of all the white and black Seas, of the holy City Mecha and Medina, shining with divine Glory, Commander of all things that are to be commanded, and the strongest and mightiest Champion of the wide World, a Warrior appointed by Heaven in the edge of the Sword, a Persecutor of his Enemies, a most perfect Jewel of the blessed Tree, the chiefest Keeper of the crucified God, &c. with other such bombardical Titles.
the

This Osman was a Man of goodly Constitution, an amiable Aspect, and of excess of Courage, but fordidly covetous, which drove him to violate the Church, and to melt the Lamps thereof, which made the Musti say, that this was a due Judgment fallen upon him from Heaven for his Sacrilege. He us'd also to make his Person too cheap, for he would go ordinarily in the Night-time with two Men after him like a petty Constable, and peep into the Cauph-houses and Carabets, and apprehend Soldiers there: And these two things it seems was the Cause, that when he was so assaulted in the Seraglio, not one of his Domestick Servants, whereof he had 3000, would lift an Arm to help him.

Some few days before his Death, he had a strange Dream, for he dreamt that he was mounted upon a great Camel, who would not go neither by fair nor foul means, and lighting off him, and thinking to strike him with his Cimiter, the Body of the Beast vanishd, leaving the Head and the Bridle only in his Hands; when the Musti and the Hoggies could not interpret this dream, Mustapha his Uncle did it, for he said, the Camel signified his Empire, his mounting of him his excess in Government, his lighting down his deposing. Another kind of Prophetick Speech dropt from the Grand Visier to Sir Thomas Roe, our Ambassador there, who having gone a little before this Tragedy to visit the said Visier, told him what whisperings and mutterings there were in every corner for this Asiatick Voyage, and what ill consequences might ensue from it: therefore it might well stand with his great wisdom to stay it; but if it held, he desir'd him to leave a charge with the Chimacham his Deputy, that the English Nation in the Port, should be free from Outrages: whereunto the Grand Visier answer'd, Trouble not yourself about about that, for I will not remove so far from Constantinople, but I will leave one of my Legs behind to serve you, which prov'd too true, for he was murth'rd afterwards, and one of his Legs was hung up in the Hippodrome.

This fresh Tragedy makes me to give over wondring at any thing that ever I heard or read, to shew the Lubricity of mundane Greatness, as also the Fury of the Vulgar, which like an impetuous Torrent gathereth strength by degrees as it meets with divers Dams, and being come to the height, cannot stop it self; for when this rage of the Soldiers began first, there was no Design at all to violate or hurt the Emperor, but to take from him his ill Counsellors; but being once a foot, it grew by insensible degrees to the utmost of Outrages.

The bringing out of Mustapha from the Dungeon, where he was prisoner, to be Emperor of the Musulmans, puts me in mind of what I read in Mr. Camden of our late Queen Elizabeth, how she was brought from the Scaffold, to the English Throne.

They who profess to be Criticks in Policy here, hope that this murth'ring of Osman may in time breed good Blood, and prove advantageous to Christendom; for though this be the first Emperor of the Turks that was dispatcht so, he is not like to be the last, now that the Soldiers have this precedent: Others think that if that design in Asia had taken, it had been very probable the Constantinopolitans had hois'd up another King, and so the Empire had been dismembred, and by this division had lost Strength, as the Roman Empire did, when it was broken into East and West.

Excuse me that this my Letter is become such a Monster, I mean that it hath past the size and ordinary proportion of a Letter, for the Matter it treats of is monstrous; besides, it is a Rule that Historical Letters have more Liberty to be long than others: In my next you shall hear how Matters pass here; in the mean time, and always, I rest,

Madrid, Aug. 17.

1623.

Your Lordship's most devoted
Servitor, J. H.

XXII.

To the Right Honorable Sir Tho. Savage, Knight
and Baronet.

Honorable S I R,

THE procedure of things in relation to the grand business the Match, was at a kind of stand when the long-winded Junta deliver'd their opinions, and fell at last upon this result, that his Catholick Majesty for the Satisfaction of St. Peter, might oblige himself himself in the behalf of England, for the Performance of those Capitulations which reflected upon the Roman Catholicks in that Kingdom; and in Case of Non-performance, then to right himself by War; since that, the matrimonial Articles were solemnly sworn unto by the King of Spain and his Highness, the two Favorites, our two Ambassadors, the Duke of Infantado, and other Counselors of State being present; hereupon the eighth of the next September, is appointed to be the day of Desponsories, the day of Affiance, or the betrothing day: There was much Gladness exprest here, and Luminaries of Joy were in every great Street throughout the City; but there is an unlucky Accident hath interven'd, for the King gave the Prince a solemn Visit since, and told him, Pope Gregory was dead, who was so great a friend to the Match, but in regard the business was not yet come to Perfection, he could not proceed further in it till the former Dispensation were ratified by the new Pope Urban, which to procure he would make it his own Task, and that all possible Expedition should be us'd in it, and therefore desir'd his Patience in the interim. The Prince answer'd, and prest the Necessity of his speedy Return with divers Reasons, he said there was a general kind of murmuring in England for his so long Absence, that the King his Father was old and sickly, that the Fleet of Ships were already, he thought, at Sea to fetch him, the Winter drew on, and withal that the Articles of the Match were sign'd in England, with this Proviso, that if he be not come back by such a Month they should be of no Validity. The King replyed, that since his Highness was resolv'd upon so sudden a Departure, he would please to leave a Proxy behind to finish the Marriage, and he would take it for a Favor if he would depute Him to personate him, and ten Days after the Ratification shall come from Rome the business shall be done, and afterwards he might send for his Wife when he pleas'd. The Prince rejoyn'd, that amongst those multitudes of Royal Favors which he had receiv'd from his Majesty, this transcended all the rest, therefore he would most willingly leave a Proxy for his Majesty, and another for Don Carlos to this Effect; so they parted for that time without the least Umbrage of Discontent, nor do I hear of any engendred since. The last Month 'tis true the Junta of Divines dwelt so long upon the business, that there were Whisperings that the Prince intended to go away disguis'd as he came, and the Question being ask'd by a Person of Quality, there was a brave Answer made, that if Love brought him thither, it is not Fear shall drive him away.

There are preparations already a foot for his Return, and the two Proxies are drawn and left in my Lord of Bristol's hands. Notwithstanding this ill-favour'd Stop, yet we are here all confident the Business will take Effect: In which Hopes I rest

Madrid, Aug. 18.
1623.

Your most humble and ready
Servitor, J. H.

XXIII.

To Captain Nich. Leat, at his House in London.

S I R,

THis Letter comes to you by Mr. Richard Altham; of whose sudden Departure hence I am very sorry, it being the late Death of his Brother Sir James Altham. I have been at a stand in the Business a good while, for his Highness coming hither was no Advantage to me in the earth. He hath done the Spaniards divers Courtesies, but he hath been very sparing in doing the English any. It may be perhaps because it may be a Diminution of Honor to be beholden to any foreign Prince to do his own Subjects Favors; but my Business requires no Favor, all I desire is Justice, which I have not obtain'd yet in reality.

The Prince is preparing for his Journey, I shall to it again closely when he is gone, and make a shaft or a bolt of it. The Pope's Death hath retarded the Proceedings of the Match, but we are so far from despairing of it, that one may have Wagers thirty to one it will take Effect still. He that deals with this Nation must have a great deal of Phlegm, and if this grand Business of State, the Match, suffer such Protractions and puttings off, you need not wonder that private Negotiations, as mine is, should be subject to the same Inconveniencies. There shall be no Means left unattempted that my best Industry can find out to put a period to it, and when his Highness is gone, I hope to find my Lord of Bristol more at Leisure to continue his Favor and Furtherance, which hath been much already: So I rest

Madrid, Aug. 19.
1623.

Yours ready to serve you,
J. H.

XXIV.

To Sir James Crofts.

S I R,

THE Prince is now upon his Journey to the Sea-side, where my Lord of Rutland attends for him with a Royal Fleet: There are many here shrink in their Shoulders, and are very sensible of his Departure, and the Lady Infanta resents it more than any;

any ; she hath caus'd a Mass to be sung every Day ever since for his good Voyage : The Spaniards themselves confess there was never Princess so bravely woo'd. The King and his two Brothers accompanied his Highness to the Escorial, some twenty miles off, and would have brought him to the Sea-side, but that the Queen is big, and hath not many days to go : When the King and he parted, there past wonderful great Endearments and Embraces in divers Postures between them a long time ; and in that place there is a Pillar to be erected, as a Monument to Posterity. There are some Grandees and Count Gondamar, with a great Train besides, gone with him to the Marine, to the Sea-side, which will be many days Journey, and must needs put the King of Spain to a mighty Expence, besides his seven Months Entertainment here : We hear that when he pass'd through Valladolid, the Duke of Lerma was retired thence for the time by special Command from the King, lest he might have Discourse with the Prince, whom he extreamly desir'd to see ; this sunk deep into the old Duke, insomuch that he said, that of all the Acts of Malice which Olivares had ever done him, he resented this more than any : He bears up yet very well under his Cardinals Habit, which hath kept him from many a foul Storm that might have fallen upon him else from the temporal Power. The Duke of Uzeda his Son finding himself decline in Favor at Court, had retir'd to the Countrey, and dyed soon after of Discontentment : during his Sickness, the Cardinal writ this short weighty Letter unto him : Dizen me, que Mareys de necio, por mi, mas temo mis a nos que mis Enmigos. Lerma. I shall not need to English it to you, who are so great a Master of the Language. Since I began this Letter, we understand the Prince is safely embark'd, but not without some Danger of being cast away, had not Sir Sackvil Trevor taken him up : I pray God send him a good Voyage, and us no ill News from England. My most humble Service at Tower-Hill, so I am

Madrid, Aug. 21. 1623.

Your humble Servitor, J. H.

XXV.

To my Brother Doctor Howell.

My Brother,

Since our Prince his Departure hence, the Lady Infanta studieth English apace, and one Mr. Wadsworth and Father Boniface, two English-men, are appointed her Teachers, and have Access to her every day : We account her as it were our Princess now, and as we give, so she takes that Title : Our Ambassadors my Lord of Bristol, and Sir Walter Aston, will not stand now cover'd before her when they have Audience, because they hold her to be their Princess; she is preparing divers Suits of rich Cloaths for his Highness of perfum'd Amber Leather, some embroider'd with Pearl, some with Gold, some with Silver: Her Family is a settling apace, and most of her Ladies and Officers are known already; we want nothing now but one Dispatch more from Rome, and then the Marriage will be solemniz'd, and all things consummated; yet there is one Mr. Clerk (with the lame Arm) that came hither from the Sea-side, as soon as the Prince was gone, he is one of the Duke of Buckingham's creatures, yet he lies at the Earl of Bristol's house, which we wonder at, considering the darkness that hapned 'twixt the Duke and the Earl: we fear that this Clerk hath brought something that may puzzle the business. Besides having occasion to make my Address lately to the Venetian Ambassador, who is interested in some part of that great business for which I am here, he told me confidently it would be no Match, nor did he think it was ever intended. But I want Faith to believe him yet, for I know St. Mark is no friend to it, nor France or any other Prince or State besides the King of Denmark, whose Grandmother was of the House of Austria, being Sister to Charles the Emperor. Touching the business of the Palatinate, our Ambassadors were lately assur'd by Olivares, and all the Counsellors here, and that in this King's Name, that he would procure his Majesty of Great Britain entire Satisfaction herein, and Olivares, giving them the Joy, intreated them to assure their King upon their Honor, and upon their Lives of the Reality hereof; for the Infanta herself (saith he) hath stirr'd in it, and makes it now her cwn business; for it was a firm Peace and Amity (which he confest could never be without the Accommodation of things in Germany) as much as an Alliance, which his Catholick Majesty aim'd at. But we shall know shortly now what to trust to, we shall walk no more in Mists, though some give out yet that our Prince shall embrace a Cloud for Juno at last.

I pray present my Service to Sir John Franklin, and Sir John Smith, with all at the Hill and Dale, and when you send to Wales, I pray convey the inclos'd to my Father. So my dear Brother, I pray God bless us both, and bring us again joyfully together.

Madrid, Aug. 12.

1623.

Your very loving Brother,

J. H.

XXVI. To

XXVI.

To my Noble Friend, Sir John North, Knight.

S I R,

I Receiv'd lately one of yours, but it was of a very old date ; we have our Eyes here now all fix'd upon Rome, greedily expecting the Ratification, and lately a strong rumor ran it was come, inſomuch Mr. Clerk, who was ſent hither from the Prince, being a Shipboard, (and now lies ſick at my Lord of Bristol's Houſe of a Calenture) hearing of it, he deſired to ſpeak with him, for he had ſomething to deliver him from the Prince ; my Lord Ambaſſador being come to him, Mr. Clerk delivered a Letter from the Prince, the Contents whereof were, That whereas he had left certain Proxies in his hand to be delivered to the King of Spain after the Ratification was come, he deſir'd and requir'd him not to do it till he ſhould receive further order from England ; my Lord of Bristol hereupon went to Sir Walter Aſton, who was in joint Commiſſion with him for concluding the Match, and ſhewing him the Letter ; what my Lord Aſton ſaid I know not, but my Lord of Bristol told him, That they had a Commiſſion Royal under the Broad Seal of England, to conclude the Match ; he knew as well as he how earneſt the King their Maſter had been any time this ten years to have it done, how there could not be a better Pawn for the Surrendry of the Palatinate, than the Infanta in the Prince his Arms, who could never reſt till ſhe did the work to merit Love of our Nation : He told him alſo how their own particular fortunes depended upon it ; beſides if he ſhould delay one moment to deliver the Proxy after the Ratification was come according to Agreement, the Infanta would hold her ſelf ſo blemiſh'd in her Honor, that it might overthrow all things. Laſtly, he told him, That they incurr'd the hazard of their heads if they ſhould ſuſpend the executing his Maſteſty's Commiſſion upon any order but from that Power which gave it, who was the King himſelf ; hereupon both the Ambaſſadors proceeded ſtill in preparing Matters for the ſolemnizing of the Marriage : the Earl of Bristol had cauſ'd above 30 rich Liveries to be made of watchet Velvet, with Silver Lace up to the very capes of the Cloaks, the beſt ſorts whereof were valued at 80 l. a Livery : My Lord Aſton had alſo provided new Liveries, and a fortnight after the ſaid politick report was blown up, the Ratification came indeed compleat and full ; ſo the Marriage-day was appointed, a Terrace cover'd all over with Tapeſtry was rais'd from the King's Palace to the next Church, which might be about the ſame extent, as from White-Hall to Weſtminſter-Abbey, and the King intended to make his ſiſter a Wife, and his daughter (whereof the Queen was deliver'd a little before) a Christian upon the same day; the *Grande*s and great Ladies had been invited to the Marriage, and Order was sent to all the Port-towns to discharge their great Ordnance, and sundry other things were prepar'd to honor the Solemnity: but when we were thus at the height of our hopes; a day or two before, there came Mr. Kellegree, Gresly, Wood and Davies, one upon the neck of another, with a new Commission to my Lord of Bristol immediately from his Majesty, countermanding him to deliver the Proxy aforesaid, until a full and absolute Satisfaction were had for the Surrendry of the Palatinate under this King's Hand and Seal, in regard he desir'd his Son should be married to Spain, and his Son in Law re-married to the Palatinate at one time; hereupon all was dash'd in pieces, and that Frame which was rearing so many years, was ruin'd in a moment. This news struck a damp in the Hearts of all People here, and they wish'd that the Postillions that brought it, had all broke their Necks in the way.

My Lord of Bristol hereupon went to Court to acquaint the King with his new Commission, and so propos'd the restitution of the Palatinate. The King answer'd, 'Twas none of his to give, 'tis true he had a few Towns there, but he held them as Commissioner only for the Emperor, and he could not command an Emperor; yet if his Majesty of Great Britain would put a Treaty a foot, he would send his own Ambassadors to joyn: In the interim, the Earl was commanded not to deliver the aforesaid Proxy of the Prince, for the Desponsories or Espousal until Christmas: (And herein it seems his Majesty with you was not well inform'd, for those powers of Proxies expir'd before) the King here said further, That if his Uncle the Emperor, or the Duke of Bavaria would not be conformable to reason, he would raise as great an Army for the Prince Palsgrave as he did under Spinola when he first invaded the Palatinate; and to secure this, he would engage his Contratation-House of the West-Indies, with his Plate-Fleet, and give the most binding Instrument that could be under his Hand and Seal. But this gave no satisfaction, therefore my Lord of Bristol I believe hath not long to stay here, for he is commanded to deliver no more Letters to the Infanta, nor demand any more Audience, and that she should be no more stiled Princess of England, or Wales. The foresaid Caution which this King offer'd to my Lord of Bristol, made me think of what I read of his Grandfather Philip the second, who having been married to our Queen Mary, and it being thought she was with child of him, and was accordingly pray'd for at Paul's Cross, though it proved afterward but a tympany, King Philip propos'd to our Parliament, that they would pass an Act that he might be Regent during his or her minority that should be born, and he would give good

good caution to surrender the Crown, when he or she should come to Age: the Motion was hotly canvass'd in the House of Peers, and like to pass, when the Lord Paget rose up and said, Ay, but who shall sue the King's Bond? so the Business was dash'd. I have no more News to send you now, and I am sorry I have so much, unless it were better; for we that have Business to negotiate here are like to suffer much by this Rupture: Welcome be the Will of God, to whose Benediction I commend you, and rest

Madrid, Aug. 25.
1623.

Your most humble Servitor,
J. H.

XXVII.

To the Right Honorable the Lord Clifford.

My good Lord,

THough this Court cannot afford now such comfortable News in relation to England as I could wish, yet such as it is you shall receive. My Lord of Bristol is preparing for England, I waited upon him lately when he went to take his Leave at Court, and the King washing his Hands took a Ring from off his own finger, and put it upon his, which was the greatest Honor that ever he did any Ambassador, as they say here; he gave him also a Cupboard of Plate, valued at 20000 Crowns: There were also large and high Promises made him, that in case he fear'd to fall upon any Rock in England, by reason of the Power of those who malign'd him, if he would stay in any of his Dominions, he would give him Means and Honor equal to the highest of his Enemies. The Earl did not only wave, but disdain'd these Propositions made unto him by Olivares, and said, he was so confident of the King his Master's Justice and high Judgment, and of his own Innocency, that he conceiv'd no Power could be able to do him hurt. There hath occur'd nothing lately in this Court worth the Advertisement: They speak much of the strange Carriage of that boisterous Bishop of Halverstadt, (for so they term him here) that having taken a Place where there were two Monasteries of Nuns and Friars, he caus'd divers Feather-beds to be rip'd, and all the Feathers to be thrown into a great Hall, whither the Nuns and Friars were thrust naked with their Bodies oil'd and pitch'd, and to tumble among these Feathers, which makes them here presage him an ill Death. So I most affectionately kiss your Hands, and rest

Madrid, Aug. 26.
1623.

Your very humble Servitor,
J. H.

XXVIII.

To Sir John North.

S I R,

I Have many Thanks to render you for the Favor you lately did to a Kinsman of mine, Mr. Vaughan, and for divers others, which I defer till I return to that Court, and that I hope will not be long. Touching the Procedure of Matters here, you shall understand, that my Lord Aston had special Audience lately of the King of Spain, and afterwards presented a Memorial, wherein there was a high Complaint against the Miscarriage of the two Spanish Ambassadors now in England, the Marquis of Inopisa, and Don Carlos Coloma, the Substance of it was, That the said Ambassadors in a private Audience his Majesty of Great Britain had given them, inform'd him of a pernicious Plot against his Person and Royal Authority, which was, That at the beginning of your now Parliament, the Duke of Buckingham with other his Complices often met and consulted in a clandestine way, how to break the Treaty both of Match and Palatinate: and in case his Majesty was unwilling thereunto, he should have a Country-house or two to retire unto for his Recreation and Health, in regard the Prince is now of years and Judgment fit to govern. His Majesty so resented this, that the next day he sent them many Thanks for the Care they had of him, and desir'd them to perfect the work, and now that they had detected the Treason, to discover also the Traytors; but they were shy in that point: the King sent again, desiring them to send him the Names of the Conspirators in a paper, seal'd up, by one of their own Confidants, which he would receive with his own Hands, and no Soul should see it else; advising them withal, that they should not prefer this Discovery before their own Honors, to be accounted false Accusers: they replied, That they had done enough already by instancing in the Duke of Buckingham, and it might easily be guess'd who were his Confidants, and Creatures. Hereupon his Majesty put those whom he had any Grounds to suspect to their Oaths: And afterward sent my Lord Conway, and Sir Francis Cottington, to tell the Ambassadors, that he had left no Means unassay'd to discover the Conspiration, that he had found upon Oath such a clearness of Ingenuity in the Duke of Buckingham, that satisfied him of his Innocency: Therefore he had just Cause to conceive that this Information of theirs, proceeded rather from Malice and some political Ends than from Truth, and in regard they would not produce the Authors of so dangerous a Treason, they made themselves to be justly thought the Authors of it; and therefore though he might by his own Royal Justice, and the Law of Nations punish punish this Excess and Insolence of theirs, and high Wrong they had done to his best Servants, yea, to the Prince his Son, for through the sides of the Duke they wounded him, in regard it was impossible that such a Design should be attempted without his Privy, yet he would not be his own Judge herein, but would refer them to the King their Master, whom he conceiv'd to be so just, that he doubted not but he would see him satisfied, and therefore he would send an Express unto him hereabouts, to demand Justice, and Reparation: This Business is now in Agitation, but we know not what will become of it. We are all here in a sad disconsolate Condition, and the Merchants shake their heads up and down, out of an Apprehension of some fearful War to follow: So I most affectionately kiss your Hands and rest

Madrid, Aug. 26.

1623.

Your very humble and ready
Servitor, J. H.

XXIX.

To Sir Kenelm Digby, Knight.

S I R,

YO U have had Knowledge (none better) of the Progression and Growings of the Spanish Match from time to time; I must acquaint you now with the Rupture and utter Dissolution of it, which was not long a doing; for it was done in one Audience that my Lord of Bristol had lately at Court, whence it may be inferr'd, that 'tis far more easy to pull down than rear up; for that Structure which was so many years a rearing, was dasht as it were in a trice: Dissolution goeth a faster pace than Composition. And it may be said, that the civil Actions of Men, especially great Affairs of Monarchs (as this was) have much Analogy in degrees of progression with the natural production of Man. To make Man there are many Acts must precede, first a meeting and copulation of the Sexes, then Conception, which requires a well disposed Womb to retain the prolific Seed, by the constriction and occlusion of the orifice of the Matrix, which Seed being first, and afterwards Cream, is by a gentle Ebullition coagulated, and turn'd to a cruded Lump, which the Womb by virtue of its natural heat prepares to be capable to receive Form, and to be organiz'd, whereupon Nature falls a working to delineate all the Members, beginning with those that are most noble: as the Heart, the Brain, the Liver, whereof Galen would have the Liver, which is the Shop and Source of the Blood, and Aristotle the Heart, to be the first fram'd, in regard 'tis primum vivens, & ultimum moriens: Nature continues in this labor until a perfect Shape be introduc'd, and this is call'd Formation, which is the third Act, and is a production of an organical Body

Body out of the spermatie Substance, caus'd by the plastic virtue of the vital spirits: and sometimes this act is finisht thirty days after the conception, sometimes fifty, but most commonly in forty two or forty five, and is sooner done in the Male; this being done, the Embryo is animated with three Souls; the first with that of Plants call'd the vegetable Soul, then with a sensitive, which all brute Animals have, and lastly, the Rational Soul is infus'd, and these three in Man are like Trigonus in Tétragono, the two first are generated ex Troduce, from the Seed of the Parents, but the last is by immediate Infusion from God, and 'tis controverted 'twixt Philosophers and Divines, when this Infusion is made.

This is the fourth act that goeth to make a Man, and is call'd Animation: and as the Naturalists allow Animation double the time that Formation had from the Conception, so they allow to the ripening of the Embryo in the Womb, and to the Birth thereof treble the time that Animation had, which hapneth sometimes in nine, sometimes in ten Months. This grand Business of the Spanish Match may be said to have had such degrees of Progression; first there was a meeting and coupling on both sides, for a Junta in Spain, and some select Counsellors of State were appointed in England; after this Conjunction the Business was conceiv'd, then it receiv'd Form, then Life, (though the quickning was slow) but having had near upon ten Years in lieu of ten Months to be perfected, it was unfortunately strangled when it was ripe ready for Birth; and I would they had never been born that did it, for it is like to be out of my way 3000 l. And as the Embryo in the Womb is wrapt in three Membranes or Tunicles, so this great Business, you know better than I, was involv'd in many Difficulties, and died so intangled before it could break through them.

There is a Buz here of a Match 'twixt England and France; I pray God send it a speedier Formation and Animation than this had, and that it may not prove an Abortive.

I send you herewith a Letter from the Paragon of the Spanish Court Donna Anna Maria Manrique, the Duke of Marquedas sister, who respects you in a high Degree; she told me this was the first Letter she ever writ to Man in her Life, except the Duke her brother, she was much solicited to write to Mr. Thomas Cary, but she would not. I did also your Message to the Marque sad' Inojosa, who put me to sit a good while with her upon her Estrado, which was no simple favor: you are much in both these Ladies Books, and much spoken of by divers others in this Court. I could not recover your Diamond Hatband which the Picaroon snatch'd from you in the Coach, though I us'd all means possible, as far as Book, Bell and Candle in point of Excommunication against the Party in all the Churches of Madrid, by which means you know divers things are recover'd.
of

So I most affectionately kiss your Hands and rest,

Post. Yours of the 2d of March came to safe Hand.

Madrid.

Your most faithful

Servitor, J. H.

XXX.

To my Cousin, Mr. J. Price, (now Knight) at the Middle-Temple, from Madrid.

Cousin, suffer my Letter to salute you first in this Distich,

A Thamisi Tagus quot levis flumine distat,

Oscula tot manibus porto, Pricæ, tuis.

As many Miles Thames lies from Tagus Strands,

I bring so many Kisses to thy Hands.

My dear Jack,

I N the large Register or Almanack of my Friends in England, you are one of the chiefest Red Letters, you are one of my Festival Rubriques; for whensoever you fall upon my Mind, or my Mind falls upon you, I keep Holy-day all the while, and this happens so often, that you leave me but few Working-Days throughout the whole Year, fewer far than this Country affords, for in their Kalendar above five Months of the twelve are dedicated to some Saint or other, and kept Festival; a Religion that the London Apprentices would like well.

I thank you for yours of the third Current, and the ample Relations you give me of London Occurrences, but principally for the powerful and sweet Assurances you give me of your Love, both in Verse and Prose. All Businesses here are off the Hinges; for one late Audience of my Lord of Bristol pull'd down what was so many Years a raising. And as Thomas Aquinas told an Artist of a costly curious Statue in Rome, that by some Accident while he was a trimming it, fell down and so broke to pieces, Opus triginta annorum destruxisti, Thou hast destroy'd the Work of thirty Years;
so it may be said, that a Work near upon ten Years is now suddenly shatter'd to pieces. I hope by God's Grace to be now specdily in England, and to re-enjoy your most dear Society: In the mean time may all Happiness attend you.

Ad Literam.

Optius ut grandire gradus oratio, possit

Prosa, tibi binos jungimus ecce pedes.

That in thy Journy thou mayst be more fleet,

To my dull Prose I add these Metrick Feet.

Resp.

Resp.

*Ad mare cum venio quid agam? Repl. tum prapete penna
Te ferat, est lator nam levis ignis, Amor.*

But when I come to Sea how shall I shift?
Let Love transport thee then, for Fire is swift.

March 30.
1624.

Your most affectionate Cousin,
J. H.

XXXI.

To the Lord Viscount Colchester, from Madrid.

Right Honorable,

Your Lordship's of the third Current, came to safe Hand, and being now upon point of parting with this Court, I thought it worth the Labor to send your Lordship a short Survey of the Monarchy of Spain; a bold Undertaking your Lordship will say, so comprehend within the narrow bounds of a Letter such a huge bulk, but as in the bos of a small Diamond Ring one may discern the Image of a mighty Mountain, so I will endeavour that your Lordship may behold the Power of this great King in this paper.

Spain hath been always esteem'd a Country of ancient Renown, and as it is incident to all other, she hath had her Vicissitudes, and Turns of Fortune: She hath been thrice overcome; by the Romans, by the Goths, and by the Moors: The middle Conquest continueth to this Day; for this King and most of the Nobility profess themselves to have descended of the Goths; the Moors kept here about Seven hundred Years, and it is a remarkable Story how they got in first, which was thus upon good Record: There reign'd in Spain, Don Rodrigo, who kept his Court then at Malaga; He employ'd the Conde Don Julian Ambassador to Barbary, who had a Daughter (a young beautiful Lady) that was Maid of Honor to the Queen: The King spying her one day refreshing herself under an Arbor, fell enamor'd with her, and never left till he had deflower'd her: She resenting much the Dishonor, writ a Letter to her Father in Barbary under this Allegory, That there was a fair green Apple upon the Table, and the King's Poynard fell upon it and cleft it in two. Don Julian apprehending the meaning, got Letters of Revocation, and came back to Spain, where he so complied with the King, that he became his Favorite: Amongst other things he advis'd the King, That in regard he was now in Peace with all the World, he would dismiss his Gallies and Garrisons that were up and down the Sea-coasts, because it was a superfluous Charge. This being done, and the Country left open to any Invader, he prevail'd with the King to have Leave to go with his Lady to see their Friends in Tarragona, which was 300 miles off: Having been there a while, his Lady made semblance to be sick, and so sent to petition the King, that her Daughter Donna Cava (whom they had left at Court to satiate the Kings Lust) might come to comfort her a while; Cava came, and the Gate through which she went forth is call'd after her Name to this Day in Malaga: Don Julian having all his chief Kindred there, he sail'd over to Barbary, and afterwards brought over the King of Morocco and others with an Army, who suddenly invaded Spain, lying armless and open, and so conquer'd it. Don Rodrigo died gallantly in the Field, but what became of Don Julian, who for a particular Revenge betrayed his own Country, no Story makes mention. A few Years before this happen'd, Rodrigo came to Toledo, where under the great Church there was a Vault with huge Iron Doors, and none of his Predecessors durst open it, because there was an old Prophecy, That when that Vault was open'd, Spain should be conquer'd: Rodrigo slighting the Prophecy, caus'd the Doors to be broke open, hoping to find there some Treasure; but when he entred, there was nothing found but the Pictures of Moors, of such Men that a little after fulfilled the Prophecy.

with

Yet this last Conquest of Spain was not perfect, for divers parts North-west kept still under Christian Kings, especially Biscay, which was never conquer'd, as Wales in Britany; and the Biscayneers have much Analogy with the Welsh in divers things: they retain to this Day the original Language of Spain, they are the most Mountainous People, and they are reputed the ancientest Gentry; so that when any is to take the Order of Knighthood, there are no Inquisitors appointed to find whether he be clear of the Blood of the Moors, as in other Places. The King when he comes upon the Confines, pulls off one Shoe before he can tread upon any Biscay Ground. And he hath good Reason to esteem that Province, in regard of divers Advantages he hath by it; for he hath his best Timber to build Ships, his best Marines, and all his Iron thence.

There were divers bloody Battels betwixt the Remnant of Christians, and the Moors for Seven hundred Years together, and the Spaniards getting Ground more and more, drove them at last to Granada, and thence also in the time of Ferdinand and Isabella, quite over to Barbary: their last King was Chico, who when he fled from Granada crying and weeping, the People upbraided him, That he might well weep like a Woman, who could not defend himself and them like a Man, (this was that Ferdinand who obtain'd from Rome the Title of Catholick, tho' some Stories say, that many ages before Ricardus the first orthodox King of the Goths, was stil'd Catholicus in a Provincial Synod held at Toledo, which was continued by Alphonfus the first, and then made hereditary by this Ferdinand.) This absolute Conquest of the Moors hapned about Henry the Seventh's Time, when the foresaid Ferdinand and Isabella had by Alliance joyn'd Castile and Arragon, which with the Discovery of the West-Indies, which happen'd a little after, was the first Foundation of that Greatness whereunto Spain is now mounted. Afterwards there was an Alliance with Burgundy and Austria; by the first House the seventeen Provinces fell to Spain; by the second Charles the fifth came to be Emperor: And remarkable it is how the House of Austria came to that height from a mean Earl; the Earl of Hasburg in Germany, who having been one day a hunting, he overtook a Priest who had been with the Sacrament to visit a poor sick Body, the Priest being tyr'd, the Earl lighted off his Horse, help'd up the Priest, and so waited upon him a foot all the while, till he brought him to the Church: The Priest giving him his Benediction at his going away, told him, that for this great Act of Humility and Piety, His Race should be one of the greatest that ever the World had; and ever since, which is some 240 Years ago, the Empire hath continued in that House, which afterwards was call'd the House of Austria.
Alphonfus

In Philip the second's time the Spanish Monarchy came to its highest cumble, by the Conquest of Portugal, whereby the East-Indies, sundry Islands in the Atlantick Sea, and divers Places in Barbary were added to the Crown of Spain. By these Steps this Crown came to this Grandeur; and truly give the Spaniard his Due, he is a mighty Monarch, he hath Dominions in all Parts of the World, (which none of the four Monarchies had) both in Europe, Asia, Africa, and America, (which he hath solely to himself) though our Henry the seventh had the first Proffer made him: so the Sun shines all the four and twenty hours of the natural Day upon some Part or other of his Countreys, for part of the Antipodes are subject to him. He hath eight Viceroyes in Europe, two in the East-Indies, two in the West, two in Africk, and about thirty provincial sovereign Commanders more; yet as I was told lately, in a Discourse 'twixt him and our Prince at his being here, when the Prince fell to magnify his spacious Dominions, the King answer'd, Sir, 'tis true, it hath pleas'd God to trust me with divers Nations and Countreys, but of all these there are but two which yield me any clear Revenues, viz. Spain, and my West-Indies, nor all Spain neither, but Castile only, the rest do scarce quit Cost, for all is drunk up 'twixt Governors and Garrisons; yet my Advantage is to have the Opportunity to propagate Christian Religion, and to employ my Subjects. For the last, it must be granted that no Prince hath better means to breed brave Men, and more variety of Commands to heighten their Spirits with no petty but Princely Employments.

This King besides hath other means to oblige the Gentry unto him, by such

such a huge number of Commendams which he hath in his Gift to bestow on whom he pleases of any of the three Orders of Knighthood; which England and France want. Some Noblemen in Spain can despend 50000 l. some 40000, some 30000, and divers 20000 l. per Annum. The Church here is exceeding rich both in Revenues, Plate, and Buildings; one cannot go to the meanest Country Chapel, but he will find Chalices, Lamps and Candlesticks of Silver. There are some Bishopricks of 30000 l. per Annum, and divers of 10000 l. and Toledo is 100000 l. yearly Revenue. As the Church is rich, so it is mightily revered here, and very powerful, which made Philip the second rather depend upon the Clergy than the Secular Power. Therefore I do not see how Spain can be call'd a poor Country, considering the Revenues aforesaid of Princes and Prelates; nor is it thin of People, as the World makes it, and one Reason may be that there are sixteen Universities in Spain, and in one of these, there were 15000 Students at one Time when I was there, I mean Salamanca, and in this Village of Madrid (for the King of Spain cannot keep his constant Court in any City) there are ordinarily 600000 Souls. 'Tis true that the colonizing of the Indies, and the Wars of Flanders have much drain'd this Country of People: Since the Expulsion of the Moors, it is also grown thinner, and not so full of Corn; for those Moors would grub up Wheat out of the very tops of the craggy Hills, yet they us'd another Grain for their Bread, so that the Spaniard had nought else to do but go with his Ass to the Market, and buy Corn of the Moors. There liv'd here also in times past a great number of Jews, till they were expell'd by Ferdinand, and as I have read in an old Spanish Legend, the Cause was this; the King had a young Prince to his Son, who was us'd to play with a Jewish Doctor that was about the Court, who had a Ball of Gold in a string hanging down his Breast, the little Prince one Day snatch'd away the said golden Ball, and carried it to the next Room, the Ball being hollow, open'd, and within there was painted our Saviour kissing a Jew's tail: Hereupon they were all suddenly disterr'd and exterminated, yet I believe in Portugal there lurks yet good store of them.

For the Soil of Spain, the Fruitfulness of their Vallies recompences the Sterility of their Hills, Corn is their greatest want, and want of Rain is the cause of that, which makes them have need of their Neighbours; yet as much as Spain bears is passing good, and so is every thing else for the quality, nor hath any one a better Horse under him, a better Cloak on his Back, a better Sword by his side, better Shoes on his Feet, than the Spaniard, nor doth any drink better Wine, or eat better Fruit than he, nor Flesh for the quantity.

Touching the People, the Spaniard looks as high, though not so big as a German, his Excess is in too much Gravity, which some who know him not well, hold to be a Pride, he cares not how little he labours, for poor

Gascons and Morisco slaves do most of his work in field and vineyard; he can endure much in the war, yet he loves not to fight in the dark, but in open day, or upon a stage, that all the world might be witnesses of his valor, so that you shall seldom here of Spaniards employed in night service; nor shall one hear of a Duel here in an age: He hath one good quality, that he is wonderfully obedient to Government; for the proudest Don of Spain when he is prancing upon his Ginet in the street, if an Alguazil (a Sergeant) shew him his Vare, that is a little white staff he carrieth as a badge of his Office; my Don will down presently off his horse, and yield himself his prisoner. He hath another commendable quality, that when he giveth Alms, he pulls off his Hat, and puts it in the beggars hand with a great deal of humility, his gravity is much lessened since the late Proclamation came out against ruffs, and the King himself shew'd the first example, they were come to that height of excess herein, that twenty shillings were us'd to be paid for starching of a ruff: and some, though perhaps he had never a shirt to his back, yet would he have a toring huge swelling ruff about his neck. He is sparing in his ordinary diet, but when he makes a feast he is free and bountiful. As to Temporal Authority, specially Martial, so is he very obedient to the Church, and believes all with an implicit faith: he is a great servant of Ladies, nor can he be blam'd, for as I said before, he comes of a Gotish Race; yet he never brags of, nor blazes abroad his doings that way, but is exceedingly careful of the repute of any woman, (A civility that we much want in England) He will speak high words of Don Philipppo his King, but will not endure a stranger should do so: I have heard a Biscayner make a Rodomontado, that he was as good a Gentleman as Don Philipppo himself, for Don Philipppo was half a Spaniard, half a German, half an Italian, half a Frenchman, half I know not what, but he was a pure Biscayner, without mixture. The Spaniard is not so smooth and oily in his Complement as the Italian, and though he will make strong protestations, yet he will not swear out Complements like the French and English, as I heard when my Lord of Carlile was Ambassador in France, there came a great Monsiieur to see him, and having a long time banded, and sworn Complements one to another who should go first out at a door, at last my Lord of Carlile said, O Monseigneur ayez pitie de mon ame, O my Lord have pity upon my soul.

The Spaniard is generally given to gaming, and that in excess; he will say his prayers before, and if he win, he will thank God for his good fortune after; their common game at cards (for they very seldom play at dice) is Primera, at which the King never shews his game, but throws his cards with their faces down on the table: he is Merchant of all the cards and dice through all the King dom, he hath them made for a penny a pair, and he retails them for twelve pence; so that 'tis thought he hath 30000 l. a Year by this Trick at Cards. The Spaniard is very devout in his way, for I have seen him kneel in the very Dirt when the Ave-Mary Bell rings: and some if they spy two Straws or Sticks lye cross-wise in the Street, they will take them up and kiss them, and lay them down again. He walks as if he marcht, and seldom looks on the Ground, as if he contemned it. I was told of a Spaniard who having got a Fall by a Stumble, and broke his Nose, rose up, and in a disdainful manner said, Voto a tal esto es caminar por la tierra, This it is to walk upon Earth. The Labradores and Country Swains here are sturdy and rational Men, nothing so simple or servile as the French Peasant who is born in Chains. 'Tis true, the Spaniard is not so conversable as other Nations; (unless he hath travell'd) else he is like Mars among the Planets, impatient of Conjunction: Nor is he so free in his Gifts and Rewards; as the last Summer it happen'd that Count Gondamar with Sir Francis Cottington went to see a curious House of the Constable of Castile's, which had been newly built here; the Keeper of the House was very officious to shew him every Room, with the Garden, Grotto's, and Aqueducts, and presented him with some Fruit; Gondamar having been a long time in the House, coming out, put many Complements of Thanks upon the Man, and so was going away; Sir Francis whisper'd him in the Ear, and ask'd him whether he would give the Man any thing that took such Pains? Oh, quoth Gondamar, well remembred Don Francisco, have you ever a double Pistol about you? if you have, you may give it him, and then you pay him after the English manner, I have paid him already after the Spanish. The Spaniard is much improv'd in Policy since he took footing in Italy, and there is no Nation agrees with him better. I will conclude this Character with a Saying that he hath,
for

No ay hombre debaxo d' el sol,
Como el Italiano y el Espanol.

Whereunto a French-man answer'd,
Dizes la verdad y tienes razon,
El uno es puto, el otro ladron.

English'd thus,
Beneath the Sun there's no such Man;
As is the Spaniard and Italian.

The French-man answers,
Thou tell'st the Truth, and Reason hast,
The first's a Thief, a Buggerer the last.

Touching their Women, Nature hath made a more visible Distinction betwixt the two Sexes here, than elsewhere; for the Men for the most part, are swarthy and rough, but the Women are of a far finer Mould, they are commonly little; and whereas there is a Saying that makes a compleat Woman, let her be English to the neck, French to the waist, and Dutch below; I may add, for Hands and Feet let her be Spanish, for they have the least of any. They have another Saying, a French-woman in a Dance, a Dutch-woman in the Kitchen, an Italian in a Window, an English-woman at board, and the Spanish a bed. When they are married they have a Priviledge to wear high Shoes, and to paint, which is generally practised here, and the Queen useth it herself. They are coy enough, but not so forward as our English; for if a Lady go along the Street, (and all Women going here veil'd, and their Habit so generally alike, one can hardly distinguish a Countess from a Coblers Wife) if one should cast out an odd ill sounding Word, and ask her a Favor, she will not take it ill, but put it off, and answer you with some witty Retort. After 30 they are commonly past Child-bearing, and I have seen Women in England look as youthful at 50, as some here at 25. Money will do Miracles here in purchasing the Favor of Ladies, or any thing else, though this be the Country of Money, for it furnishes well near all the World besides, yea, their very Enemies, as the Turk and Hollander; insomuch that one may say the Coin of Spain is as Catholick as her King. Yet though he be the greatest King of Gold and Silver Mines in the World, (I think) yet the common currant Coin here is Copper, and herein I believe the Hollander hath done him more Mischief by counterfeiting his Copper Coins, than by their Arms, bringing it in by strange surreptitious ways, as in hollow Sows of Tin and Lead, hollow Masts, in pitch'd Buckets under water, and other ways. But I fear to be injurious to this great King, to speak of him in so narrow a Compass; a great King indeed, though the French in a slighting way compare his Monarchy to a Beggars Cloak made up of Patches; they are Patches indeed, but such as he hath not the like: The East-Indies is a Patch embroider'd with Pearl, Rubies, and Diamonds: Peru is a Patch embroider'd with massy Gold: Mexico with Silver: Naples and Milan are Patches of Cloth of Tissue; and if these Patches were in one Piece, what would become of his Cloak embroider'd with Flower-de-luce?

So desiring your Lordship to pardon this poor imperfect Paper, considering the high quality of the Subject, I rest, Madrid, Feb. 1.

1623.

Your Lordships most humble
Servitor,

J. H.

XXXII.

To Mr. Walsingham Grefly, from Madrid.

Don Balthasar,

I Thank you for your Letter in my Lord's last Packet, wherein among other Passages, you write unto me the Circumstances of Marquis Spinola's raising his Leaguer, by flatting and firing his Works before Berghen. He is much tax'd here, to have attempted it, and to have buried so much of the King's Treasure before that Town in such costly Trenches: A Gentleman came hither lately, who was at the Siege all the while, and he told me one strange Passage, how Sir Ferdinando Cary, a huge corpulent Knight, was shot through his Body, the Bullet entring at the Navel, and coming out at his Back, kill'd his Man behind him, yet he lives still, and is like to recover: With this miraculous Accident, he told me also a merry one, how a Captain that had a wooden Leg booted over, had it shatter'd to pieces by a Cannon-bullet, his Soldiers crying out, a Surgeon, a Surgeon for the Captain; no, no, said he, a Carpenter, a Carpenter will serve the turn: To this pleasant Tale I'll add another that happen'd lately in Alcala hard by, of a Dominican Fryer, who in a solemn Procession which was held there upon Ascension-Day last, had his Stones dangling under his Habit cut off instead of his Pocket by a Cut-purse.

Before you return hither, which I understand will be speedily, I pray bestow a Visit on our Friends in Bishopsgate-Street: So I am

Your faithful Servitor,

Feb. 3. 1623.

J. H.

XXXIII.

To Sir Robert Napier, Knight, at his House in Bishopsgate-Street, from Madrid:

S I R,

THE late Breach of the Match, hath broke the neck of all Businesses here, and mine suffers as much as any: I had Access lately to Olivares, once or twice, I had Audience also of the King, to whom I presented a Memorial that intimated Letters of Mart, unless Satisfaction were had from his Vice-roy the Conde del Real; the King gave me a gracious Answer, but Olivares a churlish one, viz. That when the Spaniards had Justice in England, we should have Justice here: So that notwithstanding I have brought it to the highest point and pitch of perfection in Law that could be, and procur'd some dispatches, the like whereof were never granted in this Court before, yet I am in despair now to do any good: I hope to be shortly in England, by God's grace, to give you and the rest of the proprietaries, a punctual account of all things: And you may easily conceive how sorry I am, that matters succeeded not according to you expectation, and my endeavours: but I hope you are none of those that measure things by the event. The Earl of Bristol, Count Gondamar, and my Lord Ambassador Aston, did not only do courtesies, but they did co-operate with me in it, and contributed their utmost endeavours. So I rest

Madrid, Feb. 19.

1623.

Yours to serve you,

J. H.

XXXIV.

To Mr. A. S. in Alicant.

Much endeared Sir,

FIRE you know is the common emblem of Love. But without any disparagement to so noble a Passion, methinks it might be also compar'd to Tinder, and Letters are the proper'st matter whereof to make this Tinder: Letters again are fittest to kindle, and re-accend this Tinder, they may serve both for Flint, Steel, and Match. This Letter of mine comes therefore of set purpose to strike some sparkles into yours, that it may glow and burn, and receive ignition, and not be dead, as it hath done a great while: I make my pen to serve for an instrument to stir the cinders, where-with your old Love to me hath been cover'd a long time, therefore I pray let no covurez feu Bell have power hereafter to rake up, and choak with the ashes of oblivion, that clear flame where-with our affections did use to sparkle so long by correspondence of Letters, and other offices of Love.

I think I shall sojourn yet in this Court these three months, for I will not give over his great business while there is the least breath of hope remaining.

I know you have choice matters of intelligence sometimes from thence, therefore I pray impart some unto us, and you shall not fail to know how matters pass here weekly. So with my besa manas to Francisco Imperial, I rest

Madrid, Mar. 3.

1623.

Yours most affectionately

to serve you, J. H.

XXXV. To

XXXV.

To the Honourable Sir T. S. at Tower-Hill.

S I R,

I Was yesterday at the Escorial to see the Monastery of Saint Laurence, the eighth wonder of the world, and truly considering the site of the place, the state of the thing, and the symmetry of the structure, with divers other rarities, it may be call'd so; for what I have seen in Italy, and other places, are but baubles to it. It is built amongst a company of craggy barren hills, which makes the air the hungrier, and wholesomer; it is all built of Free-stone and Marble, and that with such solidity and moderate height, that surely Philip the second's chief design was to make a sacrifice of it to eternity, and to contest with the Meteors, and Time it self. It cost eight millions, it was twenty four years a building, and the Founder himself saw it finish'd, and enjoyed it twelve years after, and carried his bones himself thither to be buried.

The reason that mov'd King Philip to waite so much treasure, was a vow he had made at the battel of Saint Quentin, where he was forc'd to batter a Monastery of Saint Laurence Friars, and if he had the victory, he would erect such a Monastery to St. Laurence, that the world had not the like; therefore the form of it is like a Grid-iron, the handle is a huge royal Palace, and the body a vast Monastery or Assembly of quadrangular Cloysters, for there are as many as there be months in the year. There be a hundred Monks, and every one hath his man and his mule, and a multitude of Officers; besides, there are three Libraries there, full of the choicest Books for all Sciences; It is beyond expression, what Grots, Gardens, Walks, and Aqueducts there are there, and what curious Fountains in the upper Cloysters, for there be two stages of Cloysters. In fine, there is nothing that's vulgar there. To take a view of every room in the house, one must make account to go ten miles; there is a Vault call'd the Pantheon under the highest Altar, which is all pav'd, wall'd, and arch'd with marble; there be a number of huge Silver Candlesticks, taller than I am; Lamps three yards compass, and divers Chalices, and Crosses of massy Gold: There is one quire made all of burnish'd brass: Pictures and Statues like Giants, and a world of glorious things that purely ravish'd me. By this mighty Monument, it may be inferr'd, that Philip the second, though he was a little man, yet had he vast Gigantick thoughts in him, to leave such a huge pile for posterity to gaze upon, and admire his memory : No more now, but that I rest, Madrid, Mar. 9.

1623.

Your most humble

Servitor, J. H.

XXXVI.

To the Lord Viscount Colchester, from Madrid.

My Lord,

YOU writ to me not long since, to send you an account of the Duke of Ossuna's death, a little man, but of great fame and fortunes, and much cried up, and known up and down the world. He was revok'd from being Vice-roy of Naples (the best employment the King of Spain hath for a Subject) upon some disgust ; And being come to this Court, when he was brought to give an account of his government, being troubled with the Gout, he carried his sword in his hand instead of a staff ; the King misliking the manner of his posture, turn'd his back to him, and so went away : thereupon he was overheard to mutter, Esto es para servir muchachos ; This it is to serve boys : This coming to the Kings ear, he was apprehended, and committed prisoner to a Monastery not far off, where he continued some years, until his beard came to his girdle, then growing very ill, he was permitted to come to his house in this Town, being carried in a bed upon mens shoulders, and so dyed some years ago. There were divers accusations against him, among the rest, I remember these, That he had kept the Marquis de Campolataros wife, sending her husband out of the way upon employment : That he had got a bastard of a Turkish woman, and suffer'd the child to be brought up in the Mahumetan religion ; that being one day at High Mass, when the host was elevated, he drew out of his pocket a piece of Gold, and held it up, intimating that that was his God ; that he had invited some of the prime Courtisans of Naples to a Feast, and after dinner made a banquet for them in his Garden, where he commanded them to strip themselves stark naked, and go up and down, while he shot sugar-plums at them out of a Trunk, which they were to take up from off their high Chapins, and such like extravagancies. One (amongst divers other) witty passage was told me of him, which was, that when he was Vice-roy of Sicily, there dyed a great rich Duke, who left but one Son, whom with his whole estate, he bequeath'd to the Tutule of the Jesuits, and the words of the Will were, When he is past his minority (Darete al mio figliuolo qualche voi volete) you shall give my Son what you will. It seems the Jesuits took to themselves two parts of three of the estate, and gave the rest to the heir, the young Duke complaining plaining hereof to the Duke of Offuna (then Vice-roy) he commanded the Jesuits to appear before him, he ask'd them how much of the estate they would have, they answer'd, two parts of three, which they had almost employed already to build Monasteries, and an Hospital, to erect particular Altars, and Masses, to sing Dirges and Refrigerium, for the Soul of the deceased Duke: Hereupon the Duke of Offuna caus'd the Will to be produc'd, and found therein the words afore-recited, When he is past his minority, you shall give my Son of my estate, what you will; then he told the Jesuits, you must by virtue and tenor of these words, give what you will to the son, which by your own confession is two parts of three: and so he determin'd the business.

Thus have I in part satisfied your Lordships desire, which I shall do more amply, when I shall be made happy to attend you in person, which I hope will be ere it be long: In the interim, I take my leave of you from Spain, and rest

Madrid, 13 Mar.
1623.

Your Lordships most ready and humble Servitor, J. H.

XXXVII.

To Simon Digby, Esq;

S I R,

I Thank you for the several sorts of Cyphers you sent me to write by, which were very choice ones and curious. Cryptology, or Epistolizing in a Clandestine way, is very ancient: I read in A. Gellius, that C. Caesar in his Letters to Cajus Oppius, and Balbus Cornelius, who were two of his greatest confidents in managing his private affairs, did write in Cyphers by a various transportation of the Alphabet; whereof Probas Grammaticus de occulta literarum significatione Epistolarum C. Caesaris, writes a curious Commentary: But methinks, that certain kind of Hieroglyphicks, the Cœlestial Signs, the seven Planets, and other Constellations, might make a curious kind of Cypher, as I will more particularly demonstrate unto you in a Scheme, when I shall be made happy with your conversation. So I rest

Your assured Servitor,

Madrid, Mar. 15.
1623.

J. H.

XXXVIII.

To Sir James Crofts, from Bilboa.

S I R,

Being safely come to the Marine, in convoy of his Majesty's Jewels, and being to sojourn here some days, the convenience of this Gentleman (who knows, and much honoureth you) he being to ride Post through France, invited me to send you this.

We were but five horsemen in all our seven days journey, from Madrid hither, and the charge Mr. Wiches had is valued at four hundred thousand Crowns; but 'tis such safe travelling in Spain, that one may carry gold in the palm of his hand, the government is so good. When we had gain'd Biscay ground, we past one day through a Forrest, and lighting off our Mules to take a little repast under a Tree, we took down our Alforjas, and some bottles of wine, (and you know 'tis ordinary here to ride with ones victuals about him) but as we were eating, we spied two huge Woolfs, who star'd upon us a while, but had the good manners to go away: It put me in mind of a pleasant tale I heard Sir Thomas Fairfax relate of a Souldier in Ireland, who having got his Passport to go for England, as he past through a Wood with his Knapsack upon his back, being weary, he sate down under a Tree, where he open'd his Knapsack, and fell to some victuals he had; but upon a sudden he was surpriz'd with two or three Woolfs, who coming towards him, he threw them scraps of bread and cheese, till all was done; then the Woolfs making a nearer approach unto him, he knew not what shift to make, but by taking a pair of bag-pipes which he had, and as soon as he began to play upon them, the Wolves ran all away as if they had been fear'd out of their wits; whereupon the Souldier said, A pox take you all, if I had known you had lov'd Musick so well, you should have had it before dinner.

If there be a lodging void at the three Halbards-Heads, I pray be pleased to cause it to be reserv'd for me. So I rest

Your humble Servitor,

Bilboa, Sept. 6.

1624.

J. H.

Familiar

Familiar LETTERS.

SECTION IV.

I.

To my Father, from London.

S I R,

I Am newly return'd from Spain, I came over in Convoy of the Prince his Jewels, for which, one of the Ships Royal with the Catch were sent under the Command of Captain Love; We landed at Plymouth, whence I came by Post to Theobalds in less than two Nights and a Day, to bring his Majesty News of their safe Arrival. The Prince had newly got a Fall off a Horse, and kept his Chamber; the Jewels were valued at above a Hundred Thousand Pounds; some of them a little before the Prince his Departure had been presented to the Infanta, but she waving to receive them, yet with a civil Complement they were left in the Hands of one of the Secretaries of State for her Use upon the Wedding-Day, and it was no unworthy thing in the Spaniard to deliver them back, notwithstanding that the Treaties both of Match and Palatinate, had been dissolv'd a pretty while before by Act of Parliament, that a War was threatned, and Ambassadors revok'd. There were Jewels also amongst them to be presented to the King and Queen of Spain, to most of the Ladies of Honor, and the Grandees. There was a great Table Diamond for Olivares of 18 Carrats Weight; but the richest of all was to the Infanta herself, which was a Chain of great Orient Pearl, to the number of 276, weighing nine Ounces. The Spaniards, notwithstanding they are the Masters of the Staple of Jewels, stood astonish'd at the Beauty of these, and confess'd themselves to be put down.

Touching the Employment upon which I went to Spain, I had my Charges born all the while, and that was all; had it taken Effect, I had made a good Business of it; but 'tis no wonder (nor can it be I hope any Disrepute unto me) that I could not bring to pass what three Ambassadors could not do before me.

I am now casting about for another Fortune, and some Hopes I have have of Employment about the Duke of Buckingham, he sways more than ever; for whereas he was before a Favorite to the King, he is now a Favorite to Parliament, People, and City, for breaking the Match with Spain: Touching his own Interest, he had reason to do it, for the Spaniards love him not; but whether the publick Interest of the State will suffer in it, or no, I dare not determine: For my part I hold the Spanish Match to be better than their Powder, and their Wares better than their Wars; and I shall be ever of that Mind, That no Country is able to do England less hurt, and more good than Spain, considering the large Traffick and Treasure that is to be got thereby.

I shall continue to give you an account of my Courses when Opportunity serves, and to dispose of Matters so that I may attend you this Summer in the Country: So desiring still your Blessing and Prayers, I rest, London, Decem. 10.

Your dutiful Son,

1624.

J. H.

II.

To R. Brown, Esq;

Dear Sir,

Here is no Seed so fruitful as that of Love: I do not mean that gross, carnal Love which propagates the World, but that which preserves it, to wit, Seeds of Friendship, which hath little Commerce with the Body, but is a thing Divine and Spiritual: There cannot be a more pregnant Proof hereof, than those Seeds of Love, which I have long since cast into your Breast, which have thriven so well, and in that Exuberance, that they have been more fruitful unto me, than that Field in Sicily, called Le trecente cariche, The Field of Three hundred Loads, so call'd, because it returns the Sower three hundred for one yearly. So plentiful hath your Love been unto me, but amongst other sweet Fruits it hath born, those precious Letters which you have sent me from time to time, both at home and abroad, are not of the least Value: I did always hug and highly esteem them, and you in them, for they yielded me both Profit and Pleasure.

That Seed which you have also sown in me, hath fructified something, but it hath not been able to make you such rich Returns, nor afford so plentiful a Crop; yet I dare say, this Crop, how thin soever, was pure and free from Tares, from Cockle or Darnel, from Flattery or Falshood, and what it shall produce hereafter, shall be so: Nor shall any Injury of the Heavens, as Tempests,

Tempests, or Thunder and Lightning, (I mean, no Cross or Affliction whatsoever) be able to blast and smut it, or hinder it to grow up, and fructify still.

This is the third time God Almighty hath been pleas'd to bring me back to the sweet Bosom of my dear Country from beyond the Seas; I have been already comforted with the Sight of many of my choice Friends, but I miss you extreamly, therefore I pray make haste, for London Streets, which you and I have trod together so often, will prove tedious to me else. Amongst other things, Black-Fryers will entertain you with a Play spick and span new, and the Cock Pit with another: Nor I believe after so long Absence, will it be an unpleasing Object for you to see

London, Jan. 20.

Your J. H.

1624.

III.

To the Lord Viscount Colchester.

Right Honorable,

MY last to your Lordship was in Italian, with the Venetian Gazetta inclos'd. Count Mansfelt is upon point of parting, having obtain'd it seems the sum of his desires; he was lodged all the while in the same Quarter of Saint James's, which was appointed for the Infanta, he sup'd yesternight with the Council of War, and he hath a Grant of 12000 Men, English and Scots, whom he will have ready in the Body of an Army against the next Spring; and they say, that England, France, Venice, and Savoy, do contribute for the Maintenance thereof 60000 l. a Month; there can be no Conjecture, much less any Judgment made yet of his Design; most think it will be for relieving Breda, which is straightly begirt by Spinola, who gives out, that he hath her already as a Bird in a Cage, and will have her maugre all the Opposition of Christendom; yet there is fresh News come over, that Prince Maurice hath got on the back of him, and hath beleaguer'd him, as he hath done the Town, which I want Faith to believe yet, in regard of the huge circuit of Spinola's Works, for his Circumvallations are cry'd up to be near upon twenty miles. But while the Spaniard is spending Millions here for getting small Towns, the Hollander gets Kingdoms of him elsewhere; he hath invaded and taken lately from the Portugal part of Brazil, a rich Country for Sugars, Cottons, Balsams, Dying-wood, and divers Commodities besides.

The Treaty of Marriage 'twixt our Prince, and the youngest Daughter of France, goes on apace, and my Lord of Carlisle, and Holland are in Paris about it; we shall see now what difference there there is 'twixt the French and Spanish Pace: The two Spanish Ambassadors have been gone hence long since, they say, that they are both in Prison, one in Burgos in Spain, the other in Flanders, for the scandalous Information they made here against the Duke of Buckingham, about which the Day before their Departure hence, they desir'd to have one private Audience more, but his Majesty denyed them: I believe they will not continue long in Disgrace, for matters grow daily worse and worse 'twixt us and Spain; for divers Letters of Mart are granted our Merchants, and Letters of Mart are commonly the Fore-runners of a War: Yet they say Gondamar will be on his way hither again about the Palatinate; for the King of Denmark appears now in his Niece's Quarrel, and Arms apace.

No more now, but that I kiss your Lordships Hands, and rest

Your most humble and ready

London, Feb. 5. 1624.

Servitor,

J. H.

IV.

To my Cousin Mr. Rowland Guin.

Cousin,

I Was lately sorry, and I was lately glad, that I heard you were ill, that I heard you are well.

Your affectionate Cousin,

J. H.

V.

To Thomas Jones, Esq;

Tom,

I F you are in Health, 'tis well, we are here all so; and we should be better, had we your Company; therefore I pray leave the smutty Air of London, and come hither to breath sweeter, where you may pluck a Rose, and drink a Cillibub.

Kentis, June 1.

1625.

Your faithful Friend,

J. H.

VI.

To D. C.

THE Bearer hereof hath no other Errand, but to know how you do in the Country, and this Paper is his Credential Letter; therefore I pray hasten his Dispatch, and if you please send send him back like the Man in the Moon, with a Basket of your Fruit on his back.

Your true Friend,

London, Aug. 10. 1624.

J. H.

VII.

To my Father, from London.

S I R,

I Received yours of the third of February, by the Hands of my Cousin Thomas Guin of Trecastle.

It was my Fortune to be on Sunday was fortnight at Theobalds, where his late Majesty King James departed this Life, and went to his last Rest upon the Day of Rest, presently after Sermon was done: A little before the break of Day, he sent for the Prince, who rose out of his Bed, and came in his Night-Gown; the King seem'd to have some earnest thing to say unto him, and so endeavour'd to rouse himself upon his Pillow, but his Spirits were so spent, that he had not Strength to make his Words audible. He died of a Fever which began with an Ague, and some Scotch Doctors mutter at a Plaister the Countess of Buckingham applied to the outside of his Stomach: 'Tis thought the last breach of the Match with Spain, which for many Years he had so vehemently desir'd, took too deep an Impression in him, and that he was forc'd to rush into a War, now in his declining Age, having liv'd in a continual uninterrupted Peace his whole Life, except some collateral Aids he had sent his Son in Law. As soon as he expir'd, the Privy-Council sat, and in less than a quarter of an Hour, King Charles was proclaim'd at Theobalds Court-Gate, by Sir Edward Zouch, Knight-Marshal, Master Secretary Conway dictating unto him, That whereas it hath pleas'd God to take to his Mercy our most gracious Sovereign King James of famous Memory, we Proclaim Prince Charles his rightful and indubitable Heir to be King of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, &c. The Knight-Marshal mistook, saying, His rightful and dubitable Heir, but he was rectified by the Secretary. This being done, I took my Horse instantly, and came to London first, except one, who was come a little before me, insomuch, that I found the Gates shut. His now Majesty took Coach, and the Duke of Buckingham with him, and came to Saint James's; In the Evening he was proclaim'd at White-Hall Gate, in Cheapside, and other Places in a sad Shower of Rain; and the Weather was suitable to the Condition wherein he finds the Kingdom, which is cloudy; for he is left engag'd in a War with a potent Prince, the People by long desuetude unapt for Arms, the Fleet Royal in quarter repair, himself self without a Queen, his Sister without a Country, the Crown pitifully laden with Debts, and the Purse of the State lightly ballasted, though it never had better Opportunity to be rich than it had these last twenty Years: But God Almighty, I hope will make him emerge, and pull this Island out of all these Plunges, and preserve us from worser Times.

The Plague is begun in White-Chappel, and as they say in the same House, on the same Day of the Month, with the same number that died twenty two Years since, when Queen Elizabeth departed.

There are great Preparations for the Funeral, and there is a Design to buy all the Cloth for Mourning white, and then to put it to the Dyers in gross, which is like to save the Crown a good deal of Money; the Drapers murmur extreamly at the Lord Cranfield for it.

I am not settled yet in any stable Condition, but I lie Wind-bound at the Cape of good Hope, expecting some gentle Gale to launch out into an Employment.

So with my Love to all my Brothers and Sisters at the Bryn, and near Brecknock, I humbly crave a Continuance of your Prayers, and Blessing to London, Decem. 11.

1625.

Your dutiful Son,

J. H.

VIII.

To Dr. Prichard.

SIR,

Since I was beholden to you for your many Favors in Oxford, I have not heard from you, (ne gry quidem) I pray let the wonted Correspondence be now reviv'd, and receive new Vigor between us.

My Lord Chancellor Bacon is lately dead of a long languishing Weakness; he died so poor, that he scarce left Money to bury him, which though he had a great Wit, did argue no great Wisdom, it being one of the essential properties of a wise Man to provide for the main Chance. I have read, that it hath been the Fortunes of all Poets commonly to die Beggars; but for an Orator, a Lawyer, and Philosopher, as he was, to die so, 'tis rare. It seems the same Fate beset him, that attended Demosthenes, Seneca, and Cicero, (all great Men) of whom, the two first fell by Corruption; the fairest Diamond may have a flaw in it; but I believe he died poor out of a Contempt of the Pelf of Fortune, as also out of an excess of Generosity, which appear'd as in divers other passages, so once when when the King had sent him a Stag, he sent up for the Under-keeper, and having drunk the King's Health unto him in a great Silver gilt-bowl, he gave it him for his Fee.

He writ a pitiful Letter to King James, not long before his Death, and concludes, Help me dear Sovereign Lord and Master, and pity me so far, that I who have been born to a Bag, be not now in my Age forc'd in effect to bear a Wallet; nor I that desire to live to study, may be driven to study to live: Which words, in my Opinion, argueth a little Abjection of Spirit, as his former Letter to the Prince did of Profaneness, wherein he hoped, that as the Father was his Creator, the Son will be his Redeemer. I write not this to derogate from the noble Worth of the Lord Viscount Verulam, who was a rare Man, a Man Recondita scientia, & ad salutem literarum natus, and I think the eloquentst that was born in this Isle. They say he shall be the last Lord Chancellor, as Sir Edward Coke was the last Lord Chief Justice of England; for ever since they have been term'd Lord Chief Justices of the King's-Bench, so hereafter they shall be only Keepers of the Great Seal, which for Title and Office, are deposible; but they say the Lord Chancellors Title is indelible.

I was lately at Grays-Inn with Sir Eubule, and he desir'd me to remember him unto you, as I do also salute meum Prichardum ex imis praeordiis, Vale κατὰ λή μαι προσφιλεστάτη.

London, Jan. 6.

Yours most affectionately

1625.

while,

J. H.

IX.

To my well-beloved Cousin Mr. T. V.

Cousin,

YOU have a great Work in hand, for you write unto me, that you are upon a Treaty of Marriage; a great Work indeed, and a Work of such Consequence, that it may make you or mar you; it may make the whole Remainder of your Life uncouth, or comfortable to you; for of all civil actions that are incident to Man, there's not any that tends more to his Infelicity or Happiness; therefore it concerns you not to be over-hasty herein, not to take the Ball before the Bound; you must be cautious how you thrust your neck into such a Yoke, whence you will never have power to withdraw it again; for the Tongue useth to tye so hard a Knot, that the Teeth can never untye, no, not Alexander's Sword can cut asunder, among us Christians. If you are resolv'd to marry, choose where you love, and resolve to love your Choice; let Love, rather than Lucre, be your Guide in this Election, though a Concurrence of both be good.

good, yet for my part, I had rather the latter should be wanting than the first, the one is the Pilate, but the other the Ballast of the Ship which should carry us to the Harbour of a happy Life: If you are bent to wed, I wish you anothergets Wife than Socrates had; who when she had scolded him out of Doors, as he was going through the Portal, threw a Chamber-pot of stale Urine upon his Head, whereat the Philosopher having been silent all the while, smilingly said, I thought after so much Thunder we should have Rain. And as I wish you may not light upon such a Zantippe, (as the wisest Men have had ill luck in this kind, as I could instance in two of our most eminent Lawyers, C. B.) so I pray that God may deliver you from a Wife of such a Generation, that Strowd our Cook here at Westminster said his Wife was of, who, when (out of a mislike of the Preacher) he had on a Sunday in the Afternoon gone out of the Church to a Tavern, and returning towards the Evening pretty well heated with Canary, to look to his Roast, and his Wife falling to read him a loud Lesson in so furious a manner, as if she would have basted him instead of the Mutton, and amongst other Revilings, telling him often, That the Devil, the Devil would fetch him, at last he broke out of a long Silence, and told her, I prithee good Wife hold thyself content, for I know the Devil will do me no Hurt, for I have married his Kinswoman. If you light upon such a Wife, (a Wife that hath more Bone than Flesh) I wish you may have the same measure of Patience that Socrates and Strowd had, to suffer the Gray Mare sometimes to be the better Horse. I remember a French Proverb;

*La Maison est miserable & meschante
Ou la Poule plus haut que le Coc chante.*

That House doth every Day more wretched grow,
Where the Hen lowder than the Cock doth crow.

Yet we have another English Proverb almost counter to this; That it is better to marry a Shrew than a Sheep; for though Silence be the dumb Orator of Beauty, and the best Ornament of a Woman, yet a phlegmatick dull Wife is fulsome and fastidious.

Excuse me Cousin, that I jest with you in so serious a Business: I know you need no Counsel of mine herein; you are discreet enough of yourself: nor, I presume, do you want Advice of Parents, which by all means must go along with you. So wishing you all conjugal Joy, and a happy Confarreation, I rest

London, Feb. 5.

1625.

Your affectionate Cousin,

J. H.

X. To

X.

To my Noble Lord, the Lord Clifford, from London.

My Lord,

TH E Duke of Buckingham is lately return'd from Holland, having renewed the Peace with the States, and Articled with them for a continuation of some Naval Forces for an Expedition against Spain, as also having taken up some Monies upon private Jewels, (not any of the Crowns) and lastly, having comforted the Lady Elizabeth for the decease of his late Majesty her Father, and of Prince Frederick her eldest Son, whose disasterous manner of death, amongst the rest of her sad Afflictions, is not the least: For passing over Haerlem Mere, a huge Inland Lough, in company of his Father, who had been in Amsterdam, to look how his Bank of Money did thrive, and coming (for more frugality) in the common Boat, which was overfet with Merchandize, and other Passengers, in a thick fog, the Vessel turn'd over, and so many perish'd, the Prince Palsgrave sav'd himself by swimming, but the young Prince clinging to the Mast, and being entangled among the Tacklings, was half drown'd and half frozen to death: A sad Destiny.

There is an open Rupture 'twixt us and the Spaniard, though he gives out, that he never broke with us to this Day: Count Gondamar was on his way to Flanders, and thence to England (as they say) with a large Commission to treat for a surrender of the Palatinate, and so to piece matters together again, but he died in the Journey, at a place call'd Bunnol, of pure apprehensions of Grief, it is given out.

The Match 'twixt his Majesty and the Lady Henrietta Maria, youngest Daughter to Henry the great (the eldest being married to the King of Spain, and the second to the Duke of Savoy) goes roundly on, and is in a manner concluded; whereat the Count of Soissons is much discontented, who gave himself hopes to have her; but the hand of Heaven hath predestin'd her for a far higher Condition.

The French Ambassadors who were sent hither to conclude the business, having private Audience of his late Majesty a little before his death, he told them pleasantly, That he would make War against the Lady Henrietta, because she would not receive the two Letters which were sent her, one from himself, and the other from his Son, but sent them to her Mother; yet he thought he should easily make Peace with her, because he understood she had afterwards put the latter Letter in her Bosom, and the first in her Coshionet, whereby he gather'd, that she intended to reserve his son for her affection, and him for Counsel.

The Bishop of Lucon, now Cardinal de Richelieu, is grown to be the sole Favorite of the King of France, being brought in by the Queen Mother, he hath been very active in advancing the match; but 'tis thought the wars will break out afresh against them of the Religion, notwithstanding the ill fortune the King had before Mountauban few years since, where he lost above 500 of his Nobles, whereof the great Duke of Main was one, and having lain in person before the Town many months, and receiv'd some affronts, as that inscription upon their Gates shews, Roy sans foy, ville sans peur; A King without faith, a Town without fear, yet he was forc'd to raze his works, and raise his siege.

The Letter which Mr. Ellis Hicks brought them of Mountauban from Rochel, through so much danger, and with so much gallantry, was an infinite advantage unto them; for whereas there was a politick report rais'd in the Kings Army, and blown into Mountauban, that Rochel was yielded to the Count of Soissons, who lay then before her, this Letter did inform the contrary, and that Rochel was in as good a plight as ever: whereupon, they made a fally the next day upon the Kings Forces, and did him a great deal of spoil.

There be summons out for a Parliament, I pray God it may prove more prosperous than the former.

I have been lately recommended to the Duke of Buckingham, by some noble friends of mine that have intimacy with him, about whom, though he hath three Secretaries already, I hope to have some employment, for I am weary of walking up and down so idly upon London streets.

The Plague begins to rage mightily; God avert his judgments, that menace so great a Mortality, and turn not away his face from this poor Island. So I kiss your Lordships hand, in quality of London, Feb. 25.

1625.

Your Lordships most humble

Servitor, J. H.

XI.

To Rich. Altham, Esq;

S I R,

THE Eccho wants but a face, and the Looking-Glass a voice, to make them both living creatures, and to become the same bodies they represent; the one by reprcussion of sound, the other by reflection of sight. Your most ingenious Letters to me from time to time, time, do far more lively represent you, than either Eccho or Chryſtal can do; I mean, they represent the better and nobler part of you, to wit, the inward man, they clearly ſet forth the notions of your mind, and the motions of your ſoul, with the ſtrength of your imagination; for as I know your exterior perſon by your lineaments, ſo I know you as well inwardly by your lines, and by thoſe lively expreſſions you give of your ſelf, inſomuch, that I believe, if the interior man within you were ſo viſible as the outward (as once Plato wiſh'd, that virtue might be ſeen with the corporeal eyes) you would draw all the world after you; or if your well-born thoughts, and the words of your Letters were eccho'd in any place, where they might rebound and be made audible, they are compos'd of ſuch ſweet and charming ſtrains of ingenuity and eloquence, that all the Nymphs of the Woods and the Valleys, the Driades, yea, the Graces and Muſes, would pitch their Pavillions there; nay, Apollo himſelf would dwell longer in that place with his Rays, and make them reverberate more ſtrongly, than either upon Pindus or Parnaffus, or Rhodes it ſelf, whence he never removes his Eye, as long as he is above this Hemisphere. I confeſs my Letters to you, which I ſend by way of correſpondence, come far ſhort of ſuch virtue, yet are they the true Ideas of my mind, and of that real and inbred affection I bear you; one ſhould never teach his Letters or his Lacquey to lie, I obſerve that rule: but beſides my Letters, I could wiſh there were a Chryſtal Caſement in my Breſt, thorow which you might behold the motions of my heart.

—— Uninamq; oculos in pectore poſſes Inſerere, then ſhould you clearly ſee without any deception of ſight, how truly I am, and how entirely

Feb. 27. 1625.

Yours, J. H.

And to answer you in the ſame ſtrain of Verſe you ſent me;

First, Shall the Heavens bright Lamp forget to ſhine,

The Stars ſhall from the Azur'd Sky decline;

First, Shall the Orient with the Weſt ſhake hand,

The Center of the World ſhall ceaſe to ſtand:

First, Wolves ſhall league with Lambs, the Dolphins fly,

The Lawyer and Phyſitian Fees deny;

The Thames with Tagus ſhall exchange her Bed,

My Miſtreſs's locks with mine, ſhall firſt turn red;

First, Heaven ſhall lie below, and Hell above,

E're I inconstant to my Altham prove.

XII.

To the Right Honourable my Lord of Calingford, after Earl of Carberry, at Golden-Grove, May 28. 1625.

My Lord,

WE have gallant News now abroad, for we are sure to have a new Queen ere it be long; both the Contract and Marriage was lately solemmiz'd in France, the one the second of this month in the Louvre, the other the eleventh day following in the great Church of Paris, by the Cardinal of Roche-foucauld; there was some clashing 'twixt him and the Archbishop of Paris, who alledg'd 'twas his duty to officiate in that Church; but the dignity of Cardinal, and the quality of his Office, being the Kings great Almoner, which makes him chief Curate of the Court, gave him the prerogative. I doubt not but your Lordship hath heard of the Capitulations, but for better assurance, I will run them over briefly.

The King of France oblig'd himself to procure the Dispensation; the Marriage should be celebrated in the same form as that of Queen Margaret, and of the dutchess of Bar; her dowry should be 800000 crowns six shillings a piece, the one moiety to be payed the day of the Contract, the other a twelvemonth after. The Queen shall have a Chapel in all the Kings Royal Houses, and any where else, where she shall reside within the Dominions of his Majesty of Great Britain, with free exercise of the Roman Religion, for her self, her Officers, and all her Household, for the celebration of the Mass, the Predication of the Word, Administration of the Sacraments, and power to procure Indulgences from the Holy Father. That to this end, she shall be allowed 28 Priests or Ecclesiasticks in her House, and a Bishop in quality of Almoner, who shall have jurisdiction over all the rest, and that none of the Kings Officers shall have power over them, unless in case of Treason; therefore all her Ecclesiasticks shall take the oath of fidelity to his Majesty of Great Britain; there shall be a Cymetier or Churchyard clos'd about to bury those of her Family, that in consideration of this Marriage, all English Catholicks, as well Ecclesiasticks as Lay, which shall be in any prison meerly for Religion, since the last Edict, shall be set at liberty.

This is the eighth Alliance we have had with France since the conquest, and as it is the best that could be made in Christendom, so I hope it will prove the happiest. So I kiss your hands, being

Your Lordships most humble Servitor,

London, Mar. 1. 1625.

J. H.

XIII. To

XIII.

To the Honourable Sir Thomas Savage.

S I R,

I Convers'd lately with a Gentleman that came from France, who amongst other things, discours'd much of the favorite Richelieu, who is like to be an active Man, and hath great designs. The two first things he did, was to make sure of England and the Hollander; he thinks to have us safe enough by this Marriage; and Holland by a late League, which was bought with a great sum of money; for he hath furnished the States with a Million of Livres, at two shillings a piece in present, and six hundred thousand Livres every year of these two that are to come, provided that the States repay these sums two years after they are in peace or truce: The King press'd much for liberty of conscience to Roman Catholicks amongst them, and the Deputies promised to do all they could with the States General about it; they Articled likewise for the French to be associated with them in the Trade to the Indies.

Monfieur is lately married to Mary of Bourbon, the Duke of Montpensiers Daughter, he told her, That he would be a better Husband, than he had been a Suitor to her; for he hung off a good while: This Marriage was made by the King, and Monfieur hath for his Apennage 100000 Livres annual Rent, from Chartres and Blois, 100000 Livres Pension, and 500000 to be charg'd yearly upon the general receipts of Orleans, in all about 70000 pounds. There was much ado before this Match could be brought about, for there were many opposers, and there be dark whispers, that there was a deep Plot to confine the King to a Monastery, and that Monfieur should govern; and divers great ones have suffered for it, and more are like to be discovered. So I take my Leave for the present, and rest,

Your very humble and ready

Servitor,

London, Mar. 10.

1626.

J. H.

XIV.

To the Lady Jane Savage, Marchioness of Winchester.

Excellent Lady,

I May say of your Grace, as it was said once of a rare Italian Princess, that you are the greatest Tyrant in the World, because you make all those that see you your Slaves, much more them that know you, I mean those that are acquainted with your inward disposition, position, and with the Faculties of your Soul, as well as the Physiognomy of your Face; for Virtue took as much Pains to adorn the one, as Nature did to perfect the other: I have had the happiness to know both, when your Grace took pleasure to learn Spanish, at which time, when my betters far had offer'd their service in this kind, I had the honour to be commanded by you often. He that hath as much experience of you, as I have had, will confess, that the Handmaid of God Almighty was never so prodigal of her Gifts to any, or labour'd more to frame an exact model of Female Perfection; nor was Dame Nature only busied in this Work, but all the Graces did consult and co-operate with her, and they wasted so much of their Treasure to enrich this one piece, that it may be a good reason why so many lame and defective fragments of Womenkind are daily thrust into the World.

I return you here inclos'd the Sonnet, your Grace pleas'd to send me lately, rendred into Spanish, and fitted for the same Air it had in English, both for cadence and number of feet: With it I send my most humble thanks, that your Grace would descend to command me in any thing that might conduce to your Contentment and Service; for there is nothing I desire with greater Ambition (and herein I have all the World my Rival) than to be accounted,

Madam,

Your Grace's most humble and ready Servitor,

London, Mar. 15.

1626.

J. H.

XV.

To the Right Honourable the Lord Clifford.

My Lord,

I Pray be pleas'd to dispence with this slowness of mine in answering yours of the first of this present.

Touching the domestick Occurrences, the Gentleman who is Bearer hereof, is more capable to give you account by Discourse than I can in Paper.

For foreign tidings, your Lordship may understand, that the Town of Breda hath been a good while making her last will and testament, but now there is certain news come, that she hath yielded up the Ghost to Spinola's hands, after a tough Siege of thirteen months, and a circumvallation of near upon twenty miles compass.

My Lord of Southampton and his eldest son sickned at the Siege, and died at Berghen; the adventurous Earl Henry of Oxford, seem-

ing

ing to tax the Prince of Orange of slackness to fight, was set upon a desperate Work, where he melted his grease, and so being carried to the Hague, he died also : I doubt not but you have heard of Grave Maurice's death, which happen'd when the Town was past cure, which was his more than the States, for he was Marquis of Breda, and had near upon thirty thousand dollars annual rent from her : therefore he seem'd in a kind of sympathy to sicken with his town, and died before her. He had provided plentifully for all his natural children, but could not though much importun'd by Doctor Roscius, and other Divines upon his death-bed, be induc'd to make them legitimate by marrying the mother of them, for the Law there is, That if one hath got children of any woman, though unmarried to her, yet if he marry her never so little before his death, he makes her honest, and them all legitimate ; but it seems the Prince postpon'd the Love he bore to his woman and children, to that which he bore to his brother Henry ; for had he made the children legitimate, it had prejudic'd the brother in point of command and fortunes ; yet he had provided very plentifully for them and the mother.

Grave Henry hath succeeded him in all things, and is a gallant Gentleman, of a French education and temper ; he charg'd him at his death to marry a young Lady, the Count of Solms Daughter attending the Queen of Bohemia, whom he had long courted, which is thought will take speedy effect.

When the siege before Breda had grown hot, Sir Edward Vere being one day attending Prince Maurice, he pointed at a rising place called Terhay, where the enemy had built a fort, (which might have been prevented) Sir Edward told him, he fear'd that Fort would be the cause of the loss of the Town : the Grave spatter'd and shook his head, saying, 'Twas the greatest error he had committed since he knew what belong'd to a soldier ; as also in managing the plot for surprizing of the Cittadel of Antwerp, for he repented that he had not employed English and French in lieu of the slow Dutch, who aim'd to have the sole honour of it, and were not so fit instruments for such a nimble piece of service. As soon as Sir Charles Morgan gave up the Town, Spinola caus'd a new Gate to be erected with this inscription in great Golden Characters.

Philippo quarto regnante,
Clara Eugrenia Isabella gubernante,
Ambrosio Spinola obsidente,
Quatuor Regibus contra conantibus
Breda Capta fuit Idibus, &c.

'Tis thought Spinola now that he hath recover'd the honour he L 4 had had lost before Berghen op Zoom three years since, will not long stay in Flanders, but retire.

No more now, but that I am resolv'd to continue ever,

London, Mar. 19.

1626.

Your Lordships most humble
Servitor, J. H.

XVI.

To Mr. R. Sc. at York.

S I R,

I Sent you one of the third Current, but 'twas not answer'd; I sent another of the thirteenth like a second Arrow to find out the first, but I know not what's become of either; I send this to find out the other two, and if this fail, there shall go no more out of my Quiver: If you forget me, I have cause to complain, and more, if you remember me; to forget may proceed from the frailty of Memory, not to answer me when you mind me, is pure Neglect, and no less than a Piacle. So I rest

Yours easily to be recover'd, J. H.

Ira furor brevis est, brevis est mea littera, cogor,

Ira correptus, corripuisse stylum.

London, July 19. the first of the Dog-Days, 1626.

XVII.

To Dr. Field, Lord Bishop of Landaff.

My Lord,

I Send you my humble Thanks for those worthy Hospitable Favours you were pleas'd to give me at your lodgings in Westminster. I had yours of the fifth of this present, by the hands of Mr. Jonathan Field. The news which fills every corner of the Town at this time, is the sorry and unsuccessful return that Wimbleton's Fleet hath made from Spain: It was a Fleet that deserv'd to have had a better Destiny, considering the strength of it, and the huge Charge the Crown was at; for besides a Squadron of sixteen Hollanders, whereof Count William one of Prince Maurice's natural Sons was Admiral, there were above fourscore of ours, the greatest joynt naval Power (of Ships without Gallies) that ever spread Sail upon Salt-Water: which makes the World abroad to stand astonish'd how so huge a Fleet could be so suddenly made ready. The sinking of the long Robin with 170 souls in her, in the Bay of Biscay, e're she had gone half the voyage, was no good Augury: And the Criticks of the time say, there were many other things that promis'd mis'd no good fortune to this Fleet; besides they would point at divers errors committed in the conduct of the main design; first the odd choice that was made of the Admiral, who was a meer Land-man, which made the Sea-men much slight him, it belonging properly to Sir Robert Mansel, Vice-Admiral of England, to have gone in case the High-Admiral went not; then they speak of the uncertainty of the enterprize, and that no place was pitch'd upon to be invaded, till they came to the height of the South Cape, and to sight of shore, where the Lord Wimbleton first call'd a Council of War, wherein some would be for Malaga, others for Saint Mary-Port, others for Gibraltar, but most for Cales, and while they were thus consulting, the Countrey had an Alarum given them. Add hereunto the blazing abroad of this Expedition e're the Fleet went out of the Downs, for Mercurius Gallobelgicus had it in print, that it was for the Streights mouth: Now 'tis a Rule, that great designs of State should be Mysteries till they come to the very act of performance, and then they should turn to exploits: Moreover, when the local attempt was resolv'd on, there were seven Ships (by the Advice of one Captain Love) suffer'd to go up the River, which might have been easily taken, and being rich, 'tis thought they would have defrayed well near the charge of our Fleet, which Ships did much infest us afterwards with their Ordnance, when we had taken the Fort of Puntal: Moreover, the disorderly carriage and excess of our Landmen (whereof there were 10000) when they were put ashore, who broke into the Fryers Caves, and other Cellars of Sweet Wines, where many hundred of them being surpriz'd, and found dead drunk, the Spaniards came and toar off their Ears and Noses, and pluck'd out their Eyes: And I was told of one merry Fellow escaping, that kill'd an Ass for a Buck: Lastly, it is laid to the Admirals charge, that my Lord de la Wares Ship being infected, he should give order, that the sick Men should be scatter'd into divers Ships, which dispers'd the contagion exceedingly, so that some thousands died before the Fleet return'd, which was done in a confus'd manner without any observance of Sea-orders: Yet I do not hear of any that will be punish'd for these Miscarriages, which will make the Dishonor fall more foully upon the State; but the most unfortunate passage of all was, that though we did nothing by Land that was considerable, yet if we had stay'd but a day or two longer, and spent time at Sea, the whole Fleet of Galileons, and Nova Hispania, had fallen into our mouths, which came presently in, close along the Coasts of Barbary, and in all likelihood we might have had the opportunity to have taken the richest Prize that ever was taken on Salt-water. Add hereunto, that while we were thus Masters of those Seas, a Fleet of fifty Sail of

Brazil

Brazil Men got safe into Lisbon, with four of the richest Caracks that ever came from the East-Indies.

I hear my Lord of Saint Davids is to be remov'd to Baths and Wells, and it were worth your Lordships coming up to endeavour the succeeding of him. So I humbly rest

Your Lordships most ready Servitor,

London, Nov. 20. 1626.

J. H.

XVIII.

To my Lord Duke of Buckingham's Grace
at New-Market.

MAY it please your Grace, to peruse and pardon these few Advertisements, which I would not dare to present, had I not hopes that the Goodness which is concomitant with your Greatness, would make them venial.

My Lord, a Parliament is at hand, the last was boisterous, God grant that this may prove more calm: A rumor runs that there are Clouds already ingendred, which will break out into a Storm in the lower Region, and most of the drops are like to fall upon your Grace. This, though it be but vulgar Astrology, is not altogether to be contemn'd, though I believe that his Majesty's countenance reflecting so strongly upon your Grace, with the brightness of your own Innocency, may be able to dispel and scatter them to nothing.

My Lord, you are a great Prince, and all Eyes are upon your Actions, this makes you more subject to Envy, which like the Sunbeams, beats always upon rising Grounds. I know your Grace hath many sage and solid Heads about you; yet I trust it will prove no offence, if out of the late relation I have to your Grace by the recommendation of such Noble Personages, I put in also my Mite.

My Lord, under favour, it were not amiss if your Grace would be pleased to part with some of those Places you hold which have least relation to the Court, and it would take away the Mutterings that run of Multiplicity of Offices; and in my shallow Apprehension, your Grace might stand more firm without an Anchor: The Office of High-Admiral in these times of Action requires one whole Man to execute it, your Grace hath another Sea of Businesses to wade through, and the voluntary resigning of this Office would fill all Men, yea, even your enemies, with admiration and affection, and make you more a Prince, than detract from your Greatness: If any ill Successes happen at Sea (as that of the Lord Wimbleton's lately) or if there be any Murmur for Pay, your

your Grace will be free from all Imputations; besides it will afford your Grace more leisure to look into your own Affairs, which lie confus'd, and unsettled: Lastly, (which is not the least thing) this Act will be so plausible, that it may much advantage his Majesty in point of Subsidy.

Secondly, it were expedient (under correction) that your Grace would be pleas'd to allot some set hours for Audience and Access of Suitors, and it would be less cumber to your Self, and your Servants, and give more content to the World, which often mutters for difficulty of access.

Lastly, it were not amiss, that your Grace would settle a standing Mansion-house and Family, that Suitors may know whither to repair constantly, and that your Servants every one in his place, might know what belongs to his place, and attend accordingly; for though confusion in a great Family carry a kind of State with it, yet order and regularity gains a greater opinion of virtue and wisdom. I know your Grace doth not (nor needs not) affect Popularity: It is true, that the Peoples love is the strongest Cittadel of a Sovereign Prince, but to a great Subject, it hath often prov'd fatal; for he who pulleth off his Hat to the People, giveth his Head to the Prince; and it is remarkable what was said of a late unfortunate Earl, who a little before Queen Elizabeth's death, had drawn the Ax upon his own Neck, That he was grown so popular, that he was too dangerous for the Times, and the Times for him.

My Lord, now that your Grace is threatned to be heav'd at, it should behove every one that oweth you Duty and Good Will, to reach out his Hand some way or other to serve you: Amongst these, I am one that presumes to do it, in this poor impertinent Paper; for which I implore Pardon, because I am,

My Lord,

London, Feb. 13.

1626.

Your Grace's most humble and faithful Servant,

J. H.

XIX.

To Sir J. S. Knight.

S I R,

THere is a Saying which carrieth no little weight with it, that Parvus amor loquitur, ingens stupet; Small Love speaks, whilst great Love stands astonish'd with Silence: The one keeps a tattling while the other is struck dumb with Amazement, like deep Rivers, which to the eye of the Beholder seem to stand still, while small shallow Rivulets keep a Noise; or, like empty Casks that make make an obstreperous hollow sound, which they would not do, were they replenish'd, and full of Substance. 'Tis the condition of my love to you; which is so great, and of that profoundness, that it hath been silent all this while, being stupified with the contemplation of those high Favours, and sundry sorts of Civilities, wherewith I may say, you have overwhelm'd me. This deep Foard of my Affection and Gratitude to you, I intend to cut out hereafter into small currents, (I mean into Letters) that the course of it may be heard, though it make but a small bubbling noise, as also, that the clearness of it may appear more visible.

I desire my Service to be presented to my noble Lady, whose fair hands I humbly kiss; and if she want any thing that London can afford, she need but command her and

London, Feb. 11.

1626.

Your most faithful and ready
Servitor, J. H.

XX.

To the Right Honourable the Earl R.

My Lord,

According to Promise, and that portion of Obedience I owe to your Commands, I send your Lordship these few Avisos, some whereof I doubt not but you have received before, and that by abler pens than mine; yet your Lordship may happily find herein, something which was omitted by others, or the former news made clearer by circumstances.

I hear Count Mansfelt is in Paris, having now receiv'd three routings in Germany; 'tis thought the French King will piece him up again with new recruits. I was told, that as he was seeing the two Queens one day at dinner, the Queen-Mother said, They say, Count Mansfelt is here amongst this Croud, I do not believe it, quoth the young Queen; for whensoever he seeth a Spaniard he runs away.

Matters go untowardly on our side in Germany, but the King of Denmark will be shortly in the Field in Person; and Bethlem Gabor hath been long expected to do something, but some think he will prove but a Bugbear. Sir Charles Morgan is to go to Germany with 6000 Auxiliaries to joyn with the Danish Army.

The Parliament is adjourn'd to Oxford, by reason of the Sickness, which increaseth exceedingly; and before the King went out of Town there died 1500 that very week, and two out of White-Hall itself.

There is high clashing again betwixt my Lord Duke, and the Earl of Bristol, they recriminate one another of divers things: the Earl accuseth him amongst other matters, of certain Letters from

Rome:

Rome: of putting His Majesty upon that hazardous journey of Spain, and of some miscarriages at his being in that Court: there be Articles also against the Lord Conway, which I send your Lordship here inclosed.

I am for Oxford the next week, and thence for Wales, to fetch my good old Fathers blessing; at my return, if it shall please God to reprieve me in these dangerous times of Contagion, I shall continue my wonted service to your Lordship, if it may be done with safety. So I rest

Your Lordships most humble

London, Mar. 15. 1626.

Servitor, J. H.

XXI.

To the Honourable the Lord Viscount C.

My Lord,

SIR John North delivered me one lately from your Lordship, and I send my humble thanks for the Venison you intend me. I acquainted your Lordship as opportunity serv'd, with the nimble pace the French Match went on, by the successful negotiation of the Earls of Carlile and Holland, (who outwent the Monsieurs themselves in Courtship) and how in less than nine Moons this great business was propos'd, pursued, and perfected; whereas the Sun had leasure enough to finish his annual progress from one end of the Zodiack to the other so many years, before that of Spain could come to any shape of perfection: This may serve to shew the difference 'twixt the two Nations, the Leaden-heel'd pace of the one, and the Quick-silver'd motions of the other; It shews also how the French is more generous in his proceedings, and not so full of scruples, reservations, and jealousies as the Spaniard, but deals more frankly, and with a greater confidence and gallantry.

The Lord Duke of Buckingham is now in Paris, accompanied with the Earl of Mountgomery, and he went in a very splendid Equipage: The Venetian and Hollander with other States that are no friends to Spain did some good offices to advance this Alliance; and the new Pope propounded much towards it; But Richelieu the new Favorite of France was the Cardinal instrument in it.

This Pope Urban grows very active, not only in things present, but ripping up of old matters, for which there is a select Committee appointed to examine accounts and errors pass'd, not only in the time of his immediate Predecessor, but others. And one told me of a merry Pasquil lately in Rome; that whereas there two great Statues, one of Peter, the other of Paul, opposite one to the other upon a Bridge, one had clapt a pair of Spurs upon St. Peters heels, and St Paul asking him whither he was bound, he answered, answered, I apprehend some danger to stay now in Rome, because of this new Commission, for I fear they will question me for denying my Master. Truly, Brother Peter, I shall not stay long after you, for I have as much cause to doubt, that they will question me for persecuting the Christians, before I was converted. So I take my leave and rest.

London, May 3.

1626.

Your Lordships most humble

Servitor, J. H.

XXII.

To my Brother, Master Hugh Penry.

S I R,

I Thank you for your late Letter, and the several good tidings sent me from Wales; In requital I can send you gallant news, for we have now a most Noble new Queen of England, who in true beauty is beyond the long-woo'd Infanta; for she was of a fading Flaxen Hair, Big-Lipp'd, and somewhat heavy-Ey'd, but this Daughter of France, this youngest Branch of Bourbon (being but in her cradle when the great Henry her Father was put out of the World) is of a more lovely and lasting complexion, a dark brown, she hath Eyes that sparkle like Stars; and for her Physiognomy, she may be said to be a mirror of perfection: She had a rough passage in her transfretation to Dover Castle, and in Canterbury the King Bedded first with her; there were a goodly train of choice Ladies attended her coming upon the Bowling-green on Barram-Downs, upon the way, who divided themselves into two rows, and they appear'd like so many Constellations; but methought that the Countrey Ladies outshin'd the Courtiers: she brought over with her, two hundred thousand Crowns in Gold and Silver, as half her portion, and the other Moiety is to be paid at the years end. Her first suit of servants (by Article) are to be French, and as they dye English are to succeed; she is also allowed twenty eight Ecclesiasticks of any Order, except Jesuites, a Bishop for her Almoner, and to have private exercise of her Religion, for her and her servants.

I pray convey the inclosed to my Father by the next convenience, and pray present my dear Love to my Sister; I hope to see you at Dyvinnock about Michaelmas, for I intend to wait upon my Father, and will take my Mother in the way, I mean Oxford, in the interim, I rest

London, May 16.

1626.

Your most affectionate

Brother, J. H.

XXIII. To

XXIII.

To my Uncle Sir Sackvill Trever, from Oxford.

S I R,

I Am sorry I must write unto you the sad tydings of the dissolution of the Parliament here, which was done suddenly: Sir John Elliot was in the heat of a high Speech against the Duke of Buckingham, when the Usher of the Black-Rod knock'd at the door, and signified the Kings pleasure, which struck a kind of consternation in all the House: My Lord Keeper Williams hath parted with the Broad-Seals, because as some say, he went about to cut down the Seal, by which he rose, for some it seems did ill offices 'twixt the Duke and him: Sir Thomas Coventry hath it now, I pray God he be tender of the Kings Conscience, whereof he is Keeper, rather than of the Seal.

I am bound to morrow upon a journey towards the Mountains to see some Friends in Wales, and to bring back my Fathers blessing; for better assurance of Lodging where I pass, in regard of the plague, I have a Post Warrant as far as Saint Davids, which is far enough you'll say, for the King hath no ground further on this Island. If the sickness rage in such extremity at London, the Term will be held at Reding.

All your friends here are well, but many look blank because of this sudden rupture of the Parliament: God Almighty turn all to the best, and stay the fury of this contagion, and preserve us from further judgments; so I rest

Your most affectionate

Oxford, Aug. 6. 1626.

Nephew, J. H.

XXIV.

To my Father, from London.

S I R,

I Was now the fourth time at a dead stand in the course of my fortunes, for though I was recommended to the Duke, and receiv'd many Noble respects from him, yet I was told by some who are nearest him, that some body hath done me ill Offices, by whispering in his ear, that I was too much Digbyfy'd, and so they told me positively, that I must never expect any employment about him of any trust: while I was in this suspence, Mr. Secretary Conway sent for me, and propos'd unto me, that the King had occasion to send a Gentleman to Italy, in nature of a moving Agent, and though he might have choice of persons of good quality

ty, that would willingly undertake this employment, yet notwithstanding of my Breeding, he made the first proffer to me, and that I should go as the King's Servant, and have Allowance accordingly: I humbly thank'd him for the good opinion he pleas'd to conceive of me being a Stranger to him, and desir'd some time to consider of the proposition, and of the nature of the employment; so he granted me four Days to think upon it, and two of them are pass'd already. If I may have a support accordingly, I intend by Gods Grace (desiring your consent and blessing to go along) to apply myself to this Course; but before I part with England, I intend to send you further Notice.

The Sickness is miraculously decreas'd in this City and suburbs, for from two and fifty hundred, which was the greatest number that died in one week, and that was some forty days since, they are now fallen to three hundred. It was the violent'st fit of Contagion that ever was for the time in this Island, and such as no Story can parallel; but the Ebb of it was more swift than the Tide. My Brother is well, and so are all your friends here, for I do not know any of your Acquaintance that died of this furious Infection: Sir John Walter ask'd me lately how you did, and wish'd me to remember him to you. So with my Love to all my Brothers and Sisters, and the rest of my Friends which made so much of me lately in the Country, I rest

Your dutiful Son,

London, Aug. 7. 1626.

J. H.

XXV.

To the right Honourable the Lord Conway, Principal Secretary of State to his Majesty, at Hampton Court.

Right Honourable,

Since I last attended your Lordship here, I summoned my Thoughts to Council, and canvass'd to and fro within myself the Business you pleas'd to impart unto me, for going upon the Kings Service to Italy: I considered therein many Particulars; First, the weight of the Employment, and what maturity of Judgment, Discretion, and Parts are required in him that will personate such a Man: Next, the Difficulties of it, for one must send sometimes Light out of Darkness, and like the Bee suck honey out of bad as out of good Flowers: Thirdly, the Danger which the Undertaker must converse withal, and which may fall upon him by Interception of Letters, or other cross casualties: Lastly, the great Expence it will require, being not to remain sedentary in one Place, as other Agents, but to be often in Itinerary Motion.

Touch-

Touching the first, I refer my self to your Honors favourable Opinion, and the Character which my Lord S. and others shall give of me: For the second, I hope to overcome it: For the third, I weigh it not, so that I may merit of my King and Country: For the last, I crave leave to deal plainly with your Lordship that I am a Cadet, and have no other Patrimony or Support, but my Breeding, therefore I must breath by the Imployment: And my Lord, I shall not be able to perform what shall be expected at my Hands, under one Hundred Pounds a quarter, and to have Bills of Credit according. Upon these Terms, my Lord, I shall apply my self to this Service, and by Gods blessing hope to answer all Expectations. So referring the premises to your Noble consideration, I rest

London, Sept. 8.
1626.

My Lord, Your very humble and ready Servitor, J. H.

XXVI.

To my Brother (after) Dr. Howell, Bishop of Bristol.

My Brother,

NExt to my Father, 'tis fitting you should have cognizance of my Affairs and Fortunes. You heard how I was in agitation for an Employment in Italy, but my Lord Conway demurr'd upon the salary I propounded; I have now wav'd this course, yet I came off fairly with my Lord; for I have a stable home-employment proffer'd me by my Lord Scroop, Lord President of the North, who sent for me lately to Worcester-House; though I never saw him before, and there the bargain was quickly made, that I should go down with him to York for Secretary, and his Lordship hath promis'd me fairly; I will see you at your House in Horsley before I go, and leave the particular Circumstances of this Business till then.

The French that came over with Her Majesty, for their petulance, and some misdemeanors, and imposing some odd penancy's upon the Queen, are all cashier'd this Week, about a matter of Sixscore, whereof the Bishop of Mende was one, who had stood to be Steward of her Majesty's Courts, which Office my Lord of Holland hath: It was a Thing suddenly done, for about one of the clock as they were at dinner, My Lord Conway, and Sir Thomas Edmonds came with an Order from the King, that they must instantly away to Somerset-House, for there were Barges, and Coaches staying for them; and there they should have all their Wages paid them to a penny, and so they must be content to quit the Kingdom:

This sudden undream'd of Order, struck an astonishment into them all, both Men and Women; and running to complain to the Queen, His Majesty had taken her before into his Bed-chamber, and lock'd the doors upon them, until he had told her how matters stood; the Queen fell into a violent passion, broke the Glasse-Windows, and tore her Hair, but she was calm'd afterwards: Just such a destiny happen'd in France some Years since to the Queens Spanish Servants there, who were all dismiss'd in like manner for some miscarriages; the like was done in Spain to the French, therefore 'tis no new Thing.

They are all now on their way to Dover, but I fear this will breed ill blood 'twixt us and France, and may break out into an ill favour'd quarrel.

Master Mountague is preparing to go to Paris as a Messenger of Honour, to prepossess the King and Council there, with the truth of Things.

So with my very kind respects to my Sister, I rest

London 15. Mar.

Your loving Brother,

1626.

J. H.

XXVII.

To the right honourable the Lord S.

My Lord,

I Am bound shortly for York, where I am hopeful of a profitable Imployment, There is fearful news come from Germany, that since Sir Charles Morgan went thither with 6000 men for the assistance of the King of Denmark, the King hath receiv'd an utter overthrow by Tilly, he had receiv'd a fall off a Horse from a Wall five yards high, a little before, yet it did him little hurt.

Tilly pursueth his Victory strongly, and is got o'er the Elve to Holsteinland, insomuch that they write from Hamburg, that Denmark is in danger to be utterly lost: The Danes and Germans seem to lay some fault upon our King, the King upon the Parliament, that would not supply him with Subsidies to assist his Uncle, and the Prince Palsgrave, both which was promis'd upon the rupture of the Treaties with Spain, which was done by the advice of both Houses.

This is the ground that His Majesty hath lately sent out privy Seals for Loan-Moneys, until a Parliament may be call'd, in regard that the King of Denmark is distress'd, the Sound like to be lost, the Eastland Trade, and the staple at Hambrough in danger to be destroyed, and the English Garrison under Sir Charles Morgan at Stoad ready to be starv'd.

These

These Loan-moneys keep a great noise, and they are imprison'd that deny to conform themselves.

I fear I shall have no more Opportunity to send to your Lordship, till I go to York, therefore I humbly take my leave, and kiss your Hands, being ever,

My Lord,

Your obedient and ready
Servitor, J. H.

XXVIII.

To Mr. R. L. Merchant.

I Met lately with J. Harris in London, and I had not seen him two Years before, and then I took him, and knew him to be a Man of Thirty, but now one would take him by his Hair to be near threescore, for he is all turn'd gray, I wonder'd at such a Metamorphosis in so short a time, he told me, 'twas for the death of his Wife, that Nature had thus antedated his Years; 'tis true, that a weighty settled sorrow is of that force, that besides the contraction of the Spirits, it will work upon the radical moisture, and dry it up, so that the Hair can have no moisture at the Root. This made me remember a Story that a Spanish Advocate told me, which is a Thing very remarkable.

When the Duke of Alva was in Brussels, about the beginning of the Tumults in the Netherlands, he had fate down before Hulst in Flanders, and there was a Provost Marshal in his Army, who was a Favorite of his; and this Provost had put some to death by secret Commission from the Duke: There was one Captain Bolea in the Army, who was an intimate Friend of the Provosts, and one evening late, he went to the said Captain's Tent, and brought with him a Confessor, and an Executioner, as it was his Custom; He told the Captain, that he was come to execute his Excellency's Commission and Marshal Law upon him; the Captain started up suddenly, his Hair standing at an end, and being struck with amazement, ask'd him wherein he had offended the Duke; the Provost answer'd, Sir I come not to expostulate the business with you, but to execute my Commission, therefore I pray prepare yourself, for there's your Ghostly Father and Executioner: So he fell on his knees before the Priest, and having done, the Hangman going to put the Halter about his Neck, the Provost threw it away, and breaking into a Laughter, told him, There was no such Thing, and that he had done this to try his Courage, how he could bear the terror of death: the Captain lookt ghastly upon him, and said, Then Sir get you out of my Tent, for you have done me a very ill Office: The next morning the said Captain Bolea, though a young Man of about thirty, had his hair all turn'd gray, to the admiration of all the world, and of the Duke of Alva himself, who question'd him about it, but he would confess nothing. The next year the Duke was revok'd, and in his Journey to the Court of Spain, he was to pass by Saragossa, and this Captain Bolea, and the Provost went along with him, as his Domesticks: The Duke being to repose some days in Saragossa, the young old Captain Bolea told him that there was a thing in that Town worthy to be seen by his Excellency, which was a Casa de Locos, a Bedlam-house; for there was not the like in Christendom: Well, said the Duke, go and tell the Warden I will be there to-morrow in the afternoon, and wish him to be in the way. The Captain having obtain'd this, went to the Warden and told him, that the Duke would come to visit the house the next day, and the chiefest occasion that mov'd him to it was, that he had an unruly Provost about him, who was subject oftentimes to fits of frenzy, and because he wisheth him well, he had tried divers means to cure him, but all would not do, therefore he would try whether keeping him close in Bedlam for some Days, would do him any good: the next day the Duke came with a ruffling train of Captains after him, amongst whom was the said Provost, very shining brave; being entred into the House, about the Duke's Person, Captain Bolea told the Warden, pointing at the Provost, that's the Man; so he took him aside into a dark Lobby, where he had plac'd some of his Men, who muffled him in his Cloak, seiz'd upon his gilt Sword, with his Hat and Feather, and so hurried him down into a Dungeon: My Provost had lain there two nights and a day, and afterwards it happen'd that a Gentleman coming out of Curiosity to see the House, peep'd in at a small grate where the Provost was; the Provost conjur'd him as he was a Christian, to go and tell the Duke of Alva, his Provost was there clap'd up, nor could he imagine why. The Gentleman did the Errand, whereat the Duke being astonish'd sent for the Warden, with his Prisoner; so he brought my Provost en cuerpo, Madman like, full of Straws and Feathers, before the Duke, who at the sight of him, breaking out into laughter, ask'd the Warden, why he made him his Prisoner; Sir, said the Warden, 'twas by virtue of your Excellency's Commission, brought me by Captain Bolea: Bolea step'd forth and told the Duke; Sir, you have ask'd me oft, how these hairs of mine grew so suddenly gray; I have not reveal'd it yet to any Soul breathing, but now I'll tell your Excellency, and so fell a relating the Passage in Flanders: And Sir I have been ever since beating my Brains how to get an equal revenge of him, and I thought no revenge to be more equal or corresponding, now that you see he hath made me old before my Time, than to make him mad if I could, and had he staid some Days longer close Prisoner in the Bedlam-House, it might happily have wrought some Impressions upon his pericranium. The Duke was so well pleas'd with the Story, and the wittiness of the Revenge, that he made them both Friends; and the Gentleman who told me this passage, said, that the said Captain Bolea was yet alive, so that he could not be less than ninety Years of age.

before

I thank you a thousand Times for the Cephalonia Muscadel, and Botargo you sent me; I hope to be shortly quit with you for all courtesies, in the interim, I am

York, May 1.
1626.

Your obliged Friend to serve you,
J. H.

Postscript.

I Am sorry to hear of the trick that Sir John Ains put upon the Company by the Box of Hailshot, sign'd with the Ambassadors Seal, that he had sent so solemnly from Constantinople, which he made the World believe to be full of Chequins and Turky Gold.

Familiar LETTERS.

SECTION V.

I.

To Dan. Caldwell, Esq; from York.My dear D.

THough I may be termed a right Northern Man, being a good way this side Trent, yet my Love is as Southern as ever it was, I mean it continueth still in the same degree of Heat; nor can this bleaker Air, or Boreas's chilling Blasts cool it a whit. I am the same to you this side Trent, as I was the last time we cross'd the Thames together to see Smug the Smith, and so back to the Still-yard; But I fear that your Love to me doth not continue in so constant and intense a degree, and I have good Grounds for this fear, because I never receiv'd one syllable from you, since I left London, if you rid me not of this scruple, and send to me speedily, I shall think though you live under a hotter clime in the South, that your former Love is not only cool'd but frozen.

For this present condition of Life, I thank God, I live well contented, I have a Fee from the King, diet for my self and two Servants, livery for a Horse, and a part of the King's House for my Lodging, and other Privileges, which I am told no Secretary before me had; but I must tell you, the perquisites are nothing answerable to my expectation yet. I have built me a new Study since I came, wherein I shall amongst others meditate sometimes on you, and whence this present Letter comes. So with a thousand Thanks for the plentiful Hospitality and Jovial Farewel you gave me at your House in Essex, I rest

Yours, yours, yours,York 30. Julii.

1627.

J. H.

II. To

II.

To Mr. Richard Leat.

Signor mio, It is now a great while methinks since any of friendship, or other interchangeable office of love hath pass'd between us, either by Letters, or other accustomed ways of Correspondence; and as I will not accuse, so I go not about to clear myself in this point, let this long silence be term'd therefore a Cessation rather than neglect on both Sides: A Bow that lies a while unbent, and a Field that remains fallow for a Time, grow never the worse, but afterwards the one sends forth an Arrow more strongly the other yields a better Crop being recultivated: Let this be also verified in us, let our friendship grow more fruitful after this pause, let it be more active for the future: You see I begin and shoot the first shaft. I send you herewith a couple of red Deer Pies, the one Sir Arthur Ingram gave me, the other my Lord President's Cook. I could not tell where to bestow them better: In your next let me know which is the best season'd; I pray let the Sydonian Merchant J. Buckhurst be at the eating of them, and then I know they will be well soak'd. If you please to send me a barrel or two of Oysters which we want here, I promise you they shall be well eaten with a cup of the best Claret, and the best Sherry, to which Wine this Town is altogether addicted, shall not be wanting.

I understand the Lord Weston is Lord Treasurer, we may say now, that we have Treasurers of all tences, for there are four living, to wit, the Lord Manchester, Middlesex, Marlborough, and the newly chosen; I hear also that the good old man (the last) hath retir'd to his Lodgings in Lincolns-Inn, and so reduc'd himself to his first Principles, which makes me think that he cannot bear up long, now that the staff is taken from him. I pray in your next send me the Venetian Gazette. So with my kind respects to your Father, I rest York 9. July 1627.

Yours, J. H.

III.

To Sir Ed. Sa. Knight.

S I R,

I Was no great matter to be a Prophet, and to have foretold this rupture 'twixt us and France upon the sudden renvoy of her Majesty's servants, for many of them had sold their estates in France, given Money for their Places, and so thought to live and die in England in the Queens Service, and so have pitifully complain'd to that King, thereupon he hath arrested above 100 of our Merchantmen that went to this Vintage at Bourdeaux. We also take some straglers of theirs, for there are Letters of Mart given on both sides.

There are Writs issued out for a Parliament, and the Town of Richmond in Richmondshire hath made choice of me for their Burgeses, though Master Christopher Wandsford, and other powerful Men, and more deserving than I, stood for it. I pray God send fair weather in the House of Commons, for there is much murmuring about the restraint of those that would not conform to loan moneys. There is a great Fleet a preparing, and an Army of Land-men, but the design is uncertain whether it be against Spain or France, for we are now in enmity with both those Crowns. The French Cardinal hath been lately t'other side the Alps, and settled the Duke of Nevers in the Dutchy of Mantoua, notwithstanding the opposition of the King of Spain and the Emperor, who alledg'd, That he was to receive his investiture from him, and that was the chief ground of the War, but the French Arms have done the work, and come triumphantly back over the Hills again. No more now, but that I am as always

Your true Friend,

J. H.

March 2. 1627.

IV.

To the Worshipful Mr. Alderman of the Town of Richmond, and the rest of the worthy Members of that Ancient Corporation.

S I R,

I Receiv'd a publick Instrument from you lately, subscrib'd by your self, and divers others wherein I find that you have made choice of me to be one of your Burgeses for this now near approaching Parliament; I could have wish'd that you had not put by Master Wandsford, and other worthy Gentlemen that stood so earnestly for it, who being your Neighbors, had better Means, and more Abilities to serve you. Yet since you have cast these high Respects upon me, I will endeavour to acquit myself of the Trust, and to answer your Expectation accordingly: And as I account this Election an Honor unto me, so I esteem it a great Advantage, that so worthy, and well experienc'd a Knight as Sir Talbot Bows is to be my Colleague and fellow Burgeses. I shall steer by his Compass, and follow his Directions in any Thing that may concern the welfare of your Town, and of the Precincts thereof, either for redress of any Grievance, or by proposing some new Thing that may conduce to the further Benefit and Advantage thereof, and this I take to be the true duty of a Parliamentary Burgeses, without roving at random dom to Generals. I hope to learn of Sir Talbot what's fitting to be done, and I shall apply my self accordingly to join with him to serve you with my best Abilities: So I rest

Lond. March
24. 1627.

Your most assured and ready Friend to do you Service, J. H.

V.

To the Right Honorable the Lord Clifford at Knaflburgh.

My Lord,

THE News that fills all Mouths at present, is the return of the Duke of Buckingham from the Isle of Ree, or, as some call it, the Isle of Rue, for the bitter Success we had there; for we had but a tart Entertainment in that salt Island. Our first invasion was magnanimous and brave, whereat near upon 200 French Gentlemen perished, and divers Barons of quality. My Lord Newport had ill luck to disorder our Cavalry with an unruly Horse he had. His Brother Sir Charles Rich was slain, and divers more upon the retreat, amongst others, great Colonel Gray fell into a Salt-pit, and being ready to be drown'd, he cryed out, Cent mille escus pour ma rancon, a hundred thousand Crowns for my ransom, the Frenchmen hearing that, preserv'd him, though he was not worth a hundred thousand Pence. Another merry passage a Captain told me, That when they were rifling the dead Bodies of the French Gentlemen after the first invasion, they found that many of them had their Mistresses Favors tyed about their genitories. The French do much glory to have repell'd us thus, and they have reason, for the Truth is, they comported themselves gallantly; yet they confess our landing was a notable piece of Courage; and if our Retreat had been answerable to the Invasion, we had lost no Honor at all. A great number of gallant Gentlemen fell on our Side, as Sir John Heydon, Sir John Burrowes, Sir George Blundel, Sir Alex. Bret, with divers Veteran Commanders, who came from the Netherlands to this Service.

God send us better Success the next Time, for there is another Fleet preparing to be sent under the Command of the Lord Denbigh, so I kiss your Hand, and am

Your humble Servitor,

Lond. Sept. 24.
1627.

J. H.

VI.

To the Right Honorable the Lord Scroop, Earl of Sunderland, Lord President of the North.

My Lord,

MY Lord Denbigh is returned from attempting to relieve Rochel, which is reduc'd to extream exigent; and now the Duke is preparing to go again, which as great power as was yet rais'd: Notwithstanding that the Parliament hath flown higher at him than ever; which makes the People here hardly wish any good success to the Expedition, because he is General. The Spaniard stands at a gaze all this while, hoping that we may do the work, otherwise I think he would find some way to relieve the Town, for there is nothing conduceth more to the uniting and strengthening of the French Monarchy than the reduction of Rochel. The King hath been there long in Person with his Cardinal, and the stupendious works they have rais'd by Sea and Land, are beyond belief, as they say. The Sea-works and booms were traced out by Marquis Spinola, as he was passing that way for Spain from Flanders.

The Parliament is prorogu'd till Michaelmas Term; there were five Subsidies granted, the greatest gift that ever Subjects gave their King at once; and it was in requital that his Majesty pass'd the Petition of Right, whereby the Liberty of the free-born subject is so strongly and clearly vindicated. So that there is a fair correspondence like to be 'twixt his Majesty and the two Houses. The Duke made a notable Speech at the Council-Table in joy hereof amongst other passages, one was, That hereafter his Majesty would please to make the Parliament his Favourite, and he to have the honor to remain still his Servant. No more now but that I continue

Lond. 25. Sept.

Your Lordships most dutiful Servant,

1623.

J. H.

VII.

To the Right Honourable the Lady Scroop Countess of Sunderland, from Stamford.

Madam,

ILay yesternight at the Post-House at Stilton, and this morning betimes the Post-master came to my Beds-head and told me the Duke of Buckingham was slain; my Faith was not then strong enough to believe it, till an hour ago I met in the way with my Lord of Rutland (your Brother) riding Post towards London, it pleas'd him to alight, and shew me a Letter, wherein there was an exact exact Relation of all the circumstances of this sad Tragedy.

Upon Saturday last, which was but next before yesterday being Bartholomew-eve, the Duke did rise up in a well disposed humor out of his Bed, and cut a Caper or two, and being ready, and having been under the Barbers hands, (where the murtherer had thought to have done the deed, for he was leaning upon the Window all the while) he went to breakfast attended by a great Company of Commanders, where Monsieur Soubize came unto him, and whisper'd him in the ear that Rochel was relieved, the Duke seem'd to flight the News, which made some think that Soubize went away discontented: After Breakfast the Duke going out, Colonel Fryer stepped before him, and stopping him upon some business, one Lieutenant Felton being behind, made a thrust with a common tenpenny knife over Fryer's arm at the Duke, which lighted so fatally, that he slit his Heart in two, leaving the knife sticking in the body: The Duke took out the knife, and threw it away, and laying his hand on his Sword, and drawing it half out said, The Villain hath kill'd me, (meaning as some think, Colonel Fryer) for there had been some difference 'twixt them, so reeling against a Chimney he fell down dead: The Dutches being with Child hearing the noise below, came in her night-geers from her Bed-Chamber, which was in an upper room, to a kind of rayl, and thence beheld him weltring in his own Blood. Felton had lost his Hat in the croud, wherein there was a Paper sowed, wherein he declared, That the reason which mov'd him to this Act, was no grudge of his own, though he had been far behind for his pay, and had been put by his Captains Place twice, but in regard he thought the Duke an Enemy to the State, because he was branded in Parliament, therefore what he did was for the publick good of his Country. Yet he got clearly down, and so might have gone to his Horse which was tied to a hedge hard by; but he was so amazed that he miss'd his Way, and so struck into the pastry, where though the cry went that some Frenchman had don't, he thinking the Word was Felton, he boldly confessed 'twas he that had done the deed, and so he was in their Hand. Jack Stamford would have run at him, but he was kept off by Mr. Nicholas, so being carried up to a Tower, Captain Mince tore off his Spurs, and asking how he durst attempt such an Act, making him believe the Duke was not dead, he answer'd boldly that he knew he was dispatch'd, for 'twas not he, but the hand of Heaven that gave the stroak, and though his whole Body had been cover'd over with Armour of proof he could not have avoided it. Captain Charles Price went Post presently to the King four Miles off, who being at Prayers on his Knees when it was told him, yet he never stirr'd stirr'd, nor was he disturb'd a whit till all Divine Service was done. This was the Relation as far my Memory could bear, in my Lord of Rutland's Letter, who will'd me to remember him unto your Ladyship, and tell you that he was going to comfort your Neice (the Dutcheſs) as fast as he could: And so I have sent the truth of this sad Story to your Ladyship, as fast as I could by this Post, because I cannot make that speed myself, in regard of some Business I have to dispatch for my Lord in the Way; so I humbly take my leave, and rest

Your Ladyships most dutiful

Servant, J. H.

Stamford, Aug. 5.

1628.

IX.

To the right Honourable Sir Peter Wichts, his Majesty's Ambassador at Constantinople.

My Lord,

Yours of the 2^d of July came to safe Hand, and I did all those Particulars recandos, you enjoined me to do to some of your Friends here.

The Town of Rochel hath been fatal and unfortunate to England, for this is the third Time that we have attempted to relieve her, but our Fleets and Forces return'd without doing any Thing. My Lord of Linſey went thither with the same Fleet the Duke intended to go on, but he is return'd without doing any good, he made some shots at the great boom and other baricadoes at Sea, but at such a distance, that they could do no hurt: Insomuch that the Town is now given for lost, and to be past cure, and they cry out, we have betrayed them: At the return of this Fleet two of the Whelps were cast away and three Ships more, and some five Ships who had some of those great Stones that were brought to build Pauls, for ballast and for other Uses within them, which could promise no good Success, for I never heard of any Thing that prospered which being once design'd for the honour of God was alienated from that Use. The Queen interposeth for the releasement of my Lord of Newport and others who are Prisoners of War. I hear that all the Colours they took from us are hung up in the great Church Noſtre Dame, as trophies in Paris. Since I began this Letter there is News brought that Rochel hath yielded, and that the King hath dismantled the Town, and raz'd all the fortifications landward, but leaves those standing which are toward the Sea. It is a mighty Exploit the French King hath done, for Rochel was the chiefest propugnacle of the Protestants there, and now questionless all the rest of their cautionary Towns which they kept kept for their own defence will yield, so that they must depend hereafter upon the Kings meer Mercy. I here of an overture of Peace 'twixt us and Spain, and that my Lord Cottington is to go thither, and Don Carlos Coloma to come to us. God grant it, for you know the saying in Spanish, Nunca vi tan mala paz, que no furra major, q; la mejor guerra. It was a bold Thing in England, to fall out with the two greatest Monarchs of Christendom, and to have them both her Enemies at one Time, and as glorious a Thing it was to bear up against them. God turn all to the best, and dispose of Things to his Glory; So I rest

London, Sept. 1.

Your Lordships ready

1628.

Servitor, J. H.

X.

To my Cousin Mr. St. Geon, at Christ-Church Colledge in Oxford.

Cousin, though you want no incitements to go on in that fair road of Vertue where you are now running your Course, yet being lately in your noble Fathers Company, he did intimate unto me, that any Thing which came from me would take with you very much. I hear so well of your Proceedings, that I should, rather commend than encourage you. I know you were remov'd to Oxford in full maturity, you were a good Orator, a good Poet, and a good Linguist for your Time; I would not have that fate light upon you, which useth to befall some, who from golden Students, become silver Batchelors, and Leaden Masters, I am far from entertaining any such Thought of you, that Logick with her quiddities, and Qua la vel Hipps, can any way unpolish your humane Studies: As Logick is clubfisted and crabbed, so she is terrible at first sight, she is like a Gorgon's Head to a young Student, but after a twelvemonths constancy and patience, this Gorgons Head will prove a meer bugbear; when you have devour'd the Organon, you will find Philosophy far more delightful and pleasing to your Palate: In feeding the Soul with Knowledge, the Understanding requireth the same consecr'd Acts which Nature useth in nourishing the Body. To the nutrition of the Body, there are two Essential Conditions requir'd, assumption and retention, then there follows two more, digestion and agglutination or adhesion: So in feeding your Soul with Science, you must first assume and suck in the Matter into your Apprehension, then must the Memory retain and keep it in, afterwards by Disputation, Discourse, and Meditation, it must be well concocted; then must it be agglutinated and converted to Nutriment: All this may be reduc'd to these these two Heads, tenere fideliter, & uni feliciter which are two of the happiest Properties in a Student: There is an other Act requir'd to good concoction, call'd the act of Expulsion, which puts off all that is unsound and noxious, so in Study there must be an expulsive Virtue to shun all that is erroneous, and there is no Science but is full of such stuff, which by direction of Tutor, and choice of good Books must be excern'd: Do not confound your self with multiplicity of Authors, two is enough upon any Science, provided they be plenary and orthodox; Philosophy should be your substantial Food, Poetry your banqueting stuff; Philosophy hath more of reality in it then any Knowledge, the Philosopher can fathom the Deep, measure Mountains, reach the Stars with a staff, and bless Heaven with a girdle.

But amongst these studies you must not forget the unicum necessarium, on Sundays and Holidays, let Divinity be the sole object of your Speculation, in comparison whereof all other Knowledge is but cobweb Learning; præqua quisquilia cetera.

When you can make truce with study, I should be glad you would employ some superfluous Hour or other to write unto me, for I much cover your good, because I am

Your affectionate Cousin, J. H.

London 29. Octob, 1627.

XI.

To Sir Sackvil Trevor, Knight.

Noble Uncle.

I Send you my humble Thanks for the curious Sea-chest of glasses you pleas'd to bestow on me, which I shall be very chary to keep as a Monument of your Love. I congratulate also the great Honour you have got lately by taking away the Spirit of France, I mean by taking the third great Vessel of her Sea-Trinity, Her Holy Spirit, which had been built in the Mouth of the Texel for the service of her King: Without Complementing with you, it was one of the best exploits that was perform'd since these wars began, and besides the renown you have purchas'd, I hope your reward will be accordingly from his Majesty. Whom I remember you so happily preserv'd from drowning in all probability at St. Andreas road in Spain. Though Princes guerdons come slow, yet they come sure: And it is oftentimes the method of God Almighty himself to be long both in his Rewards and Punishments.

As

As you have bereft the French of their Saint Eſſpirit, their Holy Spirit, ſo there is news that the Hollanders have taken from Spain, all her Saints; I mean todes los ſantos, which is one of the chiefest ſtaples of Sugar in Braſil. No more but that I wiſh you all health, honour, and hearts deſire,

Your much obliged Nephew and
Servitor, J. H.

London, 26. Oct.

1625.

XII.

To Captain Tho. B. from York.

Noble Captain. Yours of the firſt of March was deliver'd me by Sir Richard Scot, and I held it no prophanation of this Sunday evening conſidering the quality of my Subject, and having (I thank God for it) performed all Church duties, to employ ſome Hours to meditate on you, and ſend you this friendly ſalute, though I confeſs in an unuſual monitory way. My dear Captain, I love you perfectly well, I love both your Perſon and Parts which are not vulgar, I am in love with your Diſpoſition which is generous, and I verily think you were never guilty of any Puſillanimous Act in your life: Nor is this love of mine conferr'd upon you gratis, but you may challenge it as your due, and by way of correſpondence, in regard of thoſe thouſand convincing Evidences you have given me of yours to me, which aſcertain me, that you take me for a true Friend; Now I am of the number of thoſe, that had rather commend the vertue of an enemy, than ſooth the vices of a Friend, for your own particular, if your parts of virtue, and your infirmities were caſt into a balance, I know the firſt would much outpoize the other; yet give me leave to tell you that there is one frailty, or rather ill-favour'd cuſtom that reigns in you, which weighs much, it is a humor of Swearing in all your diſcourſes, and they are not ſlight, but deep, far fetch'd Oaths that you are wont to rap out, which you uſe as flowers of Rhetorick to enforce a faith upon the hearers, who believe you never the more, and you uſe this in cold blood when you are not provok'd, which makes the humor far more dangerous; I know many, (and I cannot ſay I myſelf am free from it, God forgive me) that being tranſported with choler, and as it were made drunk with paſſion by ſome ſudden provoking accident, or extream ill fortune at play will let fall Oaths and deep Proteſtations, but to belch out, and ſend send forth as it were, whole volleys of Oaths and Curses in a calm humor, to verifie every trivial discourse is a Thing of horror. I knew a King that being cross'd in his Game would amongst his Oaths fall on the ground, and bite the very Earth in the rough of his Passion; I heard of another King (Henry the Fourth of France) that in his highest distemper would swear, but Ventre de Saint Gris, by the belly of Saint Gris; I heard of an Italian, that having been much accustomed to blaspheme, was wean'd from it by a pretty wile, for having been one Night at Play, and lost all his Money, after many execrable Oaths, and having offer'd Money, to another to go out to face Heaven and defy God, he threw himself upon a Bed hard by, and there fell asleep; The other Gamesters plaid on still, and finding that he was fast asleep, they put out the candles, and made semblance to Play on still, they fell a wrangling and spoke so loud that he awaked, he hearing them play on still fell a rubbing his Eyes, and his Conscience presently prompted him that he was struck blind, and that Gods judgment had deservedly fallen down upon him for his blasphemies, and so he fell to sigh and weep pitifully: a Ghostly Father was sent for, who undertook to do some acts of penance for him, if he would make a Vow never to play again or blaspheme, which he did, and so the Candles were lighted again, which he thought were burning all the while; so he became a perfect Convert, I could wish this Letter might produce the same effect in you: There is a strong Text, that the curse of Heaven hangs always over the dwelling of the Swearer, and you have more fearful Examples of miraculous Judgments in this particular, than of any other sin.

There is a little Town in Languedoc in France, that hath a multitude of the Pictures of the Virgin Mary up and down, but she is made to carry Christ in her right arm contrary to the ordinary custom, and the reason they told me was this, that two Gamesters being at play, and one having lost all his Money, and bolted out many blasphemies, he gave a deep Oath, that that whore upon the wall, meaning the picture of the blessed Virgin, was the cause of his ill luck, hereupon the Child removed imperceptibly from the left arm to the right, and the man fell stark dumb ever after't; thus went the tradition there: This makes me think upon the Lady Southwells news from Utopia, that he who sweareth when he playeth at dice, may challenge his damnation by way of purchase. This infandous custom of Swearing I observe reigns in England lately more than any where else, though a German in his highest puff of passions swear a hundred thousand Sacraments, the Italian by the whore of God, the French by his death, the Spaniard by his flesh, the Welshman by his sweat, the Irishman by his five Wounds, though the Scot commonly bids the Devil hale his soul, yet for variety of Oaths the English Roarers put down all: Consider well what a dangerous thing it is to tear in pieces that dreadful Name which makes the vast fabrick of the World to tremble, that holy Name wherein the whole Hierarchy of Heaven doth triumph, that blisful Name, wherein consists the fulness of all felicity. I know this custom in you yet, is but a light Disposition, 'tis no Habit I hope, let me therefore conjure you by that power of friendship, by that holy league of Love which is between us, that you would suppress it before it come to that, for I must tell you that those who could find in their hearts to love you for many other things, do disrespect you for this, they hate your Company, and give no credit to whatsoever you say, it being one of the punishments of a swearer as well as of a lyar not to be believed when he speaks truth.
the

Excuse me that I am so free with you, what I write proceeds from the clear current of a pure affection, and I shall heartily thank you, and take it for an argument of Love, if you tell me of my weaknesses, which are (God wot) too too many, for my body is but a Cargazon of corrupt humours, and being not able to overcome them all at once, I do endeavour to do it by degrees, like Sertorius his soldier, who when he could not cut off the Horse tail with his sword at one blow, fell to pull out the hair one by one: And touching this particular humour from which I dissuade you, it hath rag'd in me too often by contingent fits, but I thank God for it I find it much abated, and purg'd. Now the only Physick I us'd was a precedent Fast and recourse to the holy Sacrament the next day, of purpose to implore pardon for what had pass'd, and power for the future to quell those exorbitant motions, those ravings and feverish fits of the Soul, in regard there are no Infirmities more dangerous, for at the same instant they have being they become impieties. And the greatest symptom of amendment I find in me is, because whensoever I hear the holy Name of God blasphem'd by any other, it makes my heart to tremble within my breast: Now it is penitential Rule, That if sins present do not please thee, sins past will not hurt thee. All other sins have for their object, either pleasure or profit, or some aim and satisfaction to body or mind, but this hath none at all, therefore lie upon it, my dear Captain, try whether you can make a conquest of your self in subduing this execrable custom. Alexander subdued the World, Cæsar his Enemies, Hercules Monsters, but he that overcomes himself is the true valiant Captain. I have herewith sent you a Hymn consonant to this subject, because I know you are musical and a good Poet.

A gradual Hymn of a double Cadence, tending to the Honour of the Holy Name of GOD.

1. LET the vast Universe,
And therein ev'ry thing,
The mighty Acts rehearse
Of their Immortal King:
His Name extol
what to Nadir
from Zenith stir
Twixt Pole and Pole.

2. Ye Elements that move,
And alter every hour,
Yet herein constant prove,
And symbolize all four,
His Praise to tell mix all in one for Air and Tone
To sound this peal.

3. Earth which the Center art,
And only standest still,
Yet move, and bear thy part,
Resound with Echoes shrill:
Thy Mines of Gold,
with precious Stones,
and Unions,
His Fame uphold.

4. Let all thy fragrant Flowers
Grow sweeter by this air,
Thy tallest Trees and Bowers
Bud forth, and blossom fair:
Beasts wild and tame,
whom lodgings yield,
house, dens or field,
Collaud his Name.

5. Ye Seas, with Earth that make
One Globe, flow high and swell,
Exalt your Makers Name,
In deep his Wonders tell:
Leviathan,
and what doth swim near bank or brim,
His Glory scan.

6. Ye airy Regions all,
Joyn in a sweet Consent,
Blow such a Madrigal
May reach the Firmament:
Winds, Hail, Ice, Snow,
and pearly drops,
that hang on crops,
His Wonders show.

7. Pure Element of Fire,
With holy sparks inflame
This sublunary Quire,
That all one Consort frame:
Their Spirits raise, to trumpet forth
their Makers Worth,
And sound his Praise.

8. Ye glorious Lamps that roul
In your celestial Spheres,
All under his Controul,
Who you on Poles up bears,
Him magnify,
ye Planets bright,
and fixed Lights
That deck the Sky.

9. O Heaven Chrystalline,
Which by thy watry hue
Do'st temper and refine
The rest in azur'd blue,
His Glory sound
thou first Mobile, which mak'st all wheel
In Circle round.

10. Ye glorious Souls who reign
In sempiternal Joy,
Free from those Cares and Pain
Which here did you annoy,
And him behold
in whom all Bliss concentred is,
His Laud unfold.

11. Blest Maid which dost surmount
All Saints and Seraphims,
And reign'st as Paramount,
And chief of Cherubims,
Chant out his Praise who in thy Womb,
nine months took room,
Though crown'd with Rays.

12. Oh let my Soul and Heart,
My Mind and Memory,
Bear in this Hymn a part,
And joyn with Earth and Sky :
Let every wight
the whole World o're laud and adore
The Lord of Light.

All your Friends here are well, Tom Young excepted, who I fear hath not long to live amongst us. So I rest,

York, Aug. 1.

1628.

Your true Friend,

J. H.

XIII.

To Will. Austin, Esq;

S I R,

I Have many Thanks to give you for that excellent Poem you sent me upon the Passion of Christ ; surely you were possess'd with a very strong spirit when you pen'd it, you were become a true Enthusiast ; for, let me despair if I lye unto you, all the while I was perusing it, it committed holy Rapes upon my Soul, methought I felt my heart melting within my breast, and my thoughts transported to a true Elysium all the while, there were such flex-animous strong ravishing strains throughout it. To deal plainly with you, it were an Injury to the publick good, not to expose to open light such divine raptures, for they have an edifying power in them, and may be term'd the very quintessence of Devotion ;
you discover in them what a rich Talent you have, which should not be buried within the walls of a private study, or pass through a few particular hands, but appear in publick view, and to the sight of the world, to the enriching of others, as they did me in reading them. Therefore I shall long to see them pass from the Bankside to Pauls Churchyard, with other precious pieces of yours, which you have pleas'd to impart unto me,

Oxford, Aug. 20.
1628.

Your most affectionate
Servitor, J. H.

XIV.

To Sir J. S. Knight.

S I R,

YOU writ to me lately for a Footman, and I think this bearer will fit you: I know he can run well, for he hath run away twice from me, but he knew the way back again. Yet though he hath a running head as well as running heels, (and who will expect a Footman to be a stayed Man?) I would not part with him were I not to go Post to the North. There be some things in him that answer for his waggeries, he will come when you call him, go when you bid him, and shut the door after him; he is faithful and stout, and a Lover of his Master; he is a great enemy to all dogs, if they bark at him in his running, for I have seen him confront a huge Mastiff, and knock him down: When you go a Countrey Journey, or have him run with you a hunting, you must spirit him with Liquor; you must allow him also something extraordinary for socks, else you must not have him to wait at your Table; when his grease melts in running hard 'tis subject to fall into his toes. I send him you but for tryal, if he be not for your turn, turn him over to me again when I come back.

The best News I can send you at this time is, that we are like to have Peace both with France and Spain, so that Harwich Men, your Neighbours, shall not hereafter need to fear the Name of Spinola, who struck such an apprehension into them lately, that I understand they begin to fortify.

I pray present my most humble service to my good Lady, and at my Return from the North I will be bold to kiss her hands, and yours; so I am

London, May 25.
1628.

Your much obliged Servitor,
J. H.

XV.

To my Father.

S I R,

OUR two younger Brothers, which you sent hither, are disposed of; my Brother Doctor hath placed the elder of the two with Mr. Hawes, a Mercer in Cheapside, and he took much pains pains in it, and I had plac'd my Brother Ned with Mr. Barrington, a Silk-man in the same Street, but afterwards for some Inconveniences, I remov'd him to one Mr. Smith at the Flower-de-Luce in Lombard-Street, a Mercer also: Their Masters are both of them very well to pass, and of good Repute. I think it will prove some advantage to them hereafter, to be both of one Trade, because when they are out of their time, they may joyn Stocks together: So that I hope, Sir, they are well plac'd as any two Youths in London, but you must not use to send them such large tokens in money, for that may corrupt them. When I went to bind my Brother Ned Apprentice in Drapers-Hall, casting my Eyes upon the Chimney-piece of the great room, I might spy a picture of an ancient Gentleman, and underneath Thomas Howell, I ask'd the Clerk about him, and he told me that he had been a Spanish Merchant in Henry the Eighth's Time, and coming home rich, and dying a Bachelor, he gave that Hall to the Company of Drapers, with other things; so that he is accounted one of their chiefest Benefactors. I told the Clerk, that one of the Sons of Thomas Howell came now thither to be bound, he answered, that if he be a right Howell, he may have when he is free 300 pounds to help to set up, and pay no Interest for five years. It may be hereafter we may make use of this. He told me also, that any Maid that can prove her Father to be a true Howell, may come and demand fifty pounds towards her Portion of the said Hall. I am to go Post towards York to morrow, to my Charge, but hope, God willing, to be here again the next Term. So with my Love to my Brother Howell, and my Sister his Wife, I rest 1629.

London, Sept. 30.

Your dutiful Son,

J. H.

XVI.

To my Brother Dr. Howell, at Jesus Colledge in Oxon.

Brother,

I Have sent you here inclosed, Warrants for four brace of Bucks, and a Stag, the last Sir Arthur Manwaring procur'd of the King for you, towards the keeping of your Act; I have sent you also a Warrant for a brace of Bucks out of Waddon Chace; besides, you shall receive by this Carrier a great Wicker Hamper, with two Joules of Sturgeon, six Barrels of pickled Oysters, three Barrels of Bologna Olives, with some other Spanish Commodities.

My Lord President of the North hath lately made me Patron of a Living hard by Henly, call'd Hambleton, it is worth five hundred pounds a year Communibus annis, and the now Incumbent, Dr. Pilkington, is very aged, valetudinary, and corpulent: My Lord by legal Instrument hath transmitted the next Advowson to me for satisfaction of some arrearages. Dr. Domlaw, and two or three more have been with me about it, but I always intended to make the first proffer to you, therefore I pray think of it, a sum of money must be had, but you shall be at no trouble for that, if you only will secure it (and desire one more who I know will do it for you) and it shall appear unto you that you have it upon far better terms than any other. It is as finely situated as any Rectory can be, for it is about the mid-way betwixt Oxford and London, it lies upon the Thames, and the Glebe-land House is very large and fair, and not dilapidated, so that considering all things it is as good as some Bishopricks: I know his Majesty is gracious unto you, and you may well expect some preferment that way, but such Livings as these are not to be had every where. I thank you for inviting me to your act, I will be with you the next week, God willing; and hope to find my Father there. So with my kind Love to Dr. Mansel, Mr. Watkins, Mr. Madocks, and Mr. Napier at All-Souls, I rest 1628.

London, June 20.

Your loving Brother,

J. H.

XVII.

To my Father Mr. Ben. Johnson.

FATHER Ben, Nullum fit magnum ingenium sine mixtura demenciae, There's no great Wit without some mixture of Madness, so saith the Philosopher; nor was he a Fool who answered, Nec parvum sine mixtura stultitiae, nor small Wit without some allay of foolishness. Touching the first, it is verified in you, for I find that you have been oftentimes mad, you were mad when you writ your Fox, and madder when you writ your Alchymist, you were mad when you writ Catilin, and stark mad when you writ Sejanus; but when you writ your Epigrams, and the Magnetick Lady, you were not so mad: Insomuch that I perceive there be degrees of madness in you. Excuse me that I am so free with you. The madness I mean is that divine fury, that heating and heightning Spirit which Ovid speaks of; Est Deus in nobis agitante calescimus illo: that true Enthusiasm which transports and elevates the Souls of Poets, above the middle Region of vulgar Conceptions, and makes them soar up to Heaven to touch the Stars with their laurell'd Heads, to walk in the Zodiack with Apollo himself, and command Mercury upon their errand.

I cannot yet light upon Doctor Davies his Welsh Grammar, before Christmas I am promis'd one: So desiring you to look better hereafter to your charcoal fire and chimney, which I am glad to be one that preserv'd from burning, this being the second time that Vulcan hath threatned you, it may be because you have spoken ill of his wife, and been too busy with his horns; I rest

Westminster, June 27.

Your Son, and contiguous

1629.

Neighbour, J. H.

XVIII.

To Sir Arthur Ingram, at his House in York.

S I R,

I Have sent you herewith a hamper of Melons, the best I could find in any of Tothillfield Gardens, and with them my very humble service and thanks for all favours, and lately for inviting me to your new noble House at Temple Newsam, when I return to Yorkshire: To this I may answer you, as my Lord Cook was answer'd by a Norfolk Countreyman who had a suit depending in the Kings-Bench against some neighbors, touching a River that us'd to annoy him, and Sir Edward Cook asking how he call'd the River, he answer'd, My Lord, I need not call her, for she is forward enough to come of her self. So I may say, That you need not call me to any house of yours, for I am forward enough to come without calling.

My Lord President is still indispos'd at Dr. Nappiers, yet he writ to me lately, that he hopes to be at the next sitting in York: So with a tender of my most humble service to my noble good Lady, I rest

London, Jul. 25.

Your much obliged servant,

1629.

J. H.

XIX.

To R. S. Esq;

S I R,

I Am one of them, who value not a courtesie that hangs long betwixt the fingers: I love not those viscosa beneficia, those birdlim'd kindneses which Pliny speaks of; nor would I receive money in a dirty clout, if possibly I could be without it; Therefore I return you the courtesie by the same hand that brought it, it might have pleasur'd me at first, but the expectation of it hath prejudic'd me, and now perhaps you may have more need of it than Westminst. Aug. 3.

Your humble Servitor,

1629.

J. H.

XX.

To the Countess of Sunderland, at York.

Madam,

MY Lord continues still in course of Physick at Dr. Nappiers; I writ to him lately, that his Lordship would please to come to his own House here in St. Martins Lane, where there is a greater Accommodation for the Recovery of his Health, Dr. Mayern being on the one side, and the Kings Apothecary on the other; but I fear there be some Mountebanks that carry him away, and I hear he intends to remove to Wickham to one Atkinson, a meer Quackfalver, that was once D. Lopez his Man.

The little Knight that useth to draw up his Breeches with a Shooing-horn, I mean Sir Posthumus Hobby, flew high at him this Parliament, and would have inserted his Name in the Scrowl of Recusants, that is shortly to be presented to the King, but I produc'd a Certificate from Linford under the Ministers hand, that he receiv'd the Communion at Easter last, and so got his Name out: Besides, the Deputy-Lieutenants of Buckinghamshire would have charg'd Biggin-Farm with a Light-horse, but Sir Will. Allford, and others, joyn'd with me to get it off.

Sir Thomas Wentworth, and Mr. Wansford, are grown great Courtiers lately, and come from Westminster-Hall to White-Hall: (Sir Jo. Savill their Countreyman having shown them the way with his White Staff) The Lord Weston tamper'd with the one, and my Lord Cottington took pains with the other, to bring them about from their Violence against the Prerogative: And I am told the first of them is promis'd my Lord's Place at York, in case his Sicknes continues.

We are like to have Peace with Spain and France; and for Germany, they say the Swedes are like to strike in to her, to try whether they may have better Fortunes than the Danes.

My Lady Scroop (my Lords Mother) hath lain sick a good while, and is very weak. So I rest,

Madam,

Westminst. Aug. 5.

1629.

Your humble and dutiful
Servitor, J. H.

XXI.

To Dr. H. W.

S I R,

IT is a Rule in Friendship, When Distrust enters in at the Foregate, Love goes out at the Postern; It is as true a Rule, that 'H α πογειν τὴν ἐνοχίαν ἀρχή, Dubitation is the beginning of all Knowledge:

I confess this is true in the first Election and Co-optation of a Friend, to come to the true Knowledge of him by Quarries and Doubts; but when there is a perfect contract made, confirm'd by experience, and a long tract of time, Distrust then is meer poison to Friendship: Therefore if it be as I am told, I am unfit to be your Friend, but

Your Servant,

Westminst. Oct. 20. 1629.

J. H.

XXII.

To Dr. H. W.

S I R,

They say in Italy, That Deeds are Men, and Words are but Women; I have had your Word often to give me a Visit; I pray turn your female Promises to masculine Performances, else I shall think you have lost your Being, for you know 'tis a rule in Law, Idem est non esse, & non apparere.

Your faithful Servitor,

Westminst. Sept. 25. 1629.

J. H.

To Mr. B. Chaworth: On my Valentine Mistress Francis Metcalf (now Lady Robinson) at York.

A Sonnet.

Could I charm the Queen of Loves,
To lend a Quill of her white Doves;
Or one of Cupid's pointed Wings
Dipt in the fair Castalian Springs,
Then would I write the All-divine
Perfections of my Valentine.

As 'mongst all Flowers the Rose excells,
As Amber 'mongst the fragrant'st Smells,
As 'mongst all Minerals the Gold,
As Marble 'mongst the finest Mould,
As Diamonds 'mongst Jewels bright,
As Cinthia 'mongst the lesser Lights;
So 'mongst the Northern Beauties shine,
So far excells my Valentine.

In Rome and Naples I did view
 Faces of Cælestial hue,
 Venetian Dames I have seen many,
 (I only saw them, touch'd not any)
 Of Spanish Beauties, Dutch and French,
 I have beheld the quintessence:
 Yet saw I none that could outshine,
 Or parallel my Valentine.

Th' Italians they are coy and quaint,
 But they grossly daub and paint,
 The Spanish kind, and apt to please,
 But sav'ring of the same Disease:
 Of Dutch and French some few are comely,
 The French are light, the Dutch are homely.
 Let Tagus, Po, the Loire and Rhine
 Then vail unto my Valentine.

Here may be seen pure white and red,
 Not by feign'd Art, but Nature wed,
 No simpring Smiles, no mimick Face,
 Affected Gesture, or forc'd Grace,
 A fair smooth Front, free from least Wrinkle,
 Her Eyes (Oh me) like Stars do twinkle;
 Thus all Perfections do combine,
 To beautifie my Valentine.

XXIII.

To Mr. T. M.

Noble Tom,

YOU desir'd me lately to compose some Lines upon your Mistress's Black Eyes, her becoming Frowns, and upon her Mask. Though the least Request of yours be a Command unto me, the execution of it a contentment, yet I was hardly drawn to such a Task at this time, in regard that many busineses puzzle my Pericranium.—Aliena negotia centum per caput & circa salient latus. Yet lest your Clorinda might expect such a thing, and that you might incur the hazard of her Smiles (for you say her Frowns are Favours) and that she may take off her Mask unto you the next time you go to court her, I send you the inclosed Verses Sonet-wise, which haply may please her better, in regard I hear she hath some Skill in Musick.

Upon

Upon Black Eyes, and becoming Frowns,
A Sonnet.

Black Eyes, in your dark Orbs doth lye,
My ill or happy Destiny;
If with clear Looks you me behold,
You give me Mines and Mounts of Gold;
If you dart forth disdainful Rays,
To your own Dye you turn my Days.

Black Eyes, in your dark Orbs by changes dwell,
My Bane or Bliss, my Paradise or Hell.

That Lamp which all the Stars doth blind,
Yields to your Lustre in some kind,
Though you do wear to make you bright
No other Dress but that of Night,
He glitters only in the Day,
You in the Dark your Beams display.

Black Eyes, in your two Orbs by changes dwell,
My Bane or Bliss, my Paradise or Hell.

The cunning Thief that lurks for Prize,
At some dark Corner watching lies,
So that Heart-robbing God doth stand
In your black Lobbies, Shaft in hand,
To rifle me of what I hold
More precious far than Indian Gold.

Black Eyes, in your dark Orbs by changes dwell,
My Bane or Bliss, my Paradise or Hell.

O powerful Negromantick Eyes,
Who in your Circles strictly pries,
Will find that Cupid with his Dart
In you doth practise the black Art,
And by th' Enchantment I'm possess'd,
Tries his Conclusions in thy Breast.

Black Eyes, in your dark Orbs by changes dwell,
My Bane or Bliss, my Paradise or Hell.

Look on me, though in frowning wise,
Some kind of Frowns become black Eyes,
As pointed Diamonds being set,
Cast greater Lustre out of Jet;

Those

*Those Pieces we esteem most rare,
Which in Night Shadows postur'd are:
Darkness in Churches congregates the sight,
Devotion strays in glaring Light.*

*Black Eyes, in your dark Orbs by changes dwell,
My Bane or Bliss, my Paradise or Hell.*

Touching her Mask, I will not be long about it.

Upon Clorinda's Mask.

*SO have I seen the Sun in his full Pride
O'ercast with sullen Clouds, and lose his Light;
So have I seen the brightest Stars denied
To shew their Lustre in some gloomy Night;
So Angels Pictures have I seen vail'd o'er,
That more devoutly Men should them adore;
So with a Mask saw I Clorinda hide
Her Face, more bright than was the Lemnian Bride.*

Whether I have hit upon your Fancy, or fitted your Mistress I know not, I pray let me hear what Success they have: So wishing you your hearts desire, and if you have her, a happy Confection, I rest in Verse and Prose,

Yours, J. H.

Westminster, Mar. 29. 1629.

XXIV.

To the Right Honourable my Lady Scroop, Countess of Sunderland, at Langar.

Madam,

I Am newly return'd from Hunsdon, from giving the Rites of Burial to my Lords Mother: She made my Lord sole Executor of all. I have all her Plate and Householdstuff in my Custody, and unless I had gone as I did, much had been embezzled. I have sent herewith the Copy of a Letter the King writ to my Lord upon the Resignation of his Place, which is fitting to be preserv'd for Posterity amongst the Records of Bolton Castle. His Majesty expresseth therein that he was never better serv'd, nor with more exactness of Fidelity and Justice by any, therefore he intends to set a special mark of his Favour upon him, when his Health will serve him to come to Court; my Lord Carleton deliver'd it me, and told me he never remembred that the King writ a more gracious Letter. I have lately bought in Fee-Farm Wanless Park of the the Kings Commissioners for my Lord, I got it for 600 pound doubling the old Rent, and the next day I was offer'd 500 pound for the Bargain; there were divers that put in for it, and my Lord of Anglesey thought himself sure of it, but I found means to frustrate them all. I also compounded with her Majesty's Commissioners for Respite of Homage for Rabbi Castle; there was 120 pound demanded, but I came off for 40 shillings. My Lord Wentworth is made Lord Deputy of Ireland, and carries a mighty stroke at Court, there have been some Clashings betwixt him and my Lord Pembroke lately, with others at Court, and divers in the North, and some, as Sir David Fowler, with others, have been crush'd.

He pleas'd to give me the disposing of the next Attorneys Place in York, and John Lister being lately dead, I went to make use of the favour, and was offer'd 300 pound for it, but some got betwixt me and home, so that I was forc'd to go away contented with 100 pieces Mr. Ratcliff deliver'd me in his Chamber at Grays-Inn, and so to part with the legal Instrument I had, which I did, rather than contest.

The Dutches your Niece is well; I did what your Ladyship commanded me at York-House. So I rest,

Madam,

Westminst. July 1.

1629.

Your Ladyships ready and faithful Servitor, J. H.

XXV.

To D. C. Esq; at his House in Essex.

My dear D.

I Thank you for your last Society in London, but I am sorry to have found Jack T. in that pickle, and that he had so far transgress'd the Fannian Law, which allows a chirping Cup to sate, not to surfeit, to Mirth, not to Madness, and upon some extraordinary occasion of some rencounters, to give Nature a Fillip, but not a Knock as Jack did; I am afraid he hath ta'en such a Habit of it, that nothing but Death will mend him, and I find that he is posting thither apace by this course. I have read of a King of Navarre (Charles le Mauvais) who perish'd in strong waters, and of a Duke of Clarence that was drown'd in a Butt of Malmesey, but Jack T. I fear will die in a Butt of Canary. Howsoever commend me unto him, and desire him to have a care of the main Chance. So I rest

Yours, J. H.

York, July 5. 1629.

XXVI. To

XXVI.

To Sir Thomas Lake, Knight.

S I R,

I Have shew'd Sir Kenelme Digby both our Translations of Martial's Vitam quæ faciunt beatiorem, &c. and to tell you true, he adjudg'd yours the better; so I shall pay the Wager in the Place appointed, and try whether I can recover myself at Giocod' amore, which the Italian saith is a Play to cozen the Devil: If your Pulse beats accordingly, I will wait upon you on the River towards the Evening, for a Floundring fit to get some Fish for our Supper. So I rest

Your true Servitor,

July 3. 1629.

J. H.

XXVII.

To Mr. Ben. Johnson.

Father Ben, You desired me lately to procure you Dr. Davies's Welsh Grammar, to add to those many you have; I have lighted upon one at last, and I am glad I have it in so seasonable a time that it may serve for a New-Years-Gift, in which quality, I send it you; and because 'twas not you, but your Muse that desired it of me, for your Letter runs on feet, I thought it a good correspondence with you to accompany it with what follows.

Upon Dr. Davies's British Grammar.

Was a tough Task, believe it, thus to frame
A wild and wealthy Language, and to frame Grammatick Toiles to curb her, so that she Now speaks by Rules, and sings by Prosodie:
Such is the Strength of Art, rough things to shape,
And of rude Commons rich Inclosures make.
Doubtless much Oyl and Labour went to cruch
Into methodick Rules the rugged Dutch;
The Rabbies pass my Reath, but judge I can Something of Clenard and Quintilian;
Ital. And for those modern Dames I find they three Spanish. Are only Lops cut from the Latin Tree,
French. And easie 'twas to square them into parts,
The Tree itself so blossoming with Arts;
I have been shewn for Irish and Bascuence
Imperfect Rules couch'd in an Accidence:
But I find none of these can take the start
Of Davies, or that prove more Men of Art,

Who

Who in exacter Method, and short Way,
The Idioms of a Language do display.

This is the Tongue, the Bards sung in of old,
And Druids their dark Knowledge did unfold;
Merlin in this his Prophecies did vent,
Which through the World of Fame bear such extent:

Arthur. This spoke that Son of Mars, and Britain bold,
Who first amongst Christian Worthies is inroll'd:
This Brennus, who to his Desire and Glut,
The Mistress of the World did prostitute:
This Arviragus, and brave Catarack
Set free, when all the World was on Rome's rack:
This Lucius, who on Angels wings did soar
To Rome, and would wear Diadem no more;
And thousand Heroes more, which should I tell,
This New Year scarce would serve me, so farewell.

Cal. Apr. 1629.

Your Son and Servitor, J. H.

XXVIII.

To the Right Honourable the Earl of Bristol, at Sherburn-Castle.

My Lord,

I Attended my Lord Cottington before he went on his Journey towards Spain, and put him in mind of the old business against the Vice-roy of Sardinia, to see whether any good can be done, and to learn whether the Conde or his Son be solvent; He is to land at Lisbon, one of the Kings Ships attends him, and some Merchant-men take the Advantage of this Convoy.

The news that keeps greatest noise now is, that the Emperor hath made a favourable Peace with the Dane, for Tilly had cross'd the Elve, and entred deep into Holstein Land, and in all probability might have carried all before him, yet that King had honourable terms given him, and a Peace is concluded (though without the privity of England.) But I believe the King of Denmark far'd the better, because he is Grandchild to Charles the Emperors sister. Now it seems another spirit is like to fall upon the Emperor; for they write that Gustavus King of Swedeland is struck into Germany, and hath taken Mecklenburgh; the ground of his quarrel as I hear is, that the Emperor would not acknowledge, much less give Audience to his Ambassadors; he also gives out to come for the Assistance of his Allies, the Dukes of Pomerland and Mecklenburgh; nor do do I hear that he speaks any thing yet of the Prince Palsgrave's Business.

Don Carlos Coloma is expected here from Flanders, about the same time that my Lord Cottington shall be arriv'd at the Court of Spain: God send us an Honourable Peace, for as the Spaniard says, Nunca vi tan mala paz que no fuesse mejor, que la mejor guerra.

London, May 20.
1629.

Your Lordships most humble and ready Servant,

J. H.

XXX.

To my Cousin J. P. at Mr. Conradus.

Cousin,

A Letter of yours was lately deliver'd me, I made a shift to read the superscription, but within, I wonder'd what Language it might be, in which 'twas written, at first I thought 'twas Hebrew, or some of her Dialects, and so went from the Liver to the Heart, from the right hand to the left to read it, but could make nothing of it; then I thought it might be the Chineses Language, and went to read the words perpendicular, and the Lines were so crooked and distorted, that no coherence could be made; Greek I perceiv'd it was not, nor Latin or English: So I gave it for meer Gibbrish, and your Characters to be rather Hieroglyphicks than Letters. The best is, you keep your lines at a good distance, like those in Chancery Bills, who as a Clerk said, were made so wide of purpose, because the Clients should have room enough to walk between them without justling one another; yet this wideness had been excusable if your Lines had been streight, but they were full of odd kind of Undulations and Windings: If you can write no otherwise, one may read your Thoughts as soon as your Characters. It is some excuse for you, that you are but a young Beginner. I pray let it appear in your next what a Proficient you are, otherwise some blame may light on me that placed you there: Let me receive no more Gibbrish or Hieroglyphicks from you, but legible Letters, that I may acquaint your Friends accordingly of your good Proceedings. So I rest,

Your very loving Cousin,

Westminst. Sept. 20.
1629.

J. H.

XXXI. To

XXXI.

To the Lord Viscount Wentworth, Lord President of York.

My Lord,

MY last was of the first Current, since which I receiv'd one from your Lordship, and your commands therein, which I shall ever entertain with a great deal of chearfulness. The greatest News from Abroad is, that the French King with his Cardinal are come again on this side the Hills, having done his Business in Italy and Savoy, and reserv'd still Pignerol in his hands, which will serve him as a key to enter Italy at pleasure. Upon the highest Mountain amongst the Alps he left this ostentatious Inscription upon a great Marble Pillar.

*A la memoir eternelle de Lovis treiziesme,
Roy de France & de Navarre,
Tres-Auguste, tres-victorieux, tres-heureux,
Conquerant, tres-juste:
Lequel apres avoir vaincu toutes les Nations
de l'Europe,
Il a encore triumphe les Elements
Du ciel & de la terre,
Ayant passe deux fois ces monts au mois
De Mars avec son Armee, Victorieuse pour remmettre les Princes d'Italie en leurs estates, Defendre & proteger ses Alliez.*

To the eternal Memory of Lewis the thirteenth King of France and Navarre, most gracious, most victorious, most happy, most just, a Conqueror; who having o'ercome all the Nations of Europe, he hath also triumph'd over the Elements of Heaven and Earth, having twice pass'd o'er these Hills in the month of March with his victorious Army, to restore the Princes of Italy to their Estates, and to defend and protect his Allies. So I take my leave for the present, and rest

Westmin. Aug. 5.
1629.

Your Lordships most humble and
ready Servitor, J. H.

XXXII.

To Sir Kenelme Digby, Knight.

S I R,

GIve me leave to congratulate your happy return from the Levant, and the great honour you have acquir'd by your gallant
O
cont

comportment in Algier, in rescuing so many English slaves: By bearing up so bravely against the Venetian Fleet in the Bay of Scanderoon; and making the Pantaloni to know themselves and you better. I do not remember to have read or heard that those huge Galleasses of Saint Mark were beaten afore. I give you the joy, also that you have born up against the Venetian Ambassador here, and vindicated your self of those foul Scandals he had cast upon you in your absence: Whereas you desire me to joyn with my Lord Cottington and others to make an Affidavit touching Bartholomew Spinola, whether he be Vezino de Madrid, viz. free Denison of Spain, I am ready to serve you herein, or to do any other Office that may right you, and tend to the making of your Prize good. Yet I am very sorry that our Aleppo Merchants suffer'd so much.

I shall be shortly in London, and I will make the greater speed because I may serve you. So I humbly kiss my noble Ladies hand and rest, Westmin. Nov. 25.

1629.

Your thrice assured

Servitor, J. H.

XXXIII.

To the Right honourable Sir Peter Wichts, Ambassador at Constantinople.

S I R,

After Simon Digby deliver'd me one from your Lordship of the first of June, and I was extreamly glad to have it, for I had receiv'd nothing from your Lordship a Twelvemonth before. Mr. Comptrouler Sir Tho. Edmonds is lately return'd from France, having renew'd the Peace which was made up to his Hands before by the Venetian Abassador, who had much labour'd in it, and hath concluded all Things beyond the Alps, when the King of France was at Susa to relieve Casal. The Monsieur that was to fetch him from Saint Denis to Paris, put a kind of jeering complement upon him, viz. that his Excellency should not think it strange, that he had so few French Gentlemen to attend in this Service, to accompany him to the Court, in regard there were so many kill'd at the Isle of Rhee. The Marquis of Chasteau neuf, is here from France, and it was an odd Speech also from him reflecting upon, Mr. Comptrouler, That the King of Great Britain us'd to send for his Ambassadors from Abroad to pluck Capons at Home.

Mr. Burlimack is to go shortly to Paris to recover the other moiety of Her Majesty's Portion; whereof they say my Lord of Holland is to give a good share; The Lord Treasurer Weston is he who who hath the greatest vogue now at Court, but many great ones have clash'd with him: He is so potent, that I hear his eldest Son is to marry one of the Blood Royal of Scotland, the Duke of Lemox's Sister, and that with his Majesty's consent.

Bishop Laud of London is also powerful in his Way, for he sits at the Helm of the Church, and doth more than any of the two Archbishops, or all the rest of his two and twenty Brethren besides.

In your next I should be glad your Lordship would do me the Favour, as to write how the Grand Signior is like to speed before Bagdat, in this his Persian Expedition

No more now, but that I always rest,

Westmin. Jan. 1.

1629.

Your Lordships ready and most faithful Servitor, J. H.

XXXIV.

To my Father.

S I R,

S I R Tho. Wentworth hath been a good while Lord President of York, and since is sworn Privy-Counsellor, and made Baron and Viscount, the Duke of Buckingham himself flew not so high in so short a Revolution of Time; He was made a Viscount with a great deal of high Ceremony upon a Sunday in the Afternoon at Whitehall; My Lord Powis (who affects him not much) being told that the Heralds had fetch'd his Pedigree from the Blood Royal, viz. from John of Gaunt, said, Damn me if ever he come to be King of England, I will turn Rebel. When I went first to give him joy, he pleas'd to give me the disposing of the next Attorney's Place that falls void in York, which is valued at three hundred Pounds. I have no reason to leave my Lord of Sunderland, for I hope he will be Noble unto me, the Perquisites of my Place, taking the Kings fee away, came far short of what he promis'd me at my first coming to him, in regard of his Non-Residence at York, therefore I hope he will consider it some other Way. This languishing sickness still hangs on him, and I fear will make an end of him. There's none can tell what to make of it, but he voided lately a strange Worm at Wickham: But I fear there's an Imposthume growing in him, for he told me a passage, how many Years ago my Lord Willoughby, and he, with so many of their Servants (de gayete de cœur) played a match at Foot-ball against such a number of Countrymen, where my Lord of Sunderland being busie about the ball got a bruise in the breast, which put him in a swoon for the present, but did not trouble him till three Months after, when being at Bever Castle

(his brother-in-laws house) a quame took him on a sudden, which made him retire to his bed-chamber, my Lord of Rutland following him, put a Pipe full of Tobacco in his Mouth; and he being not accustomed to Tobacco, taking the smoak downwards, fell a casting and vomiting up divers little imposthumated bladders of congeal'd Blood, which sav'd his Life then, and brought him to have a better conceit of Tobacco ever after; and I fear there is some of that clodded Blood still in his Body.

Because Mr. Hawes of Cheapside is lately dead, I have remov'd my Brother Griffith to the Hen and Chickens in Pater-Noster-Row to Mr. *Taylor*s, as genteel a Shop as any in the City, but I gave a piece of Plate of twenty Nobles price to his Wife. I wish the Yorkshire Horse may be fit for your turn, he was accounted the best saddle Gelding about York, when I bought him of Captain Phillips the Muster-master; and when he carried me first to London, there was twenty Pounds offered for him by my Lady Carlisle. No more now, but desiring a continuance of your Blessing and Prayers, I rest

Lond. Decem. 3.

Your Dutiful Son,

1630.

J. H.

XXXV.

To the Lord Cottington, Ambassador Extraordinary for his Majesty of Great Britain in the Court of Spain.

My Lord,

I Receiv'd your Lordships lately by Henry Davis the Correo Santo, and I return my humble Thanks, that you were pleas'd to be mindful (amongst so many high Negotiations) of the old business touching the Viceroy of Sardinia: I have acquainted my Lord of Bristol accordingly, our Eyes here look very greedily after your Lordship, and the Success of your Ambassy, and we are glad to hear the Business is brought to so good a Pass, and that the capitulations are so honourable (the high effects of your Wisdom.)

For News, the Swedes do notable feats in Germany, and we hope they cutting the Emperor and Bavarians so much work to do, and the good offices we are to expect from Spain upon this reintegration of Peace, will be an advantage to the Prince Palatine, and facilitate Matters for restoring him to his Country.

There is little News at our Court, but that there fell an ill-favoured quarrel 'twixt Sir Kenelm Digby, and Mr. Goring, Mr. Fermin, and others at St. James's lately about Mrs. Baker the Maid of honor, and Duels were like to grow of it, but that the Business was taken up by the Lord Treasurer, my Lord of Dorset, and others appointed by the King; my Lord of Sunderland is still illdispos'd; he will'd me to remember his hearty service to your Lordship, and so did Sir Arthur Ingram, and my Lady, they all wish you a happy and honourable return, as doth

Lond. Mar. 1.

1630.

Your Lordships most humble and
ready Servitor, J. H.

XXXVI.

To my Lord Viscount Rockfavage.

My Lord,

Some say, The Italian loves no favour but what's future; tho' I have convers'd much with that Nation, yet I am nothing infected with their humour in this Point; for I love Favours past as well, the remembrance of them joys my very heart, and makes it melt within me; when my Thoughts reflect upon your Lordship I have many of these fits of joy within me, by the pleasing speculation of so many most noble Favours and Respects; which I shall daily study to improve and merit.

My Lord,

Westmin. Mar. 22.

1630.

Your Lordships most humble and
ready Servitor, J. H.

XXXVII.

To the Earl of Bristol.

My Lord,

I Doubt not but your Lordship hath had intelligence from time to time what firm Invasions the King of Swedes hath made into Germany, and by what degrees he hath mounted to this height, having but six thousand foot, and five hundred horse, when he entered first to Meclenburgh, and took that Town while Commissioners stood treating on both Sides in his Tent; how thereby his Army much increas'd, and so rush'd further into the heart of the Country, but passing near Magdenburg, being diffident of his own strength, he suffer'd Tilly to take that great Town with so much effusion of Blood, because they would receive no Quarter; your Lordship hath also heard of the Battle of Leipsick; where Tilly notwithstanding the Victory he had got o'er the Duke of Saxony a few Days before, receiv'd an utter discomfiture, upon which victory the King sent Sir Thomas Roe a Present of two thousand pounds and in his Letter calls him his struorum consultorem, he being one of the first who had advis'd him to this German War after he had made Peace 'twixt him and the Polander. I presume also your Lordship heard how he met Tilly again near Ausburg, and made him go upon a wooden Leg whereof he died, and after soundly plunder'd the Bavarian, and made him flee from his own House at Munchen, and rifled his very Closets.

Now your Lordship shall understand, that the said King is at Mentz, and keeps a Court there like an Emperor, there being above Twelve Ambassadors with him. The King of France sent a great Marquis for his Ambassador to put him in mind of his Articles, and to tell him that his Christian Majesty wondred he would cross the Rhine without his privity, and wondred more that he would invade the Church-Lands, meaning the Archbishop of Mentz, who had put himself under the Protection of France; The Suede answer'd, That he had not broke the least Title of the Articles agreed on, and touching the said Archbishop he had not stood Neutral as was promised, therefore he had justly set on his skirts. The Ambassador replied, In case of breach of Articles, his Master had Eighty thousand Men to pierce Germany when he pleas'd; the King answer'd, That he had but Twenty thousand, and those would be sooner at the Walls of Paris, than his Fourscore thousand should be on the Frontiers of Germany. If this new Conqueror goes on with this violence, I believe it will cast the policy of all Christendom into another mould, and beget new Maximes of State; for none can foretel where this monstrous Progress will terminate; Sir Henry Vane is still in Germany observing his Motions, and they write that they do not agree well; as I heard the King should tell him that he spoke nothing but Spanish to him: Sir Robert Anstruther is also at Vienna, being gone thither from the Diet at Ratisbon.

I hear the Infanta Cardinal is design'd to come Governor of the Netherlands, and passeth by way of Italy, and so through Germany; his Brother Don Carlos is lately dead. So I humbly take my leave and rest,

My Lord,

Westmin. Apr. 23.
1630.

Your Lordships most humble and
ready Servitor, J. H.

XXXVIII.

To my noble Lady, the Lady Cor.

Madam,

You spoke to me for a Cook who had seen the World Abroad, and I think the Bearer hereof will fit your Ladyships turn. He can marinat Fish, and Gellies, he is excellent for a pickant Sauce, and and the Haugou; besides, Madam, he is passing good for an Ollia. He will tell your Ladyship, that the reverend Matron the olla podrida hath Intellectuals and Senses; Mutton, Beef, and Bacon are to her, as the Will, Understanding, and Memory, are to the soul; Cabbage, Turnips, Artichoakes, Potatoes and Dates, are her five Senses, and Pepper the common sense; she must have Marrow to keep life in her, and some Birds to make her light, by all means she must go adorn'd with chains of Sausages; He is also good at Larding of Meat after the mode of France. Madam, you may make proof of him, and if your Ladyship find him too sawcy or wasteful, you may return him from whence you had him. So I rest

Madam,

Westmin. June 2.
1630.

Your Ladyships most humble
Servitor, J. H.

XXXIX.

To Mr. E. D.

S I R,

YOU write to me, that T. B. intends to give Money for such a place, if he doth, I fear it will be verified in him that a Fool and his Money is soon parted; for I know he will be never able to execute it. I heard of a late Secretary of State that could not read the next Morning his own hand-writing; and I have read of Caligula's Horse that was made Consul, therefore I pray tell him from me (for I wish him well) that if he thinks he is fit for that Office, he looks upon himself through a false Glass: A trotting horse is fit for a Coach, but not for a Ladies saddle, and an ambler is proper for a Ladies saddle, but not for a Coach. If Tom undertakes this Place, he will be as an ambler in a Coach, or a trotter under a Ladies saddle, when I come to Town, I will put him upon a far fitter and more feasible Business for him, and so commend me to him, for I am his and Westmin. June 5.

1630.

Your true Friend,
J. H.

XL.

To my Father.

S I R,

Here are two Ambassadors extraordinary to go Abroad shortly, the Earl of Leicester, and the Lord Weston, this latter goes to France, Savoy, Venice, and so returns by Florence, a pleasant Journey, for he carrieth Presents with him from King and Queen: The Earl of Leicester is to go to the King of Denmark, and other Princes of Germany; the main of the Ambassy is to condole the late death of the Lady Sophia Queen Dowager of Denmark our Kings Grandmother: She was the Duke of Meclenburghs daughter, and her husband Christian the third dying young, her Portion, which was forty Thousands Pounds was restor'd her; and living a Widow forty four Years after, she grew to be so great a housewife, setting three or four hundred People at work, that she died worth near two Millions of Dollars, so that she was reputed the richest Queen of Christendom: By the Constitutions of Denmark this Estate is dividable amongst her Children, whereof she had five, the King of Denmark, the Dutcheß of Saxony, the Dutcheß of Brunswick, Queen Anne, and the Dutcheß of Holstein, the King being Male is to have two shares, our King and the Lady Elizabeth is to have that which should have belong'd to Queen Anne, so he is to return by the Hague: It pleas'd my Lord of Leicester to send for me to Baynards Castle, and proffer me to go Secretary in this Ambassage, assuring me that the Journey shall tend to my profit and credit: So I have accepted of it; for I hear very nobly of my Lord, so that I hope to make a boon Voyage of it. I desire as hitherto your Prayers and Blessing may accompany me; So with my love to my Brothers and Sisters, I rest

London, May 5.

Your dutiful Son

1632.

J. H.

XLI.

To Mr. Alderman Moulson, Governor of the Merchant Adventurers.

S I R,

THE Earl of Leicester is to go shortly Ambassador extraordinary to the King of Denmark, and he is to pass by Hamburgh, I understand by Mr. Skinner that the Staple hath some grievances to be redress'd. If this Ambassage may be an advantage to the Company, I will solícite my Lord that he may do you all the favour that may stand with his Honour; so I shall expect your instructions accordingly, and rest

Westmin. June 1.

1632.

Yours ready to serve you,

J. H.

XLII.

XLII.

To Mr. Alderman Clethero, Governor of the Eastland Company.

S I R,

I Am inform'd of some complaints that your Company hath against the King of Denmarks Officers in the Sound. The Earl of Leicester is nominated by his Majesty to go Ambassador extraordinary to that King and other Princes of Germany, if this Ambassy may be advantageous unto you, you may send me your Directions and I will attend my Lord accordingly, to do you any favour, that may stand with his Honour, and conduce to your Benefit, and redress of Grievances; so I take my leave and rest, Westmin. June 1.

1632.

Yours ready to serve you,

J. H.

XLIII.

To the right Honourable the Earl of Leicester, at Petworth.

My Lord,

S I R John Pennington is appointed to carry your Lordship and your Company to Germany, and he intends to take you up at Margets. I have been with Mr. Bourlamack, and receiv'd a Bill of Exchange from him for ten Thousand Dollars payable in Hamburgh. I have also receiv'd two Thousand Rounds of Sir Paul Pinder for your Lordships use, and he did me the favor to pay it me all in old Gold. Your allowance hath begun since the twenty fifth of July last at eight Pound per diem, and is to continue so till your Lordship returns to his Majesty. I understand by some Merchants to day upon the Exchange, that the King of Denmark is at Luckstad, and stays there all this Summer, if it be so, 'twill save half the voyage of going to Copenhagen, for in lieu of the Sound, we need go no further than the River of Elve: So I rest,

Westmin. Aug. 23.

1632.

Your Lordships most humble and
faithful Servitor, J. H.

XLIV.

To the Right Honourable the Lord Mohun.

My Lord,

Though any command from your Lordship be welcome to me at all Times, yet that which you lately enjoyn'd me in yours of the twelfth of August, that I should inform your Lordship
of

of what I know touching the Inquisition, is now a little unseasonable, because I have much to do, to prepare myself for this employment to Germany, therefore I cannot satisfie you in that fulness as I could do otherwise. The very name of the Inquisition, is terrible all Christendom over, and the King of Spain himself, with the chiefeft of his Grandees tremble at it. It was founded first by the Catholick King Ferdinand (our Henry the Eighths Father-in-Law) for he having got Granada, and subdued all the Moors, who had a firm footing in that Kingdom about 700 Years, yet he suffer'd them to live peaceably a while in point of Conscience; but afterwards he sent a solemn Mandamus to the Jacobine Fryers to endeavour the Conversion of them by preaching, and all other means; they finding that their pains did little good (and that those whom they had converted turn'd Apostates) obtain'd power to make a research, which afterwards was call'd Inquisition, and it was ratified by Pope Sixtus, that if they would not conform themselves by fair means, they should be forc'd to do it. The Jacobins being found too severe herein, and for other abuses besides, this Inquisition was taken from them, and put into the Hands of the most sufficient Ecclesiasticks. So a Council was established, and Officers appointed accordingly: Whosoever was found pendulous and brangling in his Religion was brought by a Serjeant call'd Familiar, before the said Council of Inquisition, his accuser or delator stands behind a piece of Tapistry, to see whether he be the Party, and if he be, then they put divers subtile and entrapping interrogatories unto him, and whether he confess any thing or no, he is sent to prison. When the said Familiar goes to any House, though it be in the dead of the night (and that's the time commonly they use to come, or in the dawn of the day) all doors, and trunks and chests fly open to him, and the first thing he doth he seizeth the parties breeches, searcheth his Pockets, and takes his Keys, and so rummageth all his Closets and Trunks: and a publick Notary, whom he carrieth with him, takes an Inventory of every Thing, which is sequestred and deposited in the Hands of some of his next Neighbours; the Party being hurried away in a close Coach, and clapt in prison, he is there eight days before he make his appearance, and then they present unto him the Cross, and the Missal Book to swear upon; if he refuseth to swear, he convinceth himself, and though he swear, yet he is remanded to prison; this Oath commonly is presented before any Accusation be produc'd; his Goaler is strictly commanded to pry into his actions, his deportment, words, and countenance, and to set spies upon him, and whosoever of his fellow prisoners, or others can produce any thing against him, he hath a reward for it: At last after divers appearances, pearances, examinations, and scrutinies, the Information against him is read, but the Witnesses Names are conceal'd, then is he appointed by a Rector and Advocate, but he must not confer or advise with them privately, but in the face of the Court; the Kings Attorney is a Party in't, and the accusers commonly the sole witnesses. Being to name his own Lawyers oftentimes others are discovered and fall into troubles; while he is thus in Prison, he is so abhor'd, and abandoned of all the World, that none will, at least none dare visit him. Though one clear himself, yet he cannot be freed, till an act of Faith pass; which is done seldom, but very solemnly. There are few who having fallen into the gripes of the Inquisition do scape the rack; or the Sambenito, which is a streight yellow Coat without sleeves, having the pourtrait of the Devil painted up and down in black, and upon their Heads they carry a Mitre of Paper, with a Man frying in the flames of Hell upon't, they gag their Mouths, and tie a great Cord about their necks; the Judges meet in some uncouth dark Dungeon, and the Executioner stands by clad in a close dark Garment, his head and face cover'd with a Chaperon, out of which there are but two holes to look through, and a huge Link burning in his Hand; when the Ecclesiastick Inquisitors have pronounc'd the Anathema against him, they transmit him to the secular Judges to receive the sentence of Death, for Churchmen must not have their hands imbru'd in Blood; The King can mitigate any Punishment under Death, nor is a Nobleman subject to the rack.

I pray be pleas'd to pardon this rambling imperfect Relation, and take in good part my Conformity to your Commands, for I am

Your Lordships most ready and faithful
Servitor, J. H.

Westmin. Aug. 30.
1632.

Familiar

Familiar LETTERS.

SECTION VI.

I.

To P. W. Esq; at the Signet Office, from the English House in Hamburgh.

WE are safely come to Germany, Sir J. Pennington took us Aboard in one of his Majesty's Ships at Margets; and the wind stood so fair, that we were at the mouth of the Elve upon Monday following. It pleased my Lord I should Land first with two Footmen, to make hast to Gluckstad, to learn where the King of Denmark was, and he was at Rheinsburg, some to days Journey off, at a Richsdagh, an Assembly that corresponds our Parliament: My Lord the next day Landed at Gluckstad, where I had provided for an Accommodation for him, though he intended to have gone for Hamburgh, but I was bold to tell him, that in regard there were some umbrages, and not only so, but open and actual differences 'twixt the King and that Town, it might be ill taken, if he went thither first, before he had attended the King. So I left my Lord at Gluckstad, and being come hither to take up 8000 rix Dollars upon Mr. Bourlamaches Bills, and fetch Mr. Avery our Agent here; I return to morrow to attend my Lord again. I find that matters are much off the hinges 'twixt the King of Denmark and this Town.

The King of Sweden is advancing apace to find out Wallestein and Wallestein him, and in all appearance they will be shortly engag'd.

No more now, for I am interpell'd by many Busineses; when you write, deliver your Letters to Mr. Railton, who will see them safely convey'd, for a little before my departure I brought him acquainted with my Lord, that he might Negotiate some things at Court. So with my Service and love to all at Westminster, I rest

Your faithful Servitor, J. H.

Hamburgh, Octob. 23.
1632.

II.

To my Lord Viscount S. from Hamburg.

Since I was last in Town, my Lord of Leicester hath attended the King of Denmark at Rheinsburgh in Holsteinland; he was brought thither from Gluckstad in indifferent good equipage, both for Coaches and Waggon, but he staid some Days at Rheinsburg for Audience: We made a comely gallant shew in that kind, when we went to Court, for we were near upon a hundred all of one piece in Mourning: It pleas'd my Lord to make me the Orator, and so I made a long Speech, alta voce, to the King in Latin, of the occasion of this Ambassy, and tending to the praise of the deceased Queen: And I had better luck then Secretary Nanton had some thirty Years since, with Roger Earl of Rutland: For at the beginning of his Speech, when he had pronounc'd Serenissima Rex, he was dash'd out of countenance, and so gravel'd that he could go no further; I made another to Christian the fifth, his eldest Son, King elect of Denmark: For though that Crown be purely elective, yet for these three last Kings, they wrought so with the People, that they got their eldest Sons chosen and declar'd before their death, and to assume the Title of Kings elect. At the same Audience, I made another Speech to Prince Frederick, Archbishop of Breme, the Kings third Son, and he hath but one more (besides his natural Issue) which is Prince Ulric, now in the Wars with the Duke of Sax, and they say there is an alliance contracted already, 'twixt Christian the fifth, and the Duke of Sax his daughter. This ceremony being perform'd my Lord desir'd to find his own diet, and then he fell to divers businesses, which is not fitting for me to forestal or impart to your Lordship now, so we staid there near upon a Month: The King feasted my Lord once, and it lasted from eleven of the clock, till towards the evening, during which time, the King began thirty five healths: The first to the Emperor, the second to his Nephew of England, and so went over all the Kings and Queens of Christendom, but he never remembred the Prince Palsgrave's health, or his nieces all the while, the King was taken away at last in his chair, but my Lord of Leicester bore up stoutly all the while, so that when there came two of the Kings Guard to take him by the Arms, as he was going down the stairs, my Lord shook them off and went alone.

The next Morning I went to Court for some dispatches, but the King was gone a hunting at break of day, but going to some other of his Officers, their servants told me without any appearance of shame, That their Masters were drunk over night, and so it would be late before they would rise.

A few Days after we went to Gothorp Castle in Sleswickland, to the Duke of Holsteins Court, where at my Lords first Audience, I made made another Latin Speech to the Duke, touching his Grand-Mothers death: Our entertainment there was brave (though a little fullsome.) My Lord was lodg'd in the Dukes Castle, and parted with Presents, which is more than the King of Denmark did: Thence we went to Hufem in Ditzmarsh, to the Dutchess of Holstein's Court (our Queen Anne's youngest Sister) where he had also very full Entertainment: I made a Speech to her also, about her Mothers death, and when I nam'd the Lady Sophia, the tears came down her Cheeks. Thence we came back to Rheinsburgh, and so to this Town of Hamburgh, where my Lord intend to repose some days; after an abrupt odd journey we had through Holsteinland, but I believe it will not be long, in regard Sir John Pennington stays for him upon the River. We expect Sir Robert Anstruther to come from Vienna hither, to take the advantage of the Kings Ship.

We understand that the Imperial and Swedish Army have made near approaches one to another, and that some skirmishes and blows have been already 'twixt them; which are the forerunners of a Battle. So my good Lord I rest

Your most humble and faithful

Servitor, J. H.

Hamburgh, Octob. 9.

1632.

III.

To the Right honourable the Earl R. from Hamburgh.

My Lord,

THough your Lordship must needs think, that in the employment I am in (which requires a whole Man) my Spirits must be distracted by multiplicity of Business; yet I, because I would not recede from my old Method, and first Principles of Travel, when I came to any great City, to couch in Writing what's most observable, I sequestred myself from other Affairs, to send your Lordship what followeth touching this great Hans Town.

The Hans or Hansiatick league is very Ancient, some would derive the Word from Hand, because they of the Society plight their Faith by that Action: Others derive it from Hansa, which in the Gothick Tongue is Counsel: Others would have it come from Hander sea, which signifies near or upon the Sea, and this passeth for the best Etymology, because their Towns are all seated so, or upon some navigable River near the Sea. The extent of the old Hans was from the Nerve in Livonia to the Rhine, and contains 62 great Mercantil Towns, which were divided into four Precincts: The chiefest of the first Precinct was Lubeck, where the Archives of their ancient Records, and their prime Chancery is still, and this Town is is within that Verge: Cullen is chief of the second Precinct: Brunswick of the third: And Dantzick of the fourth. The Kings of Poland and Sweden have sued to be their Protector, but they refus'd them, because they were not Princes of the Empire, they put off also the King of Denmark with a complement, nor would they admit the King of Spain when he was most potent in the Netherlands, though afterwards when 'twas too late, they desir'd the help of the ragged Staff: Nor of the Duke of Anjou, notwithstanding that the World thought he should have married our Queen, who interceded for him, and so 'twas probable, that thereby they might recover their Priviledges in England, so that I do not find they ever had any Protector, but the great Master of Prussia; and their want of a Protector did do them some prejudice in that famous difference they had with our Queen.

The old Hans had extraordinary immunities given them by our Henry the third, because they assisted him in his Wars with so many Ships, and as they pretend, the King was not only to pay them for the Service of the said Ships, but for the Vessels themselves if they miscarried: Now it happen'd that at their return to Germany, from serving Henry the third, there was a great Fleet of them cast away; for which, according to Covenant, they demanded reparation: Our King in lieu of Money, amongst other acts of Grace gave them a Priviledge to pay but one per Cent, which continued until Queen Mary's Reign; and she by advice of King Philip, her Husband, as 'twas conceiv'd, enhaunc'd the one to twenty per cent. The Hans not only complain'd, but clamor'd loudly for breach of their ancient Priviledges confirm'd unto them, time out of Mind, by thirteen successive Kings of England, which they pretended to have purchased with their Money. King Philip undertook to accommodate the Business, but Queen Mary dying a little after, and he retiring, there could be nothing done. Complaints being made to Queen Elizabeth, she answer'd, That as she would not innovate any Thing, so she would maintain them still on the same Condition she found them: Hereupon their Navigation and Traffick ceas'd a while: Whereupon the English tryed what they could do themselves, and they thrived so well, that they took the whole Trade into their own Hands, and so divided themselves (though they be now but one) to Staplers, and Merchant-Adventurers, the one resident constant in one Place, where they kept their Magazine of Wool, the other stirring and adventuring to divers Places Abroad with Cloth, and other Manufactures; which made the Hans endeavour to draw upon them all the malignancy they could from all Nations: Moreover, the Hans's Towns being a Body Politick incorporated in the Empire, complain'd hereof to the Emperor, who sent over

over persons of great quality to meditate an accommodation, but they could effect nothing. Then the Queen caus'd a Proclamation to be publish'd, that the Easterlings, or Merchants of the Hans should be intreated and us'd as all other strangers were within her Dominions, without any mark of difference, in point of Commerce. This nettled them more, thereupon they bent their Forces more eagerly, and in a Diet at Ratisbon, they procur'd, That the English Merchants who had associated themselves into Fraternities in Embsen and other places, should be declar'd Monopolists, and so there was a Comical Edict publish'd against them, that they should be exterminated, and banisht out of all parts of the Empire, and this was done by the activity of one Suderman a great Civilian: There was there for the Queen Gilpin, as nimble a man as Suderman, and he had the Chancellor of Embsen to second and countenance him, but they could not stop the said Edict, wherein the society of English Merchant-Adventurers was pronounc'd to be a Monopoly; yet Gilpin play'd his game so well, that he wrought under-hand, that the said Imperial Ban should not be published till after the dissolution of the Diet, and that in the interim, the Emperor should send Ambassadors to England, to advertise the Queen of such a Ban against her Merchants: But this wrought so little impression upon the Queen, that the said Ban grew rather ridiculous than formidable; for the Town of Embsen harbour'd our Merchants notwithstanding, and afterwards Stode, but they not being able to protect them so well from the Imperial Ban, they settled in this Town of Hamburgh: After this the Queen commanded another Proclamation to be divulg'd, that the Easterlings, or Hansatick Merchants should be allowed to Trade in England upon the same Conditions, and payment of Duties, as her own subjects; provided, That the English Merchants might have interchangeable Priviledge, to reside and Trade peaceably in Stode or Hamburgh, or any where else, within the precinct of the Hans: This incens'd them more, thereupon they resolv'd to cut off Stode and Hamburgh from being Members of the Hans, or of the Empire; but they suspended this dessein till they saw what success the great Spanish Fleet should have, which was then preparing in the Year eighty eight, for they had not long before had recourse to the King of Spain, and made him their own, and he had done them some material good Offices; wherefore to this day this Spanish Council is tax'd of improvidence and imprudence, that there was no use made of the Hans Town in that Expedition.

The Queen finding that they of the Hans would not be contented with that equality she had offer'd 'twixt them and her own subjects, put out a Proclamation; that they should carry neither Corn,

Corn, Victuals, Arms, Timber, Masts, Cables, Minerals, nor any other materials, or men to Spain or Portugal. And after the Queen growing more redoubtable and famous, by the overthrow of the Fleet of Eighty Eight, the Easterlings fell to despair of doing any good: Add hereunto another disaster that befel them, the taking of sixty sails of their Ships about the mouth of Tagus in Portugal by the Queens Ships, that were laden with Ropas de contrabando, viz. Goods prohibited by her former Proclamation into the Dominions of Spain: And these Ships were upon point of being discharg'd, she had intelligence of a great Assembly at Lubeck, which had met of purpose to consult of means to be reveng'd of her; thereupon she staid and seiz'd upon the said sixty Ships, only two were freed to bring news what became of the rest. Hereupon the Pole sent an Ambassador to her, who spake in a high tone, but he was answer'd in a higher.

Ever since our Merchants have beaten a peaceful and free uninterrupted Trade into this Town, and elsewhere within and without the Sound, with their Manufactures of Wooll, and found the way also to the White-Sea, to Archangel and Moscow: Insomuch, that the premises being well considered, it was a happy thing for England, that that clashing fell out 'twixt Her and the Hans, for it may be said to have been the chief ground of that Shipping and Merchandizing, which she is now come to, and wherewith she hath flourish'd ever since. But one thing is observable, that as that Imperial or Comitial Ban, pronounc'd in the Diet at Ratisbon against our Merchants, and Manufactures of Wooll, incited them more to industry, so our Proclamation upon Alderman Cockeins projects of transporting no white Cloths, but died, and in their full Manufacture, did cause both Dutch and German to turn necessity to a virtue, and made them far more ingenious to find ways not only to Die, but to make Cloth, which hath much impair'd our Markets ever since; for there hath not been the third part of our Cloth sold since, either here or in Holland.

My Lord, I pray be pleas'd to dispence with the prolixity of this Discourse; for I could not wind it up closer, nor on a lesser bottom. I shall be careful to bring with me those Furrs I had instructions for: So I rest,

Your Lordships most humble
Servitor,

J. H.

Hamburgh, Octob. 20.

1632.

IV.

To Captain J. Smith, at the Hague.

Captain,

HAVING so wishful an opportunity as this Noble Gentleman Mr. James Crofts, who comes with a Packet for the Lady Elizabeth from my Lord of Leicester, I could not but send you this friendly salute. We are like to make a speedier return than we expected from this Ambassy; for we found the King of Denmark in Holstein, which shortned our voyage from going to the Sound: The King was in an advantageous posture to give audience, for there was a Parliament then at Rheinsburgh, where all the Yonkers met. Amongst other things, I put myself to mark the carriage of the Holstein Gentlemen, as they were going in and out at the Parliament House; and observing well their Physiognomies, their Complexions and Gate, I thought verily I was in England, for they resemble the English more than either Welsh or Scot (though cohabiting upon the same Island) or any other people, that ever I saw yet; which makes me verily believe, that the English Nation came first from this lower circuit of Saxony; and there is one thing that strengthneth me in this belief, that there is an ancient Town hard by call'd Lunden, and an Island call'd Angles; whence it may well be that our Countrey came from Britannia to be Anglia.

This Town of Hamburgh from a society of Brewers is come to be a huge wealthy place, and her new Town is almost as big as the old: There is a shrewd jar 'twixt her and her Protector the King of Denmark.

My Lord of Leicester hath done some good Offices to accommodate matters: She chomps extreamly, that there should be such a Bit put lately in her mouth, as the Fort at Luckstadt, which commands her River of Elve, and makes her pay what Toll he pleases.

The King begins to fill his chests apace, which were so emptied in his late marches to Germany: He hath set a new Toll upon all Ships that pass to this Town; and in the Sound also there be some extraordinary duties impos'd whereat all Nations begin to murmur, specially the Hollanders, who say, that the old primitive Toll of the Sound was but a Rose-noble for every Ship, but by a new Sophistry, it is now interpreted for every sail that should pass thorow, insomuch that the Hollander, though he be a Low-countreyman, begins to speak High-Dutch in this point, a rough language you know, which made the Italian tell a German Gentleman once, that when God Almighty thrust Adam out of Paradise, he spake Dutch, but the German retorted wittily, Then, Sir, if God spake Dutch when Adam was ejected, Eve spake Italian when Adam was seduced.

I could be larger, but for a sudden a vocation to business; So I most affectionately send my kind respects unto you, desiring when I am rendred to London I may hear from you: So I am Hamburgh, Oct. 22.

Your faithful friend

1632.

to serve you, J. H.

V.

To the Right honourable the Earl of Br.

My Lord,

I Am newly return'd from Germany, whence there came lately two Ambassadors extraordinary in one of the Ships Royal, the Earl of Leicester and Sir Robert Amstruther: the latter came from Vienna, and I know little of his negotiations; but for my Lord of Leicester, I believe there was never so much business dispatch'd in so short a compass of time by any Ambassador, as your Lordship, who is best able to judge, will find by this short relation: When my Lord was come to the King of Denmark's Court, which was then at Rheinsburgh, a good way within Holstein, the first thing he did was to condole the late Queen Dowagers death (our Kings Grandmother) which was done in such an equipage, that the Danes confess'd, there was never Queen of Denmark so mourn'd for: this ceremony being past, my Lord fell to business; and the first thing which he propounded was, that for preventing of further effusion of Christian blood in Germany, and for the facilitating a way to restore peace to all Christendom. His Majesty of Denmark would joyn with his Nephew of Great Britain to send a solemn Ambassy to the Emperor, and the King of Sweden, (the end of whose proceedings were doubtful) to mediate an accommodation, and to appear for him who will be found most conformable to reason. To this, that King answer'd in writing (for that was the way of proceedings) that the Emperor and the Swede were come to that height and heat of war, and to such a violence, that it is no time yet to speak to them of peace; but when the fury is a little past, and the times more proper, he would take it for an Honour to joyn with his Nephew, and contribute the best means he could to bring about so good a Work.

Then there was computation made, what was due to the King of Great Britain, and the Lady Elizabeth, out of their Grand-Mothers Estate, which was valued at near upon two Millions of Dollars, and your Lordship must think it was a hard task to liquidate such an account: This being done, my Lord desir'd that part which was due to his Majesty (our King) and the Lady his Sister, which appeared to amount unto eightscore thousand pounds Sterling.

That King answer'd, That he confess'd there was so much money due, but his Mothers Estate was yet in the hands of Commissioners, and neither he nor any of his Sisters, had receiv'd their portions yet, and that his Nephew of England, and his Niece of Holland, should receive theirs with the first; but he did intimate besides, that there were some considerable accounts 'twixt him and the Crown of England, for ready moneys he had lent his brother King James, and for the thirty thousand pounds a month, that was by Covenant promis'd him for the support of his late Army in Germany. Then my Lord propounded, That His Majesty of Great Britains Subjects were not well us'd by his Officers in the Sound; for though that was but a transitory passage into the Baltick Sea, and that they neither bought nor sold any thing upon the place, yet they were forc'd to stay there many days to take up money at high interest, to pay divers Tolls for their Merchandize, before they have expos'd them to vent: Therefore it was desired, that for the future what English Merchants soever should pass through the Sound, it should be sufficient for him to Register an invoyce of his Cargazon in the Custom-House Book, and give his Bond to pay all duties at his return, when he had made his Market. To this my Lord had a fair answer, and so procur'd a publick instrument under that Kings Hand and Seal, and sign'd by his Counsellors, which he had brought over, wherein the Proposition was granted; which no Ambassador could obtain before. Then 'twas alledg'd, that the English Merchant Adventurers who trade into Hamburgh, have a new Toll lately impos'd upon them at Luckstadt, which was desir'd to be taken off. To this also, there was the like instrument given, that the said Toll should be levied no more. Lastly, my Lord (in regard he was to pass by the Hague) desir'd that Hereditary part, which belong'd to the Lady Elizabeth out of her Grand-mothers Estate; because His Majesty knew well what Crosses and Afflictions she had pass'd; and what a numerous issue she had to maintain; and my Lord of Leicester would engage his Honour, and all the Estate he hath in the World, that this should no way prejudice the accounts he is to make with his Majesty of Great Britain. The King of Denmark highly extoll'd the Nobleness of this motion; but he protested, that he had been so drain'd in the late Wars, that his Chests are yet very empty. Hereupon my Lord was feasted, and so departed.

He went then to the Duke of Holstein to Sleswick, where he found him at his Castle of Gothorp, and truly I did not think to have found such magnificent building in these bleak parts: There also my Lord did condole the death of the late Queen that Dukes Grand-mother, and he receiv'd very Princely entertainment.

Then

Then we went to Hufem, where the like Ceremony of Condollement was performed at the Dutchess of Holstein's Court, his Majesty's (our King's) Ant.

Then he came to Hamburgh, where that Instrument which my Lord had procured for remitting of the new Toll at Luckstadt, was deliver'd the Company of our Merchant-Adventurers, and some other good Offices done for that Town, as matters stood betwixt them and the King of Denmark.

Then we came to Stode, where Lefly was Governor, who carried his foot in a scarf for a wound he had receiv'd at Buckstobo, and he kept that Place for the King of Sweden: and some Business of Consequence was done there also.

So we came to Broomsbottle, where we staid for a Wind some days; and in the mid-way of our Voyage we met with a Holland Ship, who told us the King of Sweden was slain; and so we return'd to London in less than three months. And if this was not Business enough for such a compass of Time, I leave your Lordship to judge.

So craving your Lordships Pardon for this latne Account, I rest

Your Lordships most humble and
ready Servitor, J. H.

London Oct. 1. 1632.

VI.

To my Brother Dr. Howell, at his House in Horsley.

My good Brother,

I Am safely returned from Germany, Thanks be to God; and the News which we heard at Sea by a Dutch Skipper, about the midst of our Voyage from Hamburgh, it seems proves too true, which was of the Fall of the King of Sweden. One Jerbire, who says that he was in the very Action, brought the first News to this Town, and every corner rings of it; yet such is the extravagancy of some, that they will lay wagers he is not yet dead, and the Exchange is full of such people. He was slain at Lutzen Field battle, having made the Imperial Army give ground the day before, and being in pursuance of it the next morning, in a sudden Fog that fell, the Cavalry on both sides being engaged, he was kill'd in the midst of the Troops, and none knows who kill'd him, whether one of his own Men, or the Enemy; but finding himself mortally hurt, he told Saxen Waymar, Cousin, I pray look to the Troops, for I think I have enough: His Body was not only rescued, but his Forces had the better of the day, Papenheim being kill'd before him, whom he esteem'd the greatest Captain of all his Enemies; for he was us'd to say, That he had three Men to deal withal, a Pultrona, Jesuit, and a Souldier; by the two first, he meant Walstein and the Duke of Bavaria, by the last Papenheim.

Questionless this Gustavus (whose Anagram is Augustus) was a great Captain, and a gallant Man, and had he surviv'd that last Victory, he would have put the Emperor to such a plunge, that some think he would hardly have been able to have made Head against him to any purpose again. Yet his own Allies confess, that none knew the bottom of his designs.

He was not much affected to the English, witness the ill Usage Marquis Hamilton had with his 6000 Men, whereof there return'd not 600, the rest dyed of hunger and sickness, having never seen the face of an Enemy: Witness also his harshness to our Ambassadors, and the rigid terms he would have tied the Prince Palsgrave unto. So with my affectionate respects to Mr. Mouschamp, and kind commends to Mr. Bridger, I rest,

Your loving Brother,

Westminst. Dec. 5. 1632.

J. H.

VII.

To the Right Reverend Dr. Field, Lord Bishop of St. Davids.

My Lord,

YOur late Letter affected me with two contrary Passions, with Gladness and Sorrow; the beginning of it dilated my Spirits with apprehensions of Joy, that you are so well recover'd of your late sickness, which I heartily congratulate; but the conclusion of your Lordships Letter contracted my Spirits, and plung'd them in a deep sense of just Sorrow, while you please to write me news of my dear Fathers death. Permulsit initium, percussit finis. Truly my Lord, it is the heaviest news that ever was sent me: But when I recollect myself, and consider the fairness and maturity of his Age, and that it was rather a gentle Dissolution than a Death; when I contemplate that infinite Advantage he hath got by this change and transmigration, it much lightens the weight of my Grief; for if ever humane Soul entered Heaven, surely his is there; such was his constant Piety to God, his rare Indulgence to his Children, his Charity to his Neighbours, and his Candour in reconciling differences; such was the Gentleness of his disposition, his unwearied course in Actions of Virtue, that I wish my Soul no other Felicity, when she hath shaken off these Rags of Flesh, than to ascend to his, and co-enjoy the same Bliss.

Excuse me, my Lord, that I take my Leave at this time so abruptly

ruptly of you; when this Sorrow is a little digested, you shall hear further from me, for I am Westminst. May 1. 1632.

Your Lordships most true and humble Servitor, J. H.

VIII.

To the Earl of Leicester, at Penshurst.

My Lord,

I Have delivered Mr. Secretary Cook an account of the whole Legation, as your Lordship inordred me, which contain'd near upon twenty sheets; I attended him also with the Note of your extraordinaries, wherein I find him something difficult and dilatory yet. The Governour of the Eastland Company, Mr. Alderman Clethero, will attend your Lordship at your return to Court, to acknowledge your favour unto them. I have delivered him a Copy of the transactions of things that concern'd their Company at Rheinsburgh.

The News we heard at Sea of the King of Sweden's Death is confirm'd more and more, and by the computation I have been a little curious to make, I find that he was kill'd the same day your Lordship set out of Hamburgh. But there is other news come since, of the death of the Prince Palatine, who, as they write, being return'd from visiting the Duke De Deux Ponts at Mentz, was struck there with the Contagion; yet by special ways of Cure, the malignity was expell'd, and great hopes of recovery, when the news came of the Death of the King of Sweden, which made such Impressions in him, that he dyed few days after, having overcome all difficulties concluding with the Suede, and the Governour of Frankindale, and being ready to enter into a repossession of his Countrey: A sad Destiny.

The Suedes bear up still, being fomented and supported by the French, who will not suffer them to leave Germany yet. A Gentleman that came lately from Italy, told me, that there is no great Joy in Rome for the Death of the King of Sweden: The Spaniards up and down, will not stick to call this Pope Lutherano, and that he had Intelligence with the Suede. 'Tis true, that he hath not been so forward to assist the Emperor in this Quarrel, and that in open Consistory, where there was such a Contrasto 'twixt the Cardinals for a Supply from St. Peter, he declar'd, That he was well satisfied that this War in Germany was no War of Religion, which made him dismiss the Imperial Ambassadors with this short Answer, That the Emperor had drawn these mischiefs upon himself; for at that time when he saw the Suedes upon the Frontiers of Germany, if he had employed those Men and Moneys, which he consum'd to trouble the Peace of Italy, in making War against the Duke of Montova against them, he had not had now so potent an Enemy. So I take my leave for this time, being

Westminst. June 3.

1625.

Your Lordships most humble and obedient Servitor, J. H.

IX.

To Mr. E. D.

S I R,

I Thank you a thousand times for the noble Entertainment you gave me at Berry, and the Pains you took in shewing me the Antiquities of that Place. In requital, I can tell you of a strange thing I saw lately here, and I believe 'tis true; As I pass'd by St. Dunstons in Fleet-Street the last Saturday, I stepp'd into a Lapidary or Stone-cutters Shop, to treat with the Master for a Stone to be put upon my Fathers Tomb, and casting my Eyes up and down, I might spy a huge Marble with a large Inscription upon it, which was thus to my best remembrance:

Here lies John Oxenham, a goodly young Man, in whose Chamber, as he was struggling with the Pangs of Death, a Bird with a white Breast was seen fluttering about his Bed, and so vanished.

Here lies also Mary Oxenham, the Sister of the said John, who died the next day, and the same Apparition was seen in the Room.

Then another Sister is spoken of.

Then, Here lies hard by James Oxenham, the Son of the said John, who died a Child in his Cradle a little after, and such a Bird was seen fluttering about his Head, a little before he expir'd, which vanish'd afterwards.

At the bottom of the Stone there is.

Here lies Elizabeth Oxenham, the Mother of the said John, who died sixteen years since, when such a Bird with a white breast was seen about her Bed before her Death.

To all these there be divers Witnesses, both 'Squires and Ladies, whose names are engraven upon the Stone: This Stone is to be sent to a Town hard by Exeter where this happen'd.

Were you here, I could raise a choice Discourse with you here-upon. So hoping to see you the next Term, to requite some of your favours, I rest Westminst. July 3.

1632.

Your true Friend to serve you,

J. H.

X. To

X.

To W. B. Esq;

S I R,

THE upbraiding of a Courtesie is as bad in the Giver, as Ingratitude in the Receiver, (though which you think I am loth to believe) be faulty in the first, I shall never offend in the second, while

J. Howell.

Westminst. Octob. 24.

XI.

To Sir Arthur Ingram, at York.

S I R,

OUR greatest news here now is, that we have a new Attorney-General, which is news indeed, considering the Humour of the Man, how he hath been always ready to entertain any cause whereby he might clash with the Prerogative; but now, as Judge Richardson told him, his Head is full of Proclamations and Devices how to bring Money into the Exchequer. He hath lately found out amongst the old Records of the Tower, some Precedents for raising a Tax call'd Ship-money in all the Port-Towns, when the Kingdom is in danger: Whether we are in Danger or no at present, 'twere Presumption in me to judge, that belongs to his Majesty and his Privy-Council, who have their choice Instruments abroad for Intelligence; yet one with half an Eye may see, we cannot be secure, while such huge Fleets of Men of War, both Spanish, French, Dutch, and Dunkirkeers, some of them laden with Ammunition, Men, Arms, and Armies, do daily sail on our Seas, and confront the Kings Chambers; while we have only three or four Ships abroad to guard our Coast and Kingdom, and to preserve the fairest Flower of the Crown, the Dominions of the Narrow-Sea, which I hear the French Cardinal begins to question, and the Hollander lately would not vail to one of his Majesty's Ships that brought over the Duke of Lenox and my Lord Weston from Bulloign; and indeed we are jeer'd abroad, that we send no more Ships to guard our Seas.

Touching my Lord Ambassador Weston, he had a brave Journey of it, though it cost dear; for 'tis thought 'twill stand his Majesty in 25000 pounds, which makes some Criticks of the Times to censure the Lord-Treasurer, that now the King wanting Money so much, he should send his Son abroad to spend him such a sum only for delivering of Presents and Complements: But I believe believe they are deceiv'd, for there were matters of State also in the Ambassy.

The Lord Weston passing by Paris, intercepted and open'd a Packet of my Lord of Hollands, wherein there were some Letters of her Majesty's; this my Lord of Holland takes in that Scorn, that he defied him since his coming, and demanded the Combat of him, for which he is confin'd to his House at Kensington. So with my humble Service to my Noble Lady, I rest Westminst. Jan. 30.

1633.

Your most obliged Servitor,
J. H.

XII.

To the Lord Viscount Wentworth, Lord Deputy of Ireland, and Lord President of York, &c.

My Lord,

I Was glad to apprehend the opportunity of this Packet to convey my humble Service to your Lordship.

There are old doings in France, and 'tis no new thing for the French to be always a doing, they have such a stirring Genius. The Queen-Mother hath made an Escape to Brussels, and Monsieur to Lorrain, where they say, he courts very earnestly the Dukes sister, a young Lady under twenty; they say a Contract is pass'd already, but the French Cardinal opposeth it; for they say that Lorrain Milk seldom breeds good Blood in France: Not only the King, but the whole Gallican Church hath protested against it in a solemn Synod; for the Heir apparent of the Crown of France cannot marry without the Royal Consent. This aggravates a Grudge the French King hath to the Duke, for siding with the Imperialists, and for things reflecting upon the Dutchy of Bar, for which he is homageable to the Crown of France, as he is to the Emperor for Lorrain: A hard Task it is to serve two Masters; and an unhappy Situation it is, to lie betwixt two puissant Monarchs, as the Dukes of Savoy and Lorrain do. So I kiss your Lordships hands, and rest,

My Lord,

Your most humble and ready
Servitor, J. H.

Westminst. April 1.

XIII.

To the most Noble Lady, the Lady Cornwallis.

Madam,

IN conformity to your commands, which sway with me as much as an Act of Parliament, I have sent your Ladyship this small Hymn for Christmas-Day, now near approaching; if your Ladyship please to put an Air to it, I have my Reward.

1. Hail holy Tyde,
Wherein a Bride,
A Virgin (which is more)
Brought forth a Son,
The like was done
Ne're in the World before.

2. Hail spotless Maid,
Who thee upbraid
To have been born in Sin,
Do little weigh,
What in thee lay,
Before thou didst Lie-in.

3. Three Months thy Womb,
Was made the Doom
Of him, whom Earth nor Air,
Nor the vast Mould
Of Heav'n can hold,
'Cause he's Ubiquitair.

4. O would he daign
To rest and reign
I'th' Centre of my Heart,
And make it still
His Domicil,
And Residence in part.

5. But in so foul a Cell
Can he abide to dwell?
Yes, when he please to move
His Harbinger to sweep the Room,
And with rich Odours it perfume,
Of Faith, of Hope, of Love.

So I humbly kiss your Hands, and thank your Ladyship, that you would command me in any thing that may conduce to your Contentment.

Your Ladyships most humble
Servitor, J. H.

Westminst. Feb. 3. 1633.

XIV.

To the Lord Clifford at Knasburgh.

My Lord,

I Receiv'd your Lordships of the last of June, and I return my most humble Thanks for the choice Nag you pleas'd to send me, which came in very good plight. Your Lordship desires me to lay down what in my Travels abroad I observ'd of the present Condition of the Jews, once an Elect People, but now grown contemptible, and strangely squander'd up and down the World: Though such a Discourse, exactly fram'd, might make up a Volume, yet I will twist up what I know in this point, upon as narrow a Bottom as may be shut up within the compass of this Letter.

The first Christian Countrey that expell'd the Jews was England; France followed our Example next, then Spain, and afterwards Portugal: Nor were they extirminated these Countries for their Religion, but for Villanies and Cheating, for clipping Coins, poysoning of Water, and counterfeiting of Seals.

Those Countries they are permitted to live now most in amongst Christians, are, Germany, Holland, Bohemia, and Italy; but not in those Parts where the King of Spain hath to do. In the Levant and Turkey they swarm most, for the Grand Visier, and all other great Bashaws, have commonly some Jew for their Counsellor or Spy, who inform them of the State of Christian Princes, possess them of a Hatred of the Religion, and so incense them to a War against them.

They are accounted the subtilist and most subdolous People upon the Earth; the reason why they are thus degenerated from their primitive Simplicity and Innocence, is their often Captivities, their desperate Fortunes, the Necessity and Hatred to which they have been habituated; for nothing depraves ingenious Spirits, and corrupts clear Wits more than Want and Indigence. By their Profession they are for the most part Brokers and Kombardeers, yet by that base and servile way of Frippery Trade, they grow rich wheresoever they nest themselves; and this with their multiplication of Children, they hold to be an argument that an extraordinary Providence attends them still. Methinks that so clear accomplishments of the Prophecies of our Saviour touching that People,

People, should work upon them for their Conversion, of the Destruction of their City and Temple, that they should become despicable, and the tail of all Nations, that they should be Vagabonds, and have no firm Habitation.

Touching the first, they know it came punctually to pass; and so have the other two; for they are the most hateful race of Men upon Earth, insomuch, that in Turkey, where they are most valued, if a Musulman come to any of their Houses, and leave his shoes at the door, the Jew dare not come in all the while, till the Turk hath done what he would with his Wife. For the last, 'tis wonderful to see in what considerable Numbers they are dispers'd up and down the World, yet they can never reduce themselves to such a Condition and Unity as may make a Republick, Principality or Kingdom.

They hold that the Jews of Italy, Germany, and the Levant, are of Benjamin's Tribe; ten of the Tribes at the Destruction of Jeroboam's Kingdom were led Captives beyond Euphrates, whence they never return'd, nor do they know what became of them ever after; yet they believe they never became Apostates and Gentiles. But the Tribe of Judah, whence they expect their Messias, of whom one shall hear them discourse with so much Confidence, and self-pleasing Conceit, they say is settled in Portugal; where they give out to have thousands of their Race, whom they dispense withal to make a semblance of Christianity even to Church degrees.

This makes them breed up their Children in the Lusitanian Language; which makes the Spaniard have an odd Saying, that El Portuguez se cria del pedo de un Judio: A Portuguese was engendred of a Jew's Fart; as the Mahumetans have a Passage in their Alchoran, That a Cat was made of a Lions breath.

As they are the most contemptiblest People, and have a kind of fulsome Scent, no better than a Stink, that distinguishes them from others, so are they the most timorous People on Earth, and so, utterly incapable of Arms, for they are made neither Soldiers nor Slaves: And this their Pusillanimity and Cowardice, as well as their Cunning and Craft, may be imputed to their various Thraldoms, Contempt and Poverty, which hath cow'd and dastardiz'd their Courage. Besides these Properties, they are light and giddy-headed, much symbolizing in spirits with our Apocalyptical Zealots, and fiery Interpreters of Daniel, and other Prophets, whereby they often sooth, or rather fool themselves into some Illumination, which really proves but some egregious dotage.

They much glory of their mysterious Cabal, wherein they make the reality of things to depend upon Letters, and Words; but chev

they say that Hebrew only hath this Priviledge: This Cabal, which is nought else but a Tradition, they say, being transmitted from one Age to another, was in some measure a reparation of our Knowledge lost in Adam, and they say it was reveal'd four times; first to Adam, who being thrust out of Paradise, and sitting one day very sad, and sorrowing for the loss of the Knowledge he had, of that dependance the creatures have with their Creator, the Angel Raguel was sent to comfort him, and instruct him, and repair his Knowledge herein: And this they call the Cabal, which was lost the second time by the Flood and Babel; then God discovered it to Moses in the Bush; the third time to Solomon in a dream, whereby he came to know the beginning, mediety, and consummation of times, and so wrote divers Books, which were lost in the grand Captivity: The last time they hold, that God restored the Cabal to *Esdra*s (a Book they value extraordinarily) who by Gods Command withdrew to the Wilderness Forty days with five Scribes, who in that space wrote two hundred and four Books: The first one hundred thirty and four, were to be read by all; but the other seventy were to pass privately amongst the Levites, and these they pretend to be Cabalistick, and not yet all lost.

There are this day three Sects of Jews; the African first, who besides the holy Scriptures, embrace the Talmud also for authentic; the second receive only the Scriptures; the third, which are call'd the Samaritans (whereof there are but a few) admit only of the Pentateuch, the five Books of Moses.

The Jews in general drink no Wine without a Dispensation, when they kill any creature, they turn his face to the East, saying, Be it sanctified in the great Name of God; they cut the throat with a knife without a gap, which they hold very prophane.

In their Synagogues, they make one of the best sort to read a Chapter of Moses, then some mean Boy reads a piece of the Prophets; in the midst, there's a round place arch'd over, wherein one of their Rabbies walks up and down, and in the Portuguese magnifies the Messias to come, comforts their Captivity, and rails at Christ.

They have a kind of Cupboard to represent the Tabernacle, wherein they lay the Tables of the Law, which now and then they take out and kiss; they sing many Tunes, and Adonai they make the ordinary Name of God; Jehovah is pronounced at high Festivals: At Circumcision Boys are put to sing some of David's Psalms so loud, as drowns the Infants cry. The Synagogue is hung about with Glass-Lamps burning; every one at his Entrance puts on a Linnen Cope, first kissing it, else they use no manner of Reverence all the while: Their Elders sometimes fall together by the Ears

Ears in the very Synagogue, and with the holy Utenfils, as Candlesticks, Incense-Pans, and such like, break one anothers Pates.

Women are not allowed to enter the Synagogue, but they sit in a Gallery without, for they hold they have not so divine a Soul as Men, and are of a lower Creation, made only for sensual Pleasure and Propagation.

Amongst the Mahumetans there is no Jew capable of a Turkish habit, unless he acknowledge Christ as much as Turks do, which is to have been a great Prophet, whereof they hold there are three only, Moses, Christ, and Mahomet.

Thus my Lord, to perform your Commands, which are very prevalent with me, have I couch'd in this Letter what I could of the condition of the Jews, and if it may give your Lordship any satisfaction, I have my reward abundantly. So I rest

Westminst. June 3.

Your Lordships most humble

1633.

and ready Servitor, J. H.

XV.

To Mr. Philip Warrick, at Paris.

S I R,

YOur last unto me was in French of the first current, and I am glad you are come so safe from Switzerland to Paris; as also, that you are grown so great a Proficient in the Language: I thank you for the variety of News you sent me so handsomely couch'd and knit together.

To correspond with you, the greatest News we have here is, that we have a gallant Fleet-Royal ready to set to Sea, for the security of our Coasts and Commerce, and for the Sovereignty of our Seas. Hans said, the King of England was asleep all the while, but now he is awake; nor do I hear, doth your French Cardinal tamper any longer with our King's Title and Right to the Dominion of the Narrow Seas. These are brave fruits of the Ship-moneys.

I hear that the Infanta Cardinal having been long upon his way to Brussels, hath got a notable Victory of the Swedes at Nordlinghen, where 8000 were slain, Gustavus Horn, and other of the prime Commanders taken Prisoners; they write also that Monsieur's Marriage with Madam of Lorrain, was solemnly celebrated at Brussels; she had follow'd him from Nancy in Page's Apparel, because there were Forces in the way. It must needs be a mighty Charge to the King of Spain, to maintain Mother and Son in this manner.

The Court affords little news at present, but that there is a Love call'd Platonick Love, which much sways there of late; It is a Love abstracted abstracted from all corporeal, gross Impressions, and sensual Appetite, but consists in Contemplations and Ideas of the Mind, not in any carnal Fruition: This Love sets the Wits of the Town on Work; and they say there will be a Mask shortly of it, whereof her Majesty, and her Maids of Honour will be part.

All your Friends here in Westminster are well, and very mindful of you, but none more often than Westminst. June 3.

1634.

Your most affectionate
Servitor, J. H.

XVI.

To my Brother Mr. H. P.

Brother,

MY Brain was overcast with a thick cloud of Melancholy, and was become a Lump I know not of what, I could scarce find any Palpitation within me on the left side, when yours of the first of September was brought me, it had such a virtue, that it begot new Motions in me, like the Load-stone, which by its attractive occult quality, moves the dull Body of Iron, and makes it active; so dull was I then, and such a magnetick Property your Letter had to quicken me.

There is some Murmuring against the Ship-money, because the Tax is indefinite; as also by reason, that it is levied upon the Countrey-Towns, as well as Maritime, and for that, they say, Noy himself cannot shew any Record. There are also divers Patents granted, which are murther'd at, as being no better than Monopolies: Amongst others, a Scotchman got him lately upon the Statute of levying twelvecence for every Oath, which the Justices of Peace, and Constable had Power to raise, and have still; but this new Patentee is to quicken and put more Life in the Law, and see it executed. He hath Power to nominate one, or two, or three, in some Parishes, which are to have Commission from him, for this publick Service, and so they are to be exempt from bearing Office, which must needs deserve a Gratuity: And I believe this was the main drift of the Scot Patentee; so, that he intends to keep his Office in the Temple, and certainly he is like to be a mighty Gainer by it; for who would not give a good piece of Money to be freed from bearing all cumbersome Offices? No more now, but that with my dear Love to my Sister, I rest 1633.

Westmin. Aug. 1.

Your most affectionate Brother,
J. H.

XVII.

To the Right Honourable the Lord Viscount Savage, at Long Melford.

My Lord,

THE old Steward of your Courts, Master Attorney-General Noy is lately dead, nor could Tunbridge Waters do him any good: Though he had good Matter in his Brain, he had, it seems, ill Materials in his Body, for his Heart was shrivelled like a Leather penny purse when he was dissected, nor were his Lungs sound.

Being such a Clerk in the Law, all the World wonders he left such an odd Will, which is short, and in Latin: The substance of it is, that he having bequeath'd a few Legacies, and left his second Son 100 Marks a Year, and 500 Pounds in Money, enough to bring him up in his Fathers Profession, he concludes, Reliqua meorum omnia primogenito meo Edvardo, dissipanda nec melius unquam (speravi) lego: I leave the rest of all my goods to my first-born Edward, to be consum'd or scatter'd (for I never hoped better.) A strange, and scarce a Christian Will, in my opinion, for it argues uncharitableness. Nor doth the World wonder less, that he should leave no Legacy to some of your Lordships Children, considering what deep Obligations he had to your Lordship; for I am confident he had never been Attorney-General else.

The Vintners drink carouzes of Joy that he is gone, for now they are in hopes to dress Meat again, and sell Tobacco, Beer, Sugar and Fagots, which by a sullen Capricio of his he would have restrain'd them from. He had his humour as other Men; but certainly he was a solid rational Man; and though no great Orator, yet a profound Lawyer, and no Man better vers'd in the Records of the Tower. I heard your Lordship often say with what infinite pains and indefatigable study he came to this knowledge: And I never heard a more pertinent Anagram than was made of his Name, William Noye, I moyle in law. If an s be added, it may be applied to my Countreyman Judge Jones, an excellent Lawyer too, and a far more Genteel Man, William Jones, I moile in laws. No more now, but that I rest, Westmin. Octob. 1.

Your Lordships most ready and obliged 1635.

Servitor, J. H.

XVIII.

To the Right Honourable the Countess of Sunderland.

Madam,

Here inclos'd I send your Ladyship a Letter from the Lord Deputy of Ireland, wherein he declares, that the disposing of the Attorneyship in York, which he passed over to me, had no relation to my Lord at all, but it was meerly done out of a particular Respect to me: Your Ladyship may please to think of it accordingly, touching the Accounts.
Q the

It is now a good while the two Nephew Princes have been here, I mean the Prince Elector, and Prince Robert. The King of Sweden's death, and the late blow at Norlingen hath half blasted their hopes to do any good for the recovery of the Palatinate by Land; Therefore I hear of some new designs by Sea, That the one shall go to Madagascar, a great Island 800 Miles long in the East-Indies, never yet coloniz'd by any Christian, and Captain Bond is to be his Lieutenant; the other is to go with a considerable Fleet to the West-Indies, to seize upon some Place there that may countervail the Palatinate, and Sir Henry Mervin to go with him: But I hear my Lady Elizabeth opposeth it, saying, that she will have none of her Sons to be Knights-Errant. There is now professed actual enmity 'twixt France and Spain, for there was an Herald at Arms sent lately from Paris to Flanders, who by sound of Trumpet denounced and proclaimed open War against the King of Spain and all his Dominions; this Herald left and fixed up the Defiance in all the Towns as he passed: so that whereas before, the War was but collateral and auxiliary, there is now proclaim'd Hostility between them, notwithstanding that they have one another sisters in their Beds every Night: What the reason of this War is, truly Madam, I cannot tell, unless it be reason of State, to prevent the further growth of the Spanish Monarchy; and there be multitude of examples how preventive Wars have been practis'd from all Times. Howsoever it is too sure that abundance of Christian Blood will be spilt. So I humbly take my leave, and rest,

Madam,

Westmin. Jun. 4.

1635.

Your Ladyships most obedient and faithful Servitor, J. H.

XIX.

To the Earl of Leicester at Penshurst.

My Lord,

I Am newly return'd out of France, from a flying Journey as far as Orleans, which I made at the request of Mr. Secretary Windbank, and I hope I shall receive some Fruits of it hereafter. There is yet a great resentment in many Places in France, for the beheading of Montmorency, whom Henry the Fourth was us'd to say to be the better Gentleman than himself, for in his Colours he carry'd this Motto: Dieu ayde le premier Chevalier de France; God help the first Knight of France. He died upon a Scaffold in Thoulouse, louse, in the Flower of his Years, at 34, and hath left no Issue behind; so that noble old Family extinguish'd in a snuff: His Treason was very foul, having receiv'd particular Commissions from the King to make an extraordinary Levy of Men and Money in Languedock, which he turn'd afterwards directly against the King, against whose Person he appear'd arm'd in open Field, and in a hostile Posture for fomenting of Monsieurs Rebellion.

The Infanta Cardinal is come to Brussels at last, thorough many difficulties; and some few Days before, Monsieur made semblance to go a Hawking, and so fled to France, but left his Mother behind, who since the Arch-Dutchess's Death, is not so well look'd on as formerly in that Country.

Touching our Business in the Exchequer, Sir Robert Pye went with me this Morning on purpose to my Lord Treasurer about it, and told me with much earnestness and assurance, that there shall be a speedy course taken for your Lordships Satisfaction.

I deliver'd my Lord of Linsey the Manuscript he lent your Lordship of his Fathers Ambassy to Denmark: And herewith I present your Lordship with a compleat Diary of your own late Legation, which hath cost me some Oyl and Labour. So I rest always,

Westmin. June 19.
1635.

Your Lordships most humble and
ready Servitor, J. H.

XX.

To my Honoured Friend and Father, Mr. Ben. Johnson.

Father Ben,

Being lately in France, and returning in a Coach from Paris to Rouen, I lighted upon the Society of a knowing Gentleman, who related unto me a choice Story, whereof peradventure you make some use in your Way.

Some Hundred and odd Years since, there was in France one Captain Coucy, a gallant Gentleman of an ancient Extraction, and Keeper of Coucy Castle, which is yet standing, and in good repair. He fell in Love with a young Gentlewoman, and courted her for his Wife: There was reciprocal Love between them, but her Parents understanding of it, by way of prevention they shuffled up a forced Match 'twixt her and one Monsieur Faiet, who was a great Heir: Captain Coucy hereupon quitted France in discontent, and went to the Wars in Hungary against the Turk, where he received a mortal wound, not far from Buda. Being carried to his Lodging, he languished some Days, but a little before his Death he spoke to an ancient Servant of his, that he had many proofs of his Fidelity and Truth, but now he had a great Business to intrust him with, which he conjur'd him by all means to do, which was, That after his Death, he should get his Body to be opened, and then to take his Heart out of his Breast, and put it in an earthen Pot to be bak'd to Powder, then to put the Powder into a handsome box, with that bracelet of Hair he had worn long about his left Wrist, which was a lock of Mademoiselle Faiels Hair, and put it amongst the Powder, together with a little Note he had written with his own Blood to her; and after he had given him the Rites of Burial, to make all the speed he could to France, and deliver the said Box to Mademoiselle Faiel. The old Servant did as his Master had commanded him, and so went to France, and coming one day to Monsieur Faiel's House, he suddenly met with one of his Servants, who examin'd him, because he knew he was Captain Coucy's Servant, and finding him timerous, and faltering in his Speech, he search'd him, and found the said Box in his pocket, with the Note which expressed what was therein: He dismiss'd the Bearer with menaces that he should come no more near his House, Monsieur Faiel going in, sent for his Cook, and deliver'd him the Powder, charging him to make a little well-relish'd dish of it, without losing a jot of it, for it was a very costly Thing; and commanded him to bring it in himself, after the last course at Supper. The Cook bringing in the Dish accordingly, Monsieur Faiel commanded all to void the room, and began a serious discourse with his Wife, how ever since he had married her, he observ'd she was always Melancholy, and he feared she was inclining to a Consumption, therefore he had provided for her a very precious Cordial, which he was well assured would cure her: Thereupon he made her eat up the whole dish; and afterward much importuning him to know what it was, he told her at last, she had eaten Coucy's Heart, and so drew the box out of his Pocket, and shewed her the Note and Bracelet; in a sudden exultation of joy, she with a far fetch'd sigh, said, This is precious indeed, and so lick'd the Dish, saying, it is so precious, that 'tis pity to put ever any Meat upon't. So she went to bed, and in the Morning she was found Stone-dead.

This Gentleman told me that this sad Story is painted in Coucy-Castle, and remains fresh to this Day.

In my Opinion, which vails to yours, this is choice and rich stuff for you to put upon your Loom, and make a curious Web of.

I thank you for the last regalo you gave me at your Museum, and for the good Company; I heard you censur'd lately at Court, that you have lighted too foul upon Sir Inigo, and that you write with a Porcupins quill dipped in too much Gall. Excuse me that I am

I am so free with you; it is because I am in no common Way of Friendship,

Westmin. May 3.

Yours, J. H.

XXI.

To Captain Tho. Porter.

Noble Captain,

YOU are well return'd from Brussels, from attending your Brother in that noble Employment of congratulating the Infanta Cardinals coming thither. It was well Monsieur went a Hawking away before to France, for I think those two young Spirits would not have agreed. A Frenchman told me lately, that was at your Audience, that he never saw so many compleat Gentlemen in his Life, for the number, and in a nearer equipage. Before you go to Sea, I intend to wait on you, and give you a Frolick. So I am,

De todas mis entranas,

Yours to dispose of,

J. H.

To this I'll add the Duke of Osuna's Complement,

*Quisiere canque soy chico
Ser. enserville Gigante.*

Though of the tallest I am none you see,
Yet to serve you I would a Giant be.

Westmin. Novemb. 1.

XXII.

To my Cousin Captain Saint Geon.

Noble Cousin,

THE greatest News about the Town is, of a mighty Prize that was taken lately by Peter van Hymn of Holland, who had met some straggling Ships of the Plate-Fleet, and brought them to the Texel: They speak of a Million of Crowns. I could wish you had been there to have shared of the Booty, which was the greatest in Money that ever was taken.

One sent me lately from Holland this Distich of Peter van Hymn, which favours of a little Prophaneness.

*Roma sui silent posthac miracula Petri,
 Petrus apud Batavos plura stupenda facit.
 Let Rome no more her Peters Wonders tell,
 For Wonders, Hollands Peter bears the Bell.*

To this Distict was added the Anagram, which is a good one.

PETRUS HAINUS.

HISPANUS RUET.

So I rest,

Westmin. July 10.

Totus tuus,

Yours whole,

James Howell.

XXIII.

To my Lord Viscount S.

My Lord,

HIS Majesty is lately return'd from Scotland, having given that Nation satisfaction to their long desires, to have him come hither to be Crown'd: I hear some mutter at Bishop Laud's Carriage there, that it was too Haughty and Pontifical.

Since the Death of the King of Sweden, a great many of Scotch Commanders are come over, and make a shining shew at Court, what Trade they will take hereafter, I know not, having been so inur'd to the Wars. I pray God keep us from Commotions at Home, 'twixt the two Kingdoms, to find them Work: I hear one Colonel Lestly is gone away discontented, because the King would not Lord him.

The old rotten Duke of Bavaria, for he hath divers Issues about his Body, hath married one of the Emperors Sisters, a young Lady little above Twenty, and he near upon Fourscore; there's another remaining, who, they say, is intended for the King of Poland, notwithstanding his pretences to the young Lady Elizabeth; about which, Prince Razevill, and other Ambassadors have been here lately; but that King being Elective must marry as the Estates will have him: His Mother was the Emperors sister, therefore sure he will not offer to marry his Cousin German; but 'tis no News for the House of Austria to do so, to strengthen their Race. And if the Bavarian hath Male-Issue of this young Lady, the Son is to succeed him in the Electorship, which may conduce much to strengthen the countenance of the Empire in the Austrian Family. So with a constant perseverance of my hearty desires to serve your Lordship, I rest,

My Lord,

Westmin. Sept. 7.

Your most humble Servitor, J. H.

XXIV. To

XXIV.

To my Cousin Mr. William Saint Geon, at St. Omer.

Cousin,

I Was lately in your Fathers Company, and I found him much discontented at the course you take, which he not only protests against, but he vows never to give you his Blessing, if you persevere in't, I would wish you to descend into yourself, and seriously ponder, what a weight a Fathers Blessing or Curse carries with it; for there is nothing conduceth more to the happiness or infelicity of the Child: Amongst the ten Commandments in the Decalogue, that which enjoyns Obedience from Children to Parents, hath only a Benediction (of Longævity) added to it: There be Clouds of Examples for this, but one I will Instance in; When I was in Valentia in Spain, a Gentleman told me of a Miracle which happen'd in that Town; which was, That a proper young Man under Twenty, was executed there for a Crime, and before he was taken down from off the Tree, there were many gray and white Hairs had budded forth of his Chin, as if he had been a Man of Sixty. It struck amazement in all Men, but this Interpretation was made of it, That the said young Man might have liv'd to such an Age, if he had been dutiful to his Parents, unto whom he had been barbarously disobedient all his Life-time.

There comes herewith a large Letter to you from your Father, let me advice you to conform your Courses to his Counsel, otherwise it is an easie matter to be a Prophet what misfortunes will inevitably befall you, which by a timely Obedience you may prevent, and I wish you may have grace to do it accordingly. So I rest

Lond. May 1.

1634.

Your loving well-wishing Cousin,

J. H.

XXV.

To the Lord Deputy of Ireland.

My Lord,

THE Earl of Arundel is lately return'd from Germany, and his gallant comportment in that Ambassy deserv'd to have had better Success; he found the Emperor conformable, but the old Bavarian froward, who will not part with any Thing, till he have Monies reimburs'd, which he spent in these Wars, and for which he hath the upper Palatinate in deposito, insomuch, that in all probability all hopes are cut off of ever recovering that Country,

try, but by the same means that it was taken away, which was by the Sword: Therefore they write from Holland of a new Army, which the Prince Palatine is like to have shortly, to go up to Germany and push on his Fortune with the Swedes.

The French King hath taken Nancy, and almost all Lorraine lately, but he was forc'd to put a Fox's tail to the Lion's skin, which his Cardinal help'd him to, before he could do the Work. The quarrel is, that the Duke should marry his Sister to Monsieur, contrary to promise, that he sided with the Imperialists, against his confederates in Germany, that he neglected to do homage for the Dutchy of Bar.

My Lord Viscount Savage is lately dead, who is very much lamented by all that knew him; I could have wish'd, had it pleas'd God, that his Father-in-law, who is riper for the other World, had gone before him: So I rest,

Westmin. Apr. 6.

Your Lordships most humble and
ready Servitor, J. H.

XXVI.

To his honoured Friend, Mistress C. at her House
in Essex.

There was no Sorrow sunk deeper into me a great while, than that which I conceiv'd upon the death of my dear Friend, your Husband: The last Office I could do him, was to put him in his Grave: And I am sorry to have met others there, (who had better means to come in a Coach with six Horses than I) in so mean Equipage to perform the last act of Respect to so worthy a Friend. I have sent you herewith an Elegy which my melancholy Muse hath breath'd out upon his Hearse. I shall be very careful about the Tomb you intend him, and will think upon an Epitaph. I pray present my Respects to Mrs. Anne Mayne. So wishing you all comfort and contentment, I rest

Lond. Mar. 5.

Yours most ready to be commanded,
J. H.

XXVII.

To Mr. James Howard upon his Banished Virgin, translated out of Italian.

S I R,

I Receiv'd the Manuscript you sent me, and being a little curious to compare it with the Original, I find the Version to be very exact and faithful: So according to your Friendly request I have sent you this Decastich.

Some

Some hold Translations not unlike to be,
 The wrong side of a Turkey Tapistry;
 Or Wine drawn off the Lees, which fill'd in Flask,
 Lose somewhat of their strength they had in Cask.
 'Tis true, each Language hath an Idiom,
 Which in another couch'd comes not so home:
 Yet I ne'er saw a piece from Venice come,
 Had fewer thrums set on our Country Loom.
 This Wine is still one-ear'd, and brisk, though put Out of Italian Cask in English Butt.

Upon your Eromena.

Fair Eromena in her Toscan tyre
 I view'd, and lik'd the Fashion wondrous well,
 Cut in this English Habit I admire,
 That still in her that same good Grace should dwell:
 So I have seen Trans-Alphin Cions grow,
 And bear rare Fruit remov'd to Thames from Po.

Lond. October 6.

Your true Servitor and Compatriot,
 J. H.

XXVIII.

To Edward Noy, Esq; at Paris.

S I R,

I Receiv'd one of yours lately, and I am glad to find the delight that Travel begins to instil into you.

My Lord Ambassador Aston reckons upon you, that you will be one of his Train at his first Audience in Madrid, and to my knowledge he hath put by some Gentlemen of quality: Therefore I pray let not that dirty Town of Paris detain you too long from your intended Journey to Spain, for I make account my Lord Aston will be there a Matter of two Months hence. So I rest

Lond. May 5.

Your most affectionate Servitor,
 J. H.

1633.

XXIX.

To the Right Honourable Sir Peter Wichts, Lord
 Ambassador at Constantinople.

My Lord,

I T seems there is some angry Star that hath hung over this Business of the Palatinate from the beginning of these German Wars

Wars to this very Day, which will too evidently appear, if one should mark and deduce Matters from their first Rise.

You may remember how poorly Prague was lost: The Bishop of Halverstadt and Count Mansfelt shuffled up and down a good while, and did great Matters, but all came to nothing at last. You may remember how one of the Ships Royal was cast away in carrying over the last, and the 12000 Men he had hence perish'd many of them very miserably, and he himself, as they write, died in a poor Hostrey with one Lacquey, as he was going to Venice to a bank of Money he had stor'd up there for a dead lift. Your Lordship knows what Success the King of Denmark had (and our 6000 Men under Sir Charles Morgan) for while he thought to make new acquests, he was in hazard to lose all that he had, had not he had favourable Propositions tendred him. There were never poor Christians perished more lamentably than those 6000 we sent under Marquis Hamilton for the assistance of the King of Sweden, who did much, but you know what became of him at last: How disastrously the Prince Palatine himself fell, and in what an ill conjuncture of time, being upon the very point of being restor'd to his Country.

But now we have as bad News as any we had yet; for the young Prince Palatine, and his Brother Prince Rupert, having got a jolly considerable Army in Holland, to try their Fortunes in Germany with the Swedes, they had advanc'd as far as Munsterland, and Westphalia, and having lain before Lengua, they were forc'd to raise the Siege; and one General Hatzfield pursuing them, there was a sore Battle fought, wherein Prince Rupert, my Lord Craven, and others were taken Prisoners. The Prince Palatine himself, with Major King, thinking to get over the Waser in a Coach, the Water being deep, and not fordable, he sav'd himself by the help of a Willow, and so went a Foot all the way to Munden, the Coach and the Coachman being drown'd in the River: There were near upon 2000 slain on the Palsgraves side, and scarce the twentieth part so many on Hatzfields. Major Gauts, one of the chief Commanders was kill'd.

I am sorry I must write unto you this sad Story; yet to countervail something, Saxon Waymar thrives well, and is like to get Brisack by help of the French Forces. All your Friends here are well, and remember your Lordship often, but none more oft than Lond. June 5.

1635

Your most humble and ready
Servitor, J. H.

XXX.

To Sir Sackvil C. Knight.

S I R,

I Was as glad that you have lighted upon so excellent a Lady, as if an Astronomer by his Opticks had found out a new Star; and if a Wife be the best or worst fortune of a Man, certainly you are one of the fortunatest Men in this Island.

The greatest News I can write unto you is, of a bloody Banquet, that was lately at Liege, where a great Faction was a fomenting 'twixt the Imperialists, and those that were devoted to France, amongst whom, one Ruelle a popular Burgher-Master was chief: The Count of Warsuxze, a Vassal of the King of Spains, having fled to thither from Flanders for some Offence, to ingratiate himself again into the King of Spains Favour, invited the said Ruelle to a Feast, and after brought him into a private Chamber, where he had provided a ghostly Father to confess him, and so some of the Soldiers whom he had provided before to guard the House, dispatch'd the Burgher-Master; the Town hearing this, broke into the House, cut to pieces the said Count, with some of his Soldiers, and dragg'd his Body up and down the Streets. You know such a fate befel Wallstein in Germany of late Years; who having got all the Emperors Forces into his Hands, was found to have intelligence with the Swede, therefore the Imperial Ban was not only pronounc'd against him, but a Reward promis'd to any that should dispatch him; some of the Emperors Soldiers at a great Wedding in Egra, of which Band of Soldiers Colonel Butler an Irishman was chief, broke into his Lodging when he was at Dinner, kill'd him, with three Commanders more that were at Table with him, and threw his Body out at a Window into the Streets.

I hear Butler is made since Count of the Empire. So humbly kissing your noble Ladies hands, I rest,

Lond. June 5.

Your faithful Servitor, J. H.

XXXI.

To Dr. Dupps, Lord Bishop of Chichester, his Highness's Tutor at St. James's.

My Lord,

IT is a well-becoming, and very worthy Work you are about, not to suffer Mr. Ben. Johnson to go so silently to his grave, or rot so suddenly. Being newly come to Town, and understanding that your

you Johnfontes Verbius was in the Press, upon the solicitation to Sir Thomas Hawkins, I suddenly fell upon the ensuing Decastich, which if your Lordship please, may have room amongst the rest.

Upon my honoured Friend and Father, Mr. Ben.
Johnson.

AND is thy Glass run out, is that Oyl spent
Which Light to such strong Sinewy Labours lent?

Well Ben; I now perceive that all the Nine,
Though they their utmost Forces should combine,
Cannot prevail 'gainst Nights three Daughters, but
One still must spin, one wind, the other cut.

Yet in despite of distaff, clue and knife,
Thou in thy strenuous Lines hath got a Life,
Which like thy Bays shall flourish ev'ry Age,
While sock or buskin shall ascend the Stage.

—————Sic vaticinatur Hoellus.

So I rest with many devoted Respects to your Lordship, as being

Lond. May 1.

1636.

Your very humble

Servitor, J. H.

XXXII.

To Sir Ed. B. Knight.

SIR,

I Receiv'd yours this Maunday Thursday: And whereas amongst other Passages, and high endearments of Love, you desire to know what method I observe in the exercise of my Devotions, I thank you for your request, which I have reason to believe doth proceed from an extraordinary respect unto me; and I will deal with you herein, as one should do with his Confessor.

'Tis true, though there be Rules and Rubricks in our Liturgy, sufficient to guide every one in the Performance of all holy Duties, yet I believe every one hath some mode and model or formulary of his own, especially for his private cubicular Devotions.

I will begin with the last Day of the Week, and with the latter end of that Day, I mean Saturday Evening, on which I have fasted ever since I was a Youth in Venice, for being deliver'd from a very great Danger: This Year I use some extraordinary Acts of Devotion to usher in the ensuing Sunday in Hymns, and various Prayers of my own penning, before I go to Bed. On Sunday Morning I rise earlier than upon other Days, to prepare myself for the Sanctifying of it; nor do I use Barber, Taylor, Shoo-maker, or any other Mechanick that Morning; and whatsoever diversions or lets may hinder me the Week before, I never miss, but in case of Sicknes, to repair to Gods holy House that Day, where I come before Prayers begin, to make myself fitter for the work by some previous Meditations, and take the whole Service along with me; nor do I love to mingle Speech with any in the interim, about News or worldly Negotiations. In Gods holy House I prostrate myself in the humblest and decent'st way of genuflection I can imagine; nor do I believe there can be any excess of exterior Humility in that Place; therefore I do not like those squatting unseemly bold postures upon ones Tail, or muffling the Face in the Hat, or thrusting it in some hole, or covering it with ones Hand; but with bended Knee, and an open confident Face, I fix my Eyes on the East part of the Church, and Heaven. I endeavour to apply every tittle of the Service to my own Conscience and Occasions, and I believe the want of this, with the huddling up, and careless reading of some Ministers, with the commonness of it, is the greatest cause that many do undervalue, and take a Surfeit of our publick Service.
my

For the reading and singing Psalms, whereas most of them are either Petitions or Eucharistical Ejaculations, I listen to them more attentively, and make them my own: When I stand at the Creed, I think upon the custom they have in Poland, and else-where, for Gentlemen to draw their Swords all the while, intimating thereby, that they will defend it with their Lives and Blood: And for the Decalogue, whereas others use to rise, and sit, I ever kneel at it in the humblest and trembling'st posture of all, to crave remission for the breaches past of any of Gods holy Commandments, (especially the Week before) and future Grace to observe them.

I love a holy devout Sermon, that first checks, and then cheers the Conscience, that begins with the Law, and ends with the Gospel; but I never prejudicate or censure any Preacher, taking him as I find him.

And now that we are not only adulted, but ancient Christians, I believe the most acceptable Sacrifice we can send up to Heaven, is Prayer and Praise, and that Sermons are not so essential as either of them to the true practice of Devotion. The rest of the holy Sabbath, I sequester my Body and Mind as much as I can from worldly Affairs.

Upon Monday Morn, as soon as the Cinque-Ports are open, I have a par-

a particular Prayer of Thanks, that I am reprieved to the beginning of that Week; and every Day following, I knock thrice at Heavens Gate, in the Morning, in the Evening, and at Night; besides, Prayers at Meals, and some other occasional Ejaculations, as upon the putting on of a clean Shirt, washing of my Hands, and at lighting of Candles, which because they are sudden, I do in the third Person.

Tuesday Morning I rise Winter and Summer as soon as I awake, and send up a more particular Sacrifice, for some Reasons; and as I am dispos'd, or have Business, I go to Bed again.

Upon Wednesday Night I always Fast, and perform also some extraordinary Acts of Devotion, as also upon Friday Night, and Saturday Morning, as soon as my Senses are unlock'd I get up. And in the Summer-time, I am oftentimes Abroad in some private Field, to attend the Sun-rising: And as I pray Thrice every Day, so I fast Thrice every Week, at least I eat but one Meal upon Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays, in regard I am jealous with myself, to have more Infirmities to answer for than others.

Before I go to Bed I make a Scrutiny of what peccant Humours have reign'd in me that Day, and so I reconcile myself to my Creator, and strike a Tally in the Exchequer of Heaven for my quietus est, e'er I close my Eyes, and leave no burden upon my Conscience.

Before I presume to take the Holy Sacrament, I use some extraordinary Acts of Humiliation to prepare myself some Days before, and by doing some Deeds of Charity; And commonly I compose some new Prayers, and divers of them written in my own Blood.

I use not to rush rashly into Prayer without a trembling precedent Meditation, and if any odd Thoughts intervene, and grow upon me, I check my self, and recommence; and this is incident to long Prayer, which are more subject to Mans Weakness, and the Devils Malice.

I thank God I have this Fruit of my Foreign Travels, that I can pray unto him every Day of the Week in a several Language, and upon Sunday in seven, which in Orisons of my own I punctually perform in my private Pomeridian Devotions.

Et sic eternam contendo attingere vitam.

By these steps I strive to climb up to Heaven, and my Soul prompts me I shall thither; for there is no object in the World delights me more, than to cast up my Eyes that Way, especially in a Star-light Night; and if my Mind be overcast with any odd Clouds of Melancholy, lancholy, when I look up and behold that glorious Fabrick, which I hope shall be my Country hereafter, there are new spirits begot in me presently, which make me scorn the World, and the pleasures thereof, considering the vanity of the one, and the inanity of the other.

Thus my Soul still moves Eastward, as all the Heavenly Bodies do; but I must tell you, that as those Bodies are overmaster'd and snatch'd away to the West, raptu primi mobilis, by the general Motion of the tenth Sphere, so by those Epidemical Infirmities which are incident to Man, I am often snatch'd away a clean contrary Course, yet my Soul persists still in her own proper Motion: I am often at variance, and angry with myself (nor do I hold this Anger to be any breach of Charity) when I consider, That whereas my Creator intended this Body of mine, though a lump of Clay, to be a Temple of his holy Spirit, my Affections should turn it often to a Brothel-house, my Passions to a Bedlam, and my Excesses to an Hospital.

Being of a Lay-Profession, I humbly conform to the Constitutions of the Church, and my spiritual Superiours, and I hold this Obedience to be an acceptable Sacrifice to God.

Difference in Opinion may work a disaffection in me, but not a detestation: I rather pity, than hate Turk or Infidel, for they are of the same Metal, and bear the same stamp as I do, though the Inscriptions differ; if I hate any, 'tis those Schismaticks that puzzle the sweet Peace of our Church, so that I could be content to see an Anabaptist go to Hell on a Brownists back.

Noble Knight, now that I have thus eviscerated myself, and dealt so clearly with you, I desire by way of Correspondence, that you would tell me, what way you take in your Journey to Heaven; for if my Breast lie so open to you, 'tis not fitting yours should be shut up to me; therefore I pray let me hear from you, when it may stand with your Convenience.

So I wish you your Hearts desire here, and Heaven hereafter, because I am

London, July 25.

1635.

Yours in no vulgar way of Friendship, J. H.

XXXIII.

To Simon Digby, Esquire, at Moscow, the Emperor of Russia's Court.

S I R,

I Receiv'd one of yours by Mr. Pickhurst, and I am glad to find that the rough clime of Russia agrees so well with you: so well as you write, as the Catholick air of Madrid, or the Imperial air of Vienna, where you had such honourable Employments.

The greatest News we have here is, that we have a Bishop Lord Treasurer; and 'tis News indeed in these Times, though 'twas no News you know in the Times of old to have a Bishop Lord Treasurer of England. I believe he was meerly Passive in this Business; the Active Instrument that put the white Staff in his Hands, was the Metropolitan at Lambeth.

I have other News also to tell you, we have a brave new Ship, a Royal Galleon, the like, they say, did never spread Sail upon Salt-water, take her true and well compacted Symmetry, with all dimensions together; for her burden, she hath as many Tuns as there were Years since the Incarnation, when she was built, which are sixteen hundred thirty and six; she is in length one hundred twenty and seven foot, her greatest breadth with the planks, is forty six foot, and six inches; her depth from the breadth is nineteen foot, and four inches: She carrieth a hundred Peices of Ordnance wanting four, whereof she hath three tire; half a score Men may stand in her Lanthorn: the charges His Majesty hath been at in the building of her, are computed to be fourscore thousand pounds, one whole Years Ship Money: Sir Robert Mansel launc'd her, and by his Majesty's command call'd her, The Sovereign of the Sea: Many would have had her to be nam'd the Edgar, who was one of the most famous Saxon Kings this Island had, and the most potent at Sea. Ranulphus Cestrensis writes, That he had four hundred Ships, which every Year after Easter, went out in four Fleets to scour the Coasts. Another Author writes, That he had four Kings to row him once upon the Dee. But the Title he gave himself, was a notable lofty one, which was this, Altitonantis Dei largesflua clementia qui est Rex Regum, Ego Edgardus Anglorum Basilus, omnium Regum, Insularum, Oceanique Britanniam circumjacentis, cunctarumque Nationum quae infra eam includuntur, Imperator & Dominus, &c. I do not think your grand Emperor of Russia hath a loftier Title; I confess the Sophy of Persia hath a higher one, though prophane and ridiculous, in comparison of this; For he calls himself, The Star high and mighty, whose head is cover'd with the Sun, whose motion is comparable to the Aethereal Firmament, Lord of the Mountains, Caucasus and Taurus, of the four Rivers, Euphrates, Tygris, Araxis and Indus; Bud of Honour, Mirrour of Vertue, Rose of Delight, and Nutmeg of Comfort: It is a huge descent methinks, to begin with a Star, and end in a Nutmeg.

All your Friends here in Court and City are well, and often mindful of you, with a World of good wishes, and you cannot be said to be out of England, as long as you live in so many noble memories:

memories: Touching mine, you have a large room in it, for you are one of my cheif inmates. So with my humble Service to your Lady, I rest

London, July 1.

1635.

Your most faithful Servitor

while J. H.

XXXIV.

To Dr. Tho. Prichard.

Dear Dr.

I Have now had too long a supersedeas from employment, having engag'd myself to a fatal man at Court (by his own seeking) who I hoped, and had reason to expect (for I wav'd all other ways) that he would have been a Scale towards my rising, but he hath rather prov'd an Instrument to my ruin: it may be he will prosper accordingly.

I am shortly bound for Ireland, and it may be the Stars will cast a more benign Aspect upon me in the West; you know who got the Persian Empire by looking that way for the first beams of the Sun-rising, rather than towards the East.

My Lord Deputy hath made often professions to do me a pleasure, and I intend now to put him upon it.

I purpose to pass by the Bath for a pain I have in my Arm, proceeding from a Defluxion of Rheum, and then I will take Brecknock in my way, to comfort my sister Penry, who I think hath lost one of the best husbands in all the thirteen Shires of Wales.

So with apprecation of all happiness to you, I rest

London. Feb. 10.

1637.

Yours while,

J. H.

XXXV.

To Sir Kenelme Digby, Knight, from Bath.

S I R,

YOur being then in the Countrey, when I began my journey for Ireland, was the cause I could not kiss your hands, therefore I shall do now from Bath, what I should have done at London.

Being here for a distillation of Rheum that pains me in one of my Arms, and having had about three thousand stroaks of a pump upon me in the Queens Bath: And having been here now divers days, and view'd the several qualities of these Waters, I fell to contemplate a little what should be the reason of such extraordinary actual heat, and medicinal virtue in them. I have seen and read of divers Baths abroad, as those of Cadanel and Avinian in Lagro Senensi, the Grotta in Vicerbio, those between Naples and Puteolum in Campania ; and I have been a little curious to know the reason of those rare Lymphatical Properties in them above other Waters. I find that some impute it to Wind, or Air, or some Exhalations shut up in the Bowels of the Earth, which either by their own nature, or by their violent motion and agitation, or attrition upon Rocks and narrow passages, do gather heat, and so impart it to the Waters.

Others attribute this balneal heat unto the Sun, whose all-searching Beams penetrating the Pores of the Earth, do heat the Waters.

Others think this heat to proceed from quick lime, which by common experience we find to heat any Waters cast upon it, and also to kindle any combustible substance put upon it.

Lastly, there are some that ascribe this heat to a subterranean fire kindled in the bowels of the Earth, upon sulphury and bituminous matter.

'Tis true, all these may be general concurring causes, but not the adequate, proper and peculiar reason of balneal heats; and herein truly our learned Countreyman Dr. Jorden hath got the start of any that ever writ of this subject, and goes to work like a solid Philosopher ; for having treated of the generation of minerals, he finds that they have their Seminaries in the Womb of the Earth replenish'd with active spirits; which meeting with apt matter and adjuvant causes, do proceed to the generation of several species, according to the nature of the efficient, and fitness of the matter : In this work of generation, as there is generatio unius, so there is corruptio alterius ; and this cannot be done without a superior power, which by moisture dilating it self, works upon the matter like a leavening and ferment, to bring it to its own purpose.

This motion 'twixt the agent spirit, and patient matter, produceth an actual heat ; for motion is the fountain of heat, which serves as an instrument to advance the work ; for as cold dulls, so heat quickneth all things : Now for the nature of this heat, it is not a destructive violent heat, as that of fire, but a generative gentle heat, joyn'd with moisture, nor needs it air for eventilation : This natural heat is daily observ'd by digging in the Mines : so then while Minerals are thus engendring, and in solutis principiis, in their liquid forms, and not consolidated into hard bodies, (for then they have not that virtue) they impart heat to the neighbouring Waters. So then it may be concluded, that this soil about the Bath is a mineral vein of earth, and the fermenting gentle temper of generative heat that goes to the production of the said Minerals, doth impart and actually communicate this balneal virtue and medicinal heat to these Waters.

This

This Subject of Mineral Waters would afford an Ocean of matter, were one to compile a solid Discourse of it: And I pray excuse me, that I have presum'd in so narrow a compass as a Letter, to comprehend so much, which is nothing I think, in comparison of what you know already of this matter.

So I take my Leave, and humbly kiss your Hands, being always

Your Lordships most faithful and ready Servant,

From the Bath, July 3.

1638.

J. H.

XXXVI.

To Sir Edward Savage, Knight, at Tower-Hill,
From Dublin.

S I R,

I Am come safely to Dublin, over an angry boisterous Sea; whether 'twas my Voyage on salt Water, or change of Air, being now under another Clime, which was the Cause of it, I know not, but I am suddenly freed of the Pain in my Arm, when neither Bath, nor Plaisters, and other Remedies could do me good.

I deliver'd your Letter to Mr. James Dillon, but nothing can be done in that Business till your Brother Pain comes to Town. I meet here with divers of my Northern Friends, whom I knew at York. Here is a most splendid Court kept at the Castle, and except that of the Vice-roy of Naples, I have not seen the like in Christendom; and in one point of Grandezza, the Lord Deputy here goes beyond him, for he can confer Honours, and dub Knights, which that Vice-roy cannot, or any other I know of. Traffick encreaseth here wonderfully, with all kind of Bravery and Buildings.

I made an humble motion to my Lord, that in regard Business of all sorts did multiply here daily, and that there was but one Clerk of the Council (Sir Paul Davis) who was able to dispatch Business, (Sir William Usher his Colleague being very aged and bedrid) his Lordship would please to think of me: My Lord gave me an Answer full of good Respects, to succeed Sir William after his Death.

No more now, but with my most affectionate Respects unto you, I rest

Dublin, May 3.

1639.

Your faithful Servitor,

J. H.

XXXVII.

To Dr. Usher, Lord Primate of Ireland.

MAY it please your Grace, to accept of my most humble Acknowledgments, for those Noble Favours I received at Drogheda, and that you pleas'd to communicate unto me those rare Manuscripts in so many Languages, and divers choice Authors in your Library.

Your Learned Work De primordiis Ecclesiarum Britannicarum, which you pleas'd to send me, I have sent to England, and so it shall be convey'd to Jesus Colledge in Oxford, as a Gift from your Grace.

I hear that Cardinal Barberino, one of the Pope's Nephews, is setting forth the Works of Fastidius a British Bishop, call'd, De Vita Christiana. It was written 300 years after our Saviour, and Holstenius hath the care of the Impression.

I was lately looking for a word in Suidas, and I lighted upon a strange passage in the Name Ἰησους; That in the Reign of Justinian the Emperor, one Theodosius a Jew, a Man of great Authority, liv'd in Jerusalem, with whom a rich Goldsmith, who was a Christian, was much in favour, and very familiar. The Goldsmith in private discourse, told him one day, That he wondred, he being a Man of such great Understanding, did not turn Christian, considering how he found all the Prophecies of the Law so evidently accomplish'd in our Saviour, and our Saviour's Prophecies accomplish'd since. Theodosius answered, That it did not stand with his Security and continuance in Authority to turn Christian, but he had a long time had a good opinion of that Religion, and he would discover a Secret unto him which was not yet come to the Knowledge of any Christian: It was, That when the Temple was founded in Jerusalem, there were 22 Priests, according to the number of the Hebrew Letters, to officiate in the Temple, and when any was chosen, his name with his fathers and mothers, were used to be registred in a fair Book. In the time of Christ, a Priest died, and he was chosen in his Place; but when his name was to be entred, his father Joseph being dead, his mother was sent for, who being asked who was his father? she answered, That she never knew Man, but that she conceiv'd by an Angel: So his name was registred in these words; JESUS CHRIST THE SON OF GOD AND OF THE VIRGIN MARY. This Record at the Destruction of the Temple was preserved, and is to be seen in Tyberias to this day. I humbly desire your Graces opinion hereof in your next.

They write to me from England of rare news in France, which is, That the Queen is delivered of a Dauphin, the wonderfull'st thing of this kind that any Story can parallel; for this is the three
and

and twentieth year since she was married, and hath continued childless all this while; so that now Monsieur's cake is dough, and I believe he will be more quiet hereafter. So I rest, Dublin, March 1.

1639.

Your Grace's most devoted
Servitor, J. H.

XXXVIII.

To my Lord Clifford, from Edinburgh.

My Lord,

I Have seen now all the King of Great Britain's Dominions; and he is a good Traveller that seen all his Dominions. I was born in Wales, I have been in all the four corners of England, I have traversed the Diameter of France more than once, and now I am come thorough Ireland into this Kingdom of Scotland. This Town of Edinburgh is one of the fairest Streets that ever I saw, (excepting that of Palermo in Sicily) it is about a mile long, coming sloping down from the Castle (call'd of old the Castle of Virgins, and by Pliny, Castrum Alatum) to Holy-Rood House, now the Royal Palace; and these two begin and terminate the Town. I am come hither in a very convenient time, for here is a National Assembly, and a Parliament, my Lord Traquair being his Majesty's Commissioner. The Bishops are all gone to wrack, and they have had but a sorry Funeral, the very Name is grown so contemptible, that a black Dog if he have any white marks about him, is call'd Bishop. Our Lord of Canterbury is grown here so odious, that they call him commonly in the Pulpit, The Priest of Baal, and the son of Belial.

I'll tell your Lordship of a passage which happen'd lately in my Lodging, which is a Tavern: I had sent for a Shoo-maker to make me a pair of Boots, and my Landlord, who is a pert smart Man, brought up a Chopin of White-wine (and for this particular, there are better French Wines here than in England, and cheaper; for they are but at a Groat a Quart, and it is a Crime of a high nature to mingle or sophisticate any Wine here.) Over this Chopin of White-wine, my Vintner and Shoo-maker fell into a hot Dispute about Bishops: The Shoo-maker grew very furious, and call'd them, The firebrands of Hell, the Panders of the Whore of Babylon, and the Instruments of the Devil, and that they were of his Institution, not of God's. My Vintner took him up smartly, and said, Hold, Neighbour, there; Do you not know, as well as I, that Titus and Timothy were Bishops? that our Saviour is entitled, The Bishop of our Souls? that the word

Bishop is as frequently mentioned in Scripture as the Name Pastor, Elder or Deacon? then why do you inveigh so bitterly against them? The Shoo-maker answered, I know the Name and Office to be good, but they have abused it. My Vintner replies, Well then, you are a Shoo-maker by your Profession, imagine that you, or a hundred, or a thousand, or a hundred thousand of your Trade should play the Knaves, and sell Calfskin-leather Boots for Neats-leather, or do other Cheats, must we therefore go barefoot? must the Gentle-craft of Shoo-makers fall therefore to the ground? It is the Fault of the Men, not of the Calling. The Shoo-maker was so gravell'd at this, that he was put to his Last, for he had not a word more to say: so my Vintner got the day.

There is a fair Parliament-House built here lately, and 'twas hoped his Majesty would have ta'en the Maidenhead of it, and come hither to sit in Person; and they did ill who advis'd him otherwise.

I am to go hence shortly back to Dublin, and so to London, where I hope to find your Lordship, that according to my accustomed boldness, I may attend you: In the interim I rest Edinburgh.

1639.

Your Lordships most humble
Servitor, J. H.

XXXIX.

To Sir K. Digby, Knight.

S I R,

I Thank you for the good Opinion you please to have of my Fancy of Trees; it is a maiden one, and not blown upon by any yet: But for the Merits you please to ascribe unto the Author, I utterly disclaim any, especially in that proportion you please to give them me. 'Tis you that have Parts enough to compleat a whole Jury of Men. Those small Perquisites that I have, are thrust up into a little narrow Lobby; but those Perfections that beautifie your noble Soul, have a spacious Palace to walk in, more sumptuous than either the Louvre, Seraglio, or Escorial. So I most affectionately kiss your hands, being always

Your most faithful Servitor,
J. H.

Westmin. Decem. 3.
1639.

XL. To

XL.

To Sir Sackvill Crow, His Majesty's Ambassador at the Port of Constantinople.

Right Honourable Sir,

THE greatest News we have here now is, a notable naval Fight that was lately betwixt the Spaniard and the Hollander, in the Downs; but to make it more intelligible, I will deduce the Business from the beginning.

The King of Spain had provided a great Fleet of Galleons, whereof the Vice-Admirals of Naples and Portugal were two, (whereof he had sent Advice to England long before.) The design was to meet with the French Fleet under the Command of the Archbishop of Bourdeaux, and in default of that, to land some treasure at Dunkirk, with a recruit of Spaniards, which were grown very thin in Flanders. These recruits were got by an odd trick; for some of the Fleet being at Saint Anderas, a report was blown up of purpose, that the French were upon the Coasts; hereupon all the young Men of the Countrey came to the Sea-side, and so a great number of them were tumbled a Shipboard, and so they set sail towards the Coasts of France; but the Archbishop it seems had drawn in his Fleet: Then striking into the Narrow-Seas, they met with a Fleet of about sixteen Hollanders, whereof they sunk and took two, and the rest got away to Holland, to give an Alarm to the States, who in less than a month got together a Fleet of about one hundred sail, and the Wind being a long time Easterly, they came into the Downs, where Don Antonio de Oquendo, the Spanish Admiral had stayed for them all the while. Sir John Pennington was then abroad with seven of his Majesty's Ships: And Don Antonio being daily warn'd what Forces were preparing in Zealand and Holland, and so advis'd to get over to the Flemish Coasts, in the interim with a haughty Spirit, he answer'd, Tengo de quedarme aqui para castigar estos Rebeldes: I will stay here to chastise these Rebels. There were ten more of his Majesty's Ships appointed to go joyn with Sir John Pennington to observe the motions of those Fleets, but the Wind continuing still East, they could not get out of the River.

The Spanish Fleet had fresh Waters, Victuals, and other Necessaries from our Coasts for their money, according to the Capitulations of Peace, all this while: At last, being half surprized by a cloud of Hollanders, consisting of one hundred and fourteen Ships, they launch'd out from our Coasts, and a most furious Fight began, our Ships having retir'd hard by all the while: The Vice-Admiral of Portugal, a famous Sea-Captain, Don Lope de Hozes, was engag'd engag'd in close Fight with the Vice-Admiral of Holland, and after many tough rencounters they were both blown up, and burnt together. At last, night came and parted the rest; but six Spanish Ships were taken, and about twenty of the Hollanders perish'd. Oquendo then cross'd over to Nardick, and so back to Spain, where he died before he came to the Court; and 'tis thought, had he liv'd, he had been question'd for some miscarriages; for if he had suffer'd the Dunkirkeers, who are nimbler and more fit for Fight, to have had the Van, and dealt with the Hollander, 'tis thought matters might have gone better with him; but his Ambition was, that the great Spanish Galleons should get the Glory of the day.

The Spaniards give out that they had the better, in regard they did the main work, for Oquendo had conveyed all his recruits and treasure to Flanders, while he lay hovering on our Coasts.

One thing is herein very observable, what a mighty Navigable Power the Hollander is come to, that in so short a compass of time, he could appear with such a numerous Fleet of one hundred and fourteen Sails of Men of War, in such a perfect Equipage.

The Times afford no more at present, therefore with a tender of my most humble Service to my noble Lady, and my thankful Acknowledgments for those great Favours which my Brother Edward writes to me he hath receiv'd from your Lordship in so singular a manner at that Port, desiring you would still oblige me with a continuance of them; I rest amongst those multitudes you have left behind you in England,

Your Lordships most faithful

Lond. Aug. 3. 1639.

Servitor,

J. H.

XLI.

To Sir J. M. Knight.

S I R,

I Hear that you begin to blow the Cole, and offer sacrifice to Demogorgon, the God of Minerals: be well advised before you engage yourself too deep; Chymistry I know, by a little Experience, is wonderful pleasing for the tryal of so many rare conclusions it carries with it, but withal 'tis costly, and an enchanting kind of thing; for it hath melted many a fair Mannor in Crucibles, and turn'd them to smoak. One presented Sixtus Quintus (Sice-cinq, as Queen Elizabeth call'd him) with a Book of Chymistry, and the Pope gave him an empty purse for a reward.

There

There be few whom Mercury the father of Miracles doth favour: the Queen of Sheba, and the King Crown'd with Fire, are not propitious to many: He that hath water turned to ashes, hath the Magistery, and the true Philosophers Stone; there be few of those: There be some that commit fornication in Chymistry, by Heterogeneous and Sophistical Citrinations; but they never come to the Phoenix nest.

I know you have your share of Wisdom, therefore I confess it a Presumption in me, to give you Counsel. So I rest

Westmin. Feb. 1.

Your most faithful Servitor,

1638.

J. H.

XLII.

To Simon Digby, Esquire, at the Grand Moscow in Russia.

S I R,

I Return you many Thanks for your last of the first of June, and that you acquaint me with the State of Things in that Countrey.

I doubt not but you have heard long since of the Revolt of Catalonia from the King of Spain; it seems the sparkles of those Fires are flown to Portugal, and put that Countrey also in Combustion. The Duke of Braganza, whom you may well remember about the Court of Spain, is now King of Portugal, by the name of El Rey Don Juan, and he is as generally obey'd, and quietly settled, as if he had been King these twenty years there; for the whole Countrey fell suddenly to him, not one Town standing out. When the King of Spain told Olivares of it first, he slighted it, saying, That he was but Rey de Havat, a Bean-cake King. But it seems strange to me, and so strange, that it transforms me to wonder, that the Spaniard being accounted so politick a Nation, and so full of Precaution, could not foresee this; especially, there being divers Intelligences given, and evident symptoms of the general discontentment of that Kingdom (because they could not be protected against the Hollander in Brazil) and of some Designs a year before, when this Duke of Braganza was at Madrid. I wonder, I say, they did not secure his Person, by engaging him in some employment out of the way: Truly I thought the Spaniard was better sighted, and could see further off than so. You know what a huge limb the Crown of Portugal was to the Spanish Monarchy, by the Islands in the Atlantick Sea, the Towns in Africk
and

and all the East-Indies, insomuch, that the Spaniard hath nothing now left beyond the Line.

There is no offensive War yet made by Spain against King John, she only stands upon the defensive part, until the Catalan be reduc'd; and I believe, that will be a long-winded Business, for this French Cardinal stirs all the Devils of Hell against Spain, insomuch, that most Men say, that these formidable Fires which are now raging in both these Countries, were kindled at first by a Granado hurl'd from his Brain: Nay, some will not stick to say, that this Breach betwixt us and Scotland, is a reach of his.

There was a ruthless Disaster happen'd lately at Sea, which makes our Merchants upon the Exchange hang down their heads very sadly. The Ship Swan, whereof one Limery was Master, having been four years abroad about the Streights, was sailing home with a Cargazon valued at eight hundred thousand pounds, whereof four hundred and fifty thousand was in Money, the rest in Jewels and Merchandise; but being in sight of Shore, she sprung a leak, and being ballasted with Salt, it choak'd the Pump, so that the Swan could swim no longer: Some sixteen were drown'd, and some of them with ropes of Pearl about their necks, the rest were sav'd by an Hamburgher not far off. The King of Spain loseth little by it (only his Affairs in Flanders may suffer) for his Money was insur'd, and few of the Principals, but the Insurers only, who were most of them Genouese and Hollanders. A most unfortunate Chance, for had she come to safe Port, she had been the richest Ship that ever came into the Thames; so that Neptune never had such a morsel at one bit.

All your Friends here are well, as you will understand more particularly by those Letters that go herewith. So I wish you all Health and Comfort in that cold Countrey, and desire that your Love may continue still in the same degree of Heat towards 1639.

London, Mar. 5.

Your faithful Servitor,

J. H.

XLIII.

To Sir K. D. Knight.

SIR,

IT was my fortune to be in a late communication where a Gentleman spoke of a hideous thing that happen'd in High-Holbourn, how one John Pennant, a young Man of 21, being dissected after his death, there was a kind of Serpent with divers tails found in the left Ventricle of his Heart, which you know is the most defended part, part, being thrice thicker than the right, and in the Cell which holds the purest and most illustrious liquor, the arterial blood, and the vital Spirits. This Serpent was it seems three years ingendring, for so long time he found himself indisposed in the breast; and it was observ'd, that his Eye in the interim grew more sharp and fiery, like the eye of a Cock, which is next to a Serpents eye in redness; so that the symptom of his inward Disease might have been told by certain exterior Rays and Signatures.

God preserve us from publick Calamities, for Serpentine Monsters have been often ill-favoured Prefages. I remember in the Roman Story to have read, how when Snakes or Serpents were found near the Statues of their Gods, as one time about Jupiter's neck, another time about Minerva's thigh, there followed bloody Civil Wars after it.

I remember also, few years since, to have read the relation and deposition of the Carrier of Tewxbury, who, with divers of his Servants, passing a little before the dawn of the day with their packs over Cots-Hill, saw most sensibly and very perspicuously in the Air, Musketeers, harnessed Men, and Horse-men, moving in Battel Array, and assaulting one another in divers furious Postures. I doubt not but that you have heard of those fiery Meteors and Thunderbolts that have fallen upon sundry of our Churches, and done hurt. Unless God be pleas'd to make up these Ruptures betwixt us and Scotland, we are like to have ill days. The Archbishop of Canterbury was lately outrag'd in his House by a pack of common People; and Captain Mahun was pitifully massacred by his own Men lately: So that the common People, it seems, have strange Principles infus'd into them, which may prove dangerous; for I am not of that Lord's Mind who said, That they who fear any Popular Insurrection in England, are like Boys and Women, that are afraid of a Turnip cut like a Deaths Head with a Candle in it.

I am shortly for France, and I will receive your Commands before I go. So I am

Lond. May 2.

1640.

Your most humble Servitor,

J. H.

XLIV.

To my Lord Herbert of Cherberry, from Paris.

My Lord,

I Send herewith Dodona's Grove couch'd in French, and in the newest French; for though the main Version be mine, yet I got one of the Academy Des Beaux Esprits here to run it over, to correct rect and refine the Language, and reduce it to the most modern Dialect. It took so here, that the new Academy of Wits have given a publick and far higher Elogium of it than it deserves. I was brought to the Cardinal at Ruelle, where I was a good while with him in his private Garden, and it were a vanity in me, to insert here what Propositions he made me. There be some Sycophants here that Idolize him, and I blush to read what prophane Hyperboles are printed up and down of him; I will instance in a few.

Cedite Richelo mortales, cedite Divi, Ille homines vincit, vincit & ille Deos.

Then,

*Et si nous faisons des ghirlandes,
C'est pour en couronner un Dieu,
Qui sous le nom de Richelieu,
Reçoit nos vœux & nos offrandes.*

Then,

Richelii adventu Rupellæ porta patefcit, Christo Infernales ut patuere fores.

Certainly he is a rare Man, and of a transcendant Reach, and they are rather Miracles than Exploits that he hath done, though those Miracles be of a sanguin Dye (the Colour of his Habit) steep'd in Blood, which makes the Spaniard call him the Grand Caga-fuego of Christendom. Divers of the scientificallst, and most famous Wits here, have spoken of your Lordship with Admiration, and of your great Work De veritate; and were those excellent Notions and theorical Precepts actually applied to any particular Science, it would be an infinite advantage to the Commonwealth of Learning all the World over. So I humbly kiss your hands, and rest

Paris, April 1.

1641.

Your Lordships most faithful

Servitor, J. H.

XLV.

To the Right Honourable Mrs. Elizabeth Altham, now Lady Digby.

Madam,

There be many sad Hearts for the Loss of my Lord Robert Digby; but the greatest weight of Sorrow falls upon your Ladyship. Amongst other excellent Virtues which the World admires you for, I know your Ladyship to have that measure of high Discretion, that will check your Passions: I know also, that your Patience hath hath been often exercised, and put to tryal in this kind; for besides the Baron your Father, and Sir James, you lost your Brother, Master Richard Altham, in the verdant'st time of his Age, a Gentleman of rare hopes, and I believe this sunk deep into your heart; you lost Sir Francis Astley since, a worthy virtuous Gentleman: And now you have lost a noble Lord. We all owe Nature a Debt, which is payable some time or other, whensoever she demands it; nor doth Dame Nature use to seal Indentures, or pass over either Lease or Patent for a set Term of Years to any. For my part, I have seen so much of the World, that if she offer'd me a Lease, I would give her but a small Fine for it; especially now that the Times are grown so naught, that People are become more than half mad: But, Madam, as long as there are Men, there must be malignant humours, there must be Vices and Vicissitudes of things; as long as the World wheels round, there must be tossings and tumblings, distractions and troubles, and bad times must be recompenc'd with better. So I humbly kiss your Ladyships hands, and rest,

Madam,

York, Aug. 1.

Your constant Servant,

1642.

J. H.

XLVI

To the Honourable Sir P. M. in Dublin.

SIR,

I Am newly return'd from France, and now that Sir Edw. Nicholas is made Secretary of State, I am put in fair hopes, or rather assurances to succeed him in the Clerkship of the Council.

The Duke De la Valette is lately fled hither for sanctuary, having had ill luck in Fontarabla, they say his Process was made, and that he was executed in Effigie in Paris. 'Tis true, he could never square well with his Eminency the Cardinal, (for this is a peculiar Title he got long since from Rome, to distinguish him from all other) nor his father neither, the little old Duke of Espernon, the ancientest Soldier in the World, for he wants but one year of a hundred.

When I was last in Paris, I heard of a facetious passage betwixt him and the Archbishop of Bordeaux, who in effect is Lord High Admiral of France, and 'twas thus: The Archbishop was to go General of a great Fleet, and the Duke came to his House in Bordeaux one morning to visit him; the Archbishop sent some of his Gentlemen to desire him to have a little Patience, for he was dispatching away some Sea-Commanders, and that he would wait on him presently: The little Duke took a peev at it, and went away to his house at Cadillac, some fifteen miles off: The next morning

the

the Archbishop came to pay him the Visit, and to apologize for himself; being come in, and the Duke told of it, he sent his Chaplain to tell him, That he was newly fallen upon a Chapter of Saint Austin's de Civitate Dei, and when he had read that Chapter, he would come to him.

Some years before, I was told he was at Paris, and Richelieu came to visit him, he having notice of it, Richelieu found him in a Cardinals Cap, kneeling at a Table Altar-wise, with his Book and Beads in his hand, and Candles burning before him.

I hear the Earl of Leicester is to come shortly over, and so over to Ireland to be your Deputy. No more now, but that I am

London. Sept. 7.

1641.

Your most faithful Servitor,

J. H.

XLVII.

To the Earl of B. from the Fleet.

My Lord,

I Was lately come to London upon some occasions of mine own, and I had been divers times in Westminster-Hall, where I convers'd with many Parliament-men of my Acquaintance, but one morning betimes there rush'd into my Chamber five armed Men with Swords, Pistols, and Bills, and told me they had a Warrant from the Parliament for me; I desir'd to see their Warrant, they denied it; I desired to see the date of it, they denied it; I desired to see my Name in the Warrant, they denied all; at last one of them pull'd out a greasie Paper out of his Pocket, and shew'd me only three or four Names subscrib'd, and no more; so they rush'd presently into my Closet, and seiz'd on all my Papers, and Letters, and any thing that was Manuscript, and many Printed Books they took also, and hurl'd all into a great Hair Trunk, which they carried away with them: I had taken a little Physick that morning, and with very much ado, they suffer'd me to stay in my Chamber with two Guards upon me till the Evening; at which time they brought me before the Committee for Examination, where I confess I found good Respects, and being brought up to the close Committee, I was order'd to be forth-coming, till some Papers of mine were perus'd, and Mr. Corbet was appointed to do it: Some days after, I came to Mr. Corbet, and he told me he had perus'd them, and could find nothing that might give offence: Hereupon, I desir'd him to make a Report to the House accordingly, which (as I was told) he did very fairly; yet such was my hard hap, that I was committed to the Fleet, where I am now under close Restraint:

straint: and as far as I see, I must lie at dead Anchor in this Fleet a long time, unless some gentle Gale blow thence to make me launch out. Gods Will be done, and amend the times, and make up these Ruptures which threaten so much Calamity. So I am

Your Lordships most faithful

Fleet, Nov. 20.

(though now afflicted)

1643.

Servitor,

J. H.

XLVIII.

To Sir Bevis Thelwall, Knight, (Petri ad vincula) at Peter House in London.

S I R,

THough we are not in the same Prison, yet are we in the same Predicament of Sufferance; therefore I presume you are subject to the like fits of Melancholy as I: The fruition of Liberty is not so pleasing, as a Conceit of the Want of it is irksome, especially to one of such free-born Thoughts as you. Melancholy is a black noxious humour, and much annoys the whole inward Man; if you would know what Cordial I use against it in this my sad Condition, I'll tell you, I pore sometimes on a Book, and so I make the Dead my Companions, and this is one of my chiefest Solaces; if the humour work upon me stronger, I rouse my Spirits, and raise them up towards Heaven, my future Countrey; and one may be on his Journey thither, though shut up in Prison, and happily go a straighter way than if he were abroad: I consider, that my Soul while she is coop'd within these walls of Flesh, is but in a kind of perpetual Prison: And now my Body corresponds with her in the same condition; my Body is the Prison of the one, and these Brick Walls the Prison of the other. And let the English People flatter themselves as long as they will, that they are free, yet are they in effect but Prisoners, as all other Islanders are; for being surrounded and clos'd about with salt Water (as I am with these Walls) they cannot go where they list, unless they ask the Winds leave first, and Neptune must give them a pass.

God Almighty amend the Times, and compose these woful divisions, which menace nothing but publick Ruin, the thoughts whereof drown in me the sense of mine own private Affliction.

So wishing you Courage (whereof you have enough, if you put it in practise) and Patience in this sad condition, I rest

From the Fleet, Aug. 2.

1643.

Your true Servant and Compatriot,

J. H.

XLIX.

To Mr. E. P.

S I R,

I Saw such prodigious things daily done these few years, that I had resolv'd with myself to give over wondring at any thing; yet a passage happen'd this week, that forc'd me to wonder once more, because it is without parallel. It was, that some odd fellows went skulking up and down London Streets, and with Figs and Reasons allur'd little Children, and so purloyn'd them away from their Parents, and carried them a Shipboard for beyond Sea, where by cutting their hair, and other devices, they so disguis'd them, that their Parents could not know them. This made me think upon that miraculous passage in Hamelen, a Town in Germany, which I hop'd to have pass'd through when I was in Hamburgh, had we return'd by Holland; which was thus (nor would I relate it unto you were there not some ground of Truth for it.) The said Town of Hamelen was annoyed with Rats and Mice; and it chanc'd, that a Pied-coat Piper came thither, who covenanted with the chief Burghers for such a reward, if he could free them quite from the said Vermin, nor would he demand it till a twelvemonth and a day after: The Agreement being made, he began to play on his Pipes, and all the Rats and Mice followed him to a great Lough hard by, where they all perished; so the Town was infected no more. At the end of the Year the pied Piper return'd for his reward, the Burghers put him off with flightings and neglect, offering him some small matter, which he refusing, and staying some days in the Town, one Sunday morning at high Mass, when most People were at Church, he fell to play on his Pipes, and all the Children up and down follow'd him out of the Town to a great Hill not far off, which rent in two, and opened, and let him and the Children in, and so clos'd up again. This happen'd a matter of two hundred and fifty Years since; and in that Town, they date their Bills and Bonds, and other Instruments in Law to this day from the Year of the going out of their Children: Besides, there is a great Pillar of Stone at the foot of the said Hill, whereon this Story is engraven.

No more now, for this is enough in Conscience for one time: So I am

Fleet, Octob. 1.

1643.

Your most affectionate Servitor,

J. H.

L. To

L.

To my Lord G. D.

My Lord,

THere be two weighty Sayings in Seneca, Nihil est infelicius eo, cui nil unquam contigit adversi: There is nothing more unhappy than he, who never felt any Adversity: The other is, Nullum est majus malum, quam non posse ferre malum: There is no greater cross, than not to be able to bear a cross. Touching the first, I am not capable of that kind of unhappiness; for I have had my share of Adversity, I have been hammer'd, and dilated upon the Anvil, as our Countreyman Breakspear (Adrian the fourth) said of himself, I have been strain'd through the limbeck of Affliction. Touching the second, I am also free of that cross; for, I thank God for it, I have that portion of Grace, and so much Philosophy, as to be able to endure, and confront any Misery: 'Tis not so tedious to me, as to others to be thus immur'd because I have been inur'd, and habituated to Troubles. That which sinks deepest into me, is the Sense I have of the common Calamities of this Nation; there is a strange Spirit hath got in amongst us, which makes the Idea of Holiness, the formality of Good, and the very faculty of Reason to be quite differing from what it was. I remember to have read a Tale of the Ape in Paris, who having got a Child out of the Cradle, and carried him up to the top of the Tiles, and there sat with him upon the Ridge. The Parents beholding this ruthless Spectacle, gave the Ape fair and smooth Language, so he gently brought the Child down again and replac'd him in the Cradle. Our Countrey is in the same case this Child was in, and I hope there will be sweet and gentle means us'd to preserve it from precipitation.

The City of London sticks constantly to the Parliament, and the Common-Council sways much, insomuch, that I believe, if the Lord Chancellor Egerton were now living, he would not be so pleasant with them, as he was once to a new Recorder of London, whom he had invited to Dinner to give him joy of his Office, and having a great Woodcock-Pye serv'd in about the end of the repast, which had been sent him from Cheshire, he said, Now, Master Recorder, you are welcome to a Common-Council.

There be many discreet brave Patriots in the City, and I hope they will think upon some means to preserve us and themselves from Ruin: Such are the Prayers, early and late, of 1643.

Fleet, Jan. 2.

Your Lordships most humble

Servitor, J. H.

S

Li. To

LI.

To Sir Alex. R. Knight.

S I R,

SURELY God Almighty is angry with England, and 'tis more sure, that God is never angry without Cause: Now to know this Cause the best way is, for every one to lay his Hand on his Breast, and examine himself thoroughly, to summon his thoughts and winnow them, and so call to remembrance how far he hath offended Heaven, and then it will be found, that God is not angry with England, but with Englishmen. When that doleful charge was pronounc'd against Israel, Perditio tua ex te Israel, it was meant of the concret (not the abstract;) O Israelites, your ruin comes from yourselves. When I make this scrutiny within myself, and enter into the closest Cabinet of my Soul, I find (God help me) that I have contributed as much to the drawing down of these Judgments on England, as any other: When I ransack the three Cells of my Brain, I find that my Imagination hath been vain and extravagant: My Memory hath kept the bad, and let go the good, like a wide Sieve that retains the Bran, and parts with the Floor, my Understanding hath been full of error and obliquities; my Will hath been a Rebel to Reason; my Reason a Rebel to Faith, which I thank God I have the Grace to quell presently with this Caution, Succumbat Ratio Fidei, & captiva quiescat.

When I descend to my Heart, the Centre of all my Affections, I find it hath swell'd often with Tympanies of Vanity, and Tumours of Wrath; when I take my whole Self in a lump, I find that I am nought else but a Cargazon of malignant Humours, a rabble of unruly Passions, amongst which my poor Soul is daily crucified, as 'twixt so many Thieves. Therefore as I pray in general, that God would please not to punish this Island for the sins of the People, so more particularly I pray, that she suffer not for me in particular; who, if one would go by way of Induction, would make one of the chiefest instances of the Argument: And as I am thus conscious to myself of my own demerits, so I hold it to be the Duty of every one, to compleat himself this way, and to remember the saying of a noble English Captain, who when the Town of Calis was lost (which was the last footing we had in France) being jeer'd by a Frenchman, and ask'd, Now Englishman, when will you come back to France? Answered, Oh Sir, mock not, when the Sins of France are greater than the Sins of England, the Englishmen will come again to France.

Before

Before the Sack of Troy, 'twas said and sung up and down the Streets, Iliacos intra muros peccatur & extra.

The Verse is as true for Sense and Feet,

Intra Londini muros peccatur & extra.

Without and eke within

The Walls of London there is Sin.

The Way to better the Times, is for every one to mend one; I will conclude with this serious Invocation. I pray God avert those further Judgments (of Famine and Pestilence) which are hovering over this populous, and once flourishing City, and dispose of the Brains and Hearts of this People, to seek and serve him aright.

I thank you for your last Visit, and for the Poem you sent me since. So I am

Your most faithful Servitor,

Fleet, June 3.

J. H.

LII.

To Mr. John Batty, Merchant.

S I R,

I Receiv'd the Printed Discourse you pleas'd to send me, call'd the Merchants Remonstrance, for which I return you due and deserved Thanks.

Truly Sir, it is one of the most material and solid Pieces I have read of this kind: And I discover therein two Things; First, the affection you bear to your Countrey, with the resentment you have of these woful Distractions: Then, the Judgment and choice Experience you have purchased by your Negotiations in Spain and Germany. In you may be verified the Tenet they hold in Italy, That the Merchant bred Abroad, is the best Common-wealths Man, being properly applied: For my part, I do not know any Profession of Life, (especially in an Island) more to be cherish'd and countenanced with honourable Employments than the Merchant-Adventurer; (I do not mean only the Staplers of Hamburgh and Rotterdam) for if valiant and dangerous Actions do ennoble a Man, and make him merit, surely the Merchant-Adventurer deserves more Honour than any, for he is to encounter not only with Men of all Tempers and humours, (as a French Counsellor hath it) but he contests and tugs oft-times with all the Elements: Nor do I see how some of our Country Squires, who sell Calves and Runts, and their Wives perhaps Cheese and Apples, should be held more genteel than the noble Merchant-Adventurer, who sells Silks and Sattins, Tissues and cloth of Gold, Diamonds and Pearl, with Silver and Gold.

In your Discourse, you foretell the sudden Calamities which are like to befall this poor Island, if Trade decay, and that this decay is inevitable, if these Commotions last: Herein you are prov'd half a Prophet already, and I fear your Prophecie will be fully accomplish'd if Matters hold thus. Good Lord! Was there ever People so active to draw on their own Ruin? which is so visible, that a purblind Man may take a prospect of it. We all see this apparently, and hear it told us every minute; but we are fallen to the condition of that foolish People the Prophet speaks of, Who had eyes, but would not see; and ears, but would not hear. All know there is nothing imports this Island more than Trade; it is that wheel of Industry, which sets all other a going; it is that which preserves the chiefest Castles and Walls of this Kingdom, I mean the Ships; and how these are impair'd within these four Years, I believe other Nations (which owe us an Invasion) observe and know better than we: For truly, I believe a Million, (I mean of Crowns) and I speak within compass, will not put the Navy-Royal in that strength as it was four Years since, besides the decay of Merchants Ships. A little before Athens was overcome, the Oracle told one of the Areopagitæ, That Athens had seen her best Days, for her Wooden Walls (meaning her Ships) were decayed. As I told you before, there is a Nation or two that owes us an Invasion.

No more now, but that with my most kind and friendly Respects unto you, I rest always

Yours to dispose of,
Fleet, May 4.
1644. J. H.

LIII.

To my honoured Friend Mr. E. P.

S I R,

THE Times are so ticklish, that I dare not adventure to send you any London Intelligence, she being now a Garrison Town,
and

and you know, as well as I, what danger I may incur ; but for Foreign, indifferent News, you shall understand that Pope Urban the eighth is dead, having sat in the Chair above twenty Years, a rare Thing ; for it is observ'd, that no Pope yet arriv'd to the Years of St. Peter, who, they say, was Bishop of Rome twenty and five. Cardinal Pamfilio a Roman born, a knowing Man, and a great Lawyer, is created Pope by assumption of the Name of Innocent the tenth : There was tough canvassing for Voices, and a great contrasto in the Conclave, 'twixt the Spanish and French Faction, who with the Barberino, stood for Sachetti, but he was excluded, as also another Dominican ; by these exclusions, the Spanish Party, whereof the Cardinal of Florence was chief, brought about Barberino to joyn with them for Pamfilio, as being also a Creator of the deceased Pope. He had been Nuncio in Spain eight Years, so that it is conceiv'd he is much devoted to that Crown, as his Predecessor was to the French, who had been Legate there near upon twenty Years, and was Godfather to the last King, which made him to be Fleurdelize, to be Flower-de-luc'd all over. This new Pope hath already pass'd that number of Years which the Prophet assigns to Man, for he goes upon Seventy one, and is of a strong promising Constitution to live some Years longer. He hath but one Nephew, who is but eighteen, and so not capable of Business ; he hath therefore made choice of some Cardinals more to be his Coadjutors : Pancirellio is his prime Confident, and lodg'd in Saint Peters. 'Tis thought he will presently set all Wheels a going to mediate an universal Peace. They write of one good Augury amongst the rest, that part of his Arms is a Dove, which hath been always held for an emblem of Peace ; but I believe it will prove one of the knottiest, and difficult'st Tasks that ever was attempted, as the case stands 'twixt the House of Austria and France, and the roughest and hardest knot I hold to be that of Portugal ; for it cannot yet enter into any Mans imagination, how that may be accommodated, though many Politicians have beaten their Brains about it. God Almighty grant, that the appeasing our Civil Wars prove not so intricate a Work, and that we may at last take warning by the devastations of other Countreys, before our own be past Cure.

They write from Paris, that Sir Kenelm Digby is to be employed to Rome from Her Majesty, in quality of a high Messenger of Honour to congratulate the new Pope, not of Ambassador, as the vulgar give out ; for none can give that Character to any, but a Sovereign independent Prince ; and all the World knows, that Her Majesty is under Couvert Baron, notwithstanding that, some cry her up for Queen Regent of England, as her Sister is of France.

The Lord Aubeny hath an Abbacy of one Thousand five Hundred Pistoles a Year given him yearly there, and is fair for a Cardinals Hat.

I continue still under this heavy pressure of close restraint, nor do I see any hopes (God help me) of getting forth till the Wind shift out of his unlucky hole: Howsoever, I am resolv'd, that if Innocence cannot free my Body, yet Patience shall preserve my mind still in its freiborn Thoughts: Nor shall this Storm slacken a whit that firm league of Love, wherein I am eternally tyed unto you, I will conclude with a Distich, which I found amongst those excellent Poems of the late Pope.

Quem valide strinxit prestanti pollice virtus, Nescius est solvi nodus Amicitiae.

Fleet, Jan. 1.

1644.

Your constant Servitor,

J. H.

LIV.

To the Lord Bishop of London, late Lord Treasurer of England.

My Lord,

YOU are one of the Miracles of these Times, the greatest mirrour of Moderation our Age affords; and as heretofore when you carried the white Staff, with such clean incorrupted Hands, yet the Crozier was still your chief Care: Nor was it perceiv'd that that high all-obliging Office did alter you a jot, or alienate you from yourself, but the same candour, and countenance of meekness appeared still in you, as whosoever had occasion to make their Address to your Gates, went away contented whether they sped in their Business, or not (a gift your Predecessor was said to want.) So since the turbulency of these Times, the same Moderation shines in you, notwithstanding that the Mitre is so trampled upon, and that there be such violent Factions a foot, insomuch, that you live not only secure from outrages, but honour'd by all Parties. 'Tis true, one Thing fell out to your advantage, that you did not subscribe to that Petition which prov'd so fatal to Prelacy; but the chief ground of the constant esteem the distracted World hath still of you is your Wisdom and Moderation, past and present: This put me in mind of one of your Predecessors, (in your late Office) Marquis Pawlet, who who it seems sail'd by the same compass ; for their being divers bandings, and Factions at Court in his Time, yet was he belov'd by all Parties, and being ask'd how he stood so right in the Opinions of all, he answer'd, By being a Willow, and not an Oak.

I have many Thanks to give your Lordship for the late Visits I had, and when this Cloud is scatter'd, that I may respire free Air, one of my first Journeys shall be to kiss your Lordships Hands : In the interim, I rest

The Fleet, Sept. 3.
1644.

Your most devoted and ready Servitor,
J. H.

LV.

To Sir E. S. Knight.

S I R,

THough I never had the least umbrage of your Love, or doubted of the reality thereof, yet since I fell into this plunge, it hath been much confirm'd unto me. It is a true Observation, that amongst other effects of Affliction, one is, to try a Friend ; for those proofs that are made in the fawnings, and dazzling Sunshine of Prosperity, are not so clear, as those which break out, and transpire through the dark Clouds of Adversity. You know the difference the Philosophers make 'twixt the two extreme colours black and white, that the one is congregativum, the other disgregativum visus : Black doth congregate, unite and fortifie the sight ; the other doth disgregate, scatter, and enfeeble it, when it fixeth upon any Object : So, through the sable Clouds of adverse Fortune, one may make a truer inspection into the Breast of a Friend. Besides this, Affliction produceth another far more excellent effect, it brings us to a better, and a more clear Knowledge of our Creator : For as the rising, and setting Sun, appears bigger unto us, than when he is in the Meridian, (though the distance be still the same) the cause whereof is ascrib'd to the interposition of mists, which lye 'twixt our Eyes and him, so through the thick fog of Adversity, (which in this point are as pellucid and diaphanous, as any Chrystal) we come to see God, and the immensity of his love in a fuller proportion. There cannot be clearer evidences of his Care, than his Corrections : When he makes the World to frown, then he smiles most upon us, though it be through a mask ; besides, it is always his method, to stroke them whom he strikes. We have an ordinary salute in English, God bless you ; and and though the Verb be radically deriv'd from the Dutch Word, yet it would bear good sense, and be very pertinent to this purpose, if we would fetch it from the French Word blesser, which is to hurt: This speculation raiseth my Spirits to to a great height of Comfort and Patience, that notwithstanding they have been a long time weigh'd down and quash'd, yet I shall at last overcome all these pressures, survive my Debts, and surmount my Enemies.

God pardon them, and preserve you, and take it not ill, that in this my Conclusion, I place you so near my Enemies: Whatsoever Fortune light on me, come fair or foul Weather, I shall be still Fleet, Aug. 5.

1644.

Your constant Servitor,
J. H.

LVI.

To Tho. Ham, Esquire.

S I R,

THere is no such Treasure as a true Friend, it is a Treasure far above that of Saint Marks in Venice; a Treasure that is not liable to those casualties, which others are liable unto, as to plundering and burglary, to Bankrupts and ill Debtors, to firing and shipwracks; for when one hath lost his Fortunes by any of these disasters, he may recover them all in a true Friend, who is always a sure and staple Commodity: This is verified in you, who have stuck so close unto me in these my pressures; Like a Glow-worm (the old emblem of true Friendship) you have shin'd unto me in the dark: Nor could you do good Offices to any that wisheth you better: For I always lov'd you for the freedom of your Genius, for those choice parts and fancies I found in you, which I confess, hath made me more covetous of your Friendship, than I use to be of others: And to deal clearly with you, one of my prime errands to this Town (when this disaster fell upon me) was to see you.

God put a speedy period to these sad Distempers; but this wish as I was writing it, did vanish in the impossibility of the Thing, for I fear they are of a long continuance: So I pray God keep you, and comfort me, who am

Your true Friend to serve you,
J. H.

The Fleet, May 5.
1643.

I.VII.

LVII.

To Phil. Warwick, Esquire.

S I R,

THE Earth doth not always produce Roses and Lillies, but she brings forth also Nettles and Thistles: So the World affords us not always Contentment and Pleasure, but sometimes Affliction and Trouble; Ut illa tribulos, sic iste tribulationes producit: The Sea is not more subject to contrary blasts, nor the Surges thereof to tossings and tumblings, as the Actions of Men are to encumbrances and crosses: The Air is not fuller of Meteors, than Man's Life is of Miseries; but as we find that it is not a clear Skie, but the Clouds that drop Fatness, as the Holy Text tells us, so Adversity is far more Fertile than Prosperity, it useth to Water, and mollifie the Heart, which is the centre of all our Affections, and makes it produce excellent Fruit; whereas the glaring Sun-shine of a continual Prosperity would enharden and dry it up, and so make it barren.

There is not a greater evidence of Gods Care and Love to his Creatures than Affliction: For as a French Author doth illustrate it by a familiar Example, If two Boys should be seen to fight in the Streets, and a ring of People about them, one of the standers by parting them, lets the one go untouch'd, but he falls a Correcting the other, whereby the beholders will infer, that he is his Child, or at least one whom he wisheth well unto: So the strokes of Adversity which fall upon us from Heaven, shew that God is our Father, as well as our Creator. This makes this bitter Cup of Affliction become Nectar, and the Bread of carefulness I now Eat, to be true Ambrosia unto me. This makes me esteem these Walls, wherein I have been immur'd these thirty Months, to be no other than a Colledge of Instruction unto me; and whereas Varro said, That the great World was but the House of little Man, I hold this Fleet to be one of the best Lodgings in that House.

There is a People in Spain call'd Los Pattuecos, who from three-score and odd Years since were discover'd by the flight of a Hawk of the Duke of Alva's; this People, then all Savage (though they dwelt in the centre of Spain, not far from Toledo, and are yet held to be part of those Aborigines that Tubal-Cain brought in) being hem'd in, and imprison'd as it were, by a multitude of craggy huge Mountaine, thought that behind those Mountains there was no more Earth: I have been so habituated to this Prison, and accustomed to the Walls thereof so long, that I might well be be brought to think, that there is no other World behind them. And in my extravagant imaginations, I often compare this Fleet to Noah's Ark, furrounded with a vast Sea, and huge deluge of Calamities, which hath overwhelm'd this poor Island. Nor although I have been so long Aboard here, was I yet under Hatches, for I have a Cabin upon the upper Deck, whence I breath the best Air the Place affords; add hereunto, that the Society of Master Hopkins the Warden is an advantage to me, who is one of the knowingest and most civil Gentlemen that I have convers'd withal. Moreover, there are here some choice Gentlemen who are my Co-Martyrs; for a Prisoner and a Martyr are the same Thing, save, that the one is buried before his Death, and the other after.

God Almighty amend these Times, that make Imprisonment to be preferr'd before Liberty, it being more safe, and desirable by some, though not by

From the Fleet, Nov. 3.

Your affectionate Servitor,

1643.

J. H.

LVIII.

To Sir Ed. S^r. Knight.

SIR,

WERE there a Physician that could cure the Maladies of the Mind, as well as those of the Body, he needed not to wish the Lord Mayor, or the Pope for his Uncle, for he should have Patients without number: It is true that there be some Distempers of the Mind that proceed from those of the Body, and so are curable by Drugs and Diets; but there are others that are quite abstracted from all Corporeal Impressions, and are meerly Mental; these kind of Agonies are the more violent of the two, for as the one use to drive us into Fevers, the other precipitate us oftentimes into Frensies: And this is the ground I believe, which made the Philosopher think that the Rational Soul was infus'd into Man, partly for his Punishment, and the Understanding for his Executioner, unless Wisdom sit at the Helm, and steer the Motions of his Will.

I thank God I have felt both (for I am not made of Stone or Steel) having had since I was shut in here a shrewd fit of the new Disease; and for the other, you must needs thinks that Thirty one Months close restraint, and the barbarousness of the Times, must discompose and torture the Imagination, sometimes with gripings of of discontent and anguish, not as much for my own sad Condition, as for my poor Countrey and Friends, who have a great share in my Nativity, and particularly for yourself, whose gallant Worth I highly Honour; and who have not been the least sufferer.

The Moralist tells us that a quadrate solid wise Man, should involve and tackle himself within his own Vertue, and slight all Accidents that are incident to Man, and be still the same, Etiam si fractus illabatur Orbis; there may be so much Virtue and Valour in you, but I profess to have neither of them in that proportion. The Philosophers prescribe us Rules, that they themselves, nor any Flesh and Blood can observe; I am no Statue, but I must resent the calamities of the Times, and the desperate case of this Nation, who seem to have fallen quite from the very faculty of Reason, and to be possess'd with a pure Lycanthropy, with a Wolvish kind of Disposition to tear one another in this manner, insomuch, that if ever the old saying was verified, Homo homini lupus, it is certainly now. I will conclude with this Distich,

*They err, who write no Wolves in England range,
Her Men are all turn'd Wolves, O monstrous Change.*

No more, but that I wish you Patience, which is a Flower that grows not in every Garden.

Your faithful Servitor,

From the Fleet, Decemb. 1.

J. H.

1644.

LIX.

To my noble Friend Mr. E. P.

S I R,

I Have no other News to write to you hence, but that Leuante los muladares y abaxanse los adurues, The World is turn'd topsy turvey,

From the Fleet, June 2.

Yours,

1644.

J. H.

LX.

LX.

To Tho. Young, Esq;

S I R,

I Receiv'd yours of the fifth of March, and 'twas as welcome to me as Flowers in May, which are now coming on apace. You seem to marvel I do not Marry all this while, considering that I am past the Meridian of my Age, and that to your Knowledge there have been overtures made me of Parties above my Degree. Truly in this Point, I will deal with you as one should do with his Confessor, had I been dispos'd to have Married for Wealth without Affection, or for Affection without Wealth, I had been in Bonds before now; but I did never cast my Eyes upon any yet, that I thought I was born for, where both these concurr'd. 'Tis the custom of some (and 'tis a common Custom) to choose Wives by the weight, that is, by their Wealth. Others fall in love with light Wives, I do not mean Venerean lightness, but in reference to Portion: The late Earl of Salisbury gives a Caveat for this, That Beauty without a Dowry, (without that unguentum Indicum) is as a gilded shell without a kernel, therefore he warns his Son to be sure to have something with his Wife, and his Reason is, Because nothing can be bought in the Market without Money. Indeed 'tis very fitting that He or She should have wherewith to support both, according to their quality, at least to keep the Wolf from the Door, otherwise 'twere a meer madness to Marry; but he who hath enough of his own to maintain a Wife, and marrieth only for Money, discovereth a poor sordid Disposition. There is nothing that my Nature disdains more, than to be a slave to Silver or Gold, for though they both carry the Kings Face, yet they shall never Reign over me: And I would I were free from all other Infirmities as I am from this. I am none of those Mammonists who adore white and red Earth, and makes their Princes Picture their Idol that way; such may be said to be under a perpetual Eclipse, for the Earth stands always 'twixt them, and the fair Face of Heaven: Yet my Genius prompts me, that I was born under a Planet, not to die in a Lazaretto. At my Nativity my ascendant was that hot Constellation of Cancer about the midst of the Dog-days, as my Ephemerides tells me; Mars was then predominant: Of all the Elements Fire sways most in me; I have many aspirings, and airy odd Thoughts swell often in me, according to the quality of the Ground whereon I was born, which was the belly of a huge Hill situated South-East, so that the House I came from (besides my Father and Mothers Coat) must needs be Illustrious, being more obvious to the Sun-beams than ordinary. I have upon occasion of sudden distemper, sometimes a Mad-Man, some-sometimes a Fool, sometimes a Melancholy odd Fellow to deal withal, I mean myself, for I have the humours within me that belongs to all three; therefore who would cast herself away upon a one? Besides, I came tumbling out into the World, a pure Cadet, a true Cosmopolite, not born to Land, Lease, House or Office; 'tis true, I have purchas'd since, a small spot of Ground upon Parnassus, which I hold in fee of the Muses, and I have endeavoured to manure it as well as I could, though I confess it hath yielded me little Fruit hitherto: And what Woman would be so mad, as to take that only for her Jointure?

But to come to the point of Wiving, I would have you know, that I have, though never married, divers Children already; some French, some Latin, one Italian, and many English; and though they be but poor brats of the Brain, yet are they Legitimate, and Apollo himself vouchsafed to co-operate in their Production, I have expos'd them to the wide World to try their Fortunes; and some (out of Compliment) would make me believe they are long-liv'd.

But to come at last to your kind of Wiving, I acknowledge, that Marriage is an honourable Condition, nor dare I think otherwise without prophaneness, for it is that Epithet the Holy Text gives it: Therefore it was a wild Speech of the Philosopher to say, That if our Conversation could be without Women, Angels would come down and dwell amongst us; And a wilder Speech it was of the Cynick, when passing by a Tree where a Maid had made herself away, wish'd; That all Trees might bear such Fruit. But to pass from these Moth-eaten Philosophers, to a modern Physician of our own, it was a most unmanly Thing in him, while he displays his own Religion, to wish that there were a way to propagate the World otherwise than by conjunction with Women, (and Paracelsus undertakes to shew him the Way) whereby he seems to repine (though I understand he was Wiv'd a little after) at the honourable degree of Marriage, which I hold to be the prime Link of humane Society, the cheifest happiness of Mortals, and wherein Heaven hath a special Hand.

But I wonder why you write to me of Wiving, when you know I have much ado to Man or maintain myself, as I told you before; yet notwithstanding that the better part of my Days are already threaded upon the string of Time, I will not despair, but I may have a Wife at last, that may perhaps enable me to build Hospitals; for although nine long lustres of Years have now pass'd over my Head, and some Winters more, (for all my Life, considering the few Sun-shines I have had, may be call'd nothing but Winters) yet, I thank God for't, I find no symptom of Decay, either in Body, Senses, or Intellectuals. But writing thus extravagantly memethinks I hear you say, That this Letter shews I begin to dote, and grow idle, therefore I will display myself no further unto you at this time.

To tell you the naked Truth, my dear Tom; The highest pitch of my aim is, that by some Condition or other, I may be enabled at last (though I be put to sow, at the time that others use to reap) to quit scores with the World, but never to cancel that precious Obligation, wherein I am indissolubly bound to Live and Die

Your true constant Friend,

From the Fleet, April 28.

1645.

J. H.

AD LIBRUM.

—Sine me, Liber, ibis in Aulum,

Hei mihi, quod Domino non licet ire tuo.

Ovid.

To his Book.

Thou mayest to Court, and progress to and fro,

Oh that thy captiv'd Master could do so.

THE

THE SECOND VOLUME
OF
Familiar LETTERS.

I.

To Master Tho. Adams.

S I R,

I Pray stir nimbly in the Business you imparted to me last, and let it not languish; You know how much it concerns your Credit, and the conveniency of a Friend who deserves so well of you: I fear you will meet with divers obstacles in the Way, which if you cannot remove, you must overcome: A lukewarm irresolute Man did never any Thing well, every thought entangles him; therefore you must pursue the Point of your design with heat, and set all Wheels a going: 'Tis a true badge of a generous Nature, being once embark'd in a Business to hoise up, and spread every Sail, Main, mizen, spritt, and top-sail; by that means he will soon arrive at his Port: If the Winds be so cross, and that there be such a fate in the Thing, that it can take no effect, yet you shall have wherewith to satisfy an honest Mind, that you left nothing unattempted to compass it, for in the conduct of humane Affairs 'tis a rule, That a good Conscience hath always within Doors to reward itself, though the Success fall not out according to the merit of the endeavour.

I was according to your desire, to visit the late new Married couple more than once, and to tell you true, I never saw such disparity between two that were made one Flesh in all my Life; He handsome outwardly, but of odd conditions; she excellently qualified, but hard favour'd; so that the one may be compar'd to a cloth of Tissue Dublet, cut upon coarse Canvas; the other to a Buckram Petticoat lin'd with Satin: I think Clotho had her Fingers smutted in snuffing of the Candle, when she began to spin the thread of her Life, and Lachesis frown'd in twisting it up, but Aglaia with the rest of the Graces were in a good humour, when they form'd her inward Parts: A blind Man is fittest to hear her sing, one would take delight to see her dance if mask'd, and it would please you to discourse with her in the dark, for there she is best Company, if your Imagination can forbear to run upon her Face; when you Marry I wish you such an inside of a Wife, but from such an outward Physiognomy the Lord deliver you, and Westmin. Aug. 25.
of

1633.

Your faithful Friend to serve you,
J. H.

II.

To Mr. B. J.

Father Ben, The fangs of a Bear, and the Tusks of a wild Boar, do not bite worse, and make deeper gashes than a Goose-quill sometimes, no, not the Badger himself, who is said to be so tenacious of his bite, that he will not give over his hold, till he feels his Teeth meet, and the Bone crack: Your quill hath prov'd so to Mr. Jo. Jones, but the Pen wherewith you have so gash'd him, it seems was made rather of a Porcupine, than a Goose quill, it is so keen and firm: You know

Anser, Apis, Vitulus, Populos & Regna gubernant.

The Goose, the Bee, and the Calf (meaning Wax, Parchment, and the Pen) rule the World, but of the three, the Pen is most predominant; I know you have a commanding one, but you must not let it Tyrannize in that manner, as you have done lately; some give out there was a Hair in't, or that your Ink was too thick with Gall, else it could not have so bespattered and shaken the Reputation of a royal Artichect; for Reputation, you know is like a fair Structure, long Time a rearing, but quickly ruin'd: If your Spirit will not let you retract, yet you shall do well to repress any more Copies of the Satyr; for to deal plainly with you, you have lost some Ground at Court by it, and as I hear from a good Hand, the King who hath so great a Judgment in Poetry (as in all other Things else) is not well pleased therewith. Dispense with this freedom of Your respectful Son and Servitor, J. H.

Westmin. July 3. 1635.

III.

To D. C. Esq;

S I R,

IN my last I writ to you that C. Mor. was dead (I meant in a Moral Sense.) He is now alive again, for he hath abjur'd that Club, which was used to knock him in the Head so often, and drown him commonly once a day. I discover divers Symptoms of Regeneration in him, for he rails bitterly against Bacchus, and swears there's a Devil in every Berry of his Grape; therefore he resolves hereafter, though he may dabble a little sometimes, he will never be drown'd again. You know Kit hath a Poetick Fancy, and no unhappy one, as you find by his Compositions; you know also, that Poets have large Souls, they have sociable free generous Spirits, and there are few who use to drink of Helicon's Waters, but they love to mingle it with some of Lyons Liquor, to heighten their Spirits. There's no Creature that's kneaded of Clay, but hath his Frailties, Extravagances and Excesses some way or other; for you must not think that Man can be better out of Paradise than he was within it: Nemo sine crimine. He that censures the good Fellow, commonly makes no Conscience of Gluttony, and Gormandizing at home; and I believe more Men do dig their Graves with their Teeth, than with the Tankard. They who tax others of Vanity and Pride, have commonly that sordid Vice of Covetousness attends them; and he who traduceth others of being a Servant to Ladies, doth baser things. We are no Angels upon Earth, but we are transported with some Infirmary or other, and 'twill be so while these frail, flexible Humours reign within us; while we have Sluces of warm Blood running through our Veins, there must be oft-times some irregular Motions in us.

This, as I conceive, is the black Bean, which the Turks Alcoran speaks of; when they feign, that Mahomet being asleep among the Mountains of the Moon, two Angels descended, and ripping his Breast, they took his Heart and washed it in Snow, and after pull'd out a black Bean, which was the Portion of the Devil, and so replac'd the Heart.

In your next you shall do well to congratulate his Resurrection, or Regeneration, or rather Emergency from that Course he was plunged in formerly; you know it as well as I; and truly I believe he will grow newer and newer every day: We find that a stumble makes one take firmer footing; and the base Suds which Vice useth to leave behind it, makes Virtue afterwards far more gustful: No Knowledge is like that of Contraries. Kit hath now overcome himself, therefore I think he will be too hard for the Devil hereafter. I pray hold on your Resolution to be here the next Term, that we may tattle a little of Tom Thumb, mine Host of Andover, or some such matters: So I am
over-

Westmin. Aug. 15.

Your most affectionate

1636.

Servitor,

J. H.

IV.

To T. D. Esq;

S I R,

I Had yours lately by a safe Hand, wherein I find you open unto me all the Boxes of your Breast: I perceive you are sore hurt, and whereas all other Creatures run away from the Instrument and Hand that wounds them, you seem to make more and more towards both. I confess such is the nature of Love, and which is worse, the nature of Women is such, that like Shadows the more you follow them, the faster they flie from you: Nay, some Females are of that odd humour, that to feed their Pride they will famish Affection, they will starve those natural Passions which are owing from them to Man. I confess Coyneſs becomes some Beauties, if handsomely acted, a Frown from some Faces penetrates more, and makes deeper Impression than the fawning and soft Glances of a mincing Smile; yet if this Coyneſs, and these Frowns favour of Pride, they are odious; and 'tis a Rule, that where this kind of Pride inhabits, Honour sits not long Porter at the Gate. There are some Beauties so strong, that they are Leaguer-Proof, they are so Barricado'd, that no Battery, no Petard, or any kind of Engine, Sapping or Mining, can do good upon them: There are others that are tenable a good while, and will endure the Brunt of a Siege, but will incline to Parley at last; and you know that Fort and Female which begins to Parley, is half won. For my part, I think of Beauties, as Philip King of Macedon thought of Cities, there is none so inexpugnable, but an Als laden with Gold may enter into them: You know what the Spaniard saith, Davidas quebrantan pennas, Presents can rend Rocks: Pearls and Golden Bullets may do much upon the Impregnablest Beauty that is: It must be partly your way. I remember a great Lord of this Land sent a Puppy with a rich Collar of Diamonds, to a rare French Lady, Madam St. L. that had come over hither with an Ambassador, she took the Dog, but return'd the Collar: I will not tell you what effect it wrought afterwards. 'Tis a powerful Sex, they were too strong for the First, the Strongest and Wisest Man that was; they must needs be strong, when one Hair of a Woman can draw more than a Hundred pair of Oxen;

Oxen; yet for all their Strength, in point of Value, if you will believe the Italian, A Man of Straw is worth a Woman of Gold: Therefore if you find the thing perverse, rather than to undervalue your Sex (your Manhood) retire handsomely; for there is as much Honour to be won at an handsome Retreat, as at a hot Onset, it being the difficultest piece of War: By this Retreat you will get a greater Victory than you are aware of; for thereby you will overcome yourself, which is the greatest Conquest that can be. Without seeking abroad, we have Enemies enough within Doors to practise our Valour upon; we have tumultury and rebellious Passions, with whole Hosts of Humours within us: He who can discomfit them is the greatest Captain, and may defie the Devil. I pray recollect yourself, and think on this Advice of Westmin. Decem. 4.

1637.

Your true and most affectionate
Servitor, J. H.

V.

To G. G. Esq; at Rome.

S I R,

I Have more Thanks to give you than can be folded up in this narrow Paper, though it were all writ in the closest kind of Steganography, for the rich and accurate Account you please to give me of that renowned City wherein you now sojourn. I find you have most judiciously pryed into all matters, both Civil and Clerical, especially the latter, by observing the Poverty and Pennances of the Fryer, the Policy and Power of the Jesuit, the Pomp of the Prelate and Cardinal. Had it not been for the two first, I believe the two last, and that See had been at a low Ebb by this time; for the Learning, the Prudential State, Knowledge and Austerity of the one, and the Venerable Opinion the People have of the abstemious and rigid Condition of the other, especially of the Mendicants, seem to make some Compensation for the Lux and Magnificence of the two last; besides they are more beholden to the Protestant than they are aware of, for unless he had risen up about the latter end of this last Century of years, which made them more circumspect and wary of their Ways, Lives and Actions, to what an intolerable high Excess that Court had come to by this time, you may easily conjecture. But out of my small Reading, I have observed that no Age ever since Gregory the Great hath passed, wherein some or other hath not repin'd and murmur'd at the Pontifical Pomp of that Court; yet for my part I have been always so charitable as to think, that the Religion of Rome, and the Court of Rome were different things. The Counterbuff that happened betwixt Leo the Tenth, and Francis the First of France, is very remarkable, who being both met at Bologna, the King seem'd to give a light touch at the Pope's Pomp, saying, 'Twas not used to be so in former time. It may be so, said Leo, but it was then when Kings kept Sheep; (as we read in the Old Testament) No, the King replied, I speak of Times under the Gospel. Then rejoyn'd the Pope, 'Twas then when Kings did visit Hospitals, hinting by those words at St. Lewis, who used oft to do so. It is memorable what is recorded in the Life of Robert Grosted Bishop of Lincoln, who liv'd in the time of one of the Leo's, That he feared the same Sin would overthrow Leo, as overthrew Lucifer.

For News hence, I know none of your Friends but are as well as you left them, Hombres y Hembras: You are fresh and very frequent in their Memory, and mentioned with a thousand good Wishes and Benedictions. Amongst others, you have a large Room in the Memory of my Lady Elizabeth Cary; and I do not think all Rome can afford you a fairer Lodging. I pray be cautious of your Carriage under that Meridian; it is a searching (inquisitive) Air: You have two Eyes, and two Ears, but one Tongue; you know my Meaning. This last you must imprison, (as Nature hath already done with a double Fence of Teeth and Lips) or else she may imprison you, according to our Countreyman Mr. Hoskins's Advice, when he was in the Tower:

Vincula da lingua, vel tibi lingua dabit.

Have a care of your Health, take heed of the Syrens, of excess in Fruit, and be sure to mingle your Wine well with Water. No more now, but that in the large Catalogue of Friends you have left behind here, there's none who is more mindful of you than

Your most affectionate and
faithful Servitor, J. H.

VI.
To Dr. T. P.

S I R,

I Had yours of the Tenth Current, wherein you writ me Tidings of our Friend T. D. and what his desires tend unto. In my Opinion they are somewhat extravagant. I have read of one, that loving Honey more than ordinary, seem'd to complain against Nature, that she made not a Bee as big as a Bull, that we might have it in greater Plenty: Another who was much given to Fruit, wish'd that Pears and Plums were as big as Pumpions. These were but

but silly vulgar wishes ; for if a Bee were as big as a Bull, it must have a Sting proportionable ; and what mischiefs do you think such Stings would do, when we can hardly endure the Sting of that small infected animal as now it is ? And if Pears and Plums were as big as Pumpions, 'twere dangerous walking in an Orchard about the Autumnal Equinoctial, at which time they are in their full maturity, for fear of being knock'd in the Head. Nature the Handmaid of God Almighty, doth nothing but with good Advice, if we make researches into the true reason of things : You know what answer the Fox gave the Ape, when he would have borrowed part of his Tail to cover his Posteriors.

The wishes you writ that T. D. lately made, were almost as extravagant in civil Matters, as the aforementioned were in Natural, for if he were partaker of them, they would draw more inconveniences upon him than Benefit, being nothing sortable either to his disposition or breeding ; and for other reasons besides, which I will reserve till my coming up ; and I pray let him know so much from me, with my Commendations. So I rest

Westmin. Sept. 6
1640.

Yours in the perfectest degree of Friendship, J. H.

VII.

To Mr. T. B. Merchant in Sevil.

S I R,

THough I have my share of Infirmities as much as another Man, yet I like my own Nature in one thing, that requitals to me are as sweet as revenges to an Italian : I thank my Stars, I find myself far proner to return a Courtesie, than to resent an injury : This made me most gladly apprehend the late occasion of serving you, (notwithstanding the hard measure I have received from your Brother) and to make you some returns of those frequent Favours I received from you in Spain, I have taken away (as you may perceive by the inclosed Papers) the Weights that hung to that great business in this Court ; it concerns you now to put Wings unto it in that, and I believe you will quickly obtain what useth to be first in intention, tho' last in Execution, I mean your main end. I heartily wish the thing may be prosperous unto you, and that you may take as much pleasure in the fruition of it, as I did in following of it for you, because I love you dearly well, and desire you so much Happiness, that you may have nothing but Heaven to wish for : In which desire, I rest

White-hall, May 3.
1633.

Your constant true Friend to serve you, J. H.

VIII.

To Doctor B.

S I R,

WHereas upon the large Theorical Discourse and bandyings of Opinions we had lately at Gresham Colledge, you desired I should couch in Writing, what I observ'd abroad of the Extent and Amplitude of the Christian Common-wealth, in reference to other Religions: I obtained leave of myself to put Pen to Paper, rather to Obey you than Oblige you with any thing that may add to your Judgment, or enrich that rare Knowledge I find you have already treasured up; but I must begin with the fulfilling of your desire in a preambular way, for the Subject admits it.

'Tis a Principle all the Earth over, except amongst Atheists, that Omne verum est à Deo, omne falsum est Diabolo, & omnis error ab homine: All Truth is from God, all Falshood from the Devil, and all Error from Man; the last goes always under the Visard of the first, but the second confronts Truth to the Face, and stands in open Defiance of her. Error and Sin are Contemporary, when one crept first in at the Fore-door, the other came in at the Postern. This made Trismegistus, one of the great Lords of Reason, to give this Character of Man, Homo est imaginatio quædam, & imaginatio est supremum mendacium: Man is nought else but a kind of imagination, and imagination is the greatest lie. Error therefore entring into the World with Sin among us poor Adamites, may be said to spring from the Tree of Knowledge itself, and from the rotten Kernels of that fatal Apple. This, besides the Infirmities that attend the Body, hath brought in pervisity of Will, deprevation of Mind, and hath cast a kind of Cloud upon all our Intellectuals, that they cannot discern the true Essence of things with that Clearness as the Protoplast our first Parent could, but we are involved in a Mist, and grope as it were ever since in the dark, as if Truth were got into some Dungeon; or, as the old Wizard said, into some deep Pit, which the shallow Apprehension of Men could not Fathom. Hence comes it, that the Earth is Rent into so many Religions, and those Religions torn into so many Schisms, and various Forms of Devotion, as if the Heavenly Majesty were delighted as much in Diversities of Worship, as in Diversities of Works.

The first Religion that ever was reduced to exact Rules and Ritual Observances was that of the Hebrews, the ancient People of God, called afterwards Judaism, the second Christianity, the third Mahometism, which is the youngest of all Religions: Touching Paganism, and heathenish Idolatry, they scarce deserve the Name of Religion : But for the former three, there is this Analogy between them, that they all agree in the first Person of the Trinity, and all his Attributes. What kind of Religion there was before the Flood, it is in vain to make any Researches, there having been no Monuments at all left, (besides that little we find in Moses and the Phenician Story) but Seth's Pillars, and those so defac'd, that nothing was legible upon them, tho' Josephus saith, That one was Extant in his days : As also the Oak under which Abraham feasted God Almighty, which was 2000 Years after. The Religion (or Cabal) of the Hebrews was transferred from the Patriarchs to Moses, and from him to the Prophets. It was honoured with the Appearance and Promulgation of God himself, especially the better part of it, I mean the Decalogue, containing the Ten Commandments, which being most of them Moral, and agreeing with the common Notions of Man, are in force all the World over. The Jews at this day are divided into three Sects; the first, which is the greatest, are call'd the Talmudists, in regard that besides the holy Scriptures, they embrace the Talmud, which is stuff'd with the Traditions of their Rabbins and Cacams. The second receive the Scripture alone. The third the Pentateuch only, viz. The five Books of Moses, which are called Samaritans. Now touching what part of the Earth is possessed by Jews, I cannot find they have any at all peculiar to themselves, but in regard of their murmurings, their frequent Idolatries, Defections, and that they Crucified the Lord of Life, this once Select Nation of God, and the Inhabitants of the Land flowing with Milk and Honey, is become now a scorned squandred People all the Earth over, being ever since incapable of any Coalition or Reducement into one Body Politick : There where they are most without mixture, is Tiberias in Palestine, which Amurath gave Mendez the Jew, whither, and to Jerusalem, upon any conveniency, they convey the Bones of their dead Friends from all places to be reinterred. They are to be found in all Mercantile Towns, and great Marts, both in Africk, Asia and Europe, the Dominions of England, of the Spainard and French excepted; and as their Persons, so their Profession is despicable, being for the most part but Brokers every where. Among other Places, they are allowed to be in Rome herself near Saint Peter's Chair, for they advance Trade wheresoever they come with their Banks of Money, and so are permitted as necessary Evils : But put case the whole Nation of the Jews now living, were united into one Collective Body, yet according to the best Conjecture, and exactest Computation that I could hear made by the knowingest Men, they would not be able to People a Countrey bigger than the Seventeen Provinces. Those that are dispersed now in Christendom and Turkey, are the Remnants only of the Tribes of Judah and Benjamin, with some Levites which returned from Babylon with Zerubbabel. The common Opinion is, that the other Ten are utterly lost ; but they themselves fancy that they are in India a mighty Nation, environ'd with stony Rivers, which always cease to run their Course on their Sabbath, from whence they expect their Messias, who shall in the fulness of time overrun the World with Fire and Sword, and re-establish them in a temporal glorious Estate: But this Opinion sways most among the Oriental Jews, whereas they of the West attend the coming of their Messias from Portugal, which Language is more common among them than any other. And thus much in brief of the Jews, as much as I could digest, and comprehend within the compass of this Paper sheet ; and let it serve for the accomplishment of the first part of your desire. In my next I shall give you the best satisfaction I can concerning the extent of Christianity up and down the Globe of the Earth, which I shall speedily send ; for now that I have undertaken such a Task, my Pen shall not rest till I have finished it. So I am

Your most affectionate ready

Servitor,

J. H.

Westmin. Aug. 1.

1635.

IX.

To Doctor B.

S I R,

HAVING in my last sent you something touching the State of Judaism up and down the World, in this you shall receive what extent Christianity hath, which is the second Religion in Succession of Time and Truth : A Religion that makes not Sense so much subject to Reason, as Reason succumbent to Faith. There is no Religion so harsh and difficult to Flesh and Blood, in regard of divers Mysterious Positions it consists of, as the Incarnation, Resurrection, the Trinity, &c. which as one said, are Bones to Philosophy, but Milk to Faith. There is no Religion so purely Spiritual, and abstracted from common natural Idea's and sensual happiness, as the Christian : No Religion that excites Man more to the Love and practice of Virtue, and hatred of Vice ; or that prescribes greater Rewards for the one, and Punishments for the other : A Religion that in a most miraculous manner did expand herself, and propagate by simplicity, humbleness, and by a meer passive way of fortitude, growing up like the Plam-tree under the heavy weight of Persecution ; for never any Religion had more powerful Oppositions by various kinds of Punishments, Oppressions and Tortures, which have been said to have deck'd her with Rubies in her very Cradle ;

Cradle ; infomuch, that it is granted by her very Enemies, that the Christian in point of passive Valour, hath exceeded all other Nations upon Earth. And 'tis a thing of wonderment, how at her very first growth she flew over the heads of so many interjacent vast Regions into this remote Isle so soon, that her Rays should shine upon the Crown of a British King first of any, I mean King Lucius, the true Proto-Christian King, in the days of Eleutherius, at which time she received her Propagation : But for her Plantation, she had it long before, by some of the Apostles themselves. Now as the Christian Religion hath the purest and most abstracted, the hardest and highest spiritual Notions, so it hath been most subject to differences of Opinions, and distractions of Conscience : the purer the Wheat is, the more subject 'tis to Tares, and the most precious Gems to Flaws. The first Bone that the Devil flung was into the Eastern Churches, then 'twixt the Greek and the Roman : but it was rather for Jurisdiction and Power, than for the Fundamentals of Faith ; and lately 'twixt Rome and the North-West Churches. Now the extent of the Eastern Church is larger far than that of the Roman, (excluding America) which makes some accuse her as well of Uncharitableness, as of Arrogance, that she should positively damn so many Millions of Christian Souls, who have the same common Symbol of Faith with her, because they are not within the close of her Fold.

Of those Eastern and South-East Churches, there are no less than Eleven Sects, whereof the three Principallest are the Grecian, the Jacobite, and the Nestorian, with whom therest have some dependence or conformity ; and they acknowledge Canonical Obedience either to the Patriarch of Constantinople, of Alexandria, of Jerusalem, or Antioch : They concur with the Western Reformed Churches, in divers Positions against Rome, as in denial of Purgatory, in rejecting extream Unction, and celebrating the Sacrament under both Kinds ; in admitting their Clergy to marry ; in abhorring the use of Massie Statues, and celebrating their Liturgy in the vulgar Language : Among these the Resse and the Habassin Emperors are the greatest, but the latter is a Jew also from the Girdle downward, for he is both Circumcised and Christned, having received the one from Solomon, and the other from the Apostle Saint Thomas. They observe other Rites of the Levitical Law ; they have the Cross in that esteem, that they imprint the sign of it upon some part of the Child's Body, when he is Baptized ; that day they take the holy Sacrament, they spit not till after Sun-set : And the Emperor in his Progress, as soon as he comes in the sight of a Church, lights off his Camel, and foots it all along, till he loseth the sight of it.

Now

Now touching that Proportion of Ground that the Christians have on the habitable Earth, (which is the main of our Task) I find that all Europe, with her adjacent Isles, is peopled with Christians, except that ruthless Countrey of Lapland, where Idolaters yet inhabit; towards the East also, that Region which lieth betwixt Tanais and Boristhenes, the ancient Countrey of the Goths, is possessed by Mahometan Tartars; but in those Territories which the Turk hath betwixt the Danube and the Sea, and betwixt Ragusa and Buda, Christians are intermixt with Mahometans: Yet in this Cohabitation, Christians are computed to make two third Parts at least; for here and elsewhere all the while they pay the Turk the quarter of their Increase, and a Sultany for every Poll, and speak nothing in derogation of the Alcoran, they are permitted to enjoy both their Religion and Lives securely. In Constantinople herself, under the Grand Seignior's Nose, they have 20 Churches, in Saloniche (or Thessalonica) 30. There are 150 Churches under the Metropolitan of Philippi, as many under him of Athens, and he of Corinth hath about 100 Suffragan Bishops under him.

But in Africk (a thing which cannot be too much lamented) that huge Extent of Land, which Christianity possessed of old, betwixt the Mediterranean Sea and the Mountain Atlas, yea, as far as Egypt, with the large Region of Nubia, the Turks have overmastered. We read of 200 Bishops met in Synods in those Parts, and in that Province where Old Carthage stood, there were 164 Bishops under one Metropolitan; but Mahometism hath now overspread all thereabout, only the King of Spain hath a few Maritime Towns under Christian Subjection, as Septa, Tonger, Oran, and others. But through all the huge Continent of Africk, which is estimated to be thrice bigger than Europe, there is not one Region entirely Christian, but Habassia or Ethiopia: Besides, there is in Egypt a considerable number of them yet sojourning. Now Habassia according to the Itineraries of the observingst Travellers in those Parts, is thought to be in respective Magnitude, as big as Germany, Spain, France, and Italy conjunctly; an Estimate which comes nearer Truth than that which some make by stretching it from one Tropick to the other, viz. from the Red Sea to the Western Ocean: There are also divers Isles upon the Coast of Africk, that are coloniz'd with Christians, as the Madera, the Canaries, Cape Verd, and Saint Thomas; but on the East side, there is none but Zocootra.

In Asia, there is the Empire of Russia that is purely Christian, and the Mountain Libanus in Syria; in other Parts they are mingled with Mahometans, who exceed them one day more than another in numbers, especially in those Provinces (the more's the pity) where the Gospel was first preach'd, as Anatolia, Armenia, Syria, Mesopotamia, tamia, Palestina, Chaldea, Assyria, Persia, the North of Arabia, and South of India. In some of these Parts, I say, especially in the four first, Christians are thick mixt with Mahometans, as also in East-India, since the Portugals discovery of the Passage by the Cape of good Hope, Christians by God's Goodness have multiplied in considerable Numbers, as likewise in Goa, since it was made an Arch-bishoprick, and a Court of a Vice-roy: They speak also of a Christian Church in Quinsoy in China, the greatest of all Earthly Cities; but in the Islands thereabouts called the Philippinas, which they say are above 1100 in number, in 30 whereof the Spaniard hath taken firm footing, Christianity hath made a good Progress, as also in Japonia. In the North-East part of Asia, some 400 Years since, Christianity had taken deep Root under the King of Tenduck, but he was utterly overthrown by Chingis one of his own Vassals, who came thereby to be the first Founder of the Tartarian Empire: This King of Tenduck was the true Prestor John, not the Ethiopian King of the Habassines, as Scaliger would have it, whose Opinion is as far distant from Truth in this point, as the Southerne part of Africk from the North-East part of Asia; or as a Jacobite is from a Nestorian. Thus far did Christianity find Entertainment in the old World. Touching the New, I mean America, which is conjectured to equal well near the other three Parts in Magnitude, the Spanish Authors and Merchants (with whom I have conversed) make a Report of a marvellous Growth that Christianity hath made in the Kingdoms of Mexico, Peru, Brazil, and Castilio de Loro, as also in the greater Islands adjoining, as Hispaniola, Cuba, Portorico, and others, insomuch, that they write of one ancient Priest, who had Christned himself 700 Savages some Years after the first Discovery: But there are some who seeming to be no Friends to Spain, report, that they did not Baptize half so many as they Butchered.

Thus have you as compendiously as an Epistle could make it, an Account of that Extension of Ground which Christians possess upon Earth. My next shall be one of the Mahometan, wherein I could wish I had not occasion to be so large as I must be. So I am, Sir,

Your respectful and humble Servant,

Westmin. Aug. 9.

1635.

J. H.

X. 20

X.

To Doctor B.

S I R,

MY two former were of Judaism and Christianity: I come now to the Mahometans, the modern'st of all Religions, and the most mischievous, and destructive to the Church of Christ; for this fatal Sect hath justled her out of divers large Regions in Africk, in Tartary, and other Places, and attenuated their Number in Asia, which they do wheresoever they come, having a more politick and pernicious way to do it, than by Fire and Fagot; for they having understood well, that the Dust of Martyrs were the thriving'st Seeds of Christianity, and observ'd, that there reigns naturally in Mankind, being compos'd all of a lump, and carrying the same Stamp, a general kind of Compassion and Sympathy, which appears most towards them who lay down their Lives, and postpone all worldly things, for the preservation of their Consciences; (and never any died so, but he drew followers after him) therefore the Turk goes a more cunning way to work; He meddles not with Life, and Limb, to prevent the Sense of Compassion, which may arise that way; but he grinds their Faces with Taxes, and makes them incapable of any Offices, either of Authority, Profit, or Honour; by which means he renders them despicable to others, and makes their Lives irksome to themselves. Yet the Turks have a high Opinion of Christ, That he was a greater Prophet than Moses: That he was the Son of a Virgin, who conceiv'd by the smell of a Rose presented to her by Gabriel the Angel; they believe he never sinn'd, nay, in their Alcoran they term him the Breath and Word of God; they punish all that Blaspheme him, and no Jew is capable to be a Turk, but he must be first an ABDULA, a Christian; he must eat Hogs Flesh, and do others things for three days, then he is made a Mahometan; but by abjuring of Christ to be a greater Prophet than Mahomet.

It is the Alfange that ushers in the Faith of Mahomet every where, nor can it grow in any Place, unless it be planted and sown with Gunpowder intermixt; when planted there are divers ways of Policy to preserve it: They have their Alchoran in one only Language, which is the Arabick, the Mother-Tongue of their Prophet. 'Tis as bad as Death for any to raise Scruples of the Alcoran; Thereupon there is a restraint of the Study of Philosophy, and other Learning, because the Impostors of it may not be discern'd. The Musti is in as great Reverence amongst them, as the Pope is amongst the Romanists; For they hold it to be a true Principle in Divinity, That no one thing preserves and improves Religion more than than a Venerable, High, Pious Esteem of the chiefest Ministers. They have no other Guide or Law both for Temporal and Church Affairs than the Alcoran, which they hold to be the Rule of civil Justice, as well as the Divine Charter of their Salvation: So that their Judges are but Expositors of that only; nor do they trouble themselves, or puzzle the Plaintiff with any Moth-eaten Records, or precedents to entangle the Business; but they immediately determine it, according to the fresh Circumstances of the Action, & secundum allegata, & probata by Witnesses: they have one extraordinary piece of humanity, to be so tender of the rational Soul, as not to put Christian, Jew, Greek, or any other to his Oath, in regard that if for some advantage of gain, or occasion of Inconvenience and Punishment, any should forswear himself; they hold the Imposers of the Oath to be Accessary to the Damnation of the perjur'd Man; by these and divers other Reaches of Policy (besides their Arms) not practis'd elsewhere, they conserve that huge bulk of the Ottoman Empire, which extends without interruption (the Hellespont only between) in one continued piece of Earth, Two and thirty Hundred Miles, from Buda in Hungary to a good way into Persia; by these means they keep also their Religion from distracting Opinions, from every vulgar Fancy and Schisms in their Church, for there's no where fewer than here; the difference that is, is only with the Persian, and that not in Fundamentals of Faith, but for priority of Government, in matters of Religion. This so Universal Conformity in their Religion, is ascrib'd as to other politick Institutions, so especially to the rigorous Inhibition they have of raising Scruples and Disputes of the Alcoran under pain of Death; especially among the Laity and common People, whose Zeal commonly is stronger than their Judgment.

That part of the World where Mahomet hath furthest expanded himself, is Asia; which, as I said before, exceeds Africk in greatness, and much more in People: He hath firm footing in Persia, Tartary, (upon the latter of which the Musulman Empire is entail'd) in Turcomania itself, and Arabia, four mighty Kingdoms; the last of these was the Nest where that Cocatrice Egg was hatched, which hath diffus'd its Poyson so far and near, through the Veins of so many Regions; all the Southerly Coasts of Asia, from the Arabian Bay to the River Indus is infected therewith, the vast Kingdom of Cambai and Bengala, and about the South part the Inhabitants of Malabar have drank of this Poyson, insomuch that by no wrong Computation it may well be said, that Mahometism hath dispersed itself over almost one half of the huge Continent of Asia, who besides those multitudes of Isles, especially seven, Moldavia, Ceylan, the Sea-Coast of Sumatra, Java, Sunda, the Ports of Banda, Borneo, with divers other, whereof there are Thousands about Asia, who have have entertain'd the Alcoran: In Europe, the Mahometans possess all the Region betwixt Don and Meper, call'd of old Tanais and Boristhenes, being about the twentieth part of Europe: the King of Poland dispenseth with some of them in Lithuania. Touching Greece, Macedonia, Thracia, Bulgaria, Servia, Bosnia, Epire, the greatest part of Hungary and Dalmatia, although they be wholly under Turks Obedience, yet Mahometans scarce make the third part of the Inhabitants. In Africk this Contagion is further spread; it hath intoxicated all the Shore of Ethiopia as far as Mosumbick, which lyeth opposite to the midst of Madagascar. 'Tis worse with the firm Land of Africk on the North and West Parts; for from the Mediterranean Sea to the great River Niper, and along the Banks of Nile, all Egypt and Barbary, with Libya and the Negro's Country are tainted and tann'd with this black Religion.

The vast Propagation of this unhappy Sect may be ascribed first to the Sword, for the Conscience commonly is apt to follow the Conqueror, then to the loose Reins it gives to all sensual Liberty, as to have Eight Wives, and as many Concubines as one can maintain, with the assurance of Venerean Delights in a far higher degree to succeed after Death to the religious Observers of it, as the Fruition of beautiful Damsels, with large rouling Eyes, whose Virginity shall renew after every Act, their Youth shall last always with their Lust, and Love shall be satiated with only one, where it shall remain inalienable. They concur with the Christian but only in the acknowledgment of one God, and in his Attributes. With the Jew they symbolize in many things more, as in Circumcision, in refraining from Swines Flesh, in detestation of Images, and somewhat in the Quality of future Happiness, which as was said before, they place in Venerean Pleasure, as the Jew doth in Feasting and Banquetting, so that neither of their Laws have Punishment enough to deter Mankind from Wickedness and Vice, nor do they promise adequate Rewards for Virtue and Piety; for in the whole Alcoran, and through all the Writings of Moses, there's not a word of Angelical Joys and Eternity: And herein Christianity far excels both these Religions, for she placeth future Happiness in Spiritual, everlasting and unconceivable Bliss, abstracted from the fading and faint grossness of Sense. The Jew and Turk also agree in their Opinion of Women, whom they hold to be of an inferior Creation to Man, which makes the one to exclude them from the Moscoes, and the other from his Synagogues.

Thus far have I rambled through the vast Ottoman Empire, and taken a cursory Survey of Mahomet's Religion. In my next I shall take the best View I can of Pagans and Idolaters, with those who go for Atheists: And in this particular, this Earth may be said to be worse than Hell itself and the Kingdom of the Devil, in regard gard there are no Atheists there, for the very Damned Souls find and feel in the midst of their Tortures that there is a God by his Justice and Punishments; nay, the Prince of Darkness himself, and all the Cacodæmons by an Historical Faith believe there is a God, whereunto the Poet alludes very Divinely:

Nullus in Inferno est Atheos, ante fuit.

So I very affectionately kiss your Hands and rest,

Westmin. Aug. 14.

Your faithful ready Servitor, 1635.

J. H.

XI.

To Doctor B.

S I R,

HAVING in my three former Letters washed my Hands of the Mahometan and the Jew, and attended Christianity up and down the Earth; I come now to the Pagan Idolater, or Heathen, who (the more to be lamented) make the greatest part of Mankind: Europe herself, though the Beams of the Cross have shin'd upon her above these sixteen Ages, is not free of them; for they possess to this day Lappia, Corelia, Biarmia, Scrisinnia, and the North Parts of Flinmark; there are also some shreds of them to be found in divers Places of Lithuania and Somogitia, which make a Region nine hundred Miles in Compass.

But in Africk their Number is incredible; for from Cape Blanc the most Westerly Point of Africk all Southward to the Cape of good Hope, and thence turning by the back of Africk to the Cape of Mogambric, all these Coasts being about the one half of the Circumference of Africk, is Peopled by Idolaters, though in some places intermixt with Mahometans and Christians, as in the Kingdom of Congo and Angola; but if we survey the inland Territories of Africk, between the River of Nile, and the West Sea of Ethiopia, even all that Countrey from about the North parallel of ten Degrees, to the South parallel of six Degrees, is all held by Idolaters; besides, the Kingdom of Borneo, and a great part of Nubia and Lybia, continue still in their old Paganism; so that by this Account above one half of that immense Continent of Africk is Peopled by Idolaters. But in Asia, which is far more spacious, and more populous than Africk, Pagans, Idolaters, and Gentiles, swarm in great Numbers; for from the River Petchora Eastward to the Ocean, and thence Southward to the Cape of Singapore and from that point returning Westward by the South Coasts to the Out-lets of the River Indus ; all that maritime tract which makes a good deal more than half the Circumference of Asia, is inhabited by Idolaters ; so are the Inland parts. There are two mighty Mountains that traverse all Asia, Taurus and Imaus ; the first runs from the West to East, the other from North to South, and so quarter and cut that huge Mass of Earth into equal parts ; this side those Mountains, most of the People are Mahometans, t'other side, they are all Idolaters : And as on the firm continent Paganism thus Reigns, so in many thousand Islands that lye squandered in the vast Ocean ; on the East and South-East of Asia, Idolatry overspreads all, except in some few Islands that are possess'd by Spaniards and Arabs.

Lastly, If one take a survey of America, (as none hath done yet exactly) which is estimated to be as big as all the old Earth ; Idolaters there possess four parts of five : 'Tis true, some years after the first Navigation thither, they were converted daily in great Multitudes ; but afterwards observing the licentious Lives of the Christians, their greediness for Gold, and their Cruelty, they came not in so fast ; which made an Indian answer a Spanish Fryer, who was discoursing with him of the Joys of Heaven, and how all Spaniards went thither after this Life : Then said the Pagan, I do not desire to go thither, if Spaniards be there ; I had rather go to Hell, to be free of their Company. America differs from the rest of the Earth in this, that she hath neither Jew nor Mahometan in her, but Christians and Gentiles only. There are besides all those Religions and People before-mentioned, an irregular confus'd Nation in Europe, call'd the Morduits, which occupy the middle confines betwixt the Tartars and the Russe, that are mingled in Rites of Religion, with all those that have been fore-spoken ; for from the privy Members upwards, they are Christians, in regard they admit of Baptism ; from the Naval downward, they are Mahometans or Jews, for they are Circumcis'd ; and besides, they are given to the Adoration of Heathenish Idols. In Asia there are the Cardi which inhabit the Mountainous Country about Mozal, between Armenia and Mesopotamia, and the Druci in Syria, who are demi Mahometans and Christians.

Now concerning Pagans and Heathenish Idolaters, whereof there are innumerable sorts up and down the surface of the Earth, in my Opinion, those are the excusable kind who adore the Sun and Moon, with the Host of Heaven. And in Ireland, the Kerns of the Mountains, with some of the Scotch Isles, use a fashion of adoring the New Moon to this very day, praying she would leave them in as good Health as she found them ; this is not so gross an Idolatry, as that of other Heathens ; for the adoration of other Heathens ; (for the adoration of those glorious Cœlestial Bodies is more excusable than that of Garlick and Onions with the Ægyptian, who I think with the Sicynian) was the ancientest Idolater upon earth, which he makes thrice older than we do ; for Diadorus Siculus reports, that the Ægyptian had a Religion and Kings eighteen thousand years since : yet for matter of Philosophy and Science, they had it from the Chaldean, He from the Gymnotophists and Brachmans of India, which Country, as she is the next neighbour to the rising Sun, in reference to this side of the Hemisphere, so the beams of Learning did first enlighten her : Ægypt was the Nurse of that famous Hermes Trismegistus, who having no other scale but that of natural reason, mounted very high towards Heaven, for he hath very many Divine Sayings, whereof I think it not impertinent to insert here a few, first he saith, That all human sins are venial with the Gods, impiety excepted. 2. That goodness belongs to the Gods, piety to Men, revenge and wickedness to the devils. 3. That the Word is Lucens Dei filius, the bright son of God, &c.

From Ægypt Theorical Knowledge came down the Nile, and landed at some of the Greek Islands, where 'twixt the 33, 34, and the 35 Century of years after the Creation, there flourished all those renowned Philosophers that sway now in our Schools; Plato flew highest in divine notions, for some call him another Moses speaking Athenian : In one of his Letters to a friend of his, he writes thus, When I seriously salute thee, I begin my Letter with one God, when otherwise with many; his Scholar Aristotle commended himself at his death to the Being of Beings : And Socrates may be said to be a Martyr for the first Person of the Trinity. These great Secretaries of Nature, by studying the vast Volume of the World, came by main strength of reason to the knowledge of one Deity or Primus Motor, and of his attributes, they found by undeniable consequences that he was infinite, eternal, ubiquitary, omnipotent, and not capable of a definition ; which made the Philosopher being commanded by his King to define God, to ask the respite of a day to meditate thereon, then two, then four, at last he ingeniously confessed, that the more he thought to dive into this mystery, the more he was ingulph'd in the speculation of it ; for the quiddity and essence of the incomprehensible Creator, cannot imprint any formal conception upon the finite intellect of the Creature. To this I might refer the Altar which Saint Paul found among the Greeks with this Inscription, τῷ ἀγνώστῳ Θεῷ, To the unknown God.

From the Greek Isles, Philosophy came to Italy ; thence to this Western World among the Druides, whereof those of this Isle were most celebrated, for we read that the Gauls (now the French) came to Brittany in great numbers to be instructed by them. The Romans were mighty great Zealots in their Idolatry, and their best Authors affirm, that they extended their Monarchy so far and near, by a particular reference they had of their Gods, (which the Spaniards seems now to imitate) though those Gods of theirs were made of Men, and of good Fellows at first; besides, in the course of their Conquests, they adopted any strange Gods to the Society of theirs, and brought them solemnly to Rome; and the Reason one saith was, that they believed the more Gods they had the safer they were, a few being not sufficient to conserve and protect so great an Empire. The Roman Gentiles had their Altars and Sacrifices, their Arch-Flamins and Vestal Nuns: And it seems the same Genius reigns still in them, for in the Primitive Church, that which the Pagans disliked most in Christianity was, that it had not the face and form of a Religion, in regard it had no Oblations, Altars, and Images, which may be a good Reason why the Sacrifice of the Mass, and other Ceremonies were first instituted, to allure the Gentiles to Christianity. But to return a little further to our former Subject, in the condition that Mankind stands now, if the Globe of the Earth were divided to thirty Parts, 'tis thought that Idolaters (with horror I speak it) having as I said before, the one half of Asia and Africk, both for the inland Country and Maritime Coasts, with four parts of five in America, inhabit twenty Parts of those Regions that are already found out upon Earth; besides in the Opinion of the knowing and most inquisitive Mathematicians, there is toward the Southern Clime as much Land yet undiscovered, as may equal in dimension the late new World, in regard, as they hold there must be of necessity such a portion of Earth to ballance the Centre on all sides, and 'tis more than probable that the Inhabitants there must be Pagans. Of all kind of Idolaters those are the horriddest who adore the Devil, whom they call Tantara, who appears often unto them, especially in a Hurricane, though he be not visible to others; In some Places they worship both God and the Devil: The one, that he may do them Good: The other that he may do them no Hurt; the first they call Tantum, the other Squantum. 'Twere presumption beyond that of Lucifer's or Adam's for Man to censure the Justice of the Creator in this particular, why he makes daily such innumerable Vessels of dishonour; It is a wiser and safer course far to sit down in an humble Admiration, and cry out, Oh the profound inscrutable Judgments of God? His Ways are past finding out, and so to acknowledge with the divine Philosopher, Quod oculus versperitilonis ad solem, idem est omnis intellectus humanus & Deum, what the

The Eye of a Bat is to the Sun, the same is all humane understanding to Godwards.

Now to draw to a conclusion, touching the respective largeness of Christianity and Mahometism upon the earth, I find the first to exceed, taking the new world with the old, considering the spacious Plantations of the Spainard in America, the Colonies the English have there in Virginia, New-England and Charibbi Islands, with those of the French in Canada, and of the Hollander in East-India: nor do I find that there is any region purely Mahometan without intermixtures, as Christianity hath many; which makes me to be of a differing opinion to that Gentleman, who held, that Christianity added little to the general Religion of Mankind.

Now touching the latitude of Christian Faith in reference to the differing Professors thereof, as in my former I shew'd that the Eastern Churches were more spacious than the Latin or Roman (excepting the two Indies) so they who have fallen off from her in the Western parts are not so far inferior to her in Europe as some would make one believe, which will appear, if we cast them in counterballance.

Among the Roman Catholicks there is the Emperor, and in him the King of Hungary, the three Kings of Spain, France, and Poland; Italy, the Dukes of Savoy, Bavaria, and Lorrain, the three spiritual Electors, with some few more. Touching them who have renounc'd all obedience to Rome, there are the three Kings of Great Britain, Denmark, and Swedeland, the Duke of Saxon, Holstein, and Wirttemberg, the Marquis of Brandenburgh, and Baden, the Landgrave of Hesse, most of the Hanfiatick Towns, which are 88 in number, some whereof are equal to Republicques, the (almost) seven Provinces the Hollander hath; the five Cantons of Swiss and Genova; they of France, who are reputed the fifth part of the Kingdom; the Prince of Transylvania; they of Hungary, and of the large Kingdom of Bohemia, of the Marchisates of Lusatia, Moravia, and the Dukedom of Silesia: As also they have the huge Kingdom of Poland, wherein Protestants are diffus'd through all quarters in great numbers, having in every Province their publick Churches and Congregations, orderly severed and bounded with Diocesses, whence are sent some of the chiefeft and most principle men of worth, unto their General Synods; for although there are divers sorts of these Polonian Protestants, some embracing the Waldensian or the Bohemick, others the Augustan, and some the Helvetian Confession, yet they all concur in opposition to the Roman Church; as also they of the Anglican, Scotican, Gallick, Argentine, Saxonick, Wirttembergick, Palatin, and Belgick Confessions: They also harmoniously symbolize in the principal Articles of Faith, and which mainly

U 2

mainly concern eternal Salvation ; as in the infallible Verity and full Sufficiency of the Scriptures, divine Essence, and Unity of the Everlasting Godhead, the Sacred Trinity of the three glorious Persons, the blessed Incarnation of Christ, the Omnipotent Providence of God, the absolute supreme Head of the Church, Christ himself, Justification by Faith through his merits, and touching the nature of lively Faith, repentance, regeneration, and sanctification, the difference between the Law and the Gospel, touching free-will, sin, and good works, the Sacraments, their number, use and efficacy, the marks of the Church, the Resurrection and state of Souls deceased : It may seem a rambling wild speech at first view, of one who said, That to make one a compleat Christian, he must have the works of a Papist, the words of a Puritan, and the Faith of a Protestant; yet this wish if well expounded may bear a good sense, which were unfitting for me to give, you being better able to put a gloss upon it yourself.

Thus, learned Sir, have I exercis'd my pen, according to my small proportioning of knowledge, and conversation with Books, Men and Maps, to obey your desire, though in comparison of your spacious literature, I have held all this while but a candle to the Sun, yet by the light of this small candle you may see how ready I am to shew myself

Your very humble and affectionate
Servitor,

Westmin. Aug. 25.

1635.

J. H.

XII.

To Mr. T. W.

S I R,

I Am heartily glad you have prevail'd so far with my Lady your Mother as to have leave to travel a while, and now that you are bound for France and Italy, let me give you this caution, to take heed of a speedy friend in the first, and of a slow enemy in the second. The courtesies of an Italian, if you suspect him jealous of you, are dangerous, and so are his complements, he will tell you that he kisseth your hand a thousand times over, when he wisheth them both cut off.

The French are a free and debonnair accostable People, both Men and Women ; Among the one, at first entrance one may have acquaintance, and at first acquaintance one may have entrance ; For the other, whereas the old rule was, that there could be no true friendship without commestation of a bushel of salt, one may have enough there before he eat a spoonful with them. I like that that Friendship which by soft gentle pauses steals upon the Affection, and grows mellow with Time, by reciprocal Offices and Trials of Love; that Friendship is like to last long, and never to shrink in the wetting.

So hoping to enjoy you before you go, and to give you a friendly foy, I rest

Your most affectionate
Servitor,

Westmin. Feb. 28.

1634.

J. H.

XIII.

To Sir Tho. Hawk, Knight.

S I R,

I Was invited yesternight to a solemn Supper by B. J. where you were deeply remembred; there was good Company, excellent Cheer, choice Wines, and jovial welcome: One thing interven'd which almost spoil'd the relish of the rest, that B. began to engross all the Discourse, to vapour extreamly of himself, and by villifying others to magnifie his own Muse; T. C. buz'd me in the Ear, that though Ben. had barrell'd up a great deal of Knowledge, yet it seems he had not read the Ethiques, which among other Precepts of Morality forbid Self-commendation, declaring it to be an ill-favour'd Solecism in good Manners. It made me think upon the Lady (not very young) who having a good while given her Guests near Entertainment, a Capon being brought upon the Table, instead of a Spoon she took a mouthful of Claret and spouted it into the poop of the hollow Bird: such an Accident happen'd in this Entertainment, you know — Propria laus sordet in ore; Be a Man's Breath never so sweet, yet it makes ones Praises stink, if he makes his own mouth the Conduit-Pipe of it: But for my part, I am content to dispense with the Roman Infirmary of B. now that Time hath snowed upon his Pericranium. You know Ovid, and (your) Horace were subject to his humour, the first bursting out into Jamq; opus exegi, quod nec Jovis ira, nec ignis, &c.

The other into

Exegi monumentum ære perennius, &c.

As also Cicero, while he forc'd himself into this Exameter, O fortunatum natam me Consule Romam! There is another reason that excuseth B. which is, that if one be allowed to love the natural issue of his Body, why not that of the Brain, which is of a spiritual and more noble Extraction: I preserve your Manuscripts safe for you till you return to London; what news the times afford, this Bearer will impart unto you. So I am,

Sir,

Westmin. Apr. 5.

1636.

Your very humble and most faithful Servitor, J. H.

XIV.

To my Cousin Mr. J. P. at Gravesend.

Cousin,

GOD send you a good passage to Holland, and the World to your mind when you are there: Now that you intend to trail a Pike, and make Profession of Arms, let me give you this Caveat, that nothing must be more precious to you than your Reputation. As I know you have a Spirit not to receive Wrong, so you must be careful not to offer any, for the one is as base as the other, your pulse will be quickly felt, and trial made what mettle you are made of after your coming: If you get but once handsomely off, you are made ever after; for you will be free from all Baffles and Affronts. He that hath once got the Fame of an early Riser may sleep till Noon. Therefore be wondrous wary of your first Comportments, get once a good Name, and be very tender of it afterwards, for 'tis like Venice Glass, quickly crack'd, never to be mended, patch'd it may be: To this purpose take along with you this Fable: It happen'd that Fire, Water and Fame went to travel together (as you are going now) they consulted, that if they lost one another, how they might be retriev'd and meet again; Fire said, where you see Smoak, there you shall find me; Water said, where you see Marsh and Moorish low Ground, there you shall find me; but Fame said, Take heed how you lose me, for if you do, you will run a great hazard never to meet me again, there's no retrieving of me.

It imports you also to conform yourself to your Commanders, and so you may more confidently demand Obedience, when you come to command yourself, as I doubt not but you may do in a small time: The Hoghen Moghen are very exact in their polemical Government, their Pay is sure, though small, 4*s.* a Week being too little a hire, as one said, to kill Men. At your return I hope you will give a better account of your doings than he who being ask'd what Exploits he had done in the Low-Countries, answer'd, That he had cut off a Spaniard's legs, reply being made that that was no great matter, it had been something if he had cut off his head:

head : O, said he, you must consider his head was off before. Excuse me that I take my leave of you so pleasantly, but I know you will take any thing in good part from him who is so much

Westmin. Aug. 3.
1634.

Your truly affectionate
Cousin, J. H.

XV.

To Capt. B.

Much endeared Sir,

THere is a true Saying, that the Spectator oft-times sees more than the Gamester; I find that you have a very hazardous Game in hand, therefore give it up, and do not vie a farthing upon it. Though you be already imbark'd, yet there's time enough to strike Sail, and make again to the Port, otherwise, 'tis no hard matter to be a Prophet what will become of you; there be so many ill-favoured Quicksands, and Rocks in the way, (as I have it from a good hand) that one may easily take a Prospect of your Shipwrack if you go on: therefore desist as you regard your own Safety, and the seasonable Advice of your Westmin. May 1.

1635.

J. H.

XVI.

To Mr. Thomas W. at his Chamber in the Temple.

S I R,

YOU have much strengthened that knot of Love which hath been so long tied between us, by those choice Manuscripts you sent me lately, among which I find divers rare pieces, but that which afforded me most Entertainment in those Miscellanies, was Doctor Henry King's Poems, wherein I find not only heat and strength, but also an exact concinnity and evenness of Fancy: they are a choice race of Brothers, and it seems the same Genius diffuseth itself also among the Sisters: It was my hap to be lately where Mistress A. K. was, and having a Paper of Verses in her hand, I got it from her; they were an Epitaph and an Anagram of her own composure and writing, which took with me so far, that the next morning before I was up, my rapabbling Fancy fell upon these Lines.

For the admitting of Mrs Anne King to be the Tenth Muse.

*Ladies of Helicon do not repine,
I add one more unto your number Nine,
To make it even, I among you bring
No meaner than the Daughter of a King,
Fair Basil-Anna, quickly pass your Voice,
I know Apollo will approve the Choice,
And gladly her install, for I could name
Some of less Merit Goddesses became.*

Basil-A.
Anna
King.

F. C. soars higher and higher every day in pursuance of his Platonick Love, but T. Man is out with his, you know whom, he is fallen to that averfeness to her, that he swears he had rather see a Basilisk than her. This shews, that the sweetest Wines may turn to the tartest Vinegar: No more till we meet,

Westmin. Feb. 3.
1637.

Yours inviolably,

J. H.

XVII.

To the Lord C.

My Lord,

There are two Sayings which are father'd upon Secretary Walsingham, and Secretary Cecil, a pair of the best weighed Statesmen this Island hath bred, one was used to say at the Council Table, My Lords, stay a little and we shall make an end the sooner; the other would oft-times speak of himself, It shall never be said of me that I will defer till to morrow what I can do to day. At first View these Sayings seem to clash with one another, and to be diametrically opposite, but being rightly understood, they may be very well reconciled. Touching the first, 'tis true, that haste and choler are enemies to all great Actions; for as it is a Principle in Chymistry that Omni festinatio est à Diabolo, all haste comes from Hell, so in the Consultations, Contrivings and Conduct of any business of State, all rashness and precipitation comes from an ill spirit. There cannot be a better Pattern for a grave and considerate way of deliberation than the ancient course of our High Court of Parliament, who when a Law is to be made, which concerns the welfare of so many thousands of Men, after a mature debate and long discussion of the point beforehand, cause the Bill to be read solemnly three times in the House e're it be transmitted to the Lords, Lords, and there also 'tis so many times canvas'd, and than presented to the Prince. That which must stand for Law, must be long stood upon, because it imposeth an universal obedience, and is like to be everlasting, according to the Ciceronian maxim, Deliberandum est diu quod statuendum est semel: such a kind of cunctation, advisedness, and procrastination is allowable also in all Councils of State and War; for the day following may be able commonly to be a master to the day past, such a world of contingencies humane actions are subject unto; yet under favour, I believe this first saying to be meant of matters while they are in agitation and upon the anvil; but when they have receiv'd form, and are resolv'd upon, I believe then nothing is so advantageous as speed. And at this, I am of opinion, the second saying aims at; for when the weights that use to hang to all great businesses are taken away, 'tis good then to put wings unto them, and to take the ball before the bound, for Expedition is the life of action, otherwise Time may shew his bald occiput, and shake his posteriors at them in derision. Among other Nations the Spaniard is observ'd to have much phlegm, and to be most dilatory in his proceedings; yet they who have pryed narrowly into the sequel and success of his actions, do find that this gravity, reservedness, and tergiversations of his, have turn'd rather to his prejudice than advantage, take one time with another. The two last matrimonial treaties we had with him continued long, the first 'twixt Ferdinand and Henry the seventh for Catherine of Arragon, seven years; That 'twixt King James and the now Philip the fourth for Mary of Austria, lasted eleven years (and seven and eleven is eighteen;) the first took effect for Prince Arthur, the latter miscarried for Prince Charles, and the Spaniard may thank himself and his own slow pace for it; for had he mended his pace to perfect the work, I believe his Monarchy had not received so many ill-favour'd shocks since. The late revolt of Portugal was foreseen, and might have been prevented, if the Spaniard had not been too slow in his purpose to have sent the Duke of Braganza out of the way upon some employment as was projected.

Now will I reconcile the former sayings of those two renowned Secretaries, with the gallant comparison of Charles the Emperor, (and he was of a more temperate mould than a Spaniard, being a Flemish born) he was us'd to say, that while any great business of State was yet in consultation, we should observe the motion of Saturn, which is plumbeous, long and heavy; but when it is once absolutely resolved upon, then we should observe the motion of Mercury, the nimblest of all the planets, Ubi desinit Saturnus, ibi incipiat Mercurius. Whereunto I will add, that we should imitate the Mulberry,

Quodum cum Streptu, as Pliny saith.

berry, who of all Trees casts out her buds latest, for she doth it not till all the cold Weather be past, and then she is sure they cannot be nipped, but then she shoots them out all in one Night; so though she be one way the slowest, she is another way the nimblest of all Trees.

Thus have I obeyed your Lordships Command in expounding the Sense of these two Sayings, according to my mean Apprehension; but this exposition relates only to publick affairs, and political negotiations, wherein your Lordship is so excellently vers'd. I shall most willingly conform to any other Injunctions of your Lordships, and esteem them always as Favours, while I am Westmin. Sept. 5. 1633.

J. H.

XVIII.

To Sir J. Brown, Knight.

S I R,

ONE would think that the utter falling off of Catalonia and Portugal in so short a compass of time should much lessen the Spaniard, the People of both these Kingdoms being from Subjects become Enemies against him, and in actual hostility: without doubt it hath done so, yet not so much as the world imagins; 'tis true in point of Regal Power, and divers brave subordinate Commands for his Servants, he is a great deal lessened thereby, but though he be less powerful, he is not a penny poorer thereby, for there comes not a farthing less every year into his Exchequer, in regard that those Countries were rather a Charge than Benefit unto him, all their Revenue being drunk up in Pensions, and Payments of Officers and Garrisons; for if the King of Spain had lost all except the West-Indies, and all Spain except Castile herself, it would little diminish his Treasury. Touching Catalonia and Portugal, especially the latter, 'tis true, they were mighty members of the Castilian Monarchy, but I believe they will sooner want Castile, than Castile them, because she fill'd them with treasure; now that Barcelona and Lisbon hath shaken hands with Sevil, I do not think that either of them hath the tithe of that treasure they had before, in regard the one was the Scale whereby the King of Spain sent his money to Italy, the other, because all her East-India commodities were barter'd commonly in Andalusia and elsewhere for Bullion. Catalonia is fed with money from France, but for Portugal she hath little or none, therefore I do not see how she could support a War long to any purpose if Castile were quiet, unless soldiers would be contented to take Cloves and Pepper-corns for Patacons and Pistoles.
You

You know Money is the sinew and soul of War: This makes me think on that blunt answer which Captain Talbot return'd Henry the 8th from Calais, who having receiv'd special Command from the King to erect a new Fort at the Water-gate, and to see the Town well fortified, sent him word, That he could neither fortify nor fistify without Money. There is no News at all stirring here now, and I am of the Italians mind that said, Nulla nuova, buona nuova, no News, good News. But it were great News to see you here, whence you have been an Alien so long to Holbourn, June 3.

1640.

Your most affectionate Friend,

J. H.

XIX.

To Captain C. Price.

Cousin,

YOU have put me upon such an odd intricate piece of business, that I think there was never the like of it. I am more puzzled and entangled with it than oft-times I use to be with my Band-strings when I go hastily to bed, and want such a fair female hand as you have to untie them. I must impute all this to be the peevish humour of the People I deal withal. I find it true now that one of the greatest tortures that can be in the negotiation of the world is, to have to do with perverse, irrational, half-witted Men, and to be worded to death by Nonsense; besides, as much brain as they have, is as full of Scruples as a Bur is of prickles, which is a quality incident to all those who have their Heads lightly ballasted, for they are like buys in a barr'd Port, weaving perpetually up and down. The Father is scrupulous of the Son, the Son of the Sisters, and all three of me, to whose award they referr'd the business three several times. It is a hard task to reconcile the Fanes of St. Sepulchres Steeple, which never look all four upon one point of the Heavens, as to reduce them to any conformity of reason: I never remember to have met with Father and Children, or Children among themselves of a more differing Genius and Contrariety of Humours, insomuch that there cannot be a more pregnant instance to prove that humane Souls come not ex traduce, and by seminal production from the Parents. For my part, I intend to spend my Breath no longer upon them, but to wash my Hands quite of the Business, and so I would wish you to do, unless you love to walk in a Labyrinth of Bryers; so expecting with impatience your return to London, I rest

Westmin. Apr. 27.

1632.

Your most faithful Servitor,

J. H.

XX. To

XX.

To my Cousin Mr. J. P. at Lincolns-Inn.

Cousin,

THE last week you sent me word, that you were so cramp'd with business, that you could not put Pen to Paper; if you write not this week, I shall fear you are not only cramp'd but cripled; at least I shall think you are cramp'd in your affection rather than your fingers, and that you have forgot how once it was my good fortune to preserve you from drowning when the cramp took you in St. John's Pool at Oxford. The Cramp, as I take it, is a sudden Convulsion of the Nerves. For my part, the ligaments and sinews of my Love to you have been so strong, that they were never yet subject to such spasmatrical shrinkings and Convulsions. Now, Letters are the very Nerves and Arteries of friendship; nay, they are the vital spirits and Elixar of Love, which in case of distance and long absence would be in hazard to languish, and quite moulder away without them. Amongst the Italians and Spaniards 'tis held one of the greatest solecisms that can be in good manners, not to answer a Letter with the like civility; by this they use to distinguish a Gentleman from a Clown; besides, they hold it one of the most vertuous ways to employ time. I am the more covetous of a punctual correspondence with you in this point, because I commonly gain by your Letters, your stile is so polite, your expressions so gallant, and your lines interspers'd with such dainty flowers of Poetry and Philosophy. I understand there is a very able Doctor that reads the Anatomy Lecture this Term; if Poyden will dispense with you, you cannot spend your hours better than to hear him. So I end for this time, being cramp'd for want of more matter, and rest

West. July. 3.

1631.

Your most affectionate loving

Cousin,

J. H.

XXI.

To my Nephew J. P. at St. John's in Oxford.

Nephew,

I Had from you lately two Letters, the last was well freighted with very good stuff, but the other, to deal plainly with you, was not so; There was as much difference between them, as 'twixt a Scotch-Pedlars pack in Poland, and the Magazine of an English Merchant in Naples; the one being usually full of Taffaty, Silks, and Sattins, the other of Callicoes, Thred-ribbands, and such Poldavy Ware: I perceive you have good Commodities to vent,

if

if you take the Pains: Your trifles and bagatels are ill bestowed upon me, therefore hereafter I pray let me have of your best sort of Wares: I am glad to find that you have stor'd up so much already; you are in the best Mart in the World to improve them, which I hope you daily do, and I doubt not when the time of your apprenticeship there is expir'd, but you will find a good Market to expose them for your own and the publick Benefit abroad. I have sent you the Philosophy Books you writ to me for; any thing that you want of this kind for the advancement of your Studies, do but write, and I shall furnish you. When I was a Student as you are, my practice was to borrow, rather than buy some sort of Books, and to be always punctual in restoring them upon the day assign'd, and in the interim to swallow of them as much as made for my turn; this oblig'd me to read them thorough with more haste to keep my word, whereas I had not been so careful to peruse them, had they been my own Books, which I knew were always ready at my dispose. I thank you heartily for your last Letter, in regard I found it smelt of the Lamp, I pray let your next do so, and the Oil and Labour shall not be lost which you expend upon

Westmin. Aug. 1.

1633.

Your assured loving Uncle,

J. H.

XXII.

To Sir Tho. Haw.

S I R,

I Thank you a thousand times for the choice Stanza's you pleas'd to send me lately: I find that you were thoroughly heated, that you were inspir'd with a true Enthusiasm when you compos'd them: And whereas others use to flutter in the lower Region, your Muse soars up to the upper, and transcending that too, takes her flight among the Cœlestial Bodies to find a Fancy: Your desires I should do something upon the same Subject, I have obey'd, though I fear not satisfied in the following numbers.

1. *Could I but catch those beamy Rays,
Which Phœbus at high Noon displays,
I'de set them on a Loom, and frame
A Scarf for Delia of the same.*

2. *Could I that wondrous Black come near,
Which Cynthia, when eclips'd doth wear,
Of a new Fashion I would trace
A Mask thereof for Delia's Face.*

3. Could

3. Could I but reach that green and blue,
Which Iris decks in various hue,
From her moist Bow I'de drag them down,
And make my Delia a Summer Gown.

4. Could I those whitely Stars go nigh,
Which make the milky way in Skie,
I'de poach them, and at Moon-shine dress,
To make my Delia a curious Mefs.

5. Thus would I diet, thus attire
My Delia, Queen of Hearts and Fire,
She should have every thing divine
That would besit a Seraphin :
And 'cause ungirt unblest'd we find,
One of the Zones her waste should bind.

They are of the same cadence as yours, and airable: So I am

Westmin. Sept. 5.
1632.

Your Servitor,
J. H.

XXIII.

To the Right Honourable the Lady Eliz. Digby.

Madam,

IT is no improper Comparison, that a thankful Heart is like a Box of precious Ointment, which keeps the Smell long after the thing is spent: Madam, (without Vanity be it spoken) such is my Heart to you, and such are your Favours to me, the strong aromatick Odour they carried with them diffus'd itself through all the Veins of my Heart, especially through the left Ventricle, where the most Illustrious Blood lies; so that the Perfume of them remains still fresh within me, and is like to do, while that triangle of flesh dilates and shuts itself within my Breast; nor doth this Perfume stay there, but as all Smells naturally rend upwards, it hath ascended to my Brain and sweetned all the Cells thereof, especially the Memory, which may be said to be the Cabinet also to preserve Courtesies; for though the Heart be the Box of Love, the Memory is the Box of Lastingness; the one may be term'd the Source whence the Motions of Gratitude flow, the other the Cistern that keeps them.

But your Ladyship will say, these are Words only; I confess it, 'tis but a verbal Acknowledgment: But, Madam, if I were made happy happy with an opportunity, you should quickly find these Words turn'd to Actions, either to go, to run, or ride up on your errands: In expectation of such a favourable occasion, I rest, Madam,

Your Ladyships most humble and enchained Servitor, J. H.

Westmin. Aug. 3.

XXIV.

To Sir J. B.

Noble Sir,

That old Opinion the Jew and Turk have of Women, that they are of an inferior Creation to Man, and therefore exclude them, the one from their Synagogues, the other from their Mosques, is in my Judgment not only partial, but prophane; for the Image of the Creator shines as clearly in the one as in the other, and I believe there are as many Female Saints in Heaven as Male; unless you could make me adhere to the Opinion that Women must be all masculine before they be capable to be made Angels of: Add hereunto that there went better, and more refined Stuff to the Creation of Woman than Man: 'Tis true, 'twas a weak part in Eve to yield to the seducement of Satan, but it was a weaker thing in Adam to suffer himself to be tempted by Eve being the weaker Vessel.

The ancient Philosophers had a better Opinion of that Sex, for they ascribed all Sciences to the Muses, all sweetness and morality to the Graces, and Prophetick Inspirations to the Sybils. In my small revolving of Authors, I find as high Examples of Virtue in Women as in Men; I could produce here a whole Regiment of them, but that a Letter is too narrow a Field to muster them in: I must confess, there are also counter instances of this kind; if Queen Zenobia was such a precise Pattern of Continency, that after the Act of Conception, she would know her Husband no more all the time of her pregnancy till she had been delivered: There is another example of a Roman Empress, that when she found the vessel freighted, would take in all passengers, when the Barn was full any one might thresh in the haggard, but not till then, for fear the right Father should be discovered by the Countenance of the child. But what need I go so far off to rake the ashes of the dead? there are living Examples enough pro and con of both Sexes; yet Woman being (as I said before) the weaker Vessel, her failings are more venial than those of Man, though Man indeed being more conversant with the World, and meeting more Opportunities abroad (and Opportunity is the greatest Bawd) of falling into Infirmities, as he follows his worldly negotiations, may on the other side be judg'd the more excusable.

Infir-

But you are far fitter than I to discourse of this Subject, being better vers'd in the Theory of Women, having had a most virtuous Lady of your own before, and being now linked to another. I wish a thousand Benedictions may fall upon this your second Choice, and that—tam bona sit quam bona prima fuit. This opinion shall be my conclusion for the present, whereunto I add that I am in no vulgar degree of Affection

Westmin. Aug. 5.

1632.

Your most humble and faithful

Servitor,

J. H.

XXV.

To Mr. P. W.

S I R,

Here are two things which add much to the merit of courtesies, viz. Cheerfulness and speed, and the contraries of these lessen the value of them; that which hangs long 'twixt the fingers, and is done with difficulty and a sullen supercilious look, makes the obligation of the receivers nothing so strong, or the memory of the kindness half so grateful: The best thing the Gods themselves lik'd of in the entertainments they received of those poor wretches Baucis and Philemon, was open hearty looks.

— Super omnia vultus,

Acessere boni. —

A clear unclouded countenance makes a Cottage appear like a Castle in point of hospitality, but a beetle-brow'd sullen face makes a Palace as smoaky as an Irish Hut. There is a mode in giving entertainment, and doing any courtesie else, which trebly binds the receiver to an acknowledgment, and makes the remembrance of it more acceptable. I have known two Lord High Treasures of England of quite contrary humours, one successively after the other; the one though he did the suiters business, yet he went murmuring; the other though he did it not, was us'd to dismiss the party with some satisfaction. 'Tis true money is welcome though it be in a dirty clout, but 'tis far more acceptable if it come in a clean handkerchief.

Sir, you may sit in the chair, and read Lectures of Morality to all Mankind in this point, you have such a dexterous discreet way to handle suiters in that troublesome Office of yours, wherein as you have already purchased much, I wish you all increase of honour and happiness,

Your humble and obliged Servitor, J. H.

XXVI. To

XXVI.

To Mr. F. Coll. at Naples.

S I R,

IS confess'd I have offended by my over-long silence, and abus'd our maiden Friendship: I appear before you now in this white Sheet to do Penance, pray in your next to send me an Absolution: Absolutions they say are as cheap in that Town, as curtesans, whereof 'twas said there were 20000 on the common list, when I was there, at which Time I remember one told me a Tale of a Calabrian who had bugger'd a Goat, and having bought an Absolution of his Confessor, he was ask'd by a Friend what it cost him, he answered, I procured it for four Pistolets, and for the other odd one, I think I might have had a Dispensation to have married the Beast.

I thank you for the exact Relation you sent me of the fearful Earthquakes and Fires which happened lately in that Country, and particularly about Vesuvius: It seems the huge Giant whom the Poets say, was hurl'd under the vast Mountain by the Gods for thinking to scale Heaven, had a mind to turn from one Side to the other, which he useth to do at the Revolution of every hundred Years, and stirring his Body by that Action, he was taken with a fit of the Cough, which made the Hill shake, and belch out Fire in this hideous manner. But to repay you in the like Coin, they send us stranger News from Lisbon, for they write of a spick and span new Island, that hath peep'd up out of the Atlantick Sea, near the Tarceras, which never appear'd before, since the Creation; and begins to be Peopled already. Methinks the King of Spain need no more Countries, he hath too many already, unless they were better united. All your Friends here are well, and mind you often in Town and Country, as doth Westmin. Apr. 7.

1620.

Your true constant

Servitor, J. H.

XXVII.

To Mr. T. Lucy, in Venice.

S I R,

YOur last you sent me was from Genoa, where you write that Gli mariti ingravidanolor moglie cento miglia lantano, Husbands get their Wives with Child a hundred Miles off. 'Tis a great Vertue, I confess, but 'tis nothing to what our East-India Marriners can do here, because they can do so, forty Times further; for

X

though

though their Wives be at Ratcliffe, and they at the Red-Sea, though they be at Madagascar, the Mogul's Court, or Japan, yet they use to get their Wives Bellies up here about London; a strange Vertue at such a huge distance; but I believe the Active part is in the Wives, and the Husbands are meerly Passive, which makes them among other Wares to bring home with them a sort of precious Horns, the Powder whereof, could one get some of it, would be of an invaluable Vertue; This Operation of our Indian Mariner at such a distance is more admirable, in my Judgment, than that of the weapon-salve, the unguentum armarium, for that can do no good unless the Surgeon have the instrument, and blood, but this is done without both, for the Husband contributes neither of them.

You are now I presume in Venice, there also such Things are done by Proxy; while the Husband is Abroad upon the Gallies, there be others that shoot his gulf at home. You are now in a Place where you may feed all your Senses very cheap, I allow you the pleasing of your Eye, your Ear, your Smell, and Taste, but take heed of being too indulgent of the fifth Sense: The Poets feign that Venus the Goddess of Pleasure, and therefore call'd Aprodite, was ingendred of the froth of the Sea, (which makes Fish more salacious commonly than Flesh) it is not improbable that she was got and coagulated of that foam which Neptune useth to disgorge upon those pretty Islands, whereon that City stands. My Lady Miller commends her kindly unto you, and she desires you to send her a compleat Cupboard of the best Chrystal Glasses Murano can afford by the next shipping; besides, she entreats you to send her a pot of the best Methridate, and so much of Treacle.

All your Friends here are well and jovial, T. T. drank your Health yesternight, and wish'd you could send him a handsome Venetian Courtisan inclos'd in a Letter, he would willingly be at the charge of the postage, which he thinks would not be much for such a light Commodity. Farewel, my dear Tom, have a care of your Courses, and continue to love him who is,

Westmin. Jan. 15.

Yours to the Altar,

1635.

J. H.

XXVII.

To Mr. T. Jackson, at Madrid.

S I R,

THOUGH a great Sea severs us now, yet 'tis not all the Water of the Ocean can drown the remembrance of you in me, but that it floats and flows daily in my Brain; I must confess (for 'tis impossible the mind of Man should fix itself always upon one Ob-Object,) it hath sometimes its ebbs in me, but 'tis to rise up again with greater force: At the writing hereof 'twas flood, 'twas spring-tide, which swell'd so high, that the thoughts of you overwhelm'd all others within me, they ingross'd all my Intellectuals for the Time.

Ob-

You write to me fearful News, touching the revolt of the Catalans from Castilia, of the tragical murdering of the Vice-roy, and the burning of his House: Those mountaneers are mad Lads. I fear the sparkles of this Fire will fly further, either to Portugal or to Sicilia and Italy, all which Countries, I observ'd the Spaniard hold as one would do a Wolf by the Ear, fearing they should run away ever and anon from him.

The News here is, that Lambeth-House bears all the sway at White-hall, and the Lord Deputy Kings it notably in Ireland; some that love them best, could wish them a little more Moderation.

I pray buy Suarez's Works for me of the last Edition, Mr. William Pawly, to whom I desire my most hearty Commends may be presented, will see it safely sent by way of Bilboa; your Friends here are all well, as is thanks be to God, Holborn, Mar. 3. 1638. Your true Friend to serve you, J. H.

XXIX.

To Sir Edward Sa. Knight.

Sir Edward,

I Had a shrewd disease hung lately upon me, proceeding as the Physicians told me from this long reclused Life, and close restraint, which had much wasted my Spirits and brought me low: When the Crisis was past, I began to grow doubtful, that I had but a short Time to breath in this elementary World, my Fever still increasing, and finding my Soul weary of this muddy Mansion, and methought more weary of this Prison of Flesh, than this Flesh was of this Prison of the Fleet. Therefore after some gentle slumbers; and unusual dreams about the dawnings of the day, I had a lucid interval, and I fell a thinking how to put my little House in order, and to make my last Will. Hereupon my thoughts ran upon Grunnius Sophista's last Testament, who having nothing else to dispose of but his Body, he bequeathed all the Parts thereof in Legacies, as his Skin to the Tanners, his Bones to the Dice-makers, his Guts to the Musicians, his Fingers to the Scriveners, his Tongue to his fellow Sophisters; (which were the Lawyers of those Times) and so forth: as he thus dissected his Body, so I thought to divide my Mind into Legacies, having as you know little of the outward pelf and gifts of Fortune to dispose of, for never any was less beholden to that blind Baggage. In the highest degree of Theoretical Contemplation, I made an entire Sacrifice of my Soul to her Maker, who by infusing created her, and by creating infused her to actuate this small bulk of Flesh, with an unshaken confidence of the Redemption of both in my Saviour, and consequently of the Salvation of the one, and the Resurrection of the other: My Thoughts then reflected upon divers of my noble Friends, and I fell to proportion unto them what Legacies I held most proper. I thought to bequeath unto my Lord of Cherbery and Sir K. Digby, that little Philosophy and Knowledge I have in the Mathematicks; My historical Observations and critical researches I made into Antiquity, I thought to bequeath unto Dr. Usher Lord Primate of Ireland; My Observations Abroad, and Inspection into Foreign States, I thought to leave to my Lord G. D. My Poetry such as it is, to Mistress A. K. who I know is a great minion of the Muses: School-languages I thought to bequeath unto my dear Mother the University of Oxford: My Spanish to Sir Lewis Dives, and Master Endymion Porter; for though they are great Masters of that Language, yet it may stead them something when they read Lapicæra Justina: My Italian to the worthy Company of Turkey and Levantine Merchants, from divers of whom I have received many noble Favours: My French to my most honoured Lady, the Lady Cor, and it may help her something to understand Rablais: The little smattering I have in the Dutch, British, and my English, I did not esteem worth the bequeathing: My Love I had bequeathed to be diffus'd among all my dear Friends, especially those that have stuck unto me in this my long Affliction; my best natural Affections betwixt the Lord Bishop of Bristol, my Brother Howell, and my three dear Sisters, to be transferr'd by them to my Cousins their Children. This little sackful of Bones I thought to bequeath to Westminster Abbey, to be interred in the Cloyster within the South-side of the Garden, close to the Wall, where I would have desired Sir H. F. (my dear Friend) to have inlayed a small piece of black Marble, and caus'd this Motto to have been insculped upon it, Hucusque peregrinus, huic domi, or this, which I would have left to his choice, Hucusque Eraticus, heic fixus; and instead of strewing my Grave with Flowers, I would have desired him to have grafted thereon some little Tree, of what sort he pleas'd, that might have taken Root downward to my Dust, because I have been always naturally affected to Woods and Groves, and those kind of Vegetables, insomuch that if there were any such Thing as a Pythagorean Metempsychosis, I think my Soul would Transmigrate into some Tree, when she bids this Body farewell.

By these extravagancies, and odd chimera's of my Brain, you may well perceive that I was not well, but distemper'd, especially in my Intellectuals, according to the Spanish Proverb, Siempre desvarius con la calentura, Feavers have always their fits of dotage. Among those to whom I had bequeath'd my dearest Love, you were one, to whom I had intended a large proportion, and that Love which I would have left you then in Legacy, I send you now in this Letter, for it hath pleased God to reprieve me for a longer time to creep upon this Earth, and to see better Days, I hope when this black dismal Cloud is dispell'd; but come foul or fair Weather I shall be as formerly,

Fleet, Mar. 26.

1643.

Your most constant faithful
Servitor, J. H.

XXXI.

To the Right Honourable the Lady Wichts.

Madam,

Since I was hurl'd amongst these Walls, I had divers fits of Melancholy, and such turbid intervals that use to attend close Prisoners, who for the most part, have no other Companions, but confus'd troops of wandring Cogitations: Now, Melancholy is far more fruitful of thoughts than any other humour; for it is like the mud of Nile, which, when that Enigmatical vast River is got again to her former Bed, engendreth divers sorts of new Creatures, and some kind of Monsters; my Brain in this Fleet hath been often thus overwhelm'd, yet I never found it so muddy, nor the Region of my Mind so much clouded, as it was lately, after I had notice of the sad Tidings of Master Comptrouller's death; the News hereof struck such a damp into me, that for some space methought, the very pulse of my Blood, and the motions of my Heart were at a stand; for I was surpriz'd with such a Consternation, that I felt no pulsations in the one, or palpitations in the other. Well, Madam, he was a brave solid wise Man, of a noble free Disposition, and so great a controuller of his Passions, he was always at home within himself; yet I much fear, that the sense of these unhappy Times made too deep impressions in him.

Truly, Madam, I lov'd and honour'd him in such a Perfection, that my Heart shall wear a broad black Ribband for him while I live, as long as I have a retentive Faculty to remember any Thing, his Memory shall be fresh with me.

But the Truth is, that if the advantageous Exchange which he hath made were well considered, no Friend of his should be sorry; for in lieu of a white Staff in an earthly Court, he hath got a Scepter of Immortality: He that had been Ambassador at the Port to the greatest Monarch upon Earth, where he resided so many Years an Honour to his King and Country, is now arriv'd at a far more glorious Port than that of Constantinople; though (as I intimated before) I fear that this boisterous Weather hath blown him thither before his time. God Almighty give your Ladyship patience for so great a loss, and comfort in your hopeful Issue; with this Prayer I conclude myself,

Madam,

From the Fleet,
April 15.

Your Ladyships most humble and sorrowful Servant, J. H.

XXXII.

To Mr. E. S. Counsellor, at the Middle-Temple.

S I R,

I Had yours this Morning, and I thank you for the News you send me, that divers of my fellow-sufferers are enlarg'd out of Lambeth, Winchester, London, and Ely-House: Whereunto I may Answer you as the Cheapside Porter did one that related Court-news unto him, how such a one was made Lord Treasurer, another Chancellor of the Exchequer, another was made an Earl, another sworn Privy-Counsellor; I, said he, yet I am but a Porter still: So I may say, I am but a Prisoner still, notwithstanding the releasement of so many: Mistake me not, as if I repin'd hereby at any ones Liberty; for I could heartily wish that I were the Unic Martyr in this kind, that I were the Figure of the one with never a Cypher after it, as God wot there are too many: I could wish that as I am the least in Value, I were the last in Number. A day may come, that a favourable Wind may blow, that I may launch also out of this Fleet; In the mean Time, and always after I am

Fleet, Feb. 1. 1645.

Your true and constant Servitor, J. H.

XXXIII.

To Mr. R. B. at Ipswich.

Gentle Sir,

I Value at a high rate the sundry Respects you have been pleas'd to shew me; for as you oblig'd me before by your Visits, so you have much endear'd yourself unto me since by your late Letter of the 11th Current: Believe it, Sir, the least scruple of your Love is not lost, (because I perceive it proceeds from the pure Motions of Vertue) but return'd to you in the same full proportion; But what you please to ascribe unto me in point of Merit, I dare not own; you look upon me through the wrong end of the the prospective, or rather through a multiplying Glass, which makes the Object appear far bigger than it is in real dimensions; such Glasses Anotamists use in the dissection of Bodies, which can make a Flea look like a Cow, or a Flie as big as a Vulture.

I presume you are constant in your desire to Travel, if you intend it at all, you cannot do it in a better time, there being little comfort, God wot, to breath English Air, as Matters are carried; I shall be glad to steed you in any Thing that may tend to your advantage, for to tell you truly, I take much contentment in this inchoation of Friendship, to improve and perfect which, I shall lie Centinel to apprehend all Occasions.

If you meet Master R. Brownrigg in the Country, I pray present my very kind Respects unto him, for I profess myself to be both his, and

*Fleet, Aug. 15.
1646.*

*Your most affectionate Servitor,
J. H.*

XXXIV.

To Cap. C. Price, Prisoner at Coventry.

Cousin,

YOU, whom I held always as my second Self in Affection, are now so in Affliction, being in the same predicament of sufferance, though not in the same Prison as I: There is nothing sweeth Friendship more than participation and identity of danger and durance: The Day may come that we may discourse with comfort of these sad Times; for Adversity hath the advantage of Prosperity itself in this Point, that the Commemoration of the one, is oft-times more delightfome than the Fruition of the other: Moreover, Adversity and Prosperity, are like Vertue and Vice; the two foremost of both which, begin with anxieties and pain, but they end comically in Contentment and Joy; the other two quite contrary, they begin with Pleasure, and end in Pain; there's a difference in the last Scene.

I could wish, if there be no hope of a speedy Releasement, you would remove your Body hither, and rather than moulder away in idleness, we would devoutly blow the Coal, and try if we can exalt Gold, and bring it o'er the helm in this Fleet; we will transmute Metals, and give a resurrection to mortified Vegetables, to which end the green Lyon and the Dragon, the Demogorgon, and Mercury himself, with all the Planets shall attend us, till we come to the Elixer, the true Powder of projection, which the vulgar call the Philosophers Stone: If Matters hit right, we may thereby get better returns than Cardigan Silver Mines afford: But we must not melt ourselves away as J. Meredith did, nor do as your Countryman Morgan did. I know when you read these Lines, you'll say I am grown Mad, and that I have taken Opium in lieu of Tobacco: If I be Mad, I am but sick of the Disease of the Time, which reigns more among the English than the sweating Sickness did some fix score Years since amongst them, and only them, both at Home and Abroad.

There's a strange Magot hath got into their Brain, which possesseth them with a kind of vertigo, and it reigns in the Pulpit, more than any where else, for some of our Preachmen are grown Dog-mad, there's a Worm got into their Tongues, as well as their Heads.

Hodge Powel commends him unto you, he is here under hatches as well as I; however I am still in fair or foul Weather,

Fleet, Jan. 3.

1643.

Your truly affectionate Cousin to serve you, J. H.

XXXV.

To the right Honourable the Lord of Cherbery.

My Lord,

GOD send you joy of your new Habitation, for I understand your Lordship is remov'd from the Kings-Street to the Queens: It may be with this enlargment of dwelling, your Lordship may need a recruit of Servants: The bearer hereof hath a desire to devote himself to your Lordships Service; and I find that he hath a concurrence of such parts that may make him capable of it; He is well studied in Men, and Books, vers'd in Business of all sorts, and writes a very fair hand: He is well extracted, and hath divers good Friends that are dwellers in the Town who will be responsible for him: Moreover, besides this Letter of mine, your Lordship will find that he carrieth one in his countenance; for an honest ingenious Look is a good Letter of Recommendation of itself; if your Lordship hath not present occasion to employ him, he may be about you a while like a spare Watch, which your Lordship may wind up at pleasure. So my aim being to do your Lordship Service, as much as him a Pleasure by this Recommendation, I rest

Your Lordships most humble

Fleet, July 13.

1646.

Servant,

J. H.

XXXVI.

To Mr. R. Br.

Gentle Sir,

YOurs of the forth Current came safely to hand, and I acknowledge with much Contentment, the fair Respects you please shew me; you may be well assur'd, that the least grain of your Love to me is not lost, but counterballanc'd with the like in full Weight; For although I am as frail a Piece, and as full of Infirmities as another Man, yet I like my own Nature in one Thing, that I could never endure to be in the arrear to any for Love; where my Hand came short my Heart was bountiful, and help'd to make an equal Compensation.

I hope you persist in your purpose for foreign Travel, to study a while the World Abroad; It is the way to perfect you, and I have already discover'd such choice ingredients, and parts of ingenuity in you, that will quickly make a compleat Gentleman. No more now; but that I am seriously

Fleet, July 3.
1646.

Yours to dispose of,
J. H.

XXXVII.

To Sir L. D. in the Tower.

S I R,

TO help the passing away of your weary hours between those disconsolate Walls, I have sent you a King of your own Name to bear you Company, Lewis the Thirteenth, who though dead three Years since, may peradventure afford you some entertainment; and I think that dead Men of this Nature are the fittest Companions, for such that are buried alive, as you and I are. I doubt not but you, who have a Spirit to overcome all Things, will overcome the sense of this hard Condition, that you may survive these sad Times and see better Days; I doubt not, as weak as I am, but I shall be able to do it myself; in which confidence I stile myself,

Fleet, Feb. 15.
1646.

Your most obliged and ever faithful Servitor
J. H.

My most humble Service to Sir J. St. and Sir H. V.

XXXVIII.

To Master R. B.

Gentle Sir,

I Had yours of the second current by Master Bloys, wick obligeth me to send you double Thanks, first for you Letter, then for the choice Hand that brought it me.

When I had gone through it, me thought you lines were as leaves, or rather so many branches, amongst which there sprouted divers sweet Blossoms of ingenuity, which I find may quickly come to a rare maturity; I confess this clime (as Matters go) is untoward to improve such buds of Vertue; but the Times may mend, now that our King with the Sun, makes his approach unto us more and more: Yet I fear we shall not come yet a good while to our former serenity, therefore it were not amiss, in my judgment, if some foreign Air did blow upon the aforesaid Blossoms, to ripen them under some other Meridian, in the interim, it is the opinion of

Fleet, Aug. 3.

1635.

Your ever respectful Friend to dispose of, J. H.

XXXIX.

To Mr. G. C. at Dublin.

S I R,

THE News of this Week, have been like the waves of that boisterous Sea, through which this Letter is to pass over unto you; Divers Reports for Peace have swoln high for the Time, but they suddenly fell low, and flat again. Our Relations here, are like a peal of Bells in a windy blustering Weather, sometimes the Sound is strong on this side, sometimes on that side of the Sceptre, so our Relations sound diversly as the Air of Affection carries them; and sometimes in a whole volley of News, we shall not find one true Report.

There was in a Dunkirk Ship taken some Months ago, hard by Arundel Castle, amongst other Things a large Picture seiz'd upon, and carried to Westminster-Hall, and put in the Star-Chamber to be publickly seen; It was the legend of Conanus a British Prince in the Time of Gratian the Emperor, who having married Ursula the King of Cornwall's Daughter, were imbarqued with 11000 Virgins for Britany in France, to colonize that part with Christians, but being by distress of Weather beaten upon the Rhine, because they would not yield to the Lust of the Infidels, after the example of Ursula, they were all slain, their Bodies were carried to Colen, where there stands to this Day a stately Church built for them: This is the Story of that Picture, yet the common People here take Conanus for our King, and Ursula for the Queen, and the Bishop which stands hard by to be the Pope, and so stare upon it accordingly, notwithstanding that the Prince there represented, hath Sandals on his Feet after the old fashion, that the Coronets on their Heads resemble those of Dukes and Earls, as also that there are Rays about them which never use to be applied to living Persons, with divers other incongruities: Yet it cannot be beaten out of the belief of Thousands here, but that it was intended to represent our King and Queen, which makes me conclude with this interjection of Wonders, Oh the ignorance of the common People!
Story

Fleet, Aug. 12.

1644.

Your faithful Friend to command, J. H.

XL.

To Master End. Porter, at Paris.

S I R,

I Most affectionately kiss your Hands for the Account (and candid Opinion) you please to give of the History I sent Her Majesty of the late King her Brothers Reign. I return you also a thousand Thanks for your comfortable Advice, that having been so long under hatches in this Fleet, I should fancy myself to be in a long Voyage at Sea: 'Tis true, Opinion can do much, and indeed she is that great Lady which rules the World. There is a wise Saying in that Country, where you sojourn now, That Cest nest pas la place, mais la pensee qui fait la prison; 'Tis not the Place, but Opinion that makes the Prison, the Conceit is more than the Condition: You go on to prefer my Captivity in this Fleet, to that of a Voyager at Sea, in regard that he is subject to Storms and springing of Leaks, to Pyrates and Picaroons, with other Casualties; you write I have other Advantages also, to be free from Plundering, and other Barbarisms, that reign now Abroad; 'tis true I am secur'd from all these, yet touching the first, I could be content to expose myself to all those Chances, so that this were a floating Fleet, that I might breath free Air, for I have not been suffered to stir o'er the threshold of this House these four Years. Whereas you say, I have a Book for my Companion; 'tis true, I converse sometimes with dead Men, and what fitter associates can there be for one that is buried alive (as I am) than dead Men, and now will I adventure to send you a kind of Epitaph I made of myself this Morning, as I was lolling a Bed.

Here lies entomb'd a walking Thing,
Whom Fortune with the (States) did fling.

Be-

*Between these Walls ; Why ? Ask not that,
That blind Whore doth she knows not what.*

'Tis a strange World you'll say, when Men make their own Epitaphs in their Graves, but we that are thus buried alive, have one advantage above others, that we are like to have a double Resurrection ; I am sure of one, but if these Times hold, I cannot ascertain myself of the other, for I may be suffered to rot here for ought I know : It being the hard destiny of some in these Times, when they are once clapp'd up to be so forgotten, as if there were no such Men in the World.

I humbly thank you for your aviso's, I cannot correspond with you in that kind as freely as I would, only in the general I must tell you, that we are come to such a pass, that the Posie which a young Couple did put upon their wedding Ring, may fit us in the general, which was, God knows what will become of us. But I trust these bad Times will be recompenced with better ; for my part, that which keeps me alive, is your Motto there of the House of Bourbon, and 'tis but one Word, L' Sperance. So I pray God preserve you, and

*Fleet, Jan. 2.
1646.*

*Your most faithful humble
Servitor, J. H.*

XLI.

To Master J. Hall, at Saint John's Colledge in Cambridge.

Master Hall,

YOurs of the Thirteenth of this instant came safely, though slowly, to Hand, for I had it not till the Twentieth of the same : And the next Day your Essays were brought me ; I entertain'd both with much Respect, for I found therein many choice and ripe Notions, which I hope proceeds from a pregnancy rather than prococity of Spirit in you.

I perceive you have entred the Suburbs of Sparta already, and that you are in a fair way to get to the Town itself, I know you have wherewith to adorn her : Nay, you may in Time gain Athens herself, with all the Knowledge she was ever Mistress of, if you go on in your Career with constancy ; I find you have a Genius for the most solid and severest sort of Studies ; therefore when you have pass'd through the Briars of Logick, I could wish you to go strongly on in the fair Fields of Philosophy, and the Mathematicks, which are true Academical Studies, and they will afford rich Matter of Application for your inventive Spirit to work upon ; by all means understand Aristotle in his own Language, for it is the Language of Learning : Touching Poetry, History, and other humane

mane Studies; they may serve you for Recreation, but let them not by any means allure your Affections from the first. I shall delight sometimes to hear of your Proceeding; for I profess a great deal of good Will unto you, which makes me rest

Fleet, Decem. 3.

Your respectful Friend to serve you, J. H.

XLII.

To my Brother the Lord Bishop of Bristol, in France.

My good Lord and Brother,

Although the Sense of my own hard Condition be enough to make me Melancholy, yet when I contemplate yours, (as I often do) and compare your kind of Banishment with my Imprisonment, I find the apprehension of the first, wherein so many have a share, adds a double weight unto my Sufferings, though but single: Truly these Thoughts to me are as so many corrosives to one already in a Consumption. The World cries you up to be an excellent Divine, now Philosopher; now is the Time for you to make an advantage of both: Of the first, by calling to mind that Afflictions are the proportion of the best Theophilics. Of the other, by a well weigh'd consideration that crosses and troubles are entail'd upon Mankind as much as any other Inheritance: In this respect I am no Cadit, for you know I have had a double, if not a treble share, and may be rather call'd the elder Brother; but ὁ δὲ παλαιὸς καὶ ἰσχυρότερος, I hope I shall not sink under the burden, but that we shall be both reserved for better Days, especially now that the King (with the Sun and the Spring) makes his approach more and more towards us from the North.

God Almighty (the God of our good old Father) still guard you and guide you, that after so long a separation we may meet again with Comfort to confer Notes, and recount Matters pass'd: For adverse Fortune, among other Properties hath this for one, that her present pressures are not so irksome as the remembrance of them being pass'd are delightful. So I remain

Fleet, May 2.

1645.

*Your most loving Brother,
J. H.*

XLIII.

To Sir Lewis Dives, in the Tower.

S I R,

Among divers other Properties that attend a long Captivity, one is, that it purgeth the Humours, especially it correcteth Choler, and attempers it with Phlegm; which you know in Spanish

nish is taken for Patience: It hath also a Chymical kind of quality to refine the dross and feculency of a corrupt Nature, as Fire useth to purifie Metals, and destroy that Terram Adamicam in them as the Chymists call it, for Demogorgon with his Vegetables partak'd of Adams malediction as well as other Creatures, which makes some of them so foul and imperfect; Nature having design'd them all for Gold and Silver at first, and 'tis Fire can only rectifie, and reduce them towards such a Perfection. This Fleet hath been such a Furnace to me, it hath been a kind of Perillus Bull, or rather to use the Paracelsian Phrase: I have been here in ventre equino, in this limbeck and crucible of Affliction: And whereas the Chymist commonly requires but 150 Days antequam corvus in columbam vertatur, before the Crow turns to a Dove: I have been here five times so many Days and upward. I have been here time enough in conscience to pass all the degrees and effects of Fire, as distillation, sublimation, mortification, calcination, solution, descension, dealbation, rubification, and fixation; for I have been fastned to the Walls of this Prison any time these fifty five Months; I have been here long enough, if I were matter capable thereof, to be made the Philosophers Stone, to be converted from Water to Powder, which is the whole Magistry: I have been besides, so long upon the Anvil, that methinks I am grown malleable, and hammer-proof: I am so habituated to hardship. But indeed you that are made of a choicer mould, are fitter to be turned into the Elixer, than I who have so much dross and corruption in me, that it will require more pains and much more expence, to be purg'd and defecated; God send us both Patience to bear the burnt of this fiery Trial, and Grace to turn these decoctions into aqua vite, to make sovereign Treacle of this Viper. The Trojan Prince was forc'd to pass over Phlegeton, and pay Charon his freight before he could get into the Elisium Fields; you know the Moral, that we must pass through Hell to Heaven, and why not as well through a Prison to Paradise? Such may the Tower prove to you, and the Fleet to me, who am

From the Prison of the Fleet,

Feb. 23. 1645.

Your humble and hearty
Servitor, J. H.

XLIV.

To the Right Honourable the Lord R.

My Lord,

SURE there is some angry Planet hath lowred long upon the Catholick King, and though one of his Titles to Pagan Princes be, that he wears the Sun for his helmet, because it never sets upon

on all his dominions, in regard some part of them lie on the other side of the Hemisphere among the Antipodes, yet methinks that neither that great Star, or any of the rest are now propitious unto him: they cast it seems in more benign fluxes upon the Flower-de-luce, which thrives wonderfully; but how long these favourable Aspects will last, I will not presume to judge. This among divers others of late, hath been a fatal year to the said King, for Westward he hath lost Dunkirk: Dunkirk, which was the terror of this part of the World, the Scourge of the occidental Seas, whose Name was grown to be a bugbear for so many years, hath now changed her Master, and thrown away the Ragged Staff. Doubtless a great Exploit it was to take this Town: But whether this be advantagious to Holland, (as I am sure it is not to England) time will shew: It is more than probable that it may make him careless at Sea, and in the building and arming of his Ships, having now no Enemy near him; besides, I believe it cannot much benefit Hans, to have the French so contiguous to him; the old Saying was, Ayez le Francois pour ton amy, non pas pour ton Poison: Have the Frenchman for thy Friend, not for thy Neighbour.

Touching England, I believe these distractions of ours have been one of the greatest advantages that could befall France; and they happened in the most favourable conjuncture of time that might be, else I believe he would never have as much as attempted Dunkirk; for England in true reason of State had reason to prevent nothing more, in regard no one place could have added more to the naval Power of France: this will make his sails swell bigger, and I fear make him claim in time as much Regality in these narrow Seas as England herself.

In Italy the Spaniard hath also had ill Successes at Piambino and Porto Longone: besides, they write that he hath lost Il Prete, and Il Medico, the Priest and the Physician, to wit the Pope and the Duke of Florence (the House of Medici) who appear rather for the French than for him.

Add to all these disasters, that he hath lost within the Revolution of the same year the Prince of Spain his unic Son, in the very flower of his age, being but seventeen years old. These with the falling off of Catalonia and Portugal, with the death of his Queen, not above forty, are heavy Losses to the Catholick King, and must needs much enfeeble the great Bulk of his Monarchy, falling out in so short a compass of time one upon the neck of another, and we are not to enter into the secret Councils of God Almighty for a reason. I have read 'twas the Sensuality of the Flesh that drove the Kings out of Rome, the French out of Sicily, and brought the *Moor*s into Spain, where they kept firm footing above seven hundred hundred Years; I could tell you how not long before her Death, the late Queen of Spain took off one of her chapines, and clouted Olivares about the noddle with it; because he had accompanied the King to a Lady of Pleasure, telling him, that he should know he was Sister to a King of France, as well as Wife to a King of Spain: For my part, France and Spain is all one to me in point of Affection. I am one of those indifferent Men that would have the scales of Power in Europe kept even: I am also a Philoreus, a lover of Peace, and I could wish the French were more inclinable to it, now that the common Enemy hath invaded the Territories of Saint Mark. Nor can I but admire that at the same Time the French should assail Italy at one side, when the Turk was doing it on the other: But had that great naval Power of Christians which were this Summer upon the Coasts of Tuscany gone against the Mahometan Fleet, which was the same Time setting upon Candy, they might in all likelihood have achieved a glorious Exploit, and driven the Turk into the Hellepont. Nor is poor Christendom torn thus in Pieces by the German, Spaniard, French, and Swedes, but our three Kingdoms have also most pitifully scratch'd her Face, wasted her Spirits, and let out some of her illustrious Blood, by our late horrid Distractions: Whereby it may be inferr'd, that the Musti and the Pope seem to thrive in their Devotion one Way, a chief part of the Prayer of the one being, That Discord should still continue 'twixt Christian Princes; of the other, That Division should still increase between the Protestants: This poor Island is a woful Example thereof.

I hear the Peace 'twixt Spain and Holland is absolutely concluded by the Plenipotentiary Ministers at Munster, who have beat their Heads so many Years about it; but they write that the French and Swede do mainly endeavour, and set all the wheels of Policy a going to puzzle and prevent it: If it take effect, I do not see how the Hollander in common Honesty can evade it, I hope it will conduce much to an univerial Peace, which God grant, for War is a Fire struck in the Devils Tinder-box. No more now, but that I am, My Lord,

Your most humble Servitor,

Fleet, Decemb. 1. 1643.

J. H.

XLV.

To Mr. E. O. Counsellor at Gray's-Inn.

S I R,

THE sad Tidings of my dear Friend Doctor Prichard's death sunk deep into me, and the more I ruminate upon't, the more I resent it: But when I contemplate the order and those adamantine Laws

Laws which Nature put in such strict execution throughout this elementary World : When I consider that up and down this frail Globe of Earth we are but Strangers or Sojourners at best, being design'd for an infinitely better Country : When I think that our egress out of this Life, is as natural to us as our ingress, (all which he knew as much as any) these Thoughts in a checking way turn my Melancholy to a counter Passion, they beget another Spirit within me : You know, that in the disposing of all sublunary things, Nature is God's Handmaid, Fate his Commissioner, Time his Instrument, and Death his Executioner : By the first we have Generation ; by the second, Successes good or bad ; and the two last bring us to our End. Time with his vast Sythe mows down all things, and Death sweeps away those Mowings. Well, he was a rare, and a compleat judicious Scholar, as any that I have known born under our Meridian ; he was both solid and acute ; nor do I remember to have seen Soundness and Quaintness, with such sweet Strains of Morality, concur so in any. I should think that he fell sick of the Times, but that I knew him to be so good a Divine and Philosopher, and to have studied the Theory of this World so much, that nothing could take Impression in him to hurt himself ; therefore I am content to believe that his Glass ran out without any jogging : I know you lov'd him dearly well, which shall make me the more

Your most affectionate

Fleet, Aug. 3.

Servitor, J. H.

XLVI.

To J. W. Esq; at Grays-Inn.

Gentle Sir,

I Value at a high rate the fair respects you shew me, by the late ingenious expressions of your Letter ; but the Merit you ascribe unto me in the superlative, might have very well serv'd in the positive, and 'tis well if I deserve in that degree. You write that you have singular Contentment and Profit, in the perusal of some things of mine ; I am heartily glad they afforded any entertainment to a Gentleman of so choice a Judgment as yourself.

I have a foolish working Brain of mine own, in labour still with something, and I can hardly keep it from Supersatations, though oft-times it produce a Mouse in lieu of a Mountain : I must confess its best Productions are but homely and hard-favour'd, yet in regard they appear handsom in your Eyes, I shall like them the better : So I am, Sir,

Fleet, Jan. 3.

1644.

Yours most obliged to serve you,

J. H.

XLVII. To

Y

XLVII.

To Mr. Tho. H.

S I R,

THough the Times abound with Schisms more than ever, (the more is our Misery) yet, I hope, you will not suffer any to creep into our Friendship, though I apprehend some fears thereof by your long silence, and cessation of literal Correspondence; you know there is a peculiar Religion attends Friendship, there is according to the Etymology of the word, a ligation and solemn tie, the rescinding whereof may be truly call'd a Schism, or a Piacle, which is more: There belong to this Religion of Friendship certain due rites, and decent ceremonies, as visits, messages, and missives: Though I am content to believe that you are firm in the Fundamentals, yet I find, under Favour, that you have lately fallen short of performing these exterior Offices, as if the ceremonial Law were quite abrogated with you in all things: Friendship also allows of merits, and works of supererogation sometimes, to make her capable of Eternity: You know that Pair which were taken up into the Heaven, and placed amongst the brightest Stars for their rare Constancy and Fidelity one to the other; you know also they are put among the fixed Stars, not the Erratices, to shew there must be no Inconstancy in Love: Navigators steer their course by them, and they are their best Friends in working Seas, dark nights, and distresses of weather; whence may be inferr'd, that true Friends should shine clearest in Adversity, in cloudy and doubtful times. On my part this ancient Friendship is still pure, orthodox, and uncorrupted, and though I have not the opportunity (as you have) to perform all the rites thereof in regard of this recluse Life, yet I shall never err in the essentials; I am still yours κρίσει, though I cannot be χρίσει, for in statu quo nunc I am grown useless and good for nothing, yet in point of Possession, I am as much as ever,

Fleet, Nov. 7.

1643.

Your firm inalterable

Servitor,

J. H.

XLVIII.

To Mr. S. B. Merchant, at his House in the Old Jury.

S I R,

I Return you those two famous Speeches of the late Queen Elizabeth, with the addition of another from Baudius at an Embassy here from Holland: It is with Languages as it is with Liquors, which which by transfusion use to take wind from one vessel to another, so things translated into another Tongue lose of their primitive vigour and strength, unless a paraphrastical version be permitted, and then the Traduct may exceed the Original, not otherwise, though the version be never so punctual, especially in these Oration, which are fram'd with such Art, that like Vitruvius his Palace, there is no Place left to add one stone more without defacing, or to take any out without hazard of destroying the whole Fabrick.

Certainly she was a Princess of rare Endowments for Learning and Languages, she was bless'd with a long Life, and triumphant Reign, attended with various sorts of admirable Successes, which will be taken for some Romance a thousand winters hence, if the World lasts so long: She freed the Scot from the French, and gave her Successor a Royal Pension to maintain his Court: She help'd to settle the Crown on Henry the Great's head: She gave essence to the State of Holland: She civiliz'd Ireland, and suppress'd divers Insurrections there: She preserv'd the dominion of the Narrow-Seas in greater Glory than ever: She maintain'd open War against Spain when Spain was in her highest Flourish for divers Years together; yet she left a mighty Treasure behind, which shews that she was a notable good housewife. Yet I have read divers censures of her abroad, that she was ungrateful to her Brother of Spain, who had been the chiefest Instrument under God to preserve her from the Block, and had left her all Queen Mary's Jewels without diminution, accusing her that afterwards she should first infringe the Peace with him, by intercepting his treasure in the Narrow-Seas, by suffering her Drake to swim to his Indies, and rob him there, by fomenting and supporting his Belgick Subjects against him then when he had an Ambassador resident at her Court; but this was the censure of a Spanish Author; and Spain had little reason to speak well of her: The French handle her worse, by terming her, among other contumelies, Haquenee deses propres vassaux.

Sir, I much value the frequent Respects you have shewn me, and am very covetous of the Improvement of this Acquaintance, for I do not remember at home or abroad to have seen in the Person of any, a Gentleman and a Merchant so equally met, as in you, which makes me stile myself

Fleet, May 3.
1645.

Your most affectionate Friend
to serve you, J. H.

XLIX.

To Dr. D. Featly.

S I R,

I Received your Answer to that futilous Pamphlet, with your desire of my opinion touching it. Truly, Sir, I must tell you, that never poor Curr was tofs'd in a blanquet, as you have tofs'd that poor Coxcomb in the Sheet you pleas'd to send me; for whereas a Fillip might have fell'd him, you have knock'd him down with a kind of Herculean Club sans resource. These times (more's the pity) labour with the same Disease that France did during the League, as a famous Author hath it, Prurigo scripturientium erat scabies temporum: The itching of Scriblers, was the scab of the Time: It is just so now, that any triobolatory Pasquiller, every treffis agaso, any sterquilinous rascal, is licenc'd to throw dirt in the Faces of Sovereign Princes in open printed Language. But I hope the times will mend, and your Man also, if he hath any grace, you have so well corrected him. So I rest

Fleet, Aug. 2.
1644.

Yours to serve and reverence
you,

J. H.

L.

To Captain T. L. in Westchester.

Captain L.

I Could wish that I had the same Advantage of Speed to send unto you at this time, that they have in Alexandretta, now call'd Scanderoon, when upon the arrival of any Ships into the Bay, or any other important Occasion, they use to send their Letters by Pigeons, trained up purposely for that Use, to Aleppo and other Places; such an airy Messenger, such a volatil Postilion would I desire now to acquaint you with the Sickness of your Mother-in-Law, who I believe will be in another World (and I wish it may be Heaven) before this Paper comes to your hands; for the Physicians have forsaken her, and Doctor Burton told me, 'tis a Miracle if she lasts a natural Day to an end; therefore you shall do well to post up as soon as you can, to look to your own Affairs, for I believe you will be no more sick of the Mother: Master Davies in the mean time told me, he will be very careful, and circumspect that you be not wrong'd. I receiv'd yours of the tenth current, and return a thousand Thanks for the warm and melting sweet Expressions you make of your Respects unto me: All that I can say at present in Answer, is, that I extreamly please myself myself in loving you, and I like my own Affections the better, because they tell me that I am Westmin. Dec. 10.

Your entirely devoted

1631.

Friend, J. H.

LI.

To my Honourable Friend Sir C. C.

S I R,

I Was upon point of going abroad to steal a solitary Walk, when yours of the twelfth current came to hand, the high researches, and choice abstracted Notions I found therein seem'd to heighten my Spirits, and make my Fancy fitter for my intended Retirement and Meditation: Add hereunto, that the countenance of the weather invited me; for it was a still evening, it was also a clear open Skie, not a speck, or the least wrinkle appear'd in the whole Face of Heaven, 'twas such a pure deep azure all the Hemisphere over, that I wondred what was become of the three Regions of the Air with their Meteors: So having got into a close Field, I cast my Face upward, and fell to consider what a rare Prerogative the optick virtue of the Eye hath, much more the intuitive virtue of the Thought, that the one in a moment can reach Heaven, and the other go beyond it: Therefore sure that Philosopher was but a kind of frantick Fool, that would have pluck'd out both his Eyes, because they were a hindrance to his Speculations. Moreover I began to contemplate as I was in this posture the vast Magnitude of the Universe, and what Proportion this poor Globe of Earth might bear with it; for if those numberless Bodies which stick in the vast roof of Heaven, though they appear to us but as spangles, be, some of them, thousands of times bigger than the Earth, take the Sea with it to boot, for they both make but one Sphere, surely the Astronomers had reason to term this Sphere an indivisible Point, and a thing of no Dimension at all, being compar'd to the whole World: I fell then to think that at the second general Destruction, it is no more for God Almighty to fire this Earth, than for us to blow up a small squibb, or rather one small grain of Gun-powder: As I was musing thus, I spied a swarm of Gnats waving up and down the Air about me, which I knew to be part of the Universe as well as I; and methought it was a strange Opinion of our Aristotle to hold that the least of those small insected ephemerans should be more noble than the Sun, because it had a sensitive Soul in it: I fell to think that the same Proportion which those animalillios bore with me in point of bigness, the same I held with those glorious Spirits which are near the Throne of the Almighty : what then should we think of the Magnitude of the Creator himself, doubtless 'tis beyond the reach of any human imagination to conceive it ; In my private devotions I presume to compare him to a great mountain of light, and my soul seems to discern some glorious form therein, but suddenly as she would fix her eyes upon the object, her sight is presently dazled and disgregated with the refulgency and coruscations thereof.

Walking a little further I spied a young boisterous Bull breaking over hedge and ditch to a herd of Kine in the next pasture, which made me think that if that fierce strong Animal, with others of that kind knew their own strength, they would never suffer Man to be their Master : Then looking upon them quietly grazing up and down, I fell to consider that the flesh which is daily dish'd upon our Tables is but concocted grass, which is recarnified in our stomachs, and transmuted to another flesh : I fell also to think what advantage those innocent Animals had of Man, who, as soon as Nature casts them into the world, find their meat dress'd, the cloth laid, and the table cover'd, they find their drink brew'd, and the buttery open, their beds made, and their cloaths ready ; and though Man hath the faculty of Reason to make him a compensation for the want of these advantages, yet this Reason brings with it a thousand perturbations of mind, and perplexities of spirit, griping cares, and anguishes of thought, which those harmless silly creatures were exempted from : Going on, I came to repose myself upon the trunk of a tree, and I fell to consider further what advantage that dull Vegetable had of those feeding Animals, as not to be so troublesome and beholden to Nature, nor to be so subject to starving, to diseases, to the inclemency of the weather, and to be far longer liv'd ; I then spied a great stone, and sitting a while upon it, I fell to weigh in my thoughts that that stone was in a happier condition in some respects, than either those sensitive creatures or vegetables I saw before, in regard that that stone, which propagates by assimilation, as the Philosophers say, needed neither grass nor hay, or any aliment for restoration of Nature, nor water to refresh its roots, or the heat of the Sun to attract the moisture upwards to increase growth, as the other did : As I directed my pace homeward, I spied a Kite soaring high in the Air, and gently gliding up and down the clear Region so far above my head, I fell to envy the Bird extremely, and repine at his Happiness. that he should have a Privilege to make a nearer approach to Heaven than I.

Excuse me, that I trouble you thus with these rambling Meditations, they are to correspond with you in some part for those those accurate Fancies of yours you lately sent me. So I rest

Holbourn, Mar. 17.
1639.

Your entire and true
Servitor, J. H.

LII.

To Master Serjeant D. at Lincolns-Inn.

S I R,

I Understand with a deep sense of Sorrow of the indisposition of your Son: I fear he hath too much Mind for his Body, and that superabounds with Fancy, which brings him to these Fits of Distemper, proceeding from the black Humour of Melancholy; moreover I have observed that he is too much given to his Study and Self-society, especially to converse with dead Men, I mean Books: You know any thing in excess is naught. Now, Sir, were I worthy to give you Advice, I could wish he were well married, and it may wean him from that bookish and thoughtful humour; Women were created for the Comfort of Men, and I have known that to some they have prov'd the best Helleborum against Melancholy: As this course may beget new Spirits in him, so it must needs add also to your Comfort. I am thus bold with you, because I love the Gentleman dearly well, and honour you, as being Westminst. June 13.

1632.

Your humble obliged Servant,
J. H.

LIII.

To my noble Lady, the Lady M. A.

Madam,

There is not any thing wherein I take more pleasure, than in the accomplishment of your Commands, nor had ever any Queen more Power over her Vassals, than you have over my Intellectuals; I find by my Inclinations, that it is as natural for me to do your Will, as it is for Fire to fly upward, or any body else to tend to his Center; but touching the last Command your Ladyship was pleased to lay upon me, (which is the following Hymn) if I answer not the fullness of your expectation, it must be imputed to the suddenness of the Command, and the shortness of time.

A Hymn to the Blessed Trinity.

To the First Person.

To thee, dread Sovereign, and dear Lord,
Which out of nought didst me afford
Essence and Life, who mad'st me Man,
And Oh, much more a Christian,
Lo, from the Centre of my Heart
All Laud and Glory I impart.

Hallelujah.

To the Second.

To thee, blessed Saviour, who didst free
My Soul from Satan's Tyranny,
And mad'st her capable to be
An Angel of thy Hierarchy,
From the same Centre I do raise,
All Honour and immortal Praise.

Hallelujah.

To the Third.

To thee, Sweet Spirit, I return
That Love wherewith my Heart doth burn,
And these bless'd Notions of my Brain
I now breath up to thee again:
O let them redescend, and still
My Soul with holy Raptures fill.

Hallelujah.

They are of the same Measure, Cadence, and Air, as was that Angelical Hymn your Ladyship pleased to touch upon your Instrument; which as it so enchanted me then, that my Soul was ready to come out at my Ears, so your Voice took such impressions in me, that methinks the Sound still remains fresh with Westmin. Apr. 1.

1637.

Your Ladyship's most devoted

Servitor,

J. H.

XLIV.

To Master P. W. at Westminster.

S I R,

THE Fear of God is the Beginning of Wisdom, and the Love of God is the End of the Law; the former Saying was spoke by no meaner Man than Solomon; but the latter hath no meaner Author than our Saviour himself: Touching this Beginning, and this this End, there is a near relation between them, so near, that the one begets the other; a harsh Mother may bring forth sometimes a mild Daughter; so Fear begets Love, but it begets Knowledge first, for—Ignoti nulla cupido, we cannot love God, unless we know him before; both Fear and Love are necessary to bring us to Heaven, the one is the Fruit of the Law, the other of the Gospel; when the clouds of Fear are vanish'd, the beams of Love then being to glance upon the Heart; and of all the Members of the Body, which are in a manner numberless, this is that which God desires, because 'tis the centre of Love, the source of our Affections, and the cistern that holds the most illustrious Blood; and in a sweet and well devoted harmonious Soul, Cor is no other than Camera Omnipotentis Regis, 'tis one of God's Closets, and indeed nothing can fill the Heart of Man, whose Desires are infinite, but God who is Infinity itself: Love therefore must be a necessary Attendant to bring us to him. But besides Love there must be two other Guides that are required in this Journey, which are Faith and Hope; now that Fear which the Law enjoins us, turns to Faith in the Gospel, and Knowledge is the scope and subject of both; yet these last two bring us only towards the haven, but Love goes along with us to Heaven, and so remains an inseparable sempiternal Companion of the Soul. Love therefore is the most acceptable Sacrifice which we can offer our Creator, and he who doth not study the Theory of it here, is never like to come to the Practice of it hereafter. It was a high hyperphysical Expression of St. Austin, when he fell into this Rapture, That if he were King of Heaven, and God Almighty Bishop of Hippo, he would exchange Places with him, because he lov'd him so well. This Vote did so take me, that I have turn'd it to a Paraphrastical Hymn, which I send you for your Viol, having observed often that you have a harmonious Soul within you.

The Vote.

O God, who can those Passions tell
 Wherewith my Heart to thee doth swell;
 I cannot better them declare,
 Than by the Wish made by that rare
 Aurelian Bishop, who of old
 Thy Oracles in Hippo told.

If I were Thou, and thou wert I,
 I would resign the Deity,
 Thou should'st be God, I would be Man,
 Is't possible that love more can?

Oh, pardon that my Soul hath ta'en
 So high a Flight, and grows prophane.

For myself, my dear Phil. because I love you so dearly well, I will display my very intrinsecals to you in this point; when I examine the Motions of my Heart, I find that I love my Creator a thousand times more than I fear him; methinks I feel the little Needle of my Soul touch'd with a kind of magnetical attractive Virtue, that it always moves towards him, as being her Summum Bonum, the true Centre of her Happiness: For matter of Fear, there's none that I fear more than myself, I mean those Frailties which lodge within me, and the Extravagancies of my Affections and Thoughts; in this particular I may say, that I fear myself more than I fear the Devil, or Death, who is the King of Fears. God guard us all, and guide us to our last Home through the briers of this cumberfom Life; in this Prayer I rest

Holbourn, Mar. 21.

1639.

Your most affectionate

Servitor, J. H.

LV.

To the Right Honourable the Lord Clifford.

My Lord,

Since among other passages of Entertainment we had lately at the Italian Ordinary (where your Lordship was pleas'd to honour us with your Presence) there happen'd a large Discourse of Wines, and of other Drinks that were us'd by several Nations of the Earth, and that your Lordship desir'd me to deliver what I observ'd therein abroad, I am bold now to confirm and amplify in this Letter what I then let drop ex tempore from me, having made a recollection of myself for that purpose.

It is without controversy, that in the non-age of the World Men and Beasts had but one buttery, which was the fountain and river, nor do we read of any Vines or Wines till two hundred years after the Flood; but now I do not know or hear of any Nation that hath Water only for their drink, except the Japonois, and they drink it hot too; but we may say, that what Beverage soever we make, either by brewing, by distillation, decoction, percolation or pressing, it is but Water at first, nay, Wine itself is but Water sublim'd, being nothing else but that moisture and sap which is caus'd either by rain or other kind of irrigations about the roots of the Vine, and drawn up to the branches and berries by the virtual attractive heat of the Sun, the Bowels of the Earth serving as a limbeck to that end, which made the Italian Vineyard-man (after long drought, and an extream hot Summer, which had parch'd up all his Grapes,) to complain, that Per manca mento d'acqua, bevo del' acqua, se io havessi acqua, beverei el vino, for want of Water,

Water, I am forc'd to drink Water; if I had Water, I would drink Wine; it may be also applied to the Miller when he hath no Water to drive his Mills.

The Vine doth so abhor Cold, that it cannot grow beyond the 49th degree to any purpose: Therefore God and Nature hath furnish'd the Northwest Nations with other inventions of Beverage. In this Island the old Drink was Ale, noble Ale, than which, as I heard a great foreign Doctor affirm, there is no Liquor that more increaseth the radical moisture, and preserves the natural heat, which are the two Pillars that support the Life of Man; but since Beer hath hopp'd in amongst us, Ale is thought to be much adulterated, and nothing so good as Sir John Old-Castle, and Smugg the Smith was us'd to drink: Besides Ale and Beer, the natural drink of part of this Isle may be said to be Metheglin, Braggot, and Mead, which differ in strength according to the three degrees of comparison. The first of the three, which is strong in the superlative, if taken immoderately, doth stupify more than any other Liquor, and keeps a humming in the Brain, which made one say that he lov'd not Metheglin, because he was us'd to speak too much of the House he came from, meaning the Hive: Cyder and Perry are also the natural Drinks of part of this Isle: But I have read in some old Authors of a famous Drink the ancient Nation of the Picts, who lived 'twixt Trent and Tweed, and were utterly extinguished by the over-powering of the Scot, were used to make a decoction of Flowers, the receipt whereof they kept as a secret, and a thing sacred to themselves, so it perish'd with them: These are all the common drinks of this Isle, and of Ireland also, where they are more given to Milk and Strong Waters of all colours; the prime is Usquebagh, which cannot be made any where in that Perfection; and whereas we drink it here in Aqua-vita measures, it goes down there by Beer-glassfulls, being more natural to the Nation.

In the Seventeen Provinces hard by, and all Low Germany, Beer is the common natural drink, and nothing else, so is it in Westphalia, and all the lower circuit of Saxony, in Denmark, Swedeland, and Norway; the Prusse hath a Beer as thick as Honey; in the Duke of Sax's Country there is Beer as yellow as Gold made of Wheat, and it inebriates as soon as Sack. In some parts of Germany they use to spice their Beer, which will keep many years; so that at some Weddings there will be a Butt of Beer drunk out as old as the Bride. Poland also is a Beer Country; but in Russia, Muscovy, and Tartary they use Mead, which is the naturallest drink of the Country, being made of the decoction of Water and Honey; this is that which the Ancients call'd Hydromel: Mares Milk is a great drink drink with the Tartar, which may be a cause why they are bigger than ordinary, for the Physicians hold, that Milk enlargeth the Bones, Beer strengtheneth the Nerves, and Wine breeds Blood sooner than any other Liquor. The Turk when he hath his tripe full of Pelaw, or of Mutton and Rice, will go to Nature's cellar, either to the next Well or River to drink Water, which is his natural common drink; for Mahomet taught them, that there was a devil in every berry of the Grape, and so made a strict inhibition to all his Sect from drinking of Wine, as a thing prophane: He had also a reach of Policy therein, because they should not be incumbered with Luggage when they went to War, as other Nations do, who are so troubled with the carriage of their Wine and Beverages. Yet hath the Turk peculiar drinks to himself besides, as Sherbet, made of Juice of Lemon, Sugar, Amber, and other ingredients: He hath also a drink call'd Cauphe, which is made of a brown Berry, and it may be call'd their clubbing drink between Meals, which though it be not very gustful to the Palate, yet it is very comfortable to the Stomach, and good for the Sight; but notwithstanding their Prophet's Anathema, thousands of them will venture to drink Wine, and they will make a precedent Prayer to their Souls to depart from their Bodies in the interim, for fear she partake of the same Pollution: Nay, the last Turk died of excess of Wine, for he had at one time swallowed three and thirty okes, which is a measure near upon the bigness of our quart, and that which brought him to this, was the Company of a Persian Lord, that had given him his Daughter for a Present, and came with him from Bagdat; besides, one accident that happened to him was, that he had an Eunuch who was used to be drunk, and whom he had commanded twice upon pain of Life to refrain, swearing by Mahomet that he would cause him to be strangled if he found him the third time so; yet the Eunuch still continued in his drunkenness, hereupon the Turk conceiving with himself that there must needs be some extraordinary delight in drunkenness, because this Man preferr'd it before his Life, fell to it himself, and so drunk himself to death.

In Asia there is no Beer drunk at all, but Water, Wine, and an incredible variety of other drinks made of Dates, dried Raisins, Rice, divers sorts of Nuts, Fruits and Roots: In the Oriental Countries, as Cambaia, Calicut, Narsingha, there is a drink call'd Banque, which is rare and precious, and 'tis the height of entertainment they give their Guests before they go to sleep, like that Nepenthe which the Poets speak so much of, for it provokes pleasing Dreams, and delightful Phantasies; it will accommodate it self to the humour of the Sleeper; as if he be a Soldier, he will dream dream of Victories and taking of Towns; if he be in love, he will think to enjoy his Mistress; if he be covetous, he will dream of Mountains of Gold, &c. In the Moluccas and Philippines, there is a curious drink call'd Tampoy, made of a kind of Gilliflowers, and another drink call'd Otraqua, that comes from a Nut, and is the more general drink. In China they have a holy kind of Liquor made of such sort of Flowers, for ratifying and binding of bargains, and having drunk thereof, they hold it no less than Perjury to break what they promise, as they write of a River in Bithynia, whose Water hath a peculiar virtue to discover a Perjurer, for if he drink thereof, it will presently boil in his Stomach, and put him to visible tortures: This makes me think of the River Styx among the Poets, which the Gods were use to swear by, and it was the greatest Oath for Performance of any thing.

Nubila promissi Styx mihi testis erit.

It puts me in mind also of that which some write of the River of Rhine for trying the legitimation of a Child being thrown in, if he be a Bastard he will sink, if otherwise he will not.

In China they speak of a Tree call'd Maguan, which affords not only good drink being pierced, but all things else that belong to the subsistence of Man; they bore the Trunk with an Awger, and there issueth out sweet potable Liquor; 'twixt the rinde and the Tree there is a cotton or hempie kind of Moss, which they wear for their cloathing; it bears huge Nuts, which have excellent Food in them; it shoots out hard prickles about a fathom long, and those arm them; with the bark they make Tents, and the dotard Trees serve for Firing.

Africk also hath a great diversity of drinks, as having more need of them, being a hotter Country far: In Guiney of the lower Ethiopia there is a famous drink call'd Mingol, which issueth out of a Tree much like the Palm, being bored: But in the upper Ethiopia or the Habassins Country, they drink Mead decocted in a different manner; there is also much Wine there: The common drink of Barbary after Water is that which is made of Dates: But in Egypt in times past there was Beer drunk call'd Zichus in Latin, which was no other than a decoction of Barley and Water; they had also a famous Composition (and they use it to this day) called Chiffi, made of divers Cordials and provocative Ingredients, which they throw into Water to make it gustful; they use it also for fumigation: But now the general drink of Egypt is Nile Water, which of all Waters may be said to be the best, insomuch that Pindar's words might be more applicable to that than to any other Ἀεσίον μέλα' ὕδωρ. It doth not only fertilize, and extreamly fatten the Soil which it covers, but it helps to impregnate barren Women, men, for there is no Place on earth where People increase and multiply faster; 'tis yellowish and thick, but if one cast a few Almonds into a potful of it, it will become as clear as rock water; it is also in a degree of luke-warmness as Martial's boy.

Tolle puer calices tepidique toreumata Nili.

In the new World they have a world of drinks, for there is no root, flower, fruit or pulse but is reducible to a potable Liguor, as in the Barbado Island the common drink among the English, is Mobbi, made of Potato-roots: In Mexico and Peru, which is the great Continent of America, with other parts, it is prohibited to make Wines under great penalties, for fear of starving of Trade, so that all the Wines they have are sent from Spain.

Now for the pure Wine Countries, Greece with all her Islands, Italy, Spain, France, one part of four of Germany, Hungary, with divers Countries thereabouts, all the Islands in the Mediterranean and Atlantick Sea, are Wine Countries.

The most generous Wines of Spain, grow in the midland Parts of the Continent, and Saint Martin bears the Bell, which is near the Court: Now as in Spain, so in all other Wine Countries, one cannot pass a Days Journey but he will find a differing race of Wine: those kinds that our Merchants carry over are those only, that grow upon the Sea-side, as Malagas, Sheries, Tents, and Aligants: of this last there's little comes over right, therefore the Vintners make Tent (which is a name for all Wines in Spain, except white) to supply the place of it: There is a gentle kind of Whitewine grows among the Mountains of Galitia, but not of body enough to bear the Sea, call'd Ribadavia: Portugal affords no Wines worth the transporting; they have an odd Stone we call Yef, which they use to throw into their Wines, which clarifieth it, and makes it more lasting. There's also a drink in Spain, called Aloska, which they drink between Meals in hot weather, and 'tis a Hydromel made of water and honey, much of them take of our Mead: In the Court of Spain there's a German or two that brews Beer; but for that ancient Drink of Spain which Pliny speaks of, compos'd of Flowers, the receipt thereof is utterly lost.

In Greece there are no Wines that have bodies enough to bear the Sea for long Voyages, some few Muscadels and Malmfies are brought over in small Casks; nor is there in Italy any Wine transported to England but in bottles, as Verde and others, for the length of the Voyage makes them subject to Pricking, and to lose colour, by reason of their delicacy.

France participating of the Climes of all the Countries about her, affords Wines of quality accordingly, as towards the Alps and Italy she hath a luscious rich Wine called Frontinac; in the Country

Country of Province toward the Pyrenees in Languedoc, there are Wines conguftable with thofe of Spain; one of the prime fort of Whitewines is that of Beaume, and of Clarets that of Orleans, though it be interdicted to Wine the King's Cellar with it in regard of the corroſivenefs it carries with it: As in France, ſo in all other Wine Countries the white is called the Female, and the Claret or red Wine is called the Male, becauſe commonly it hath more ſulphur, body and heat in it: The Wines that our Merchants bring over upon the River of Garond near Bourdeaux in Gascoigne, which is the greateſt Mart for Wines in all France. The Scot becauſe he hath always been an uſeful Confederate to France againſt England, hath (among other priviledges) right of preemption of firſt choice of Wines in Bourdeaux; he is alſo permitted to carry his Ordnance to the very Walls of the Town, whereas the Engliſh are forc'd to leave them at Blay, a good way diſtant down the River. There is a hard green Wine that grows about Rochel, and the Iſlands thereabouts, which the cunning Hollander ſometime uſed to fetch, and he hath a trick to put a bag of herbs, or ſome other Infuſions into it, (as he doth brimſtone in Rheniſh) to give it a whiter tincture, and more ſweetneſs, then they re-imbark it for England, where it paſſeth for good Bachrag; and this is called ſtooming of Wines. In Normandy there's little or no Wine at all grows, therefore the common drink of that Country is Cyder, eſpecially in Low Normandy: There are alſo many Beer-houſes in Paris and elſewhere; but though their barley and water be better than ours, or that of Germany, and though they have Engliſh and Dutch Brewers among them, yet they cannot make Beer in that Perfection.

The prime Wines of Germany grow about the Rhine, eſpecially in the Pſalts or Lower Palatinate about Bachrag, which hath its Etymology from Bachiara; for in ancient times there was an Altar erected there to the Honour of Bacchus, in regard of the richneſs of the Wines. Here and all France over, 'tis held a great part of Incivility for Maidens to drink Wine until they are married, as it is in Spain for them to wear high ſhoes, or to point till then. The German Mothers, to make their ſons fall into hatred of Wine, do uſe when they are little to put ſome Owls Eggs into a cup of Rheniſh, and ſometimes a living Eel, which twingling in the Wine while the child is drinking, ſo ſcares him, that many come to abhor and have an antipathy to Wine all their Lives after. From Bachrag the firſt Stocks of Vines which grow now in the Grand Canary Iſland were brought, which with the heat of the Sun and the Soil, is grown now to that height of Perfection, that the Wine which they afford are accounted the richeſt, the moſt firm, the beſt bodied and laſting'ſt Wine, and the moſt deſecated from all earthly earthly grossness of any other whatsoever, it hath little or no Sulphur at all in it, and leaves less dregs behind, though one drink it to excess: French Wines may be said but to pickle Meat in the Stomach, but this is the Wine that digests, and doth not only breed good Blood, but it nutritieth it also, being a glutinous substantial Liquor; of this Wine, if of any other, may be verified that merry induction, That good Wine makes good Blood, good Blood causeth good humours, good humours cause good thoughts, good thoughts bring forth good works, good works carry a Man to Heaven, ergo good Wine carrieth a Man to Heaven. If this be true, surely more English go to Heaven this way than any other, for I think there's more Canary brought into England than to all the World besides; I think also there is hundred times more drunk under the name of Canary Wine than there is brought in, for Sherries and Malagas well mingled pass for Canaries in most Taverns, more often than Canary itself, else I do not see how 'twere possible for the Vintner to save by it, or to live by his Calling, unless he were permitted sometimes to be a Brewer. When Sacks and Canaries were brought in first among us, they were us'd to be drunk in Aqua-vita measures, and 'twas held fit only for those to drink of them who us'd to carry their Legs in their Hands, their Eyes upon their Noses, and an Almanack in their Bones; but now they go down every ones throat both young and old like Milk.

The Countries that are freest from excess of drinking are Spain and Italy: If a Woman can prove her Husband to have been thrice drunk, by the ancient Laws of Spain she may plead for a Divorce from him: Nor indeed can the Spaniard being hot brain'd bear much drink; yet I have heard that Gondamar was once too hard for the King of Denmark when he was here in England: But the Spanish Soldiers that have been in the Wars of Flanders will take their Cups freely; and the Italians also. When I liv'd t'other side the Alps, a Gentleman told me a merry Tale of a Ligurian Soldier who had got drunk in Genoa, and Prince Doria going a horseback to walk the round one night, the Soldier took his horse by the bridle and ask'd what the Price of him was, for he wanted a horse; the Prince seeing in what humour he was, caus'd him to be taken into a house and put to sleep: In the morning he sent for him, and ask'd him what he would give for his horse, Sir, said the recovered Soldier, the Merchant that would have bought him yesternight of your Highness, went away betimes in the morning. The boonest Companions for drinking are the Greeks and Germans; but the Greek is the merrier of the two, for he will sing and dance, and kiss his next Companion; but the other will drink as deep as he: if the Greek will drink as many many Glasses as there be Letters in his Mistress's Name, the other will drink the number of his Years, and though he be not apt to break out into Singing, being not of so airy a Constitution, yet he will drink often musically a Health to every one of these six Notes, Ut, Re, Mi, Fa, Sol, La; which, with this Reason, are all comprehended in this Exameter:

Ut Relevet Miserum Fatum Solitosque Labores.

The fewest Draughts he drinks are three, the first to quench the Thirst past, the second to quench the present Thirst, the third to prevent the future. I heard of a Company of Low Dutchmen that had drunk so deep that beginning to stagger, and their Heads turning round, they thought verily they were at Sea, and that the upper Chamber where they were was a Ship, insomuch that it being foul windy Weather, they fell to throw the Stools and other Things out of the Window, to light the Vessel for fear of suffering Shipwrack.

Thus have I sent your Lordship a dry Discourse upon a fluent Subject, yet I hope your Lordship will please to take all in good part, because it proceeds from

Westmin. Oct. 17. Your most humble and ready 1634. Servitor, J. H.

LVI.

To the Right Honourable the E. R.

My Lord,

YOUR Desires have been always to me as Commands, and your Commands as binding as Acts of Parliament: Nor do I take pleasure to employ Head or Hand in any Thing more, than in the exact performance of them; therefore if in this crabbed difficult task, you have been pleas'd to impose upon me about Languages, I come short of your Lordships Expectation, I hope my Obedience will apologize for my disability: But, whereas your Lordship desires to know what were the Original Mother Tongues of the Countries of Europe; and how these modern Speeches that are now in use were first introduced; I may answer hereunto, that it is almost as easie a Thing to discover the source of Nile, as to find out the Original of some Languages, yet I will attempt it as well as I can, and I will take my first Rise in these Islands of Great Britain and Ireland; for to be Curious and Eagle-ey'd Abroad, and to be Blind and Ignorant at Home, (as many of our Travelers are now a days) is a Curiosity that carrieth with it more of Affection than any Thing else.

Z

Touch-

Touching the Isle of Albion or Great Britany, the Cambrian or Cymracan Tongue, commonly called Welsh, (and Italian also is so call'd by the Dutch) is without Controversie the prime maternal Tongue of this Island, and connatural with it, nor could any other four Conquests that have been made of it by Roman, Saxon, Dane or Norman ever extinguish her, but she remains still pure and uncorrupt; of which Language there is as exact and methodical a Grammar, with as regular Precepts, Rules, and Institutions both for Prose and Verse compil'd by Doctor David Rice, as I have read in any Tongue whatsoever: Some of the Authentickest Annalists report, that the old Gauls (now the French) and the Britains understood one another, for they came thence very frequently to be instructed here by the British Druides, which were the Philosophers and Divines of those Times; and this was long before the Latin Tongue came on this side the Alps, or Books Written; and there is no meaner Man than Cesar himself Records this.

This is one of the Fourteen vernacular and independant Tongues of Europe, and she hath divers dialects; the first is the Cornish, the second the Armonicans, or the inhabitants of Britany in France, whither a Colony was sent over hence in the Time of the Romans. There was also another Dialect of the British Language among the Picts, who kept in the North Parts in Northumberland, Westmoreland, Cumberland, and some Parts beyond Tweed, until the whole Nation of the Scot poured upon them with such Multitudes that they utterly extinguish'd both them and their Language. There are some which have been curious in the comparison of Tongues, who believe that the Irish is but a dialect of the ancient British, and the learnedest of that Nation in a private Discourse I happened to have with him, seem'd to incline to this Opinion; but this I can assure your Lordship of, that at my being in that Country, I observ'd by a private Collection which I made, that a great Multitude of their radical Words are the same with the Welsh, both for Sense and Sound, the tone also of both the Nations is Consonant, for when I first walked up and down Dublin Markets, methought verily I was in Wales, when I listned unto their Speech; but I found that the Irish tone is a little more querulous and whining than the British, which I conjectur'd with myself proceeded from their often being subjugated by the English. But, my Lord, you would think it strange, that divers pure Welsh Words should be found in the new found World in the West-Indies, yet it is verified by some Navigators, as Grando (Hark,) Nef (Heaven,) Llwynog (a Fox,) Pengwin (a Bird with a white Head,) with fundry others, which are pure British, nay, I have read a Welsh Epitaph which which was found there upon one Mador a British Prince, who some Years before the Norman Conquest, not agreeing with his Brother then Prince of South-Wales, went to try his Fortune at Sea, imbarking himself at Milford Haven, and so carried on those Coasts :

This if well prov'd might well intitle our Crown to America, if first Discovery may claim a Right to any Country.

The Romans though they continued here constantly above 300 Years, yet could they not do as they did in France, Spain, and other Provinces, plant their Language as a Mark of Conquest ; but the Saxons did, coming in far greater Numbers under Hengist, from Holstein Land in the lower Circuit of Saxony, which People resemble the English more than any other Men upon Earth, so that 'tis more than probable that they came first from thence ; besides, there is a Town there call'd Lunden, and another Place named Angles, whence it may be presum'd that they took their new Denomination here : Now the English, though as Saxons, (by which Name the Welsh and Irish call them to this Day) they and their Language is Ancient, yet in reference to this Island they are the modern'st Nation in Europe, both for Habitation, Speech and Denomination ; which makes me smile at Mr. Fox his Error in the very front of his Epistle before the Book of Martyrs, where he calls Constantine the first Christian Emperor, the Son of Hellen an English Woman, whereas she was purely British, and that there was no such Nation upon Earth called English at that Time, nor above 100 Years after, till Hengist invaded this Island and settling himself in it, the Saxons who came with him, took the appellation of Englishmen. Now the English Speech though it be rich, copious, and significant, and that there be divers Dictionaries of it, yet under favour, I cannot call it a regular Language, in regard, though often attempted by some choice Wits, there could never any Grammar or exact Syntaxis be made of it ; yet hath she divers subdialects, as the Western and Northern English, but her chiefest is the Scotic, which took footing beyond Tweed about the last Conquest ; but the Ancient Language of Scotland is Irish, which the Mountaineers and divers of the Plain retain to this Day. Thus, my Lord, according to my small model of Observation, have I endeavoured to satisfy you in part : I shall in my next go on, for in the pursuance of any Command from your Lordship, my Mind is like a Stone thrown into a deep Water, which never rests till it goes to the bottom. So for this Time and always, I rest,

My Lord,

West. Aug. 9.

1630.

Your most humble and ready
Servitor, J. H.

LVII.

To the Right Honourable the Earl R.

My Lord,

I N my last I fulfill'd your Lordships Commands as far as my Reading and Knowledge could extend, to inform you what were the radical Primitive Languages of those Dominions that belong to the Crown of Great Britain, and how the English, which is now predominant, entred in first; I will now hoise Sail for the Netherlands, whose Language is the same dialect with the English, and was so from the beginning, being both of them derived from the High Dutch: The Danish also is but a Branch of the same Tree, no more is the Swedish, and the Speech of them of Norway and Iseland: Now, the High Dutch or Teutonic Tongue is one of the prime and most spacious maternal Languages of Europe, for besides the vast extent of Germany itself, with the Countries and Kingdoms before mentioned, whereof England and Scotland are two, it was the Language of the Goths and Vandals, and continueth yet of the greatest part of Poland and Hungary, who have a dialect of hers for their vulgar Tongue; yet though so many dialects and subdialects be derived from her, she remains a strong sinewy Language, pure and uncorrupt in her first Centre towards the Heart of Germany: Some of her Writers would make the World believe that she was the Language spoken in Paradise, for they produce many Words and proper Names in the five Books of Moses which fetch their Etymology from her; as also in Persia to this Day divers radical Words are the same with her, as Fader, Moder, Broder, Star: And a German Gentleman, speaking hereof one Day to an Italian, that she was the Language of Paradise, sure, said the Italian, (alluding to her roughness) then it was the Tongue that God Almighty chid Adam in: It may be so, replied the German, but the Devil had tempted Eve in Italian before: A full-mouth'd Language she is, and pronounc'd with that strength as if one had Bones in his Tongue instead of Nerves.

Those Countries that Border upon Germany, as Bohemia, Silesia, Poland, and those vast Countries North-Eastward, as Russia and Muscovia, speak the Sclavonick Language: And it is incredible what I have heard some Travellers report of the vast extent of that Language, for beside Sclavonia itself, which properly is Dalmatia and Liburnia, it is the vulgar Speech of the Macedonians, Epirots, Bosnians, Servians, Bulgarians, Moldavians, Russians, and Podolians; nay, it spreads herself over all the Eastern Parts of Europe, Hungary and Walachia excepted, as far as Constantinople, and is frequently spoken in the Seraglio among the Fanizaries; nor doth she rest there, there, but crossing the Hellespont divers Nations in Asia have her for their popular Tongue, as the Circassians, Mongrelians and Gazurites; Southward, neither in Europe or Asia doth she extend herself further to the North parallel of Forty Degrees. But those Nations which celebrate Divine Service after the Greek Ceremony, and profess Obedience to the Patriarch of Constantinople, as the Russ, the Muscovite, the Moldavian, Russian, Bosnian, Servian, and Bulgarian, with divers other Eastern and North-East People that speak Slavonick, have her in a different Character from the Dalmatian, Croatian, Istrian, Polonian, Bohemian, Silesian, and other Nations towards the West: These last have the Illirian Character, and the Invention of it is attributed to St. Jerom, the other is of Cyrl's devising, and is call'd the Servian Character: Now, although there be above Threescore several Nations that have this vast extended Language for their vulgar Speech, yet the pure Primitive Slavonick dialect is spoken only in Dalmatia, Croatia, Liburnia, and the Countries adjacent, where the ancient Slavonians yet dwell, and they must needs be very ancient, for there is in a Church in Prague an old Charter yet extant, given them by Alexander the Great, which I thought not amiss to insert here: We Alexander the Great, Son of King Philip, Founder of the Grecian Empire, Conqueror of the Persians, Medes, &c. and of the whole World from East to West, from North to South, Son of great Jupiter by, &c. so call'd; To you the noble stock of Slavonians, and to your Language, because you have been unto us a help, true in Faith, and valiant in War, we confirm all that tract of Earth from the North to the South of Italy, from us and our Successors, to you and your Posterity for ever: And if any other Nation be found there, let them be your Slaves. Dated at Alexandria the 12. of the Goddess Minerva; witness Eibra and the eleven Princes whom we appoint our Successors. With this rare and one of the ancientest Records in Europe, I will put a period to this second account I send your Lordship touching Languages. My next shall be of Greece, Italy, France and Spain, and so I shall shake Hands with Europe; till when, I humbly kiss your Hands, and rest,

West. Aug. 2.

My Lord,

1630.

Your most obliged Servitor, J. H.

LVIII.

To the Right Honourable the E. R.

My Lord,

HAVING in my last rambled through High and Low Germany, Bohemia, Denmark, Poland, Russia, and those vast North-East Regions, and given your Lordship a touch of their Languages, (for 'twas no Treatise I intended at first, but a cursory short liter-all Account) I will now pass to Greece, and speak something of that large and learned Language, for 'tis she indeed upon whom the beams of all scientific Knowledge did first shine in Europe, which she afterwards diffus'd through all the Western World.

The Greek Tongue was first peculiar to Hellas alone, but in tract of Time the Kingdom of Macedon, and Epire had her, then she arrived on the Isles of the Egean Sea, which are interjacent and divide Asia and Europe that Way: Then she got into the Fifty three Isles of the Cyclades that lye 'twixt Negropont and Candy, and so got up to the Hellepont to Constantinople. She then crossed over to Anatolia, where though she prevail'd by introducing Multitudes of Colonies, yet she came not to be the sole vulgar Speech any where there as far as to extinguish the former Languages. Now Anatolia is the most populous Part of the whole Earth, for Strabo speaks of Sixteen several Nations that slept in her Bosom, and 'tis thought the two and Twenty Languages which Mithridates, the great Polyglot King of Pontus did speak, were all within the Circumference of Anatolia, in regard his Dominions extended but a little further: She glided then along the Maritime Coasts of Thrace, and passing Byzantium got into the outlets of Danube, and beyond her also to Taurica, yea, beyond that to the River Phasis, and thence compassing to Trebizond she took footing on all the Circumference of the Euxine Sea: This was her Course from East to North, whence we will return to Candy, Cyprus and Sicily, thence crossing the Phare of Messina, she got all all along the Maritime Coasts of the Tirrhene Sea to Calabria: She rested herself also a great while in Apulia: There was a populous Colony of Greeks also in Marseilles in France, and along the Sea Coasts of Savoy: In Africk likewise, Cyrene, Alexandria, and Egypt, with divers other, were peopled with Greeks: And three Causes may be alledged why the Greek Tongue did so expand herself; First, it may be imputed to the Conquests of Alexander the Great, and the Captains he left behind him for Successors: Then the love the People had to the Sciences, speculative Learning and Civility whereof the Greeks accounted themselves to be the grand Masters, accounting all other Nations Barbarians besides themselves: Thirdly, The natural Inclination and Dexterity the Greeks had to Commerce, whereunto they employed themselves more than any other Nation, except the Phœnician and Armenia, which may be a reason why in all Places most commonly they colonized the Maritime Parts, for I do not find they did penetrate far into the Bowels of any Country, but lick'd on the Sea-side in obvious mercantile Places, and accessible Ports.

Now many Ages since the Greek Tongue is not only impaired, and pitifully degenerated in her Purity and Eloquence, but extremely decayed in her amplitude and vulgarness. For first, there is no trace at all left her in France or Italy; the Slavonick Tongue hath abolished her in Epire and Macedon, the Turkish hath out-ed her from most Parts of Anatolia, and the Arabian hath extinguished her in Syria, Palestine, Egypt, and sundry other Places. Now touching her degeneration from her Primitive Suavity and Elegance, it is not altogether so much as the deviation and declension of the Italian from the Latin, yet it is so far that I could set foot on no Place, nor hear of any People, where either the Attick, Dorick, Eolick or Bucolick Ancient Greek is vulgarly spoken; only in some Places near Heraclea in Anatolia and Peloponnesus (now called the Morea) they speak of some Towns called the Lacones, which retain yet and vulgarly speak the old Greek, but incongruously; yet though they cannot themselves speak according to Rules, they understand those that do: Nor is this Corruption happened to the Greek Language, as it useth to happen to others, either by the Law of the Conqueror, or Inundation of Strangers, but it is insensibly crept in by their own supine Negligence and Fantastickness, especially by that common fatality and changes which attend Time and all other sublunary Things: Nor is this ancient Scientifical Language decayed only, but the Nation of the Greeks itself, is as it were mouldred away and brought in a manner to the same Condition, and to as contemptible a pass as the Jew is, insomuch that there cannot be two more pregnant instances of the lubricity and instableness of Mankind as the decay of these two Ancient Nations; the one the select People of God, the other the most famous that ever was for Arts, Arms, Civility and Government; so that in statu quo nunc, they who term'd all the World Barbarians in comparison of themselves in former Times, may be now term'd more than any other Barbarians themselves, as having quite lost not only all inclination and aspirings to Knowledge and Vertue, but likewise all Courage and Bravery of Mind to recover their ancient Freedom and Honour.

Thus, have you my Lord, as much of the Greek Tongue as I could comprehend within the bounds of a Letter; a Tongue that both for Knowledge, for Commerce, and for Copiousness was the principallest that ever was; in my next I will return nearer Home, and give your Lordship an account of the Latin Tongue, and of her three Daughters, the French, Italian and Spanish, in the interim you find that I am still,

My Lord,

West. July 25. 1630.

Your most Obedient
Servitor, J. H.

LIX.

To the Right Honourable the E. R.

My Lord,

MY last was a pursuit of my endeavours to comply with your Lordships Desires touching Languages; and I spent more Oyl and Labour than ordinary in displaying the Greek Tongue, because we are more beholden to her for all Philosophical and Theorick Knowledge, as also for Rules of Commerce and communicative Justice, than unto any other. I will now proceed to the Latin Tongue, which had her source in Italy, in Latium, call'd now Compagna di Roma, and receiv'd her growth with the monstrous encrease of the City and Empire: Touching the one, she came from poor mud Walls at Mount Palatine, which were scarce a Mile about at first, to be afterwards Fifty Miles Compass, (as she was in the Reign of Aurelianus) and her Territories, which were hardly a Days Journey Extent, came by favourable Successes and Fortune of War, to be above three Thousand in length, from the Banks of the Rhine, or rather from the shores of this Island to Euphrates, and sometimes to the River Tigris: With this vast expansion of Roman Territories the Tongue also did spread; yet I do not find by those researches I have made into Antiquity, that she was vulgarly spoken by any Nation, or in any entire Country, but in Italy itself: For, notwithstanding that it was the practice of the Roman, with the Lance to usher in his Laws and Language as marks of Conquest; yet I believe his Tongue never took such firm impression any where, as to become the vulgar epidemick Speech of any People else, or that she was able to null and extinguish the native Languages she found in those Places where she planted her Standard: Nor can there be a more pregnant instance hereof than this Island, for notwithstanding that she remain'd a Roman Province four Hundred Years together, yet the Latin Tongue could never have the Vogue here, so far as to abolish the British or Cambrian Tongue.

'Tis true, That in France and Spain she made deeper Impressions; the Reason may be in regard there were far more Roman Colonies planted there, for whereas there were but Four in this Isle, there were nine and twenty in France, and fifty seven in Spain; and the greatest Entertainment the Latin Tongue found out of Italy herself, was in these Two Kingdoms; yet I am of Opinion that the pure congruous Grammatical Latin was never spoken in either of them as a vulgar vernacular Language, common amongst Women and Children; no, nor in all Italy itself, except Latium: In Africa, though there were sixty Roman Colonies dispers'd pers'd upon that Continent, yet the Latin Tongue made not such deep impressions there, nor in Asia either, nor is it to be thought that in those Colonies themselves did the common Soldier speak in that congruity as the Flamins, the Judges, the Magistrates, and chief Commanders did: When the Roman sent Legions and planted Colonies Abroad, 'twas for divers political considerations, partly to secure their new acquests, partly to abate the superfluous numbers and redundancy of Rome, then by this way they found means to employ and reward Men of worth, and to heighten their Minds, for the Roman Spirit did rise up, and take growth with his good Successes, Conquests, Commands and Employments.

But the reason that the Latin Tongue found not such entertainment in the Oriental Parts, was, that the Greek had forestall'd her, which was of more esteem among them, because of the learning that was couch'd in her, and that she was more useful for Negotiation and Traffick, whereunto the Greeks were more addicted than any People; therefore though the Romans had an Ambition to make those Foreign Nations that were under their Yoak to speak, as well as to do what pleased them, and that all Orders, Edicts, Letters, and the Laws themselves, Civil as well as Martial, were publish'd and executed in Latin; yet I believe this Latin was spoken no otherwise among those Nations, than the Spanish or Castilian Tongue is now in the Netherlands, in Sicily, Sardinia, Naples, the two Indies, and other Provincial Countries which are under that King: Nor did the pure Latin Tongue continue long at a stand of Perfection in Rome and Latium itself among all sorts of People, but she receiv'd Changes and Corruption; neither do I believe that she was born a perfect Language at first, but she receiv'd Nutriment and Degrees of Perfection with Time, which matures, refines and finisheth all Things: The Verses of the Salii compos'd by Numa Pompilius, were scarce intelligible by the Flamins and Judges themselves in the wane of the Roman Commonwealth, nor the Laws of the Decemviri: And if that Latin wherein were couch'd the Capitulations of Peace 'twixt Rome and Carthage, a little after the expulsion of the Kings, which are yet extent upon a Pillar in Rome, were compar'd to that which was spoken in Cæsar's Reign, 140 Years after, at which time the Latin Tongue was mounted to the Meridian of her Perfection, she would be found as differing as Spanish now differeth from the Latin: After Cæsar and Cicero's Time the Latin Tongue continued in Rome and Italy in her purity four Hundred Years together, until the Goths rush'd into Italy, first under Alarick, then the Huns under Attilia, then the Vandals under Gen-

Genfericus, and the Heruli under Odoacer, who was proclaimed King of Italy, but the Goths a little after under Theodorick thrust out the Heruli, which Theodorick was by Zeno the Emperor formally invested King of Italy, who with his Successor Reign'd there peaceably sixty Years and upwards; so that in all probability the Goths cohabiting so long among the Italians, must adulterate their Language as well as their Women.

The last barbarous People that invaded Italy about the Year 570 were the Lumbards, who having taken firm rooting in the very Bowels of the Country about 200 Years without interruption, during the Reign of twenty Kings, must of necessity alter and deprave the general Speech of the natural Inhabitants, and among others one Argument may be, that the best and midland part of Italy chang'd its Name and took its appellation from these last Invaders, calling itself Lombardy, which Name it retains to this Day: Yet before the intrusions of these wandring and warlike People into Italy, there may be a precedent cause of some Corruption that might creep into the Latin Tongue in point of vulgarity; first, the incredible confluence of Foreigners that came daily far and near, from the coloniz'd Provinces to Rome, then the infinite number of Slaves which surpassed the number of free Citizens, might much impair the purity of the Latin Tongue; and lastly, those inconstancies and humour of Novelty, which is naturally inherent in Man, who according to those frail elementary Principles and ingredients wherof he is compos'd, is subject to insensible Alterations, and apt to receive impressions of any Change.

Thus, My Lord, as succinctly as I could digest it into the narrow bounds of an Epistle, I have sent your Lordship this small survey of the Latin, or first Roman Tongue; In my next I shall fall aboard of her three Daughters, viz. the Italian, the Spanish, and the French, with a diligent investigation what might be the original native Languages of those Countries from the beginning, before the Latin gave them the Law; in the interim I crave a candid Interpretation of what is passed, and of my studiousness in executing your Lordships Injunctions, so I am, My Lord,

Westmin. July 16.

Your most humble and obedient Servant,

1630.

J. H.

LX.

To the Right Honourable the E. R.

My Lord,

MY last was a Discourse of the Latin or Primitive Roman Tongue, which may be said to be expired in the Market, though though living yet in the Schools ; I mean she may be said to be defunct in point of vulgarity any Time these 1000 Years pass'd. Out of her Ruin have sprung up the Italian, the Spanish, and the French, whereof I am now to treat ; but I think it not improper to make a research first, what the radical prime Mother Tongues of these Countries were before the Roman Eagle planted her Talons upon them.

Concerning Italy, doubtless there were divers before the Latin did spread all over that Country, the Calabrian and Apulian spoke Greek, whereof some relicks are to be found to this Day, but it was an adventitious, no mother Language to them : 'Tis confess'd that Latium itself and all the Territories about Rome had the Latin for its maternal and common first vernacular Tongue, but Tuscany and Liguria had others quite discrepant, viz. the Hetruscane and Mesapian, whereof though there be some Records yet extant, yet there are none alive that can understand them ; the Oscan, the Sabin and Tusculan, are thought to be but dialects to these.

Now the Latin Tongue with the coincidence of the Goths Language, and other Northern People, who like Waves tumbled off one another, did more in Italy than any where else, for she utterly abolished (upon that part of the Continent) all other maternal Tongues as Ancient as herself, and thereby their eldest Daughter the Italian came to be the vulgar Universal Tongue to the whole Country ; yet the Latin Tongue had not the sole hand in doing this, but the Goths and other septentrional Nations who rush'd into the Roman dition, had a share in't, as I said before, and pegg'd in some Words which have been ever since irremoveable, not only in the Italian, but also in her two younger Sisters the Spanish and the French, who felt also the fury of those People : Now the Italian is the smoothest and softest running Language that is, for there is not a Word except some few Monosyllables, Conjunctions and Prepositions, that ends with a Consonant in the whole Language ; nor is there any vulgar Speech which hath more subdialects in so small a tract of Ground, for Italy itself affords above Eight. There you have the Roman, the Tuscan, the Venetian, the Milanese, the Neapolitan, the Calabresse, the Genoese, the Piemontez, you have the Corfican, Sycilian, with divers other neighbouring Islands ; and as the cause, why from the beginning there were so many differing dialects in the Greek Tongue, was because it was slic'd into so many Islands, so the reason why there be so many subdialects in the Italian, is the diversity of Governments that the Country is squandred into, there being in Italy at this Day two Kingdoms, viz. that of Naples.

ples and Calabria: Three Republicks, viz. Venice, Genoa and Luca, and divers other absolute Princes.

Concerning the original Language of Spain, it was without any controversie, the Bascuence or Cantabrian, which Tongue and Territory neither Roman, Goth, (whence this King hath his Pedigree, with divers of the Nobles) or Moor, could ever conquer, though they had over-run and taken firm footing in all the rest for many Ages; therefore as the remnant of the old Britains here, so are the Biscayneers accounted the ancientst and unquestionablest Gentry of Spain, insomuch that when any of them is to be dubbed Knight, there is no need of any scrutiny to be made whether he be clear of the Blood of the Morisco's, who had mingled and incorporated with the rest of the Spaniards about 700 Years. And as the Arcadian and Atticks in Greece for their immemorial Antiquity, are said to vaunt of themselves, that the one are Περσέωνιοι, before the Moon, the other αὐτοχθόνες, issued of the Earth itself, so the Biscayneer hath such like Rodomontado's.

The Spanish or Castilian Language hath but few subdialects, the Portegueze is most considerable; touching the Catalan, and Valencian, they are rather dialects of the French, Gascon or Aquitanian; the purest dialect of the Castilian Tongue is held to be in the Town of Toledo, which above other Cities of Spain hath this privilege, to be arbitress in the decision of any controversie that may arise touching the Interpretation of any Castilian Word.

It is an infallible rule to find out the mother and ancientst Tongue of any Country, to go among those who inhabit the barrenst and most mountainous Places, which are posts of security and fastness, whereof divers instances could be produc'd, but let the Biscayneer in Spain, the Welsh in Great Britain, and the Mountaineers in Epire serve the turn, who yet retain their ancient unmixt mother-tongues, being extinguished in all the Country besides.

Touching France, it is not only doubtful, but left yet undecided what the true genuine Gallick Tongue was; some would have it to be the German, some the Greek, some the old British or Welsh, and the last Opinion carrieth away with it the most judicious Antiquaries: Now all Gallia is not meant by it, but the Country of the Celte that inhabit the middle part of France, who are the true Gauls; Cæsar and Tacitus tell us, that these Celte, and the old Britains (whereof I gave a touch in my first Letter) did mutually understand one another, and some do hold that this Island was tied to France, as Sicily was to Calabria, and Denmark to Germany, by an istmos or neck of Land 'twixt Dover and Bulloign, for if one do well observe the Rocks of the one, and the cliffs of the other, other, he will judge them to be one homogeneous Piece, and that they were cut and shivered asunder by some Act of Violence.

The French or Gallick Tongue hath divers dialects, the Picard, that of Jersey and Guernsey (appendixes once to the Dutchy of Normandy) the Provensal, the Gascon or Speech of Languedock, which Scaliger would etymologize from Languedo'uy, whereas it comes rather from Langue de Got, for the Saracens and Goths who by their incursions and long stay in Aquitain corrupted the Language of that part of Gallia: Touching the Britain and they of Bearn, the one is a dialect of the Welsh, the other of the Bascuence. The Walloon who is under the King of Spain, and the Liegeois is also a dialect of the French, which in their own Country they call Roman: The Spaniard also terms his Castilian Roman, whence it may be inferr'd that the first Rise and Derivation of the Spanish and French were from the Roman Tongue, not from the Latin, which makes me think that the Language of Rome might be degenerated and become a dialect to our own mother Tongue (the Latin) before she brought her Language to France and Spain.

There is besides these subdialects of the Italian, Spanish and French, another Speech that hath a great stroke in Greece and Turkey call'd France, which may be said to be compos'd of all the three, and is at this Day the greatest Language of Commerce and Negotiation in the Levant.

Thus have I given your Lordship the best Account I could of the Sister dialects, of the Italian, Spanish and French: In my next I shall cross the Mediterranean to Africk, find the Hellepont to Asia, where I shall observe the generallst Languages of those vast Continents, where such numberless swarms and differing sorts of Nations do crawl up and down this earthly Globe, therefore it cannot be expected that I should be so punctual there as in Europe; so I am still, 1630.

My Lord,

Westmin. July 7.

Your Obedient Servitor,

J. H.

LXI.

To the Right Honourable the E. R.

My Lord,

HAVING in my former Letters made a flying Progress through the European World, and taken a View of the several Languages, Dialects, and subdialects whereby People converse one with another, and being now Wind-bound for Africk, I held

held it not altogether supervacaneous to take a review of them, and inform your Lordship what Languages are Original independent Mother Tongues of Christendom, and what are dialects, derivations, or degenerations from their Originals.

The Mother Tongues of Europe are Thirteen, though Scaliger would have but a Eleven; There is the Greek 1, the Latin 2, the Dutch 3, the Slavonian 4, the Welsh or Cambrian 5, the Basque, or Cantabrian 6, the Irish 7, the Albanian in the Mountains of Epire 8, the Tartarian 9, the old Illirian 10, remaining yet in Liburnia, the Fazygian 11, on the North of Hungary, the Cauchian 12, in East Frizeland, the Finnic 13, which I put last with good reason, because they are the only Heathens of Europe, all which were known to be in Europe in the Time of the Roman Empire; There is a learned Antiquary that makes the Arabick to be one of the Mother Tongues of Europe, because it was spoken in some of the Mountains of South Spain; 'tis true, 'twas spoken for divers hundred Years all Spain over after the Conquest of the Moors, but yet it could not be call'd a Mother Tongue, but an adventitious Tongue in reference to that part of Europe.

And now that I am to pass to Africk, which is far bigger than Europe, and to Asia, which is far bigger than Africk, and to America, which is thought to be as big as all the Three; if Europe herself hath so many Mother Languages quite discrepant one from the other, besides secondary Tongues and dialects, which exceed the number of their Mothers, what shall we think of the other three huge Continents in point of differing Languages? Your Lordship knows that there be divers Meridians and Climes in the Heavens whence influxes of differing Qualities fall upon the Inhabitants of the Earth, and as they make Men to differ in the Idea's and Conceptions of the Mind, so in the Motion of the Tongue, in the Tune and Tones of the Voice they come to differ one from the other. Now, all Languages at first were imperfect, confus'd Sounds, then came they to be Syllables, then Words, then Speeches and Sentences, which by Practice, by Tradition, and a kind of natural Instinct from Parents to Children, grew to be fix'd. Now to attempt a survey of all the Languages in the other three Parts of the habitable Earth, were rather a madness than a presumption, it being a Thing of impossibility, and not only above the capacity, but beyond the search of the activ'st, and knowing'st Man upon Earth: Let it therefore suffice while I behold those Nations that Read and Write from Right to Left, from the Liver to the Heart, I mean the Africans, and Asians, that I take a short view of the Arabick in the one, and the Hebrew or Syriack in the other, for touching the Turkish Language, 'tis but a dialect of the Tartarian,
though

though it have receiv'd a late mixture of the Armenian, the Persian and Greek Tongues, but especially of the Arabick, which was the mother Tongue of their Prophet, and is now the sole Language of their Alcoran, it being strictly inhibited, and held to be a prophaneness to Translate it to any other, which they say preserves them from the encroachment of Schisms.

Now the Arabick is a Tongue of vast expansion, for besides the three Arabia's it is become the vulgar Speech of Syria, Mesopotamia, Palestine and Egypt; from whence she stretcheth herself to Streight of Gibraltar, through all that vast Tract of Earth, which lieth 'twixt the Mountain Atlas and the Mediterranean Sea, which is now call'd Barbary, where Christianity and the Latin Tongue, with divers famous Bishops once flourished. She is spoken likewise in all the Northern Parts of the Turkish Empire, as also in petty Tartary, and she above all other hath reason to learn Arabick, for she is in hope one Day to have the Crescent and the whole Ottoman Empire, it being entail'd upon her in case the present Race should fail, which is now in more danger than ever; in fine, where-soever the Mahometan Religion is profess'd, the Arabick is either spoken or taught.

My last View shall be of the first Language of the Earth, the ancient Language of Paradise, the Language wherein God Almighty Himself pleas'd to pronounce and publish the Tables of the Law, the Language that had a Benediction promis'd her, because she would not consent to the building of the Babylonish Tower: Yet this holy Tongue hath had also her Eclipses, and is now degenerated to many dialects, nor is she spoken purely by any Nation upon the Earth; a fate also which is befallen the Greek and Latin: The most spacious dialect of the Hebrew is the Syriack, which had her beginning in the Time of the captivity of the Jews at Babylon, while they cohabited, and were mingled with the Chaldeans, in which tract of Seventy Years Time the vulgar sort of Jews neglecting their own maternal Tongue (the Hebrew) began to speak the Chaldee, but not having the right Accent of it, and fashioning that new learn'd Language to their own innovation of Points, affixes and conjugations, out of that intermixture of Hebrew and Chaldee resulted a third Language, call'd to this Day the Syriack, which also after the Time of our Saviour began to be more adulterated by admission of Greek, Roman, and Arabick; in this Language is the Talmud and Targum couch'd, and all their Rabbins, as Rabbi Jonathan, and Rabby Onkelos, with others, have written in it, insomuch that as I said before, the ancient Hebrew had the same Fortune that the Greek and Latin Tongues had, to fall from being naturally spoken any where, to lose their general

ral communicableness and vulgarity, and to become only School and Book Languages.

Thus we see, that as all other sublunary Things are subject to Corruption and Decay, as the potent'st Monarchies, the proudest Republicks, the opulentest Cities have their Growths, Declinings, and Periods: As all other elementary Bodies likewise by reason of the Frailty of their Principles, come by insensible Degrees to alter and perish, and cannot continue long at a stand of Perfection, so the learnedest and more eloquent Languages, are not free from this common fatality, but they are liable to those Alterations and Revolutions, to those fits of inconstancy, and other destructive Contingencies which are unavoidably incident to earthly Things.

Thus, my noble Lord, have I evertuated myself, and stretch'd all my Sinews, I have put all my small Knowledge, Observations and Reading upon the Tenter to satisfy your Lordships desires touching this Subject: If it afford you any Contentment I have hit the White I aimed at, and hold myself abundantly rewarded for my Oyl and Labour: So I am, 1630.

My Lord,

Westmin. July 1.

Your most humble and ever Obedient Servitor, J. H.

LXIII.

To the Honourable Master Car. Ra.

S I R,

YOurs of the 7th Current was brought me, whereby I find that you did put yourself to the penance of perusing some Epistles that go imprinted lately in my Name: I am bound to you for your Pains and Patience (for you write you read them all thorough) much more for your candid Opinion of them, being right glad that they should give Entertainment to such a choice and judicious Gentleman as yourself: But whereas you seem to except against something in one Letter that reflects upon Sir Walter Rawleigh's Voyage to Guiney, because I term the Gold Mine he went to discover, an airy and suppositious Mine, and so infer that it toucheth his Honour: Truly Sir, I will deal clearly with you in that point, that I never harbour'd in my Brain the least Thought to expose to the World any Thing that might prejudice, much less traduce in the least Degree that could be, that rare and renowned Knight, whose

whose fame shall contend in longævity with this Island itself, yea, with that great World which he Historiseth so gallantly: I was a Youth about the Town when he undertook that Expedition, and I remember most Men suspected that Mine then to be but an imaginary politick Thing, but at his return, and missing of the enterprize, these suspicions turn'd in most to real beliefs that 'twas no other. And King James in that Declaration which he commanded to be Printed and published afterwards touching the Circumstances of this Action (upon which my Letter is grounded, and which I have still by me) terms it no less: And if we may not give Faith to such publick regal Instruments, what shall we credit? Besides, there goes another printed kind of Remonstrance annex'd to that Declaration which intimates as much, and there is a worthy Captain in this Town, who was a co-adventurer in that expedition, who upon the storming of St. Thomas, heard young Mr. Rawleigh encouraging his Men in these Words, Come on my noble Hearts, this is the Mine we come for, and they who think there is any other are Fools: add hereunto, that Sir Richard Baker in his last historical Collections intimates so much; therefore 'twas far from being any Opinion broach'd by myself, or bottom'd upon weak Grounds, for I was careful of nothing more, than that those Letters, being to breath open Air, should relate nothing but what should be derived from good Fountains; and truly, Sir, touching that Apology of Sir Walter Rawleigh's you write of, I never saw it, and I am very sorry I did not, for it had let in more light upon me of the carriage of that great Action, and then you might have been assur'd that I would have done that noble Knight all the right that could be.

But, Sir, the several Arguments that you urge in your Letters are of that strength, I confess, that they are able to rectifie any indifferent Man in this Point, and induce him to believe that it was no Chymera, but a real Mine; for you write of divers pieces of Gold brought thence by Sir Walter himself, and Captain Kemy, and of some Ingots that were found in the Governour's Closet at St. Thomas's, with divers crucibles, and other refining instruments; yet, under favour, that might be, and the Benefit not countervail the Charge, for the richest Mines that the King of Spain hath upon the whole Continent of America, which are the Mines of Potasi, yield him but Six in the Hundred, all Expences defrayed. You write how King James sent privately to Sir Walter, being yet in the Tower, to intreat and command him, that he would impart his whole design unto him under his Hand, promising upon the word of a King to keep it secret, which being done accordingly by Sir Walter Rawleigh, that very original Paper was

A a

was found in the said Spanish Governour's Closet at St. Thomas; whereat, as you have just cause to wonder, and admire the activeness of the Spanish Agents about our Court at that time, so I wonder no less at the miscarriage of some of His late Majesty's Ministers, who notwithstanding that he had pass'd his Royal Word to the contrary, yet they did help Count Gondamar to that Paper, so that the reproach lieth more upon the English than the Spanish Ministers in this particular. Whereas you alledge that the dangerous sickness of Sir Walter, being arrived near the Place, and the Death of (that rare spark of Courage) your Brother, upon the first landing, with other Circumstances, discourag'd Captain Kemys from discovering the Mine, but to reserve it for another time, I am content to give as much Credit to this as any Man can; as also that Sir Walter, if the rest of the Fleet according to his earnest Motion, had gone with him to revictual in Virginia, (a Country where he had reason to be welcome unto, being of his own discovery) he had a purpose to return to Guyana the Spring following to pursue his first design. I am also very willing to believe, that it cost Sir Walter Raleigh much more to put himself in Equipage for that long intended Voyage, than would have payed for his Liberty, if he had gone about to purchase it for reward of Money at home, though I am not ignorant that many of the Co-adventurers made large Contributions, and the Fortunes of some of them suffer for it at this very Day. But although Gondamar, as my Letter mentions, calls Sir Walter Pyrate, I, for my part, am far from thinking so, because as you give an unanswerable Reason, the plundering of St. Thomas, was an Act done beyond the Equator, where the Articles of Peace 'twixt the two Kings do not extend: Yet, under Favour, though he broke not the Peace, he was said to break his Patent, by exceeding the bounds of his Commission, as the afore-said Declaration relates; for King James had made strong promises to Count Gondamar, that his Fleet should commit no outrages upon the King of Spain's Subjects by Land, unless they began first, and I believe that was the main cause of his Death; though I think if they had proceeded that way against him in a legal course of Trial, he might have defended himself well enough.

Whereas you alledge, that if that Action had succeeded, and afterwards been well prosecuted, it might have brought Gondamar's great Catholick Master to have been beg'd for at the Church Doors by Friars, as he was once brought in the latter end of Queen Elizabeth's Days, I believe it had much damnified him, and interrupted him in the Possession of his West-Indies, but not brought him, him, under Favour, to so low an ebb. I have observed that it is an ordinary Thing in your Popish Countries for Princes to borrow from the Altar, when they are reduc'd to any straights, for they say, the Riches of the Church are to serve as Anchors in time of a storm: Divers of our Kings have done worse, by pawning their Plate and Jewels: Whereas my Letter makes mention that Sir Walter Rawleigh mainly labour'd for his Pardon before he went, but could not compass it; this is also a passage in the aforesaid Printed Relation; but I could have wish'd with all my Heart he had obtain'd it, for I believe, that neither the transgression of his Commission, nor any Thing that he did beyond the Line, could have shortened the line of his Life otherwise, but in all probability we might have been happy in him to this very day, having such an Heroick Heart as he had, and other rare helps, by his great Knowledge, for the preservation of Health: I believe without any scruple what you write, that Sir William St. Leon made an overture unto him of procuring his Pardon for 1500 l. but whether he could have effected it I doubt a little, when he had come to Negotiate it really: But I extremely wonder how that old Sentence which had lain dormant above sixteen Years against Sir Walter Rawleigh, could have been made use of to take off his Head afterwards, considering that the Lord Chancellor Verulam, as you write, told him positively (as Sir Walter was acquainting him with that proffer, of Sir William St. Leon, for a pecuniary Pardon) in these Words, Sir, the knee Timber of your Voyage is Money, spare your Purse in this particular, for upon my Life you have a sufficient pardon for all that is passed already, the King having under his broad Seal made you Admiral of your Fleet, and given you power of the Martial Law over your Officers and Soldiers. One would think that by this Royal Patent, which gave him power of Life and Death over the King's Liege People, Sir Walter Rawleigh should become Rectus in curia, and free from all old Convictions; but, Sir, to tell you the plain Truth, Count Gondamar at that Time had a great stroak in our Court, because there was more than a meer overture of a match with Spain, which makes me apt to believe that that great wise Knight, being such an Anti-Spaniard, was made a Sacrifice to advance the Matrimonial Treaty: But I must needs wonder, as you justly do, that one and the same Man should be condemned for being a Friend to the Spaniard, (which was the ground of his first Condemnation) and afterwards lose his Head for being their Enemy by the same Sentence. Touching his return, I must confess I was utterly ignorant that those two Noble Earls, Thomas of Arundel and William of Pembroke were engaged for him in this particular, nor doth the Printed Relation make any mention of them at all, therefore I must say that Envy herself must pronounce that return of his, for the acquitting of his fiduciary Pledges to be a most noble Act, and waving that of King Alphonso's Moor, I may more properly compare it to the act of that famous Roman Commander (Regulus as I take it) who to keep his promise and faith return'd to his Enemies where he had been Prisoner, though he knew he went to an inevitable Death: But well did that faithless cunning Knight who betrayed Sir Walter Rawleigh in his intended escape, being come ashore, fall to that contemptible end, as to die a poor distracted Beggar in the Isle of Lyndey, having for a bag of Money falsified his Faith, confirm'd by the tye of the holy Sacrament, as you write, as also before the Year came about, to be found clipping the same Coin in the Kings own House at Whitehall, which he had receiv'd as a reward for his Perfidiousness, for which being condemned to be hang'd, he was driven to sell himself to his Shirt, to purchase his pardon of two Knights.

And now, Sir, let that glorious and gallant Cavalier Sir Walter Rawleigh (who lived long enough for his own Honour, though not for his Country, as it was said of a Roman Consul) rest quietly in his Grave, and his Vertues live in his Posterity, as I find they do strongly, and very eminently in you: I have heard his Enemies confess, that he was one of the weightiest and wisest Men that this Island ever bred: Mr. Nath. Carpenter, a learned and judicious Author, was not in the wrong when he gave this discreet Character of him, Who hath not known or read of this Prodigy of Wit and Fortune, Sir Walter Rawleigh, a Man unfortunate in nothing else but in the greatness of his Wit and Advancement, whose eminent Worth was such, both in Domestick Policy, Foreign Expeditions, and Discoveries, in Arts and Literature, both Practick and Contemplative, that it might seem at once to conquer Example and Imitation.

Nor, Sir, hoping to be rectified in your Judgment touching my Opinion of that illustrious Knight, your Father, give me leave to kiss your Hands very affectionately for the respectful mention you please to make of my Brother, once your Neighbour; he suffers, good Soul, as well as I, though in a differing manner: I also much value that favourable censure you give of those rambling Letters of mine, which indeed are nought else than a Legend of the cumbersome Life and various Fortunes of a Cadet; but whereas you please to say, That the World of learned Men is much beholden to me for them, and that some of them are freighted with many excellent and quaint Passages, delivered in a Masculine and solid Stile, adorn'd with much Eloquence, and stuck with choicest Flowers pick'd from the Muses Garden; whereas you also please
to

to write that you admire my great Travels, my strenuous endeavours at all Times, and in all Places, to accumulate Knowledge, my active laying hold upon all occasions, and on every handle that might (with Reputation) advantage either my Wit or Fortune: These high gallant strains of Expressions, I confess, transcend my Merit, and are a Garment too gawdy for me to put on, yet I will lay it up among my best Relicks, whereof I have divers sent me of this kind: And whereas in publishing these Epistles at this Time, you please to say, That I have done like Hezekiah, when he shewed his Treasures to the Babylonians, that I have discovered my Riches to Thieves, who will bind me fast and share my Goods. To this I answer, that if those innocent Letters (for I know none of them but is such) fall among such Thieves, they will have no great prize to carry away, it will be but petty larceny: I am already, God wot, bound fast enough, having been a long Time coop'd up between these Walls, bereft of all my means of Subsistence and Employment; nor do I know wherefore I am here, unless it be for my Sins, for I bear as upright a Heart to my King and Country, I am as comfortable and well affected to the Government of this Land, especially to the high Court of Parliament, as any one whatsoever that breaths Air under this Meridian, I will except none: And for my Religion, I defie any Creature 'twixt Heaven and Earth that will say, that I am not a true English Protestant. I have from Time to Time employed divers of my best Friends to get my Liberty, at leastwise leave to go Abroad upon Bail, (for I do not expect, as you please also to believe in your Letter, to be delivered hence as St. Peter was, by Miracle) but nothing will yet prevail.

To conclude, I do acknowledge in the highest way of recognition, the free and noble proffer you please to make me, of your endeavours to pull me out of this doleful Sepulchre, wherein you say I am entomb'd alive; I am no less oblig'd to you for the Opinion I find you have of my weak Abilities, which you pleased to wish heartily may be no longer eclipsed; I am not in despair, but a Day will shine that may afford me Opportunity to improve this good Opinion of yours, (which I value at a high rate) and let the World know how much I am,

Sir,

Fleet, May 5.

1645.

Your real and ready Servitor,
J. H.

LXIII.

To Mr. T. V. at Bruffels.

My dear Tom,

WH O would have thought poor England had been brought to this pass? Could it ever have entred into the imagination of Man, that the Scheme and whole frame of so ancient and well-model'd a Government should be so suddenly struck off the hinges, quite out of joynt, and tumbled into such a horrid Confusion? Who would have held it possible that to fly from Babylon, we should fall into such a Babel? That to avoid superstition some People should be brought to belch out such a horrid Prophane-ness, as to call the Temples of God the Tabernacles of Satan; the Lord's Supper, a Two-penny Ordinary; to make the Communion-Table a Manger, and the Font a Trough to Water their Horses in; to term the white decent Robe of the Presbyter the Whore's Smock; the Pipes through which nothing came but Anthems and holy Hymns, the Devils Bagpipes; the Liturgy of the Church, though extracted most of it out of the Sacred Text, call'd by some another kind of Alcoran, by others raw Porridge, by some a Piece forg'd in Hell; Who would have thought to have seen in England, the Churches shut, and the Shops open upon Christmas-Day? Could any Soul have imagin'd that this Isle would have produc'd such Monsters, as to rejoyce at the Turks good Successes against the Christians, and wish he were in the midst of Rome? Who would have dream't ten Years since, when Archbishop Laud did ride in State through London Streets, accompanying my Lord of London to be sworn Lord High Treasurer of England, that the Mitre should have now come to such a scorn, to such a National kind of hatred, as to put the whole Island in a combustion; which makes me call to memory a Saying of the Earl of Kildare in Ireland, in the Reign of Henry the Eighth, which Earl, having a deadly feud with the Bishop of Cassles, burnt a Church belonging to that Diocese, and being ask'd upon his Examination before the Lord Deputy at the Castle of Dublin, why he had committed such a horrid Sacrilege as to burn God's Church? He answer'd, I had never burnt the Church unless I had thought the Bishop had been in't. Lastly, who would have imagined that the Excise would have taken footing here? A Word I remember in the last Parliament save one so odious, that when Sir D. Carleton, then Secretary of State, did but name it in the House of Commons, he was like to be sent to the Tower; although he nam'd it to no ill sense, but to shew what advantage of happiness the People of England had o'er other Nations, having neither the Gabels of Italy, the Tallies of France, or

or the Excise of Holland laid upon them, yet upon this he was suddenly interrupted, and call'd to the Bar : Such a strange Metamorphosis poor England is now come unto, and I am afraid our Miseries are not come to their height, but the longest shadows stay till the Evening.

The freshest News that I can write unto you is, that the Kentish Knight of your acquaintance, whom I writ in my last had an Apostacy in his Brain, died suddenly this Week of an Imposthume in his Breast, as he was reading a Pamphlet of his own that came from the Press, wherein he shew'd a great mind to be nibbling with my Trees; but he only shew'd his Teeth, for he could not bite them to any purpose.

William Ro is return'd from the Wars, but he is grown lame in one of his Arms, so he hath no mind to bear Arms any more, he confesseth himself to be an egregious Fool, to leave his Mercership, and go to be a Musqueteer. It made me think upon the Tale of the Gallego in Spain, who in the Civil Wars against Arragon, being in the Field, he was shot in the Forehead, and being carried away to a Tent, the Surgeon searched his Wound and found it mortal, so he advised him to send for his Confessor, for he was no Man for this World, in regard the Brain was touch'd; the Soldier wish'd him to search it again, which he did, and told him that he found he was hurt in the Brain, and could not possibly escape, whereupon the Gallego fell into a chafe, and said he ly'd, for he had no Brain at all, por que si tuviera seso, nunca hubiera venido esta guerra, for if I had had any Brain, I would never have come to this War. All your Friends here are well, except the maim'd Soldier, and remember you often, especially Sir J. Brown, a good gallant Gentleman, who never forgets any who deserv'd to have a place in his Memory. Farewel, my dear Tom, and God send you better Days than we have here, for I wish you as much happiness as possibly Man can have; I wish your Mornings may be good, your Noons better, your Evenings and Nights best of all; I wish your Sorrows may be short, your Joys lasting, and all your Desires end in Success; let me here once more from you before you remove thence, and tell me how the squares go in Flanders: So I rest,

Fleet, Aug. 3.
1644.

Your entirely affectionate
Servitor, J. H.

LXV.

To his Majesty at Oxon.

S I R,

I Prostrate this Paper at your Majesty's Feet, hoping it may find way thence to your Eyes, and so descend to your Royal Heart.

The Foreign Minister of State, by whose conveyance this comes, did lately intimate unto me, that among divers Things which go abroad under my Name, reflecting upon the Times, there are some which are not so well taken, your Majesty being inform'd that they discover a Spirit of indifferency and lukewarmness in the Author: This added much to the weight of my present sufferances, and exceedingly imbitter'd the Sense of them unto me, being no other than a corrosive to one already in a heftick Condition: I must confess that some of them were more moderate than others; yet (most humbly under favour) there were none of them but displayed the Heart of a constant true Loyal Subject; and as divers of those who are most zealous to your Majesty's Service, told me, they had the good Success to rectifie Multitudes of People in their Opinion of some Things, insomuch that I am not only not conscious, but most confident that none of them could tend to your Majesty's disservice any way imaginable: Therefore I humbly beseech, that your Majesty would vouchsafe to conceive of me accordingly, and of one who by this recluse passive Condition hath his share of this hideous storm; yet he is in assurance, rather hopes, that though divers cross Winds have blown, these Times will bring in better at last: There have been divers of your Royal Progenitors who have had as shrewd shocks, and 'tis well known, how the next transmarine Kings have been brought to lower Ebbs; At this very Day he of Spain is in a far worse Condition, being in the midst of two sorts of People, (the Catalan and Portuguese) which were lately his Vassals, but now have torn his Seals, renounc'd all bonds of Allegiance, and are in actual hostility against him. This great City, I may say, is like a Chess-board chequer'd, inlaid with white and black spots, though I believe the white are more in Number, and your Majesty's Countenance, by returning to your great Council and your Court at Whitehall, would quickly turn them all White. That Almighty Majesty, who useth to draw Light out of Darkness, and Strength out of Weakness, making Man's Extremity his Opportunity, preserve and prosper your Majesty, according to the Prayers, early and late, of your Majesty's most loyal Subject, Servant, and Martyr, Fleet, Sept. 3.

1644.

Howell.

LXVI. To

LXVI.

To E. Benlowes, Esq; upon the Receipt of a Table of exquisite Latin Poems.

S I R,

I Thank you in a very high Degree for that precious Table of Poems you pleas'd to send me: When I had well view'd them, I thought upon that famous Table of Proportion, which Ptolomy is recorded by Aristæus to have sent Eliezer to Jerusalem, which was counted a stupendious piece of Art, and the wonderment of those Times: What the Curiosity of that Table was, I have not read, but I believe it consisted in extern mechanical Artifice only: The Beauty of your Table is of a far more noble Extraction, being a pure spiritual Work, so that it may be called the Table of your Soul, in confirmation of the opinion of that Divine, though Pagan Philosopher, the high wing'd Plato, who fancied that our Souls at the first infusion were as so many Tables, they were Abraſa Tabula, and that all our future Knowledge was but a reminiscence; but under favour, the rich and elaborate Poems which so loudly eccho out your Worth and Ingenuity, deserve a far more lasting monument to preserve them from the injury of Time than such a slender Board; they deserve to be engraven in such durable dainty stuff, that may be fit to hang up in the Temple of Apollo: Your Eccho deserves to dwell in some marble or porphyry grot, cut about Parnassus's Mount near the source of Helicon, rather than upon such a slight superficies.

I much thank you for your Visits, and other fair Respects you shew me; especially that you have enlarg'd my Quarters among these melancholy Walls by sending me a whole Isle to walk in, I mean that delicate purple Island I receiv'd from you, where I meet with Apollo himself and all his Daughters, with other excellent Society; I stumble also there often upon myself, and grow better acquainted with what I have within me and without me, inso-much that you could not make choice of a fitter ground for a Prisoner, as I am, to pass over, than of that purple Isle, that Isle of Man you sent me, which as the Ingenious Author hath made it, is a far more dainty Soil than that Scarlet Island which lies near the Baltick Sea.

I remain still windbound in this Fleet; when the Weather mends, and the Wind fits that I may launch forth, I will repay you your Visits, and be ready to correspond with you in the reciprocation of any other offices of Friendship, for I am, Sir,

Fleet, Aug. 25.

Your affectionate Servitor,

1645.

J. H.

LXVII. 70

LXVII.

To my Honourable Lady, the Lady A. Smith.

Madam,

WHereas you were pleas'd lately to ask leave, you may now take Authority to command me; and did I know any of the Faculties of my Mind, or Limbs of my Body that were not willing to serve you, I would utterly renounce them, they should be no more mine, at least I should not like them near so well; but I shall not be put to that, for I sensibly find that by a natural propensity they are all most ready to obey you, and to stir at the least beck of your Commands, as Iron moves towards the Load-stone: Therefore, Madam, If you bid me go, I will run; if you bid me run, I'll fly (if I can) upon your errand; But I must stay till I can get my Heels at Liberty from among these Walls, till when, I am as perfectly as Man can be,

Madam,

Fleet, May 5.
1645.

Your most obedient humble Servitor,
J. H.

LXVIII.

To Master G. Stone.

SIR,

I Heartily rejoyce with the rest of your Friends, that you are safely return'd from your Travels, especially that you have made so good returns of the time of your Travel, being, as I understand, come home freighted with Observations and Languages; your Father tells me that he finds you are so wedded to the Italian and French, that you utterly neglect the Latin Tongue; that's not well: Though you have learnt to play at Back-gammon, you must not forget Irish, which is a serious and solid Game; but I know you are so discreet in the course and method of your Studies, that you will make the Daughters to wait upon their Mother, and love still your old Friend: To truck the Latin for any other vulgar Language, is but an ill bargain, it is as bad as that which Glaucus made with Diomedes, when he parted with his golden Arms for brazen ones; the proceed of this exchange will come far short of any Gentlemans expectations, though happily it may prove advantageous to a Merchant, to whom common Languages are more useful. I am big with desire to meet you, and to mingle a days Discourse with you, if not two, how you escap'd the claws of the Inquisition, whereinto I understand you were like to fall, and of other Traverses of of your Peregrination: Farewel, my precious Stone, and believe it, the least grain of those high Respects you please to profess unto me is not lost, but answer'd with so many Caratts: So I rest, Westmin. Novem. 30.

1635.

Your most affectionate Servitor,
J. H.

LXIX.

To Mr. J. J. Esq;

S I R,

I Received those sparkles of Piety you pleas'd to send me in a Manuscript, and whereas you favour me with a desire of my opinion concerning the publishing of them; Sir, I must profess that I found among them many most fervent and flexanimous strains of Devotion; I found some Prayers so piercing and powerful, that they are able to invade Heaven, and take it by Violence, if the Heart doth its Office as well as the Tongue: But, Sir, you must give me leave (and for this leave you shall have Authority to deal with mine in such a case) to tell you, that whereas they consist only of Requests, being all supplicatory Prayers, you should do well to intersperse among them some Eucharistical Eiaculations, and Doxologies, some oblations of Thankfulness: We should not be always whining in a puling petitionary way (which is the tone of the Time now in Fashion) before the Gates of Heaven with our Fingers in our Eyes, but we should lay our Hands upon our Hearts, and break into raptures of Joy and Praise: A Soul thus elevated is the most pleasing Sacrifice that can be offer'd to God Almighty, it is the best sort of Incense: Prayer causeth the first shower of Rain, but Praise brings down the second, the one fructifieth the Earth, the other makes the Hills to skip; all Prayers aim at our own Ends and Interests, but Praise proceeds from the pure motions of Love and Gratitude, having no other Object but the Glory of God: That Soul which rightly dischargeth this part of Devotion, may be said to do the duty of an Angel upon Earth. Among other Attributes of God, Præscience or Fore-knowledge is one, for he knows our Thoughts, our Desires, our wants long before we propound them. And this is not only one of his Attributes but Prerogative Royal; therefore to use so many iterations, inculcations, and tautologies, as it is no good manners in moral Philosophy, no more is it in Divinity, it argues a pusillanimous and mistrustful Soul: Of the two, I had rather be over-long in Praise than Prayer, yet I would be careful it should be free from any Pharisaical babbling: Prayer compar'd with Praise, is but a fuliginous smoak, issuing from the sense of sin and humane infirmities; Praises are the true clear sparkles of Piety, and sooner fly upwards.

Thus

Thus have I been free with you in delivering my Opinion touching that Piece of Devotion you sent me, whereunto I add my humble Thanks to you for the perusal of it; so I am

Fleet, Sept. 1.
1645.

Yours most ready to be commanded,
J. H.

LXXII.

To Captain William Bridges, in Amsterdam.

My noble Captain,

I Had yours of the tenth Current, and besides your avisos, I must thank you for those rich Flourishes wherewith your Letter was embroidered every where. The News under Clime is, that they have mutined lately in divers Places about the Excise, a Bird that was first hatch'd there amongst you, here in London the Tumult came to that height that they burnt down to the ground the Excise House in Smithfield, but now all is quiet again: God grant our Excise here have not the same Fortune as yours there, to become perpetual; or as that new Gabel of Orleans, which began in the Time of the League, which continueth to this Day, notwithstanding the cause ceas'd about Threescore Years since; touching this, I remember a pleasant Tale that is recorded of Henry the Great, who some Years after Peace was established throughout all the whole Body of France, going to his own Town of Orleans, the Citizens petitioned him, that his Majesty would be pleased to abolish that new Tax; the King asked who had impos'd it upon them? They answered, Monfieur de la Charte, (during the civil Wars of the League) who was now dead; the King replied, Monfieur de la Chatre, vous a ligue qu'il vous desligue, Monfieur de la Chatre leagu'd you, let him then unleague you, for my part. Now that we have a kind of Peace the Goals are full of Soldiers, and some Gentlemens Sons of Quality suffer daily; the last week Judge Rives condemned four in your County, at Maidstone Assizes, but he went out of the World before them, though they were executed for Days after: You know the saying in France, that la guerra fait les latrons, & la paix lez ameine au gibet, War makes Thieves, and Peace brings them to the Gallows. I lie still here in limbo, in limbo innocentium, though not in limbo infantum, and I know not upon what Star to cast this misfortune: Others are here for their good Conditions, but I am here for for my good Qualities, as your Cousin Fortescue jeer'd me not long since, I know none I have, unless it be to love you, which I would continue to do, though I tug'd at an oar in a Galley, much more as I walk in the Galleries of this Fleet: In this resolution I rest

Fleet, Sept. 2.

1645.

Your most affectionate

Servitor, J. H.

LXXXI.

To Mr. W. B. at Grundesburgh.

Gentle Sir,

YOurs of the seventh I receiv'd yesternight, and read o'er with no vulgar Delight; in the perusal of it methought to have discern'd a gentle strife 'twixt the fair Respects you pleas'd to shew me therein, and your ingenuity in expressing them, who should have Superiority; so that I knew not to which of the two I should adjudge the Palm.

If you continue to wrap up our young acquaintance, which you say is but yet in fascies, in such warm choice swadlings, it will quickly grow up to maturity, and for my part I shall not be wanting to contribute that reciprocal Nourishment which is due from me.

Whereas you please to magnifie some Pieces of mine, and that you seem to spie the Muses pearching upon my Trees, I fear 'tis but deceptio visus, for they are but Satyrs, or happily some of the homelier sort of Wood-Nymphs, the Muses have choicer Walks for their Recreation.

Sir, I must thank you for the visit you vouchsafed me in this simple Cell, and whereas you please to call it the Cabinet that holds the Jewel of our Time, you may rather term it a wicker Casknet that keeps a jet Ring, or a horn Lanthorn that holds a small Taper of course Wax; I hope this Taper shall not extinguish here, and if it may afford you any light, either from hence or hereafter, I should be glad to impart it in a plentiful Proportion, because I am, Sir,

Your most affectionate Friend

to serve you, J. H.

Fleet, July 1.

LXXII.

To J. W. of Gray's Inn, Esquire.

S I R,

I Was yours before in a high degree of Affection, but now I am much more yours, since I perus'd that parcel of choice Epistles you sent me; they discover in you a knowing and a candid clear Soul, for Familiar Letters are the keys of the Mind, they open all the boxes of ones Breast, all the cells of the Brain, and truly set forth the inward Man, nor can the pencil so lively represent the Face, as the Pen can do the Fancy: I much thank you that you would please to impart them unto,

Fleet, April 1.

Your most faithful Servitor,

1645.

J. H.

LXXIII.

To Captain T. P. from Madrid.

Captain Don Thomas,

Could I write my Love unto you with a Ray of the Sun, as once Aurelius the Roman Emperor wish'd to a Friend of his, you know this clear Horizon of Spain could afford me plenty, which cannot be had so constantly all the Seasons of the Year in your cloudy Clime of England. Apollo with you makes not himself so common, he keeps more State, and doth not shew his Face, and shoot his Beams so frequently as he doth here, where 'tis Sunday all the Year: I thank you a thousand Times for what you sent by Mr. Gresley, and that you let me know how the pulse of the Times beats with you; I find you cast not your Eyes so much Southward as you were us'd to do towards us here, and when you look this way you cast a cloudy Countenance with threatening Looks, which makes me apprehend some fear that it will not be safe for me to be longer under this Meridian. Before I part I will be careful to send you those Things you writ for, by some of my Lord Ambassador Aston's Gentlemen. I cannot yet get that Grammar which was made for the Constable of Castile, who you know was born dumb, wherein an Art is invented to speak with Hands only, to carry the Alphabet upon ones Joynts, and at his Fingers ends, which may be learn'd without any great difficulty by any mean Capacity, and whereby one may discourse and deliver the conceptions of his Mind without ever wagging of his Tongue, provided there be a reciprocal know-knowledge, and co-understanding of the Art 'twixt the parties, and it is a very ingenious Piece of invention. I thank you for the Copy of Verses you sent me glancing upon the Times. I was lately perusing some of the Spanish Poets here, and lighted upon two Epigrams, or Epitaphs more properly, upon our Henry the Eighth, and upon his Daughter Queen Elizabeth, which in requital I thought worth the sending you.

A Henrique oçtavo Rey de Inglatierra.

Mas de esta losa fria

Cubre Henrique tu valor,

De una Muger clamor,

Y de un Error la porfia

Como cupo en tu grandeza,

Dezidme engañado Ingles

Querer una muger a los pies,

Ser de la yglesia cabeza?

Pros'd thus in English, for I had no Time to put it on Feet.

O Henry, more than this cold Pavement covers thy Worth, the love of a Woman and pertinancy of Error: How could it subsist with thy greatness, tell me, O cozen'd Englishman, to cast thyself at a Womans Feet, and yet to be Head of the Church? That upon Queen Elizabeth was this,

De Isabela Reyna de Inglatierra.

Aqui yaze Isabel,

Aqui la nueva Athalia,

Del oro Antartico Harpia,

Del mar incendio cruel:

Aqui el ingenio, mas dino

De loor que ha tenuta el suelo,

Si par allegaral al cielo

No huniera errado el camino.

Here lies Jezebel, here lies the new Athalia, the Harpy of the Western Gold, the cruel Firebrand of the Sea: Here lies a Wit, the most worthy of Fame which the Earth had, if to arrive to Heaven she had not mist her Way.

You cannot blame the Spaniard to be Satyrical against Queen Elizabeth, for he never speaks of her, but he fetcheth a shrink in the Shoulders. Since I have begun, I will go on with as witty an Anagram

Anagram as I have heard or read which a Gentleman lately made upon his own Name Thomas, and a Nun call'd Maria, for she was his Devota: The occasion was, that going one Evening to Discourse with her at the grate, he wrung her by the Hand, and joyn'd both their Names in this Anagram, To Maria mas, I would take more; I know I shall not need to expound it to you; hereunto I will add a strong and deep fetch'd Character, as I think you will confess when you have read it, that one made in this Court of a Courtesan.

*Eres puta tan artera
Qu'en el vientre de tu madre
Tu cumistes de manera
Que te cavalgue el padre.*

To this I will joyn that which was made of de Vaca, husband to Jusepe de Vaca the famous Comedian, who came upon the Stage with a cloak lin'd with black plush, and a great Chain about his Neck, whereupon the Duke of Medina broke into these witty Lines,

*Con tanta felpa en la Capa
Y tanta cadena de oro,
El marido de la Vaca
Que purde ser sino toto?*

The conclusion of this rambling Letter shall be a rhyme of certain hard throary Words which I was taught lately, and they are accounted the difficultest in all the whole Castilian Language, inso-much that he who is able to pronounce them, is accounted Buen Romancista, a good speaker of Spanish: Abeia y oueia y piedra que rabeia, y pendola tras oreia, y lugar en la y greia, desseia a su hijo la vieia: A Bee and a Sheep, a Mill, a Jewel in the Ear, and a Place in the Church, the old Woman desires her Son. No more now, but that I am, and will ever be, my noble Captain, in the front of Madrid, Aug. 1.

1622.

Your most affectionate Servitors, J. H.

LXXIV.

To Sir Tho. Luke, Knight.

S I R,

HAD you traversed all the World over, especially those large Continents, and Christian Countries which you have so exactly surveyed, and whence you have brought over with you such useful Observations and Languages, you could not have lighted upon upon a choicer Piece of Womankind for your Wife; the Earth could not have afforded a Lady, that by her Discretion and Sweetness could better quadrate with your Disposition. As I heartily congratulate your Happiness in this particular, so I would desire you to know that I did no ill Offices towards the Advancement of the Work, upon occasion of some Discourse with my Lord George of Rutland not long before at Hambleton.

My Thoughts are now puzzled about my Voyage to the Baltick Sea upon the King's Service, otherwise I would have ventur'd upon an Epithalamium, for there is matter rich enough to work upon: And now that you have made an end of wooing, I could wish you had made an end of wrangling, I mean of Lawing, especially with your Mother, who hath such resolutions where she once takes. Law is not only a Pickpurse, but a Purgatory: You know the Saying they have in France, Les plaideurs sont les oy seaux, l'palais l'Champ les Juges, rets les Advocats les Rats, les procureurs les souris de estas: The poor Clients are the Birds, Westminster-Hall the Field, the Judge the Net, the Lawyers the Rats, the Attornies the Mice of the Commonwealth. I believe this Saying was spoken by an angry Client: For my part, I like his resolution who said, he would never use Lawyer nor Physician but upon urgent Necessity. I will conclude with this Rhime,

*Pouvre playdeur,
Jay gran pitie de ta douleur.*

Westmin. May 1.
1629.

Your most affectionate
Servitor, J. H.

LXXV.

To Mr. R. K.

Dear Sir,

YOU and I are upon a Journy, though bound for several Places, I for Hamburgh, you for your last Home, as I understand by Doctor Baskervil, who tells me, much to my Grief, that this heftical Disease will not suffer you to be long among us. I know by some Experiments which I have had of you, you have such a noble Soul within you, that will not be daunted by those natural apprehensions which Death doth usually carry along with it among vulgar Spirits: I do not think that you fear Death as much now, though it be to some (σοβερων σοβεργατων) as you did to go in the dark when you were a Child; you have had a fair time to prepare yourself. God give you a boon Voyage to the Haven you are bound for (which I doubt not will be Heaven) and me the Grace to follow, when I have pass'd the boisterous Sea and swell-ling Billows of this tumultuary Life, wherein I have already shot divers dangerous Gulfs, pass'd o'er some quicksands, rocks, and sundry illfavour'd reaches, while others sail in the sleeve of Fortune: You and I have eaten a great deal of Salt together, and spent much oyl in the communication of our Studies by literal Correspondence, and otherwise, both in Verse and Prose, therefore I will take my last leave of you now in these few Stanza's.

1. *Weak crazy Mortal, why dost fear
To leave this earthly Hemisphere?
Where all Delights away do pass,
Like thy Effigies in a Glass.
Each thing beneath the Moon is frail and fickle,
Death sweeps away what Time cuts with his Sickle.*

2. *This Life, at best is but an Inn,
And we the Passengers, wherein
The cloth is laid to some before
They peep out of Dame Nature's door,
And warm lodgings left; Others there are Must trudge to find a Room, and shift for Fare.*

3. *This Life's, at longest, but one Day,
He who in Youth posts hence away,
Leaves us th' Morn, He who hath run
His Race till Manhood, parts at Noon,
And who at Seventy odd forsakes this Light,
He may be said to take his Leave at Night.*

4. *One Paste makes up the Prince and Peasant,
Though one eat Roots, the other Pheasant,
They nothing differ in the Stuff,
But both extinguish like a Snuff:
Why then fond Man should it thy Soul dismay,
To sally out of these gross Walls of Clay?*

And now my dear Friend adieu, and live eternally in that World of endless Bliss, where you shall have Knowledge as well as things else commensurate to your desires, where you shall clearly see the real causes, and perfect truth of what we argue with that incertitude, and beat our Brains about here below; yet though you be gone hence, you shall never die in the Memory of Westmin. Aug. 15.

1630.

Your J. H.

LXXVI.

To Sir R. Gr. Knight and Bar.Noble Sir,

I Had yours upon Maunday Thursday late, and the reason that I suspended my Answer till now, was, that the season engaged me to sequester my Thoughts from my wonted Negotiations, to contemplate the great Work of Man's Redemption, so great, that were it cast in counterballance with his Creation, it would outpoise it far. I summon'd all my Intellectuals to meditate upon those Passions, upon those Pangs, upon that despicable and most dolorous Death, upon that Cross whereon my Saviour suffer'd, which was the first Christian Altar that ever was, and I doubt that he will never have Benefit of the Sacrifice, who hates the harmless resemblance of the Altar whereon it was offer'd; I applyed my Memory to fasten upon it, my Understanding to comprehend it, my Will to embrace it: from these three Faculties, methought I found by the mediation of the Fancy of some Beams of Love gently gliding down from the Hand to the Heart, and inflaming all my Affections; if the human Soul had far more Powers than the Philosophers afford her, if she had as many Faculties within the Head as there be Hairs without, the speculation of this Mystery would find work enough for them all: Truly the more I scrue up my Spirits to reach it, the more I am swallowed in a gulf of Admiration, and of a thousand imperfect Notions, which makes me ever and anon to quarrel with my Soul that she cannot lay hold on my Saviour, much more my Heart, that my purest Affections cannot hug him as much as I would.

They have a Custom beyond the Seas (and I could wish it were the worst Custom they had) that during the Passion-week divers of their greatest Princes and Ladies will betake themselves to some Convent or reclus'd House, to wean themselves from all worldly encumbrances, and converse only with Heaven, with performance of some kind of Penances, all the week long. A worthy Gentleman that came lately from Italy told me, that the Count of Byron, now Marshal of France, having been long persecuted by Cardinal Richelieu, put himself so into a Monastery, and the next day News was brought him of the Cardinal's Death, which I believe made him spend the rest of the week with the more Devotion in that way. France brags that our Saviour had his Face turn'd towards her when he was upon the Cross; there is more cause to think that it was towards this Island, in regard the Rays of Christianity first reverberated upon her, her King being Christian 400 Years before him of France, (as all Historians concur) notwithstanding that he arrogates to himself the Title of the first Son of the Church.

Let this serve for part of my Apology: The Day following, my Saviour being in the Grave, I had no list to look much abroad, but continued my Retiredness; there was another Reason also why, because I intended to take the holy Sacrament the Sunday ensuing, which is an Act of the greatest Consolation and Consequence that possibly a Christian can be capable of; it imports him so much that he is made or marr'd by it; it tends to his Damnation or Salvation, to help him up to Heaven, or tumble him down headlong to Hell: Therefore it behoves a Man to prepare and recollect himself, to winnow his Thoughts from the chaff and tares of the World beforehand. This then took up a good part of that Day to provide myself a Wedding-garment, that I might be a fit Guest at so precious a Banquet, so precious, that Manna and Angels Food are but course viands in comparison of it.

I hope that this Excuse will be of such Validity that it may procure my Pardon for not corresponding with you this last Week. I am now as freely as formerly

Your most ready and humble

Fleet, April 30.

Servitor, J. H.

1647.

LXXVII.

To Mr. R. Howard.

S I R,

THere is a Saying that carrieth with it a great deal of Caution, From him whom I trust God defend me, for from him whom I trust not, I will defend myself. There be sundry sorts of Trusts, but that of a Secret is one of the greatest; I trusted T. P. with a weighty one, conjuring him that he should not take Air and go abroad, which was not done according to the Rules and Religion of Friendship, but it went out of him the very next Day: Though the Inconvenience may be mine, yet the Reproach is his, nor would I exchange my Damage for his Disgrace: I would wish you to take heed of him, for he is such as the Comic Poet speaks of, plenus rimarum, he is full of Chinks, he can hold nothing: You know a Secret is too much for one, too little for three, and enough for two, but Tom must be none of those two, unless there were a trick to soder up his Mouth: If he had committed a Secret to me, and enjoyn'd me Silence, and I had promis'd it, though I had been shut up in Perillus's brazen Bull, I should not have belowed it out. I find it now true, that he who discovers his Secrets to another, sells him his Liberty, and becomes his Slave. Well, I shall be warier hereafter, and learn more Wit. In the interim the best Satisfaction I can give myself is to expung him quite ex albo amicorum, to raze him out of the Catalogue of my Friends, (though I cannot of my Acquaintance) where your Name is inserted in great Golden Characters: I will endeavour to lose the Memory of him, and that my Thoughts may never run more upon the Fashion of his Face, which you know he hath no cause to brag of, I have such blateroons,

Odi illos seu claustra Erebi—

I thought good to give you this little mot of Advice, because the times are ticklish, of committing Secrets to any, though not to

Your most affectionate Friend

From the Fleet, Feb. 14.

to serve you,

J. H.

1647.

LXXVIII.

To my Honoured Friend Mr. E. P. at Paris.

S I R,

LET me never fall hence, from among these disconsolate walls, if the literal Correspondence you please to hold so punctually with me, be not one of the greatest Solaces I have had in this sad Condition; for I find so much Salt, such endearments and flourishes, such a Gallantry and Neatness in your Lines, that you may give the Law of Lettering to all the World: I had this week a twin of yours, of the 10th and 15th current, I am sorry to hear of your achagues, and so often Indisposition there, it may be very well (as you say) that the Air of that dirty Town doth not agree with you, because you speak Spanish, which Language you know is us'd to be breath'd out under a clearer Clime; I am sure it agrees not with the sweet breezes of Peace, for 'tis you there that would keep poor Christendom in perpetual Whirlwinds of Wars; but I fear, that while France sets all wheels a going, and stirs all the Cacodemons of Hell to pull down the House of Austria, she may chance at last to pull it upon her own head. I am sorry to understand what they write from Venice this week, that there is a discovery made in Italy, how France had a hand to bring in the Turk, to invade the Territories of St. Mark, and puzzle the Peace of Italy. I want Faith to believe it yet, nor can I entertain in my breast any such conceit of the most Christian King, and first Son of the Church, as he terms himself: yet I pray in your next to pull this thorn out of my thoughts, and tell me whether one may give any Credit to this Report.

We are now scot-free as touching the Northern Army, for our dear Brethren have truss'd up their Baggage, and put the Tweed 'twixt us and them once again, dear indeed, for they have cost us first and last, above Nineteen hundred thousand Pound Sterling, which amounts to near eight Millions of Crowns with you there; yet if reports be true, they left behind them more than they lost, if you go to number of Men, which will be a brave Race of Mestisos hereafter, who may change, meet their Fathers in the Field, and kill them unwittingly: He will be a wise Child that knows his right Father: Here we are like to have four and twenty Seas emptied shortly, and some do hope to find abundance of Treasure in the bottom of them, as no doubt they will, but many doubt that it will prove but Aurum Tolosanum to the Finders: God grant that from Aereans we turn not to be Arrians. The Earl of Strafford was accounted by his very Enemies to have an extraordinary Talent of Judgment and Parts (though they say he wanted Moderation) and one of the prime Precepts he left his Son upon the Scaffold was, that he should not meddle with Church-Lands, for they would prove a Canker to his Estate. Here are started up some great knowing Men lately, that can shew the very tract by which our Saviour went to Hell, they will tell you precisely whose Names are written in the Book of Life, whose not: God deliver us from spiritual Pride, which of all sorts is the most dangerous. Here are also notable Star-gazers, who obtrude to the World such confident bold Predictions, and are so familiar with heavenly Bodies, that Ptolemy and Tychobrach were but Ninnies to them. We have likewise multitudes of Witches among us, for in Essex and Suffolk there were above two hundred indicted within these two Years, and above the one half of them executed, more, I may well say, than ever this Island bred since the Creation, I speak it with horror. God guard us from the Devil, for I think he was never so busie upon any part of the Earth that was enlightned with the Beams of Christianity, nor do I wonder at it, for there's never a Cross left to fright him away. Edenburgh I hear is fallen into a relapse of the Plague, the last they had rag'd so violently, that the fortieth Man or Woman lives not of those that dwelt there four Years since, but it is all peopled with new Faces. Don and Hans I hear are absolutely accorded, nor do I believe that all the Artifices of Policy that you use there can hinder the Peace, though they may puzzle it for for a while; if it be so, the People which button their Doublets upward will be better able to deal with you there.

Much Notice is taken that you go on there too fast in your acquests, and now that the Eagles Wings are pretty well clipp'd, 'tis Time to look that your Flower-de-Luce grow not too rank, and spread too wide. Whereas you desire to know how it fares with your Master, I must tell you, that like the glorious Sun, he is still in his own Orb, though clouded for a Time, that he cannot shoot the Beams of Majesty with that Lustre he was wont to do; never did Cavalier wooe fair Lady as he wooes the Parliament to a Peace: 'Tis much the Head should so stoop to the Members.

Farewel, my noble Friend, cheer up, and reserve yourself for better Days; take our Royal Master for your Pattern, who for his Longanimity, Patience, Courage, and Constancy, is admir'd of all the World, and in a passive way of Fortitude hath outgone all the Nine Worthies. If the Cedar be so weather-beaten, we poor Shrubs must not murmur to bear part of the Storm; I have had my Share, and I know you want not yours: The Stars may change their Aspects, and we may live to see the Sun again in his full Meridian: in the interim come what will come, I am

Fleet, Feb. 3.

1646.

Entirely yours,

J. H.

LXXIX.

To Sir K. D. at Rome.

S I R,

THough you know well, that in the carriage and course of my rambling Life, I had occasion to be, as the Dutchman saith, a Landloper, and to see much of the World abroad, yet methinks I have travell'd more since I have been immur'd and martyr'd betwixt these Walls than ever I did before, for I have travelled the Isle of Man, I mean this little World, which I have carried about me and within me so many Years; for as the wisest of Pagan Philosophers said, that the greatest Learning was the Knowledge of ones self, to be his own Geometrician: If one do so, he need not gad abroad to see Fashions, he shall find enough at home, he shall hourly meet with new Fancies, new Humours, new Passions within doors.

This travelling o'er of ones self, is one of the Paths that leads a Man to Paradise; it is true, that 'tis a dirty and dangerous one, for it is thick set with extravagant Desires, irregular Affections and Concupiscences, which are but odd Comerades, and oftentimes do lie in ambush to cut our throats; there are also some melancholy companions in the way, which are our thoughts, but they turn many times to be good fellows, and the best company; which makes me, that among these disconsolate walls I am never less alone than when I am alone, I am oft-times sole, but seldom solitary: Some there are, who are overpestered with these companions, and have too much Mind for their Bodies, but I am none of those.

There have been (since you shook hands with England) many strange things happened here, which posterity must have a strong faith to believe; but for my part I wonder not at any thing, I have seen such monstrous things: you know there is nothing that can be casual, there is no success good or bad, but is contingent to Man sometimes or other, nor are there any contingencies present or future, but they have their parallels from time pass'd; for the great wheel of Fortune, upon whose Rim (as the twelve signs upon the Zodiac) all worldly chances are emboss'd, turns round perpetually, and the spokes of that wheel, which points at all human Actions, return exactly to the same place after such a revolution of time; which makes me little marvel at any of the strange traverses of these distracted times, in regard there hath been the like, or such like formerly: If the Liturgy is now suppress'd, the Missal and the Roman Breviary was us'd some hundred years since: If Crosses, Church-Windows, Organs, and Fonts are now battered down, I little wonder at it, for Chappels, Monasteries, Hermitages, Nunneries, and other Religious Houses were us'd so in the time of old King Henry: If Bishops and Deans are now in danger to be demolished, I little wonder at it, for Abbots, Priors, and the Pope himself had that fortune here, an Age since: That our King is reduc'd to this pass, I do not much wonder at it, for the first time I travell'd France, Lewis the thirteenth (afterwards a most triumphant King as ever that Country had) in a dangerous civil War was brought to such straights, for he was brought to dispencc with part of his Coronation Oath, to remove from his Court of Justice, from the Council Table, from his very Bedchamber, his greatest Favourites: He was driven to be content to pay the expence of the War, to reward those that took arms against him, and publish a Declaration that the ground of their quarrel was good; which was the same in effect with ours, viz. A discontinuance of the Assembly of the three Estates, and that Spanish Councils did predominate in France.

You know better than I, that all events, good or bad, come from the all-disposing high Deity of Heaven, if good, he produceth them; if bad, he permits them: He is the Pilot that sits at the stern, stern, and steers the great Vessel of the World, and we must not presume to direct him in his course, for he understands the use of the Compass better than we : He commands also the winds and the weather, and after a storm he never fails to send us a calm, and to recompence ill times with better, if we can live to see them, which I pray you may do, whatsoever becomes of

*From the Fleet, London,
Mar. 3. 1646.*

*Your still most faithful humble
Servitor, J. H.*

LXXX.

To Sir K. D. at his House in Saint Martins Lane.

S I R,

That Poem which you pleased to approve of so highly in a Manuscript, is now manumitted, and made free denizon of the World ; it hath gone from my Study to the Stall, from the Pen to the Press, and I send one of the maiden Copies herewith to attend you : 'Twas your judgment, which all the world holds to be sound and sterling, induced me hereunto, therefore, if there be any, you are to bear your part of the blame.

*Holbourn, Jan. 3.
1641.*

*Your most entirely devoted
Servitor, J. H.*

A

A THIRD VOLUME
OF
Familiar LETTERS,

Of a fresher Date.

I.
To the Right Honourable Edward, Earl of Dorset, (Lord Chamberlain of His Majesty's Household, &c.) at Knowles.

My Lord,

HAVING so advantageous a Hand as Doctor S. Turner, I am bold to send your Lordship a new Tract of French Philosophy, call'd L'usage de Passions, which is cry'd up to be a choice Piece; It is a Moral Discourse of the right Use of Passions, the Conduct whereof as it is the principal Employment of Virtue, so the Conquest of them is the difficult'st part of Valour: To know ones self is much, but to conquer ones self is more. We need not pick Quarrels and seek Enemies without doors, we have too many Inmates at home to exercise our Prowess upon, and there is no Man, let him have his Humours never so well ballanc'd, and in Subjection unto him, but like Muscovia Wives, they will oftentimes insult, unless they be check'd; yet we should make them our Servants, not our Slaves. Touching the Occurrences of the Times, since the King was snatch'd away from the Parliament, the Army, they say, use him with more Civility and freedom; but for the main Work of restoring him, he is yet, as one may say, but Tantaliz'd, being often brought within the fight

sight of London, and so off again; there are Hopes that something will be done to his Advantage speedily, because the Gregarian Soldiers and groſs of the Army is well affected to him, though some of the chiefest Commanders be still averse.

For foreign News, they say St. Mark bears up stoutly against Mahomet, both by Land and Sea; in Dalmatia he hath of late shaken him by the Turban ill-favouredly: I could heartily wish that our Army here were there to help the Republick, and combat the common Enemy; for then one might be sure to die in the Bed of Honour. The Commotions in Sicily are quash'd, but those of Naples increase, and 'tis like to be a more raging and voracious Fire than Vesuvius, or any of the sulphurious Mountains about her did ever belch out: The Catalan and Portuguese bait the Spaniard on both sides, but the first hath shrewder Teeth than the other, and the French and Hollander find him work in Flanders. And now, my Lord, to take all Nations in a Lump, I think God Almighty hath a Quarrel lately with all Mankind, and given the Reins to the ill Spirit to compass the whole Earth, for within these twelve Years there have the strangest revolutions, and horrid'st things happen'd, not only in Europe, but all the World over, that have befallen Mankind, I dare boldly say, since Adam fell, in so short a revolution of time: There is a kind of popular Planet reigns every where. I will begin with the hottest Parts, with Africk, where the Emperor of Ethiopia (with two of his Sons) was encountred and kill'd in open Field by the Groom of his Camels and Dromedaries, who had levied an Army out of the dregs of the People against him, and is like to hold that ancient Empire in Asia. The Tartar broke o'er the four hundred miled wall, and rush'd into the heart of China, as far as Quinzoy, and beleaguer'd the very Palace of the Emperor, who rather than to become Captive to the base Tartar, burnt his Castle, and did make away himself, his thirty wives, and children. The great Turk hath been lately strangled in the Seraglio, his own house. The Emperor of Muscovia going in a solemn Procession upon the Sabbath-day, the Rabble broke in, knock'd down and cut in pieces divers of his chiefest Counsellors, Favorites and Officers before his Face, and dragging their Bodies to the Market-place, their Heads were chopp'd off, thrown into Vessels of hot water, and so set upon Poles to burn more bright before the Court-Gate. In Naples a common Fruiterer hath raised such an Insurrection, that they say above 60 M. have been slain already upon the Streets of that City alone. Catalonia and Portugal have quite revolted from Spain. Your Lordship knows what knocks have been 'twixt the Pope and Parma. The Pole and the Cossacks are hard at it. Venice wrestleth with the Turk, and is like to lose her her Maidenhead unto him, unless other Christian Princes look to it in time: And touching these three Kingdoms, there's none more capable than your Lordship to judge what monstrous things have happen'd; so that it seems the whole Earth is off the hinges: and (which is the more wonderful) all these prodigious Passages have fallen out in less than the compass of twelve years. But now that all the World is together by the ears, the States of Holland would be quiet, for Advice is come that the Peace is concluded, and interchangeably ratified 'twixt them and Spain, but they defer the publishing of it yet, till they have collected all the Contribution Mony for the Army. The Spaniard hopes that one day this Peace may tend to his Advantage more than all his Wars have done these fourscore years, relying upon the old Prophecy, Marte triumphabis Batavia, Pace peribis.

The King of Denmark hath buried lately his eldest Son Christian, so that he hath now but one living, viz. Frederick, who is Archbishop of Breme, and is shortly to be King Elect.

My Lord, this Letter runs upon Universals, because I know your Lordship hath a publick great Soul, and a spacious Understanding, which comprehends the whole World; so in a due posture of Humility I kiss your Hands, being,

My Lord,

From the Fleet, Jan. 20.

Your most obedient and most faithful Servitor,

J. H.

II.

To Mr. En. P. at Paris.

S I R,

Since we are both agreed to truck Intelligence, and that you are contented to barter French for English, I shall be careful to send you hence from time to time the currantest and most staple Stuff I can find, with weight and good measure to boot: I know in that more subtil Air of yours Tinsel sometimes passes for Tissue, Venice Beads for Pearl, and Demicafters for Bevers; But I know you have so discerning a Judgment, that you will not suffer your self to be so cheated, they must rise betimes that can put Tricks upon you, and make you take semblances for realities, probabilities for certainties, or spurious for true things. To hold this literal Correspondence, I desire but the parings of your time, that you may have something to do, when you have nothing else to do, while

I make a business of it to be punctual in my Answers to you, let our Letters be as Ecchoes, let them bound back and make mutual repercussions ; I know you that breath upon the Continent have clearer Ecchoes there, witness that in the Twilleries, especially that at Charenton Bridge, which quavers and renders the Voice ten times when 'tis open Weather, and it were a virtuous Curiosity to try it.

For News, the World is here turn'd upside down, and it hath been long a going so ; you know a good while since we have had leather Caps, and Bever Shoes, but now the Arms are come to be Legs, for Bishops Lawn-sleeves are worn for Boot-hose tops ; the Waist is come to the Knee, for the Points that were used to be about the Middle are now dangling there ; Boots and Shoes are so long snouted that one can hardly kneel in Gods House, where all Genuflexion and Postures of Devotion and Decency are quite out of Use : The Devil may walk freely up and down the Streets of London now, for there is not a Cross to fright him any where, and it seems he was never so busy in any Country upon Earth, for there have been more Witches Arraign'd and Executed here lately than ever were in this Island since the Creation.

I have no more to communicate unto you at this time, and this is too much unless it were better : God Almighty send us Patience, you in your Banishment, me in my Captivity, and give us Heaven for our last Country, where Desires turn to Fruition, Doubts to Certitudes, and dark Thoughts to clear Contemplations. Truly, my dear Don Antonio, as the Times are, I take little Contentment to live among the Elements, and (were it my Makers Pleasure) I could willingly, had I quit scores with the World, make my last Account with Nature, and return this small skinful of Bones to my common Mother : If I chance to do so before you, I love you so entirely well, that my Spirit shall visit you, to bring you some Tidings from the other World ; and if you precede me, I shall expect the like from you, which you may do without affrighting me, for I know your Spirit will be a bonus Genius. So desiring to know what's become of my Manuscripts, I kiss your Hands, and rest most passionately

Your faithful Servitor,

The Fleet, Feb. 20.

1646.

J. H.

III.

To Master W. B.

S I R,

I Had yours of the last week, and by reason of some sudden Encumbrances, I could not correspond with you by that Carrier: As for your desire to know the Pedigree and first Rise of those we call Presbyterians, I find that your motion hath as much of Piety as Curiosity in it; but I must tell you, 'tis a Subject fitter for a Treatise than a Letter, yet I will endeavour to satisfy you in some part.

Touching the Word Πρεσβυτεριον, it is as ancient as Christianity itself, and every Church-man compleated in holy Orders was called Presbyter, as being the chiefeft Name of the Function, and so 'tis us'd in all Churches both Eastern and Occidental to this day: We by contraction call him Priest, so that all Bishops and Archbishops are Priests, though not vice versa. These holy Titles of Bishop and Priest are now grown odious among such poor Sciolists who scarce know the Histories of Things, because they favour of Antiquity; though their Minister that officiates in their Church be the same thing as Priest, and their Superintendent the same thing as Bishop; but because they are lovers of Novelties, they change old Greek words for new Latin ones. The first Broacher of the Presbyterian Religion, and made it differ from that of Rome and Luther, was Calvin; who being once banished Geneva, was revok'd, at which time he no less petulantly than prophanely applyed to himself that Text of the holy Prophet which was meant of Christ, The stone which the Builders refused, is made the head stone of the corner, &c. Thus Geneva Lake swallowed up the Episcopal See, and Church-Lands were made secular, which was the white they aim'd at. This Geneva Bird flew thence to France, and hatch'd the Hugonots, which make about the tenth part of that People; it took wing also to Bohemia and Germany high and low, as the Palatinate, the Land of Hesse, and the Confederate Provinces of the States of Holland, whence it took flight to Scotland and England: It took first footing in Scotland, when King James was a Child in his Cradle, but when he came to understand himself, and was manumitted from Buchanan, he grew cold in it, and being come to England, he utterly disclaim'd it, terming it in a publick Speech of his to the Parliament, a Sect rather than a Religion. To this Sect may be imputed all the Scissures that have happen'd in Christianity, with most of the Wars that have lacerated poor Europe ever since, and it may be called the Source of the civil distractions that now afflict this poor Island.

Thus

Thus have I endeavoured to fulfil your desires in part; I shall enlarge myself further when I shall be made happy with your Conversation here, till when, and always, I rest

Yours most affectionate to love and serve you,

From the Fleet, this
29. Novem. 1647.

J. H.

IV.

To Sir J. S. Knight, at Rouen.

S I R,

OF all the Blessings that ever dropt down from Heaven upon Man, that of his Redemption may be call'd the Blessing paramount; and of all those Comforts, and Exercises of Devotion which attend that Blessing, the Eucharist or holy Sacrament may claim the prime place; but as there is Devotion, so there is Danger in it, and that in the highest degree, 'tis rank Poison to some, though a most sovereign Cordial to others, ad modum recipientis, as the Schoolmen say, whether they take Panem Dominum, as the Roman Catholick, or Panem Domini, as the Reformed Churches: The Bee and the Spider suck Honey and Poison out of one Flower. This, Sir, you have divinely expressed in the Poem you pleas'd to send me upon this Subject, and whereas you seem to wooe my Muse to such a Task, something you may see she hath done, in pure Obedience to your Commands.

Upon the holy Sacrament.

I.

Hail, Holy Sacrament,
The Worlds great Wonderment,
Mysterious Banquet, much more rare
Than Manna, or the Angels Fare;
Each crum, though Sinners on Thee feed,
Doth Cleopatra's Pearl exceed:
Oh how my Soul doth hunger, thirst, and pine
After these Cates, so precious, so divine!

2.

She need not bring her Stool,
As some unbidden Fool;
The Master of this heav'nly Feast
Invites and wooes her for his Guest,

Though

Though deaf and lame, forlorn and blind,
 Yet welcome here she's sure to find,
 So that she bring a Vestment for the Day,
 And her old tatter'd rags throw quite away.

3.

This is Bethsaida's Pool,
 That can both cleanse and cool
 Poor leprous and diseased Souls,
 An Angel here keeps and controuls,
 Descending gently from the Heav'ns above
 To stir the Waters, may he also move
 My Mind, and rocky Heart so strike and rend,
 That Tears may thence gush out with them to blend.

This Morning Fancy drew on another towards the Evening,
 as followeth.

As to the Pole the Lilly bends
 In a Sea-Compass, and still tends
 By a Magnetick Mystery
 Unto the Artick Point in Skie,
 Whereby the wandring Piloteer
 His Course in gloomy Nights doth steer;
 So the small Needle of my Heart
 Moves to her Maker, who doth dart
 Atoms of Love, and so attracts
 All my Affections, which like Sparks
 Fly up, and guide my Soul by this
 To the true Centre of her Bliss.

As one Taper lightneth another, so were my Spirits enlightned and heated by your late Meditations in this kind; and well fare your Soul, with all her Faculties for them, I find you have a great Care of her, and of the main chance, Præ quo quisquiliæ cætera.
 You shall hear further from me within a few Days, in the interim be pleas'd to reserve still in your Thoughts some little room for

From the Fleet,
 Decemb. 10.
 1647.

Your most entirely affectionate
 Servitor,

J. H.

V. 70

V.

To Mr. T. W. at P. Castle

My precious Tom,

HE is the happy Man who can square his Mind to his Means, and fit his Fancy to his Fortune; He who hath a competency to live in the port of a Gentleman, and as he is free from being a head Constable, so he cares not for being a Justice of Peace or Sheriff; He who is beforehand with the World, and when he comes to London can whet his Knife at the Counter-gate, and needs not trudge either to a Lawyers Study, or Scriveners shop, to pay Fee or squeez Wax. 'Tis conceit chiefly that gives contentment, and he is happy who thinks himself so in any Condition, though he have but enough to keep the Wolf from the Door: Opinion is that great Lady which sways the World, and according to the impressions she makes in the mind, renders one contented or discontented. Now touching Opinion, so various are the intellectuals of humane Creatures, that one can hardly find out two who jump pat in one: Witness that Monster in Scotland in James the Fourth's Reign, with two Heads, one opposite to the other, and having but one bulk of Body throughout, these two Heads would often fall into altercations pro and con one with the other, and seldom were they of one Opinion, but they would knock one against the other in eager disputes, which shews, that the Judgment is seated in the animal parts, not in the vital, which are lodg'd in the heart.

We are still in a turbulent Sea of distractions, nor as far as I see is there yet any sight of shore. Mr. T. M. hath had a great loss at Sea lately, which I fear will light heavily upon him: When I consider his case, I may say, that as the Philosopher made a question whether the Mariner be to be ranked among the number of living or dead (being but four inches distant from drowning, only the thickness of a plank) so 'tis a doubt whether the Merchant adventurer be to be numbred 'twixt the rich or the poor, his Estate being in the mercy of that devouring Element the Sea, which hath so good a stomach, that he seldom casts up what he hath once swallowed. This City hath bred of late Years Men of monstrous strange Opinions, that as all other rich Places besides, she may be compar'd to a fat Cheese, which is most subject to ingender Magots. God amend all, and me first, who am Fleet, this St.

Tho. day.

Yours most faithfully to serve you, J. H.

Cc

VI. To

VI.

To Mr. W. Blois.

My worthy esteemed Nephew,

I Received those rich Nuptial Favours you appointed me for bands and hat, which I wear with very much contentment and respect, most heartily wishing that this late double condition may multiply new Blessings upon you, that it may usher in fair and golden days, according to the colour and substance of your bridal Ribband, that those Days may be perfum'd with delight and pleasure, as the rich scented gloves I wear for your sake: May such benedictions attend you both, as the Epithalamiums of Stella in Statius, and Julia in Catullus, speak of. I hope also to be married shortly, to a Lady whom I have wooed above these five Years, but I have found her coy and dainty hitherto, yet I am now like to get her good will in part, I mean the Lady Liberty.

When you see my N. Brownrigg, I pray tell him that I did not think Suffolk Waters had such a lethean quality in them, as to cause such an amnesia in him, of his Friends here upon the Thames, among whom for reality and seriousness, I may march among the foremost, but I impute it to some new task that his Muse might happily impose upon him, which hath ingross'd all his Speculations; I pray present my cordial kind Respects unto him.

So praying that a thousand Blissess may attend this confarreation, I rest my dear Nephew,

Yours most affectionately to
From the Fleet, Mar. 20. love and serve you, 1647.

J. H.

VII.

To Henry Hopkins, Esq;

S I R,

TO usher in again old Janus, I send you a parcel of Indian perfume, which the Spaniard calls the Holy Herb, in regard of the various Vertues it hath, but we call it Tobacco; I will not say it grew under the King of Spains window, but I am told it was gather'd near his Gold Mines of Potosi, (where they report, that in some Places there is more of that Oar than Earth) therefore it must needs be precious Stuff; If moderately and seasonably taken, (as I find you always do) 'tis good for many Things; it helps digestion, taken a while after Meat; it makes one void Rheum, break Wind, and keeps the Body open: A leaf or two being steep'd
over

over Night in a little Whitewine, is a vomit that never fails in its Operation: It is a good Companion to one that converseth with dead Men, for if one hath been poring long upon a Book, or is toil'd with the Pen, and stupified with Study, it quickneth him, and dispels those Clouds that usually o'erfet the Brain. The smoak of it is one of the wholsomest scents that is, against all contagious Airs, for it o'ermasters all other smells, as King James they say found true, when being once a hunting, a shower of rain drave him into a Pigsty for shelter, where he caus'd a Pipe full to be taken on purpose: It cannot endure a Spider, or a Flea, with such like vermin; and if your Hawk be troubled with any such, being blown into his feathers it frees him; it is good to fortifie and preserve the sight, the smoak being let in round about the balls of the eyes once a week, and frees them from all rheums, driving them back by way of repercussion; being taken backward 'tis excellent good against the Cholick, and taken into the stomach 'twill heat and cleanse it; for I could instance in a great Lord, (my Lord of Sunderland, President of York) who told me, that he taking it downward into his stomach, it made him cast up an imposthume, bag and all, which had been a long time engendring out of a bruise he had receiv'd at football, and so preserv'd his Life for many Years. Now to descend from the substance of the smoak to the ashes, 'tis well known that the medicinal vertues thereof are very many; but they are so common, that I will spare the inserting of them here: But if one would try a pretty conclusion, how much smoak there is in a pound of Tobacco, the ashes will tell him; for let a pound be exactly weighed, and the ashes kept charily and weigh'd afterwards, what wants of a pound weight in the ashes, cannot be denied to have been smoak, which evaporated into Air; I have been told that Sir Walter Raleigh won a wager of Queen Elizabeth upon this nicety.

The Spaniards and Irish take it most in powder or smutchin, and it mightily refreshes the Brain, and I believe there's as much taken this way in Ireland, as there is in Pipes in England; one shall commonly see the serving Maid upon the washing-block, and the Swain upon the plowshare, when they are over-tir'd with Labour, take out their boxes of smutchin, and draw it into their Nostrils with a quill, and it will beget new Spirits in them, with a fresh vigour to fall to their work again. In Barbary, and other parts of Africk, 'tis wonderful what a small pill of Tobacco will do; for those who use to ride post through the sandy Desarts, where they meet not with any Thing what's potable or edible, sometimes three Days together, they use to carry small balls or pills of Tobacco, which being put under the Tongue, it affords them a perpetual moisture, and takes off the edge of the Appetite for some Days.

If you desire to read with Pleasure all the Vertues of this modern Herb, you must read Doctor Thorius Potologis, an accurate Piece, couch'd in a strenuous heroick Verse full of matter, and continuing its strength from first to last; insomuch, that for the bigness it may be compar'd to any piece of Antiquity, and in my Opinion, is beyond βαλσακομομαχία, or χαλκωμομαχία.

So I conclude these rambling Notions, presuming you will accept this small Argument of my great Respects unto you; If you want Paper to light your Pipe, this Letter may serve the turn; and if it be true what the Poets frequently sing, that Affection is fire, you shall need no other than the clear flames of the Donor's love to make ignition, which is comprehended in this distich:

Ignis Amor si sit, Tobaccum accendere nostrum, Nulla petenda tibi fax nisi Dantis Amor.

If Love be fire, to light this Indian Weed,
The Donor's Love of fire may stand in stead.

So I wish you, as to myself, a most happy new Year; may the beginning be good, the middle better, and the end best of all.

January 1.

Your most faithful and truly 1646.

affectionate Servant, J. H.

VIII.

To the Right Honourable my Lord of D.

My Lord,

THE subject of this Letter may peradventure seem a Paradox to some, but not, I know, to your Lordship, when you have pleas'd to weigh well the Reasons. Learning is a Thing that hath been much cryed up, and coveted in all Ages, especially in this last century of Years, by People of all sorts, though never so mean and mechanical; every Man strains his fortune to keep his Children at School; the Cobbler will clout it till midnight, the Porter will carry burdens till his Bones crack again, the Ploughman will pinch both back and belly to give his Son Learning; and I find that this ambition reigns no where so much as in this Island. But under favour, this Word Learning is taken a narrower sense among us than among other Nations, we seem to restrain it only to the Book, whereas indeed, any artisan whatsoever (if he know the Secret and Mystery of his Trade) may be call'd a learned Man: A good Mason, a good Shoemaker that can manage Saint Crispin's lance handsomely, a skilful Yeoman, a good Shipwright, &c. may be be all call'd learned Men, and indeed the usefulest sort of learned Men, for without the two first, we might go barefoot, and lye Abroad as beasts, having no other canopy than the wild Air, and without the two last we might starve for Bread, have no commerce with other Nations, or ever be able to tread upon a Continent; These, with such like dextrous Artisans may be termed learned Men, and the more behoveful for the subsistence of a Country, than those Polymathists, that stand poring all Day in a corner upon a Moth-eaten Author, and converse only with dead Men: The Chineses (who are the next Neighbours to the rising on this part of the Hemisphere, and consequently the acutest) have a wholesome piece of Policy, That the Son is always of the Fathers Trade, and 'tis all the Learning he aims at, which makes them admirable Artisans; for besides the dextrousness and propensity of the Child, being descended lineally from so many of the same Trade, the Father is more careful to instruct him, and to discover unto him all the Mysteries thereof; this general Custom or Law, keeps their heads from running at random after Book Learning and other Vocations. I have read a Tale of Rob. Grosthead, Bishop of Lincoln, that being come to his greatness, he had a Brother who was a Husbandman, and expected great Matters from him in point of preferment, but the Bishop told him, That if he wanted Money to mend his Plow, or his Cart, or to buy tackling for his Horses, with other Things belonging to his Husbandry, he should not want what was fitting; but he wish'd him to aim no higher, for a Husbandman he found him, and a Husbandman he would leave him.

The extravagant humour of our Country is not to be altogether commended, that all Men should aspire to Book Learning; there is not a simpler Animal, and a more superfluous Member of a State, than a meer Scholar, than a only self-pleasing Student, he is,

——— Telluris inutile pondus.

The Goths forbore to destroy the Libraries of the Greeks and Italians, because Books should keep them still soft, simple or too cautious in warlike Affairs. Archimedes, though an excellent Engineer, when Syracusa was lost, was found at his Book in his Study, intoxicated with Speculations; who would not have thought another great learned Philosopher to be a fool or frantick, when being in a Bath, he leap'd out naked among the People, and cried, I have found it, I have found it, having hit then upon an extraordinary conclusion in Geometry? There is a famous Tale of Thomas Aquinas, the Angelical Doctor, and of Bonaventure the Seraphical Doctor, of whom Alex. Hales (our Countryman and his Master) reports, whether it appear'd not in him that

Adam had sinn'd: Both these great Clerks being invited to dinner by the French King, of purpose to observe their humours, and being brought to the room where the Table was laid, the first fell a eating of bread as hard as he could drive, at last breaking out of a brown study, he cry'd out, Conclusum est contra Manichæos; the other fell a gazing upon the Queen, and the King asking him how he lik'd her, he answered, Oh, Sir, if an earthly Queen be so beautiful, what shall we think of the Queen of Heaven? The latter was the better Courtier of the two. Hence we may infer, that your meer book Men, your deep Clerks, whom we call the only learned Men, are not always the civillest or the best moral Men, nor is too great a number of them convenient for any state, leading a soft sedentary Life, especially those who feed their own fancies only upon the publick stock. Therefore it were to be wish'd that there reign'd not among the People of this land, such a general itching after book Learning, and I believe so many free Schools do rather hurt than good: Nor did the Art of Printing much avail the Christian Commonwealth, but may be said to be well near as fatal as Gunpowder, which came up in the same Age; For, under correction, to this may be partly ascrib'd that spiritual Pride, that variety of Dogmatists which swarm among us: Add hereunto, that the excessive number of those which converse only with Books, and whose profession consists in them, is such, that one cannot live for another, according to the dignity of the calling; A Physician cannot live for the Physicians, a Lawyer (civil and common) cannot live for Lawyers, nor a Divine for Divines. Moreover, the Multitudes that profess these three best vocations, especially the last, make them of far less esteem. There is an odd opinion among us, that he who is a contemplative Man, a Man who weds himself to his Study, and swallows many Books, must needs be a profound Scholar, and a great learned Man, though in reality he be such a dolt, that he hath neither a retentive faculty to keep what he hath read, nor wit to make any useful application of it in common Discourse, what he draws in lyeth upon dead Lees, and never grows fit to be broach'd: Besides, he may want judgment in the choice of his Authors, and knows not how to turn his hand either in weighing or winnowing the soundest Opinions: There are divers who are cry'd up for great Clerks, who want discretion. Others, though they wade deep into the causes and knowledge of Things, yet they are subject to scrue up their wits, and soar so high, that they lose themselves in their own speculations; for thinking to transcend the ordinary pitch of Reason, they come to involve the common Principles of Philosophy in a mist, instead of illustrating Things they render them more obscure, in-

instead of a plainer and shorter way to the palace of Knowledge, they lead us through briery odd uncouth paths, and so fall into the fallacy, call'd notum per ignotius. Some have the hap to be term'd learned Men, though they have gathered up but the scraps of Knowledge here and there, though they be but smatterers and meer sciolists, scarce knowing the hoties of Things, yet like empty casks, if they can make a sound, and have a gift to vent with confidence what they have suck'd in, they are accounted great scholars. Amongst all book learned Men, except the Divine, to whom all learned Men should be lacqueys, the Philosopher who hath waded through all the Mathematicks, who hath div'd into the secrets of the elementary World, and converseth also with celestial Bodies, may be termed a learned Man; the critical Historian and Antiquary may be call'd also a learned Man, who hath convers'd with our Forefathers, and observ'd the carriage and contingencies of matters pass'd, whence he draws instances and cautions for the benefit of the Times he lives in: The Civilian may be call'd likewise a learned Man, if the revolving of huge Volumes may entitle one so; but touching the Authors of the Common Law, which is peculiar only to this Meridian, they may be all carried in a wheel-barrow, as my Countryman Dr. Gwin told Judge Finch: The Physician must needs be a learned Man, for he knows himself inward and outward, being well vers'd in Autology, in that lesson, Nosce Teipsum; and as Adrian the sixth said, he is very necessary to a populous Country, for were it not for the Physician, Men would live so long, and grow so thick, that one could not live for the other, and he makes the Earth cover all his faults.

But what Dr. Gwin said of the common Law Books, and Pope Adrian of the Physician, was spoken, I conceive, in Merriment; for my part, I honour those two worthy Professions in a high degree: Lastly, a Polyglot, or good Linguist, may be also term'd a useful learned Man, especially if vers'd in School Languages.

My Lord, I know none of this Age more capable to sit in the Chair, and censure what is true learning, and what not, than your self, therefore in speaking of this Subject to your Lordship, I fear to have committed the same error as Phormio did, in discoursing of War before Hannibal. No more now, but that I am,

My Lord,

Your most humble and

Obedient Servant,

J. H.

IX.

To Doctor J. D.

S I R,

I Have many sorts of Civilities to thank you for, but among the rest, I thank you a thousand times (twice told) for that delightful fit of Society, and conference of Notes we had lately in this little Fleet Cabin of mine, upon divers Problems, and upon some which are exploded (and that by those who seem to sway most in the Commonwealth of Learning) for Paradoxes, meerly by an implicit Faith, without diving at all into the reasons of the Assertors; and whereas you promised a further expression of yourself by way of a Discursive Letter, what you thought of Copernicus's Opinion touching the movement of the Earth, which hath so stirr'd all our modern Wits: And whereof Sir J. Brown pleased to oblige himself to do the like, touching the Philosophers Stone, the powder of projection, and potable Gold, provided that I would do the same concerning a peopled Country, and a species of moving Creatures in the conclave of the Moon, which I willingly undertook upon those Conditions. To acquit myself of this obligation, and to draw on your performances the sooner, I have adventured to send you this following Discourse (such as it is) touching the Lunary World.

I believe 'tis a Principle which not many will offer to controvert, that as Antiquity cannot privilege an Error, so Novelty cannot prejudice Truth. Now, Truth hath her degrees of growing and expanding herself, as all other Things have; and as Time begets her, so he doth the obstetricious Office of a Midwife to bring her forth. Many Truths are but Embryo's or Problems, nay, some of them seem to be meer Paradoxes at first: The Opinion that there were Antipodes, was exploded when it was first broach'd, it was held absurd and ridiculous, and the Thing itself to be as impossible, as it was for Men to go upon their Heads, with their heels upwards, nay, 'twas adjudg'd to be so dangerous a Tenet, that you know well the Bishop's Name, who in the primitive Church was by sentence of Condemnation sent out of this World without a Head to go and dwell amongst his Antipodes, because he first hatch'd and held that Opinion; But now our late Navigators, and East-India Mariners, who use to cross the Equator and Tropicks so often, will tell you, that it is as gross a Paradox to hold there are no Antipodes, and that the negative is now as absurd as the affirmative seem'd at first: For Man to walk upon the Ocean when the Surges were at the highest, and to make a heavy dull piece of Wood to swim, nay, fly upon the Water, was held as impossible a Thing at first, as it is now thought impossible for Man to fly in the Air, sails were held then as uncouth, as if one should attempt to make himself wings to mount up to Heaven, a la volie: Two hundred and odd Years ago he would have been taken for some frantick Fool, that would undertake to batter and blow up a Castle with a few barrels of a small contemptible black Powder.

to

The great Architect of the World hath been observ'd, not to throw down all Gifts and Knowledge to Mankind confusedly at once, but in a regular parsimonious Method, to disperse them by certain degrees, periods, and progress of Time, leaving Man to make industrious researches and investigations after Truth; He left the World to the disputations of Men, as the wisest of Men saith, who in acquisition of natural Truths went from the Hyssop to the Cedar; One Day certifieth another, and one Age rectifieth another; The morrow hath more experience than the precedent Day, and is oft-times able to be his Schoolmaster; the Grandchild laughs at some Things that were done in his Grandfathers Days, insomuch, that hence it may well be inferr'd, that natural humane Knowledge is not yet mounted to its Meridian, and highest point of elevation. I confess it cannot be denied without gross ingratitude, but we are infinitely obliged to our forefathers for the Fundamentals of Sciences; and as the Herald hath a rule, Mallet cum patribus, quam cum fratribus errare, I had rather err with my Fathers than Brothers; so it holds in other kinds of Knowledge. But those times which we term vulgarly the old World, was indeed the youth or adolescence of it, and though if respect be had to the particular and personal acts of Generation, and to the relation of Father and Son, they who fore-liv'd and preceded us may be called our Ancestors; yet if you go to the Age of the World in general, and to the true length and longevity of Things, we are more properly the older Cosmopolites: In this respect the Cadet may be term'd more ancient than his elder Brother, because the World was older when he entred into it. Moreover, besides Truth, Time hath also another Daughter, which is Experience, who holds in her Hands the great Looking-glass of Wisdom and Knowledge.

But now to the intended Task, touching an habitable World, and a species of living Creatures in the Orb of the Moon, which may bear some analogy with those of this Elementary World. Although it be not my purpose to maintain, and absolutely assert this Problem, yet I will say this, that whosoever cryeth it down for a new neoteric Opinion, as divers do, commit a grosser Error than the Opinion may be in its own Nature: For 'tis almost as ancient as Philosophy phy herself, I am sure, 'tis as old as Orpheus, who sings of divers fair Cities and Castles, within the Circle of the Moon; Moreover, the profoundest Clerks and most renowned Philosophers in all Ages have affirmed it: Towards the first Age of Learning, among others, Pythagoras and Plato avouch'd it, the first of whom was pronounc'd the wisest of Men by the Pagan Oracle, as our Solomon is by holy Writ. In the middle Age of Learning, Plutarch speaks of it; and in these modern Times, the most speculative and scientificallst Men, both in Germany and Italy seem to adhere to it, subinuating, that not only the sphere of the Moon is peopled with Selenites or Lunary Men, but that likewise every Star in Heaven is a peculiar World of itself, which is Coloniz'd and replenish'd with Astreaan Inhabitants, as the Earth, Sea, and Air are with Elementary: The Body of the Sun not excepted, who hath also his Solar Creatures, and they are accounted the most sublime, the most pure and perfectest of all: The Elementary Creatures are held the grossest of all, having more matter than form in them: The Solar have more form than matter; the Selenites, with other Astreaan Inhabitants, are of a mixt Nature, and the nearer they approach the Body of the Sun, the more pure and spiritual they are. Were it so, there were some ground for his Speculation, who thought that humane Souls, be they never so pious and pure, ascend not immediately after the dissolution from the corrupt mass of Flesh, before the glorious presence of God, presently to behold the Beatifical Vision, but first into the Body of the Moon, or some other Star, according to their degrees of Goodness, and actuate some Bodies there of a purer composition; when they are refin'd there, they ascend to some higher Star, and so to some higher than that, till at last, by these Degrees they be made capable to behold the lustre of that glorious Majesty, in whose sight no impurity can stand: This is illustrated by a Comparison, that if one after he hath been kept close in a dark Dungeon a long time, should be taken out, and brought suddenly to look upon the Sun in the Meridian, it would endanger him to be struck stark blind; so no humane Soul suddenly sallying out of a dirty Prison, as the Body is, would be possibly able to appear before the incomprehensible Majesty of God, or be susceptible of the brightness of his all-glorious Countenance, unless he be fitted thereunto beforehand by certain Degrees, which might be done by passing from one Star to another, who, we are taught, differ one from the other in glory and splendor.

Among our modern Authors that would furbish this old Opinion of lunary Creatures, and plant Colonies in the Orb of the Moon, with the rest of the Cœlestial Bodies, Gasper Galileo Galilei is one,

one, who by artificial Prospectives hath brought us to a nearer commerce with Heaven, by drawing it sixteen Times nearer Earth than it was before in ocular Appearance, by the advantage of the said optick Instrument.

Among other Arguments which the assertors of Astreaan Inhabitants do produce for proof of this high Point, one is, that it is neither repugnant to Reason or Religion to think, that the Almighty Fabricator of the Universe, who doth nothing in vain, nor suffers his handmaid Nature to do so, when he created the Erratick and fixed Stars, he did not make those huge immense Bodies, whereof most are bigger than the Earth and Sea, though conglobated, to twinkle only, and to be an Ornament to the roof of Heaven, but he plac'd in the convex of every one of those vast capacious Spheres, some living Creatures to glorifie his Name, among whom there is in every one of them one supereminent, like Man upon Earth, to be Lord paramount of all the rest; to this haply may allude the old Opinion, that there is a peculiar Intelligence which guides and governs every Orb in Heaven.

They that would thus colonize the Stars with Inhabitants, do place in the Body of the Sun, as was said before, the purest, the most immaterial and refinedst Intellectual Creatures, whence the Almighty calls those he will have to be immediately about his Person, and to be admitted to the Hierarchy of Angels; this is far dissonant from the Opinion of the Turk, who holds, that the Sun is a great burning Globe design'd for the Damned.

They who are transported with this high speculation, that there are mansions and habitable conveniencies for Creatures to live within the Bodies of the Cœlestial Orbs, seem to tax Man of a high presumption, that he should think all Things were created principally for Him, that the Sun and Stars are serviceable to him in chief, viz. to measure his Days, to distinguish his Seasons, to direct him in his Navigations, and pour wholesome influences upon him.

No doubt they were created to be partly useful and comfortable to him, but to imagine that they are solely and chiefly for him, is a thought that may be said to be above the pride of Lucifer: They may be beneficial unto him in the generation and encrease of all Elementary Creatures, and yet have peculiar Inhabitants of their own besides, to concur with the rest of the World in the service of the Creator. 'Tis a fair prerogative for Man to be Lord of all Terrestrial, Aquatick, and airy Creatures; that with his harping Iron he can draw ashore the great Leviathan, that He can make the Camel and huge Dromedary to kneel unto him, and take up his burden; that he can make the fierce Bull, though ten times

times stronger than himself to endure his Yoak; that he can fetch down the Eagle from his Nest, with such Priviledges; but let him not presume too far in comparing himself with heavenly Bodies, while he is no other Thing than a Worm crawling upon the surface of this Earth. Now the Earth is the basest Creature which God hath made, therefore 'tis call'd his Footstool, and though some take it to be the Centre, yet it is the very sediment of the Elementary World, as they say, the Moon is of the Cœlestial; 'tis the very sink of all Corruption and frailty, which made Trismegistus say, that Terra non mundus est nequitie locus, The Earth, not the World, is the seat of Wickedness; And though 'tis true, she be susceptible of light, yet the light terminates only in her superficies, being not able to enlighten any Thing else, as the Stars can do.

Thus have I proportioned my short Discourse upon this spacious problem, to the size of an Epistle, I reserve the fulness of my Opinion in this point, till I receive yours touching Copernicus.

It hath been always my Practice in the search and eventilation of natural verities, to keep to myself a Philosophical freedom, as not to make any ones Opinion so magisterial and binding, but that I might be at liberty to recede from it upon more pregnant and powerful Reasons. For as in Theological Tenets 'tis a rule, Quicquid non descendit a monte Scripturae, eadem autoritate contemnitur, quæ approbatur; Whatsoever descends not from the mount of holy Scripture, may be by the same Authority rejected as well as received: So in the disquisitions and winnowing of physical Truths, Quicquid non descendit a monte Rationis, &c. Whatsoever descends not from the mount of Reason, may be as well rejected as approved of.

So longing after an Opportunity to pursue this Point by mixture of oral Discourse, which hath more elbow room than a Letter; I rest with all candor and cordial Affection, Fleet, Novem. 2.

1647.

Your faithful Servant,

J. H.

X.

To the Right Honourable the Lady E. D.

Madam,

THose Rays of Goodness which are diffusedly scatter'd in others, are all concentred in you, which were they divided into equal equal Portions were enough to compleat a whole Jury of Ladies; this draws you a mixture of Love and Envy, or rather an Admiration from all who know you, especially from me, and that in so high a degree, that if you would suffer yourself to be ador'd, you should quickly find me Religious in that kind: Howsoever, I am bold to send your Ladyship this, as a kind of homage, or heriot, or Tribute, or what you please to term it, in regard I am a true Vassal to your Vertues: And if you please to lay any of your Commands upon me, your Will shall be a Law unto me, which I will observe with as much Allegiance as any Branch of Magna Charta; they shall be as binding to me, as Lycurgus's Laws were to the Spartans, and to this I subscribe

Fleet, Aug. 10.
1647.

J. H.

XI.

To Mr. R. B. Esq; at Grunsburgh.

S I R,

When I over-look'd the list of my choicest Friends to insert your Name, I paus'd a while, and thought it more proper to begin a new collateral File, and put you in the front thereof, where I make account you are plac'd. If any Thing upon Earth partakes of Angelick happiness, (in civil Actions) 'tis Friendship, it perfumes the Thoughts with such sweet Idea's, and the Heart with such melting Passions; such are the effects of yours to me, which makes me please myself much in the speculation of it.

I am glad you are so well return'd to your own Family, and touching the Wheelwright you writ of, who from a Carr came to be a Captain, it made me think of the perpetual rotations of Fortune, which you know Antiquity seated upon a Wheel in restless, though not violent volubility; and truly, it was never more verified than now, that those spokes which were formerly but collateral, and some of them quite underneath, are now coming up apace to the top of the Wheel: I hope there will be no cause to apply to them the old Verse I learnt at School, Asperius nihil est humili cum surgit in altum.

But

But there is a transcendent over-ruling Providence, who cannot only check the rowlings of this petty Wheel, and strike a Nail into it, that it shall not stir, but stay also when he pleaseth, the motions of those vast Spheres of Heaven, where the Stars are always stirring, as likewise the whirling of the Primum Mobile itself, which the Astronomers say, draws all the World after it in a rapid Revolution: That divine Providence vouchsafe to check the motions of that malevolent Planet, which hath so long'd lowr'd upon poor England, and send us better Days. So saluting you with no vulgar Respects, I rest my dear Nephew,

Fleet, July 26.
1646.

Yours most affectionately to
serve you, J. H.

XII.

To Mr. En. P. at Paris.

S I R,

THat which the Plots of the Jesuits in their dark Cells, and the policy of the greatest Roman Catholick Princes have driven at these many Years, is now done to their Hands, which was to divide and break the strength of these three Kingdoms, because they held it to be too great a Glory and Power to be in one Heretical Prince's Hands, (as they esteem'd the King of Great Britain) because he was in a capacity to be Umpire, if not Arbitrator of this part of the World, as many of our Kings have been.

You write thence, that in regard of the sad condition of our Queen, their Countrywoman, they are sensible of our Calamities, but I believe, 'tis the Populace only, who see no further than the rind of Things, your Cabinet Council rather rejoiceth at it, who, or am I much deceiv'd, contributed much in the time of the late sanguine Cardinal, to set on foot these Distractions, beginning first with Scotland, who, you know, hath always serv'd that Nation for a brand to set England on fire, for the advancement of their own Ends: I am afraid we have seen our best Days, we knew not when we were well, so that the Italian saying may be well applied to poor England, I was well, I would be better, I took Physick and died. No more now, but that I rest still.

Fleet, Jan. 20.
1647.

Yours entirely to serve you, J. H.

XIII. To

XIII.

To John Worth, Esq; at Petherton Park.

S I R,

I Had two of yours lately, one in Italian, the other in French, (which were answered in the same dialect) and as I read them with singular delight, so I must tell you, they struck an admiration into me, that in so short a Revolution of Time, you should come to be so great a Master of those Languages, both for the Pen and Parly; I have known divers, and those of pregnant and ripe capacities, who had spent more Oyl and Time in those Countries, yet could they not arrive to that double Perfection which you have, for if they got one, they were commonly defective in the other: Therefore I may say, that you have Spartum nactus, which was but a petty Republick, sed Italiam & Gallicam nactus es, has orna; you have got all Italy and France, adorn these.

Nor is it Language that you have only brought home with you, but I find that you have studied the Men and the Manners of those Nations you have convers'd withal; Neither have you courted only all their fair Cities, Castles, Houses of Pleasure, and other Places of Curiosity, but you have pryed into the very Mysteries of their Government, as I find by those choice Manuscripts and Observations you have brought with you; in all these Things you have been so curious, as if the Soul of your great Uncle who was employed Ambassador in the Imperial Court, and who held correspondence with the greatest Men of Christendom in their own Language, had transmigrated into you.

The freshest News here is, that those heart burnings, and fires of civil Commotions which you left behind you in France, cover'd over with thin ashes for the time, are broken out again, and I believe they will be never quite extinguished till there be a peace or truce with Spain, for till then there is no hope of abatement of Taxes: And 'tis fear'd the Spanish will weary out the French at last in fighting, for the Earth itself, I mean his Mines of Mexico and Peru, afford him a constant and yearly Treasure to support his Armies, whereas the French King digs his Treasure out of the Bowels and vital Spirits of his own Subjects.

I pray let me hear from you by the next Opportunity, for I shall hold my time well employed, to correspond with a Gentleman of such choice and gallant Parts; In which desires I rest

Aug. 29.
1649.

Your most affectionate and
faithful Servitor, J. H.

XIV.

To Mr. W. B.

HOW glad was I, my choice and precious Nephew, to receive yours of the 24th Current, wherein I was sorry, though satisfied in point of belief to find the ill fortune of interception which befel my last unto you.

Touching the condition of Things here, you shall understand, that our Miseries lengthen with our Days, for though the Sun and the Spring advance nearer us, yet our Times are not grown a whit the more comfortable: I am afraid this City hath befool'd herself into a slavery; the Army, though forbidden to come within ten Miles of Her, by Order of Parliament, quarters now in the Bowels of Her; they threaten to break her Portcullices, Posts and Chains, to make her previous upon all occasions; they have secured also the Tower, with addition of strength for themselves: Besides, a Famine doth insensibly creep upon us, and the Mint is starv'd for want of Bullion; Trade, which was ever the sinew of this Island, doth visibly decay, and the Insurance of Ships is risen from two to ten in the Hundred: Our Gold is ingrossed in private hands, or gone beyond Sea to travel without Licence, and much I believe of it is return'd to the Earth (whence it first came) to be buried, where our late Nephews may chance to find it a thousand Years hence, if the World lasts so long, so that the exchanging of white Earth into red (I mean silver into gold) is now above six in the Hundred: And all these, with many more, are the dismal effects and concomitants of a civil War: 'Tis true, we have had many such black Days in England, in former Ages, but those parallell'd to the present, are as the shadow of a Mountain compar'd to the Eclipse of the Moon. My Prayers early and late are, that God Almighty would please not to turn away his Face quite, but cheer us again with the light of his Countenance; and I am well assur'd, you will joyn with me in the same Orison to Heavens gate; in which confidence I rest,

From the Fleet, Dec. 10.

1647.

Yours most affectionately

to serve you,

J. H.

XV. To

XV.

To Sir K. D. at Paris.

S I R,

NOW that you are return'd, and fix'd a while in France, an old Servant of yours takes Leave to kiss your Hands, and salute you in an intense Degree of Heat and Highth of Passion: 'Tis well you shook Hands with this unfortunate Isle when you did, and got your Liberty by such a Royal Mediation as the Queen Regent's, for had you staid, you would have taken but little Comfort in your Life, in regard that ever since there have been the fearfulest Distractions here that ever happen'd upon any Part of the Earth, a Beluin kind of Immanity never rag'd so among Men, insomuch that the whole Country might have taken its Appellation from the smallest Part thereof, and be call'd the Isle of Dogs; for all Humanity, common Honesty, and that Manfuetude, with other Moral Civilities, which should distinguish the rational Creature from other Animals, have been lost here a good while: Nay, besides this Cynical, there is a kind of Wolvish Humour hath seiz'd upon most of this People; a true Lycanthropy, they so worry and seek to devour one another, so that the wild Arab and fiercest Tartar may be call'd civil Men in comparison of us, therefore he is happiest who is furthest off from this woful Island. The King is streightned of that Liberty he formerly had in the Isle of Wight, and as far as I see, may make up the number of Nebuchadnezzar's Years. before he is restored: The Parliament persists in their first Propositions, and will go nothing less. This is all I have to send at this time, only I will adjoyn the true Respects of 1647.

From the Fleet, this

5th of May,

Your most faithful humble
Servitor,

J. H.

XVI.

To Mr. W. Blois, in Suffolk.

S I R,

YOURS of the seventeenth current came safely to hand, and I kiss your hands for it; you mention there two others that came not, which made me condole the Loss of such Jewels, for I esteem

D d

esteem all your Letters so, being the precious Effects of your Love, which I value at a high rate, and please myself much in the contemplation of it, as also in the continuance of this Letter of correspondence, which is perform'd on your part with such ingenious Expressions, and embroider'd still with new Flourishes of Invention. I am still under hold in this fatal Fleet, and like one in a Tempest at Sea who hath been often near the shoar, yet is still tofs'd back by contrary Winds, so I have had frequent hopes of freedom, but some cross Accident or other always interven'd, infomuch that I am now in half Despair of an absolute Release till a general Goal Delivery; yet notwithstanding this outward Captivity, I have inward Liberty still, I thank God for it.

The greatest News is, that between twenty and thirty thousand well armed Scots have been utterly routed, rifled, and all taken Prisoners, by less than 8000 English. I must confess 'twas a great Exploit, whereof I am not sorry, in regard that the English have regain'd hereby the honour which they had lost abroad of late Years in the Opinion of the World, ever since the Pacification at Berwick, and divers traverses of War since. What Hamilton's design was is a Mystery, most think that he intended no good either to King or Parliament.

So with my daily more and more endeared Respects unto you, I rest, Fleet, May 7.

1647.

Yours ever to love and serve you,

J. H.

XVII.

To Mr. R. Baron in Paris.

Gentle Sir,

I Receiv'd and presently ran over your Cyprian Academy with much Greediness, and no vulgar Delight, and Sir, I hold myself much honour'd for the Dedication you have been pleas'd to make thereof to me, for it deserv'd a far higher Patronage: Truly, I must tell you without any Complement, that I have seldom met with such an ingenious mixture of Prose and Verse, interwoven with such Varieties of Fancy, and charming Strains of amorous Passions, which have made all the Ladies of the Land in love with you. If you begin already to court the Muses so handsomely, and have got such footing on Parnassus, you may in time be Lord of the whole Hill, and those nice Girls, because

Apollo

Apollo is now grown unweildy and old, may make Choice of you to officiate in his room, and preside over them.

I much thank you for the punctual Narration you pleas'd to send me of those Commotions in Paris; I believe France will never be in perfect Repose while a Spaniard sits at the Stern, and an Italian steers the Rudder: In my Opinion Mazirini should do wisely now, that he hath feather'd his Nest so well, to truss up his Baggage and make over to the Alps to his own Country, lest the same Fate betide him as did the Marquis of Ancre his Compatriot. I am glad the Treat goes on 'twixt Spain and France, for nothing can portend a greater good to Christendom than a Conjunction of those two great Luminaries, which if it please God to bring about, I hope the Stars will change their Aspects, and we shall see better Days.

I send here inclosed a second Bill of Exchange, in case the first I sent you in my last hath miscarried: So my dear Nephew, I embrace you with both my Arms, and rest

Yours most entirely to love and serve you while

Fleet, June 20.

1647.

Jam. Howell.

XVIII.

To Mr. Tho. More, at York.

S I R,

I Have often partak'd of that Pleasure which Letters use to carry along with them, but I do not remember to have found a greater Proportion of Delight than yours afford me; your last of the fourth current came to safe Hand, wherein methought each Line, each Word, each Syllable breath'd out the Passions of a clear and candid Soul, of a virtuous and gentle Spirit: Truly, Sir, as I might perceive by your ingenious and pathetical Expressions therein, that you were transported with the heat of true Affection towards me in the writing, so was I in the reading, which wrought upon me with such an Energy that a kind of Extasie possess'd me for the time. I pray Sir go on in this Correspondence, and you shall find that your Lines will not be ill bestowed upon me, for I love and respect you dearly well; nor is this Love grounded upon vulgar Principles, but upon those extraordinary Parts of Virtue and Worth which I have discover'd in you, and such a Love is the most permanent, as you shall find in

Fleet, Sept. 1.
1647.

Your most affectionate
Uncle, J. H.

XIX.

To Mr. W. B. May 30.

S I R,

YOur last Lines to me were as delightful as the Season, they were as sweet as Flowers in May, nay, they were far more fragrant than those fading Vegetables, they did cast a greater Suavity than the Arabian Spices use to do in the Grand Cairo, where when the Wind is Southward, they say the Air is as sweet as a perfum'd Spanish Glove: The Air of this City is not so, especially in the Heart of the City, in and about Paul's Church, where Horse-dung is a yard deep, insomuch that to cleanse it would be as hard a Task, as it was for Hercules to cleanse the Augean Stable, by drawing a great River through it, which was accounted one of his twelve Labours: but it was a bitter Taunt of the Italian, who passing by Paul's Church, and seeing it full of Horses, Now I perceive (said he) that in England Men and Beasts serve God alike. No more now, but that I am

Your most faithful
Servant, J. H.

XX.

To Sir Paul Pinder, Knight, upon the Version of an Italian Piece into English, call'd, St. Paul's Progress upon Earth; a new and a notable kind of Satyr.

S I R,

Saint Paul having descended lately to view Italy, and other Places, as you may trace him in the following Discourse, he would not take Wing back to Heaven before had given you a special Visit, who have so well deserv'd of his Church here, the goodliest Pile of Stones in the Christian World of that kind.

Of all the Men of our Times, you are one of the greatest Examples of Piety, and constant Integrity, which discovers a noble Soul

Soul to dwell within you, and that you are very conversant with Heaven, so that methinks I see St. Paul saluting and solacing you in these black Times, assuring you that those pious Works of Charity you have done and daily do (and that in such a manner that the left hand knows not what the right doth) will be as a triumphant Chariot to carry you one Day up to Heaven, to partake of the same Beatitude with him. Sir, among those that truly honour you, I am one, and have been so since I first knew you; therefore as a small Testimony hereof, I send you this fresh Fancy, compos'd by a Noble Personage in Italian, of which Language you are so great a Master.

For the first Part of the Discourse, which consists of a Dialogue 'twixt the two first Persons of the Holy Trinity, there are Examples of that kind in some of the most Ancient Fathers, as Apollinarius and Nazianzen; and lately Grotius hath the like in his Tragedy of Christ's Passion, which may serve to free it from all Exceptions. So I most affectionately kiss your Hands, and am, 1646.

Sir,

Fleet, Mar. 25.

Your very humble and ready

Servant,

J. H.

XXI.

To Sir Paul Neale, Knight, upon the same Subject.

S I R,

Saint Paul cannot reascend to Heaven before he gives you also a Salute, my Lord, your Father, having been a Star of the greatest Magnitude in the Firmament of the Church. If you please to observe the manner of his late Progress upon Earth, which you may do by the Guidance of this Discourse, you shall discover many things which are not vulgar, by a curipus Mixture of Church and State Affairs, you shall feel herein the Pulse of Italy, and how it beats at this time since the beginning of these late Wars 'twixt the Pope and the Duke of Parma, with the Grounds, Procedure, and Success of the said War, together with the Interest and Grievances, the Pretences and Quarrels that most Princes there have with Rome.

I must confess, my Genius hath often prompted me that I was never cut out for a Translator, there being a kind of Servility therein; for it must needs be somewhat tedious to one that hath any free-born Thoughts within him, and genuin Conceptions of his own (whereof I have some, though shallow ones) to enchain himself to a verbal Servitude, and the Sense of another.

Moreover, Translations are but as turn-coated things at best, especially among Languages that have Advantages one of the other, as the Italian hath of the English, which may be said to differ one from the other as Silk doth from Cloth, the common wear of both Countries where they are spoken: And as Cloth is the more substantial, so the English Tongue, by reason 'tis so knotted with Consonants, is the stronger, and the more finewy of the two; But Silk is more smooth and slick, and so is the Italian Tongue compar'd to the English. Or I may say Translations are like the wrong side of a Turkey Carpet, which useth to be full of Thrums and Knots, and nothing so even as the right side: Or one may say, (as I spake elsewhere) that Translations are like Wines ta'en off the Lees, and pour'd into other Vessels, that must needs lose somewhat of their first Strength and Briskness, which in the pouring, or Passage rather evaporates into Air.

Moreover touching Translations, it is to be observ'd that every Language hath certain Idioms, Proverbs and peculiar Expressions of its own, which are not rendible in any other but paraphrastically, therefore he over-acts the Office of an Interpreter, who doth enslave himself too strictly to Words or Phrases. I have heard of an excess among Limners, call'd too much to the Life, which happens when one aims at Similitudes more than Skill: So in version of Languages one may be so overpunctual in Words, that he may mar the Matter. The greatest Fidelity that can be expected in a Translator, is to keep still a foot and entire the true genuin Sense of the Author, with the main Design he drives at: And this was the principal thing which was observ'd in this Version.

Furthermore let it not be thought strange that there are some Italian Words made free Denizens of England in this Discourse, for by such means our Language hath grown from time to time to be copious, and still grows more rich, by adopting or naturalizing rather the choicest foreign Words of other Nations, as a Nosegay is nothing else but a tuft of Flowers gather'd from divers Beds.

Touching this present Version of Italian into English, I may say 'tis a thing I did, when I had nothing to do; 'twas to find something whereby to pass away the slow hours of this sad condition of Captivity.

I pray be pleas'd to take this as a small Argument of the great Respects I owe you for the sundry rare and high Virtues I have discover'd in you, as also for the Obligations I have to your noble Lady, whose Hands I humbly kiss, wishing you both, as the Season invites me, a good New Year (for it begins but now in Law) as also a holy Lent, and a healthful Spring.
the

Fleet, Mar. 25.

Your much obliged and ready Servant, J. H.

XXII.

To Dr. W. Turner.

S I R,

I Return you my most thankful Acknowledgments, for that Collection, or Farago of Prophecies, as you call them, (and that very properly in regard there is a mixture of good and bad) you pleas'd to send me lately, especially that of Nostredamus, which I shall be very chary to preserve for you. I could requite you with divers Predictions more, and of some of the British Bards, which were they translated to English, would transform the World to wonder.

They sing of a Red Parliament and White King, of a Race of People which should be called Pengruns, of the Fall of the Church, and divers other things which glance upon these Times. But I am none of those that afford much Faith to rambling Prophecies, which (as was said elsewhere) are like so many odd grains sown in the vast Field of Time, whereof not one in a thousand comes to grow up again and appear above Ground. But that I may correspond with you in some part for the like Courtesie, I send you these following prophetick Verses of White-Hall, which were made above twenty Years ago to my Knowledge, upon a Book call'd Balaam's Ass, that consisted of some Invectives against King James and the Court in statu quo tunc: It was compos'd by one Mr. Williams a Counsellor of the Temple, but a Roman Catholick, who was hang'd, drawn and quarter'd at Charing-Cross for it, and I believe there be hundreds that have Copies of these Verses ever since that time about Town yet living. They were these,

Some Seven Years since Christ rid to Court,

And there he left his Ass,

The Courtiers kick'd him out of Doors,

Because they had no Grass;

The Ass went mourning up and down,

And thus I heard him bray,

If that they could not give me Grass,

They might have given me Hay:

(Grace

*But Sixteen Hundred Forty Three,
Whosoe'er shall see that Day,
Will nothing find within that Court,
But only Grass and Hay, &c.*

Which was found to happen true in White-Hall, till the Soldiers coming to quarter there trampled it down.

Truly Sir, I find all things conspire to make strange mutations in this miserable Island; I fear we shall fall from under the Scepter to be under the Sword; and since we speak of Prophecies, I am afraid, among others, that which was made since the Reformation will be verified, The Church-man was, the Lawyer is, the Soldier shall be. Welcome be the Will of God, who transvolves Kingdoms, and tumbles down Monarchies as Molchills at his Pleasure. So I rest, my dear Doctor, Fleet, Aug. 9.

1648.

Your most faithful Servant,

J. H.

XXIII.

To the Honourable Sir Edward Spencer, Knight, at his House near Branceford.

S I R,

WE are not so bare of Intelligence between these Walls, but we can hear of your doings in Branceford; That so general Applause whereby you were cry'd up Knight of the Shire for Middlesex, founded round about us upon London Streets, and eccho'd in every Corner of the Town; nor do I mingle Speech with any, though half affected to you, but highly approves of, and congratulates the Election, being glad that a Gentleman of such extraordinary Parts and Probity, as also of such a mature Judgment, should be chosen to serve the Publick.

I return you the Manuscript you lent me of Demonologie, but the Author thereof and I are two in point of Opinion that way, for he seems to be on the negative part, and truly he writes as much as can be produc'd for his purpose. But there are some Men that are of a meer negative Genius, like Johannes ad oppositum, who will deny, or at least cross and puzzle any thing, though never so clear in itself, with their but, yet, if, &c. they will flap the lyē in Truths teeth, though she visibly stand before their face without any vizard; such perverie, cross-grain'd Spirits are not to be dealt withal by Arguments, but palpable Proofs, as if one should deny that the Fire

Fire burns, or that he hath a Nose on his Face; there is no way to deal with him, but to pull him by the tip of the one, and put his finger into the other: I will not say that this Gentleman is so perverse; but to deny there are any Witches, to deny that there are not ill Spirits which seduce, tamper, and converse in divers shapes with humane Creatures, and impell them to actions of malice; I say, that he who denies there are such busie Spirits, and such poor passive Creatures upon whom they work, which commonly are call'd Witches; I say again, that he who denies there are such Spirits, shews that he himself hath a Spirit of Contradiction in him, opposing the current and consentient Opinion of all Antiquity. We read that both Jews and Romans, with all other Nations of Christendom, and our Ancestors here in England, enacted Laws against Witches; sure they were not so silly as to waste their Brains in making Laws against Chymeras, against non entia, or such as Plato's Kteretismata's were. The Judaical Law is apparent in the holy Codex, Thou shalt not suffer a Witch to live. The Roman Law which the Decemviri made, is yet extant in the twelve Tables, Qui fruges incantassent pœnas danto, They who shall inchant the Fruit of the Earth, let them be punish'd. The Imperial Law is known by every Civilian, Hi cum hostes naturæ sint supplicio afficiantur, These, meaning Witches, because they are Enemies to Nature, let them be punish'd. And the Acts of Parliament in England are against those that invoke ill Spirits, that take up any dead Man, Woman, or Child, or take the Skin or Bone of any dead Body, to employ it to Sorcery or Charm, whereby anyone is lam'd or made to pine away, &c. such shall be guilty of flat Felony, and not capable of Clergy or Sanctuary, &c.

What a multitude of Examples are there in good authentick Authors of divers kinds of fascinations, incantations, prestigiations, of philtres, spells, charms, sorceries, characters, and such like, as also of magick, necromancy, and divinations; surely the Witch of Endor is no fable; the burning of Joan d' Arc the Maid of Orleans in Rouen, and of the Marchioness d' Ancre of late Years in Paris, are no fables: the execution of Nostredamus for a kind of Witch, some fourscore years since, is but a modern story, who among other things foretold, Le Senat de Londres tuera son Roy, The Senate of London shall kill their King. The best Historians have it upon record how Charlemain's Mistress enchanted him with a ring, which as long as she had about her he would not suffer her dead carcass to be carried out of his chamber to be buried, and a Bishop taking it out of her mouth, the Emperor grew to be as much bewitch'd with the Bishop, but he being cloyed with his excess of favour, threw it into a pond, where the Emperors chiefest pleasure was to walk till his dying day. The Story tells us how the

Walden-

Waldenses in France were by solemn Arrest of Parliament accus'd and condemn'd of Witchcraft. The Malteses took Saint Paul for a Witch. Saint Augustin speaks of Women who could turn Men to Horses, and make them carry their Burthens. Danaus writes of an enchanted Staff which the Devil, Summoner like, was us'd to deliver some Market-women to ride upon. In some of the Northern Countries 'tis as ordinary to buy and sell Winds as it is to do Wines in other Parts; and hereof I could instance in some Examples of my own Knowledge. Every one knows what Olaus Magnus writes of Erich's (King of Swedeland's) corner'd Cap, who could make the Wind sift to any Point of the Compass, according as he turn'd it about.

Touching Diviners of things to come, which is held a Species of Witchcraft, we may read that they were frequent among the Romans, yea, they had Colledges for their Augurs and Aruspices, who us'd to make their Predictions sometimes by Fire, sometimes by flying of Fowls, sometimes by inspection into the entrails of Beasts, or invoking the Dead, but most frequently by consulting with the Oracles, to whom all Nations had recourse except the Jews. But you will say, that since Christianity display'd her Banners, the Cross hath scar'd away the Devil, and struck the Oracles dumb; as Plutarch reports a notable Pass of Thamus an Italian Pilot, who a little after the Birth of Christ, sailing along the Coasts of Calabria in a still silent Night, all his Passengers being asleep, an airy cold Voice came to his ears, saying, Thamus, Thamus, Thamus, The great God Pan is dead; who was the chiefest Oracle of that Country: Yet though the light of the Gospel chas'd away those great Owls, there be some Bats and little Night-Birds that fly still abroad, I mean petty Spirits, that by secret Pactions, which are made always without witness, enable Men and Women to do Evil. In such Compacts beyond the Seas the Party must first renounce Christ, and the extended Woman, meaning the blessed Virgin, he must contemn the Sacrament, tread on the Cross, spit at the Host, &c. There is a famous Story of such a Paction which Frier Louis made some half a hundred Years ago with the Devil in Marseilles, who appear'd to him in shape of a Goat, and promis'd him the Enjoyment of any Woman whom he fancied, with other Pleasures for 41 Years; but the Devil being too cunning for him, put the Figure of 1 before, and made it 14 Years in the Contract, (which is to be seen to this Day with the Devils claw to it) at which time the Frier was detected for Witchcraft and burnt, and all those Children whom he had christned during that term of 14 Years were rebaptized, the Gentlewomen whom he had abus'd, put themselves into a Nunnery by themselves. Here-unto

unto may be added the great rich Widow that was burn'd in Lions, because 'twas prov'd the Devil had lain with her; as also the History of Lieutenant Jaquette, which stands upon Record with the former, but if I should insert them here at large, it would make this Letter swell too much.

But we need not cross the Sea for Examples of this kind, we have too too many (God wot) at home: King James a great while was loth to believe there were Witches, but that which happen'd to my Lord Francis of Rutland's Children, convinc'd him, who were bewitch'd by an old Woman that was Servant at Belvoir Castle, but being displeas'd, she contracted with the Devil (who convers'd with her in form of a Cat, whom she call'd Rutterkin) to make away those Children, out of meer Malignity and thirst of Revenge.

But since the beginning of these unnatural Wars there may be a clowd of Witnesses produc'd for the Proof of this black tenet; for within the compais of two Years near upon three hundred Witches were arraign'd, and the major part executed, in Essex and Suffolk only. Scotland swarms with them now more than ever, and Persons of good Quality executed daily.

Thus, Sir, have I huddled together a few Arguments touching this Subject; because in my last Communication with you, methought I found you somewhat unsatisfied, and staggering in your Opinion touching the affirmative part of this Thesis, the discussing whereof is far fitter for an elaborate large Treatise than a loose Letter.

Touching the new Commonwealth you intend to establish, now, that you have assign'd me my part among so many choice Legislators, something I shall do to comply with your Desires, which shall be always to me as Commands, and your Commands as Laws, because I love and honour you in a very high Degree for those gallant free-born Thoughts, and sundry Parts of Virtue which I have discern'd in you, which makes me entitle myself

Fleet, Feb. 20.

1647.

Your most humble and affectionate faithful Servant,

J. H.

XXIV.

To Sir William Boswel, at the Hague.

S I R,

THat black Tragedy which was lately acted here, as it hath fill'd most Hearts among us with Consternation and Horror, so

so I believe it hath been no less resented abroad: For my own particular, the more I ruminate upon it, the more it astonisheth my Imagination, and shaketh all the Cells of my Brain, so that sometimes I struggle with my Faith, and have much ado to believe it yet: I shall give over wondring at any thing hereafter, nothing shall seem strange unto me, only I will attend with Patience how England will thrive now that she is let Blood in the basilical Vein, and cur'd, as they say, of the King's-Evil.

I had one of yours by Mr. Jacob Bocue, and I much thank you for the account you please to give me of what I sent you by his Conveyance. Holland may now be proud, for there is a younger Commonwealth in Christendom than herself. No more now, but that I always rest,

Sir,

Fleet, Mar. 20.

1648.

Your most humble

Servitor,

J. H.

XXV.

To Mr. W. B. at Grundsburgh.

S I R,

NEver credit me if Liberty itself be as dear to me as your Letters, they come so full of choice and learned applications, with such free unforc'd Strains of Ingenuity, insomuch that when I peruse them, methinks they cast such a kind of Fragancy, that I cannot more aptly compare them, than to the Flowers which are now in their prime Season, viz. to Roses in June: I had two of them lately, which methought were like quivers full of barb'd Arrows pointed with Gold, that penetrated my Breast.

— Tali quis nollet ab ictu

Ridendo iocumulas mortis non ire sub umbras?

Your Expressions were like those Mucrones and Melliti globuli, which you so ingeniously apply mine unto; but these Arrows of yours, though they have hit me, they have not hurt me, they had no killing quality, but they were rather as so many Cordials, for you know Gold is restorative. I am suddenly surpriz'd by an unexpected occasion, therefore I must abruptly break off with you for this time, I will only add, my most dear Nephew, that I rest

June 3.

1648.

Yours entirely to love and serve you, J. H.

XXVI. To

XXVI.

To R. K. Esquire, at St. Giles's.

S I R,

Difference in Opinion, no more than a differing Complexion, can be Cause enough for me to hate any; A differing Fancy is no more to me, than a differing Face; If another hath a fair Countenance, though mine be black, or if I have a fair Opinion, though another hath a hard-favour'd one, yet it shall not break that common League of Humanity which should be betwixt rational Creatures, provided he corresponds with me in the general Offices of Morality and civil Uprightness, this may admit him to my Acquaintance and Conversation, though I never concur with him in Opinion: He bears the Image of Adam, and the Image of the Almighty as well as I; He had God for his Father, though he had not the same Church for his Mother. The Omniscient Creator, as He is only Kardiognostic, so He is the sole Lord of the whole inward Man; It is he who reigns over the Faculties of the Soul, and the Affections of the Heart; 'tis he who regulates the Will, and rectifies all Obliquities in the Understanding by special Illuminations, and oftentimes reconciles Men as opposite in Opinions, as Meridians and Parallels are in point of extension, whereof the one draws from East to West, the other from North to South.

Some of the Pagan Philosophers, especially Themistius, who was Prætor of Byzantium, maintain'd an Opinion, that as the Pulchritude and Preservation of the World consisted in Varieties and Dissimilitudes (as also in Eccentric and contrary Motions) that as it was replenish'd with such numberless sorts of several Species, and that the Individuals of those Species differ'd so much one from the other, especially Mankind, amongst whom one shall hardly find two in ten thousand that hath exactly (though Twins) the same Tone of Voice, Similitude of Face, or Ideas of Mind: Therefore the God of Nature ordain'd from the Beginning, that he should be worshipp'd in various and sundry Forms of Adorations, which nevertheless like so many lines should tend all to the same Centre. But Christian Religion prescribes another Rule, viz. that there is but una via, una veritas, there is but one true way to Heaven, and that but a narrow one, whereas there be huge large roads that lead to Hell.

God Almighty guide us in the first, and guard us from the second, as also from all cross and uncouth By-paths, which use to lead such giddy Brains that follow them to a confus'd Labyrinth of Errors, where being entangled, the Devil, as they stand gaping for new Lights to lead them out, takes his Advantage to seize on them for their Spiritual Pride and Infobriety in the Search of more Knowledge.

Your most faithful

Servant,

J. H.

July 28.

1648.

A FOURTH VOLUME
OF Familiar LETTERS.

I.
To Sir James Crofts, Knight, at his House near Lemster.

S I R,

E Pistles, or (according to the Word in use) Familiar Letters, may be call'd the Larum Bells of Love; I hope this will prove so to you, and have Power to awaken you out of that Silence wherein you have slept so long; yet I would not have this Larum make any harsh obstreperous Sound, but gently summon you to our former Correspondence: Your Returns to me shall be more than Larum Bells, they shall be like Silver Trumpets, to rouse up my Spirits, and make me take Pen in Hand to meet you more than half way in the old Field of Friendship.

It is recorded of Galen, one of Nature's Cabinet Clerks, that when he slept his Siesta, (as the Spaniard calls it) or Afternoon Sleep, to avoid Excess that way, he us'd to sit it in such a posture that having a Gold Ball in his hand, and a Copper Vessel underneath, as soon as his Senses were shut, and the Phantasie began to work, the ball would fall down, the Noise whereof would awake him, and draw the Spring-lock back again to set the outward Sense at Liberty. I have seen in Italy a finger-ring which in the boss thereof had a Watch, and there was such a trick of Art in it that it might be be so wounded up, that it would make a small pin to prick him who wore it at such an hour if he pleas'd in the Night. Let the Pen between us have the Virtue of that Pin: But the Pen hath a thousand Virtues more: You know that Anser, Apis, Vitulus, The Goose, Bee, and the Calf do rule the World, the one affording Parchment, the other two Sealing Wax and Quills to write withal: You know also how the gagging of Geese did once preserve the Capitol from being surpriz'd by my Countryman Brennus, which was the first foreign Force that Rome felt. But the Goose Quill doth daily greater things, it conserves Empires, (and the Feathers of it gets Kingdoms; witness what Exploits the English perform'd by it in France) the Quill being the chiefest Instrument of Intelligence, and the Ambassadors prime Tool: Nay, the Quill is the usefullst thing which preserves that noble Virtue Friendship, who else would perish among Men for want of Practice.

I shall make no more fallies out of London this Summer, therefore your Letters may be sure where to find me. Matters are still involv'd here in a strange confusion, but the Stars may let down milder Influences; therefore cheer up, and reprieve yourself against better times, for the World would be irksom unto me if you were out of it: Hap what will, you shall be sure to find me

Your ready and real

Servant,

J. H.

H.

To Mr. T. Morgan.

S I R,

I Receiv'd two of yours upon Tuesday last, one to your Brother, the other to me, but the Supercriptions were mistaken, which makes me think on that famous Civilian Doctor Dale, who being employed to Flanders by Queen Elizabeth, sent in a Packet to the Secretary of State two Letters, one to the Queen, the other to his Wife, but that which was meant for the Queen was superscrib'd, To his dear Wife, and that for his Wife, To Her most Excellent Majesty; so that the Queen having open'd his Letter, she found it beginning with Sweet Heart, and afterwards with my Dear, and Dear Love, with such Expressions, acquainting her with the State of his Body, and that he began to want Money: You may easily guess what Motions of Mirth this Mistake rais'd; but the Doctor by this Oversight (or Cunningness rather) got a supply of Money. This perchance may be your Policy to endorfe me your

Brother,

Brother, thereby to endear me the more unto you; but you needed not to have done that, for the Name Friend goes sometimes further than Brother, and there be more examples of Friends that did Sacrifice their Lives for one another, than of Brothers, which the Writer doth think he should do for you, if the Case requir'd. But since I am fallen upon Doctor Dale, who was a witty kind of Droll, I will tell you instead of News (for there is little good stirring now) of two other facetious Tales of his; and Familiar Tales may become Familiar Letters well enough: When Queen Eliz. did first propose unto him that Foreign Employment to Flanders, among other Encouragements, she told him, that he should have 20 s. per diem for his Expences, then, Madam, said he, I will spend 19 s. a Day; what will you do with the odd Shilling, the Queen replied? I will reserve that for my Kate, and for Tom and Dic, meaning his Wife and Children, this induc'd the Queen to enlarge his Allowance. But this that comes last is the best of all, and may be call'd the superlative of the three, which was, when at the overture of the Treaty, the other Ambassadors came to propose in what Language they should treat, the Spanish Ambassador answer'd, that the French was the most proper, because his Mistress entitled herself Queen of France; Nay then, said Doctor Dale, let us treat in Hebrew, for your Master calls himself King of Jerusalem.

I perform'd the Civilities you enjoyn'd me to your Friends here, who return you the like contuplicated, and so doth

Your entire Friend,

J. H.

May 12.

III.

To the R. H. the Lady E. D.

Madam,

There is a French saying, that Courtesies and Favours are like Flowers, which are sweet only while they are Fresh, but afterwards they quickly fade and wither. I cannot deny but your Favours to me might be compar'd to some kind of Flowers, (and they would make a thick Posie) but they should be too the Flower call'd Life Everlasting; or that pretty Vermillion Flower which grows at the foot of the Mountain Ætna in Sicily, which never loses any Thing of its first Colour and Scent: Those Favours you did me thirty Years ago in the life-time of your incomparable Brother, Mr. R. Altham, (who left us in the Flower of his Age) methinks are as fresh to me as if they were done Yesterday.

E e

Nor

Nor were it any danger to compare courtesies done to me, to other Flowers, as I use them ; for I distil them in the limbeck of my Memory, and so turn them to Essences.

But, Madam, I honour you not as much for Favours, as for that precious branch of Vertues which shine in you with that brightness, but especially for those high Motions whereby your Soul soars up so often towards Heaven ; insomuch, Madam, that if it were safe to call any Mortal a Saint, you should have that Title from me, and I would be one of your chiefest Notaries ; howsoever, I may without any superstition subscribe myself

Your truly devoted Servant,

April 8.

J. H.

VI.

To the Lord Marquis of Hartford.

My Lord,

I Receiv'd your Lordships of the eleventh current, with the Commands it carried, whereof I shall give an Account in my next.

Foreign Parts afford not much matter of Intelligence, it being now the dead of Winter, and the season unfit for Action ; But we need not go Abroad for News, there is store enough at Home. We see daily mighty Things, and they are marvellous in our Eyes ; but the greatest marvel is, that nothing should now be marvell'd at, for we are so habituated to wonders, that they are grown familiar unto us.

Poor England may be said to be like a Ship toss'd up and down the surges of a turbulent Sea, having lost her old Pilot, and God he knows when she can get into safe Harbour again ; yet doubtless this Tempest, according to the usual operations of Nature, and the succession of mundane Effects, by contrary Agents will turn at last into a calm, though many who are yet in their non-age may not live to see it.

Your Lordship knows that this κόσμος, this fair frame of the Universe came out of a Chaos, and undigested lump ; And that this Elementary World was made of a million of ingredients repugnant to themselves in Nature (and the whole is still preserv'd by the reluctancy and restless combatings of these Principles.) We see how the Shipwright doth make use of knee-timber, and other cross-grain'd Pieces, as well as of straight and even, for framing a goodly Vessel to ride on Neptune's back. The Printer useth many contrary

rary Characters in his Art to put forth a fair Volume, as d is a p revers'd, and n is an n turn'd upward, with other differing Letters, which yet concur all to the perfection of the whole Work; There go many and various dissonant tones to make an harmonious consort: this puts me in mind of an excellent passage which a noble speculative Knight (Sir P. Herbert) hath in his late Conceptions to his Son: How a holy Anchorite being in a Wilderness, among other Contemplations, he fell to admire the method of Providence, how out of causes which seem bad to us, he produceth oftentimes good Effects; how he suffers Vertuous, Loyal and Religious Men to be oppress'd, and others to prosper. As he was transported with these ideas, a goodly young Man appear'd to him, and told him, Father, I know your Thoughts are distracted, and I am sent to quiet them, therefore if you will accompany me a few Days, you shall return very well satisfied of those doubts that now encumber your Mind; so going along with him, they were to pass over a deep River whereon there was a narrow Bridge, and meeting there with another Passenger, the young Man juss'd him into the water, and so drown'd him: The old Anchorite being much astonish'd hereat, would have left him, but his Guide said, Father, be not amaz'd, because I shall give you good Reasons for what I do, and you shall see stranger Things than this before you and I part, but at last I shall settle your Judgment, and put your Mind in full repose. So going that Night to lodge in an Inn where there was a crew of Banditti, and debauch'd Ruffians, the young Man struck into their Company, and revell'd with them till the morning, while the Anchorite spent most of the Night in numbring his beads; but as soon as they were departed thence, they met with some Officers who went to apprehend that crew of Banditti they had left behind them. The next Day they came to a Gentlemans House, which was a fair Palace, where they receiv'd all the courteous Hospitality which could be, but in the Morning as they parted, there was a Child in a cradle which was the only Son of the Gentlemans, and the young Man spying his Opportunity strangled the Child, and so got away: The third Day they came to another Inn, where the Man of the House treated them with all the civility that could be, and gratis, yet the young Man imbezzled a silver goblet, and carried it away in his Pocket, which still encreas'd the amazement of the Anchorite: The fourth Day in the Evening they came to lodge at another Inn, where the host was very fullen, and uncivil to them, exacting much more than the value of what they had spent, yet at parting the young Man bestow'd upon him the silver goblet he had stolen from that Host who had us'd them so kindly. The fifth Day they made towards a great rich Town, but some Miles before they came at it, they met with a Merchant at the close of the Day, who had a great charge of Money about him, and asking the next passage to the Town, the young Man put him in a clean contrary way; the Anchorite and his guide being come to the Town, at the Gate they spied a Devil, which lay as it were Centinel, but he was asleep; they found also both Men and Women at sundry kind of Sports, some dancing, others singing, with divers sorts of Revellings; they went afterwards to a Convent of Capuchins, where about the gate they found legions of Devils, laying siege to that Monastery, yet they got in and lodg'd there that Night; being awaked the next Morning, the young Man came to that Cell where the Anchorite was lodg'd, and told him, I know your Heart is full of horror, and your head full of confusion, astonishments and doubts for what you have seen since the first time of your Association: But know, that I am an Angel sent from Heaven to rectifie your Judgment, as also to correct a little your Curiosity in the researches of the Ways and Acts of Providence too far; for though separately they seem strange to the shallow apprehension of Man, yet conjunctly they all tend to produce good Effects.

That Man which I tumbled into the River was an Act of Providence, for he was going upon a most mischievous design, that would have damnified not only his own Soul, but destroyed the party against whom it was intended; therefore I prevented it.

The Cause why I convers'd all Night with that crew of Rogues, was also an Act of Providence, for they intended to go a robbing all that night, but I kept them there purposely till the next morning, that the hand of Justice might seize upon them.

Touching the kind host from whom I took the silver goblet, and the clownish or knavish host, to whom I gave it, let this demonstrate unto you, That good Men are liable to crosses and losses, whereof bad Men oftentimes reap the benefit; but it commonly produceth Patience in the one, and Pride in the other.

Concerning that noble Gentleman whose Child I strangled after so courteous entertainment, know, that that also was an Act of Providence; for the Gentleman was so indulgent and doting on that Child, that it lessen'd his love to Heaven, so I took away the cause.

Touching the Merchant whom I misguided in his way, it was likewise an Act of Providence; for had he gone the direct way to this Town, he had been robb'd, and his throat cut, therefore I preserv'd him by that deviation.

Now concerning this great luxurious City, whereas we spied but one Devil which lay asleep without the Gate, there being so many about this poor Convent, you must consider, that

Lucifer

Lucifer being already assur'd of that riotous Town, by corrupting their Manners every Day more and more, he needs but one single Centinel to secure it; But for this holy place of retirement, this Monastery, inhabited by so many devout Souls who spend their whole Lives in acts of Mortification, as exercises of Piety and Penance, he hath brought so many Legions to beleaguer them, yet he can do no good upon them, for they bear up against him most undauntedly, maugre all his infernal Power and Stratagems: So the young Man, or Divine Messenger suddenly disappear'd and vanish'd; yet leaving his fellow-traveller in good Hands.

My Lord, I crave your Pardon for this extravagancy, and the tediousness thereof, but I hope the sublimity of the matter will make some compensation, which if I am not deceiv'd, will well sute with your Genius, for I know your Contemplations to be as high as your Condition, and as much above the Vulgar: This figurative Story shews that the ways of Providence are inscrutable, his intention and method of Operation not conformable oftentimes to humane Judgment, the plummet and line whereof is infinitely too short to fathom the depth of his designs; therefore let us acquiesce in an humble Admiration, and with this confidence, that all Things co-operate to the best at last as they relate to his Glory, and the general good of his Creatures, though sometimes as they appear to us, by uncouth circumstances, and cross mediums.

So in a due distance, and posture of humility I kiss your Lordships Hands, as being,

My most highly honoured Lord,

Your thrice obedient, and obliged Servitor,

J. H.

V.

To R. Baker, Esq;

S I R,

NOW that Lent and the Spring do make their approach, in my opinion Fasting would conduce much to the advantage of Soul and Body; though our second Institution of observing Lent aim'd at Civil Respects, as to preserve the brood of Cattle, and advance the Profession of Fishermen, yet it concurs with the first Institution, viz. a pure, spiritual End, which was to subdue the Flesh, and that being brought under, our other two spiritual Enemies, the World and the Devil, are the sooner overcome. The Naturalists observe, that morning spittle kills Dragons, so Fasting helps to destroy the Devil, provided it be accompanied with other acts of Devotion. To fast for one Day only, from about nine in the Morning to four in the Afternoon, is but a mock-fast: The Turks do more than so in their Ramirams and Beirams, and the Jew also, for he fasts from the dawn in the Morning till the Stars be up in the Night, as you observ'd in the devout and delicate Poem you pleas'd to communicate unto me lately, I was so taken with the subject, that I presently lighted my Candle at your Torch, and fell into these Stanza's:

1. *Now Lent is come, let us refrain
From carnal Creatures quick or slain,
Let's fast, and macerate the flesh,
Impound, and keep it in distress,*
2. *For forty Days, and then we shall
Have a Replevin from the thrall,
By that bless'd a Prince, who for this fast
Will give us Angels food at last.*
3. *But to abstain from Beef, Hog, Goose,
And let our Appetites go loose
To Lobster, Crabs, Prawns, or such Fish,
We do not Fast, but Feast in this.*
4. *Not to let down Lamb, Kid or Veal,
Hen, Plover, Turkey-cock or Teal,
And eat Botargo, Caviar,
Anchovies, Oysters, and like fare.*
5. *Or to forbear from Flesh, Fowl, Fish,
And eat Potatoes in a dish
Done o'er with Anaber, or a mess
Of Ringos in a Spanish dress.*
6. *Or to refrain from each hot Thing
Which Water, Earth, or Air doth bring,
And lose a hundred pound at Gleeck,
Or be at Saint when we should sleep.*

7. Or to leave play with all high dishes,
 And feed our Thoughts with wanton wishes,
 Making the Soul like a light wench,
 Wear patches of concupiscence;
8. This is not to keep Lent aright,
 But play the juggling Hypocrite :
 He truly Lent observes, who makes the inward Man
 To fast, as well as make the outward feed on bran.

The French Reformists have an odd way of keeping Lent, for I have seen the Walls of their Temples turn'd to shambles, and flesh hanging upon them on Lent-Sundays ; infomuch, that he who doth not know their Practice, would take their Churches to be Synagogues of Jews, and that the bloody Levitical Sacrifices were offer'd there.

And now that my Thoughts are in France, a witty Passage of Henry the Great comes into my Mind, who being himself in the Field, sent to the old Count of Soissons to accompany him with what Forces he could make ; the Count answer'd, That he was grown decrepit and crazy, besides, his Estate was so, being much exhausted in the former Wars, and all that he could do now for his Majesty, was to pray for him : Doth my Cousin of Soissons, said the King, answer me so ? They say, That Prayer without Fasting hath nothing of that Efficacy, as when they are joyn'd, Ventre de St. Gris, By the Belly of St. Gris, I will make him fast as well as pray, for I will not pay him a Penny of his ten thousand Crowns Pension, which he hath Yearly for these Respects.

The Christian Church hath a longer and more solemn Way of fasting than any other Religion, take Lent and Ember-weeks together. In some Churches the Christian useth the old way of Mortification, by sackcloth and ashes to this Day ; which makes me think on a facetious Tale of a Turkish Ambassador in Venice, who being return'd to Constantinople, and ask'd what he had observ'd most remarkable in that so rare a City ? he answer'd, That among other Things, the Christian hath a kind of Ashes, which thrown upon the Head doth presently cure Madness, for in Venice I saw the People go up and down the Streets (said he) in ugly, antick, strange Disguises, as being in the Eye of humane Reason stark mad, but the next Day (meaning Ashwednesday) they are suddenly cur'd of that madness by a sort of ashes which they cast upon their Heads.

If the said Ambassador were here among us, he would think our Modern Gallants were also all mad, or subject to be mad, because they ash and powder their pericraniums all the Year long.

So wishing you Meditations suitable to the Season, and good Thoughts, which are best when they are the off-springs of good Actions, I rest,

Ashwednesday, 1654.

Your ready and real Friend,
J. H.

VI.

To Mr. R. Manwayring.

My dear Dick,

IF you are as well when you read this, as I was when I wrote it, we are both well: I am certain of the one, but anxious of the other, in regard of your so long silence; I pray at the return of this Post, let your Pen pull out this Thorn that hath got into my Thoughts, and let me have oftner room in yours, for you know I am your perfect Friend

J. H.

VII.

To Sir Edward Spencer, Knight.

S I R,

I Find by your last of the first current, that your Thoughts are much busied in forming your new Commonwealth; and whereas the Province that is allotted to me, is to treat of a right way to govern the Female Sex, I hold my Lot to be fallen upon a fair Ground, and I will endeavour to husband it accordingly; I find also, that for the establishment of this new Republick you have culled out the choicest Wits in all Faculties, therefore I account it an Honour that you have put me in the List, though the least of them.

In every species of Government, and indeed among all Societies of Mankind (Reclus'd Orders, and other Regulars excepted) there must be a special care had of the Female Kind, for nothing can conduce more to the propagation, and perpetuity of a Republick, than the well managing of that gentle and useful Sex; For tho' they be accounted the weaker Vessels, yet are they those in whom the whole Mass of Mankind is moulded, therefore they must not be us'd like Saffron bags, or Verde Bottles, which are thrown into some by corner, when the Wine and Spice are taken out of them.

It was an Opinion truly befitting a Jew to hold, That Woman is of an inferiour Creation to Man, being made only for Multiplication and Pleasure, therefore hath she no admittance into the Body of the Synagogue; such another Opinion was that of the Pagan Poet, who stutter'd out this Verse, that there are but two good Hours of any Woman.

Ἡ μίαν ἐν θαλάμῳ, τὴν μίαν ἐν θανάτῳ: Unam in thalamo, alteram in tumulto; One Hour in Bed, the other in the Grave.

Moreover, I hold also that of the Orator to be a wild extravagant Speech, when he said, that if Women were not conterranean and mingled with Men, Angels would descend and dwell among us; but a far wilder Speech was that of the Dog-Philosopher, who term'd Women necessary Evils: Of this Cynical Sect it seems was he, who would needs make Orcus to be the Anagram of Uxor, by contracting c s into an x, Uxor & Orcus——idem.

Yet I confess, that among this Sex, as among Men, there are some good, some bad, some vertuous, some vicious, and some of an indifferent Nature, in whom Vertue makes a compensation for Vice. If there was an Empress in Rome so cunning in her Lust, that she would take in no Passenger until the Vessel was freighted, (for fear the resemblance of the Child might discover the true Father,) there was a Zenobia in Asia, who would not suffer her Husband to know her carnally no longer, when once she found herself quick: If there were a Queen of France that poison'd her King, there was a Queen in England, who when her Husband had been shot with an envenom'd Arrow in the Holy Land, suck'd out the Poison with her own Mouth when none else would do it: If the Lady Barbara, Wife to Sigismund the Emperor, being advis'd by her ghostly Father after his Death to live like a Turtle, having lost such a Mate that the World had not the like, made this wanton answer, Father, since you would have me to lead the Life of a Bird, why not of a Sparrow as well as of a Turtle? Which she did afterwards, I say, If there were such a Lady Barbara, there was the Lady Beatrix, who after Henry her Emperours death, lived after like a Dove, and immur'd herself in a Monastick Cell: But what shall I say of Queen Artemisia, who had an Urnful of her husband Mausolu's Ashes in her Closet, whereof she would take down a dram every Morning next her Heart, saying, that her Body was the fittest Place to be a Sepulchre to her dear Husband, notwithstanding that she had Erected such a Tomb for the rest of his Body, that to this Day is one of the Wonders of the World.

Moreover, it cannot be denied, but some Females are of a high and harsh Nature, witness those that two of our greatest est Clerks for Law and Learning (Lord B. and C.) did meet withal, one of whom was said to have brought back her Husband to his horn-book again: As also Moses and Socrates Wives, who were Zipporah and Xantippe; you may guess at the humour of one in the holy Codex; and for Xantippe, among many other instances which might be produc'd, let this serve for one; after she had scolded her Husband one Day out of Doors, as the poor Man was going out, she whip'd up into an upper loft, and threw a pisspot full upon his Scence, which made the Patient Philosopher (or Fooleosopher) to break into this Speech for the venting of his Passion, I Thought after so much Thunder we should have Rain: To this may be added my Neighbour Stowd's Wife in Westminster, who once ringing him a peal as she was basting his roast, (for he was a Cook) after he had newly come from the Tavern upon Sunday Evening, she grew hotter and hotter against him, having Hell and the Devil in her Mouth, to whom she often bequeath'd him; the staring Husband having heard her a great while with silence, at last answer'd, I prithee sweet-heart, do not talk so much to me of the Devil, because I know he will do me no hurt, for I have married his Kinswoman. I know there are many that wear Horns, and ride daily upon Colstaves, but this proceeds not so often from the fault of the Female, as the silliness of the Husband, who knows not how to manage a Wife.

But a thousand such Instances are not able to make me a Myfogenes, a Female foe, therefore towards the polishing and perpetuating of this your new Republick, there must be some special rules for regulating of Marriage, for a Wife is the best or worst Fortune that can betide a Man throughout the whole train of his Life: Plato's promiscuous concubitus or copulation is more proper for Beasts than Rational Creatures. That incestuous Custom they have in China, that one should marry his own Sister, and in default of one, the next akin, I utterly dislike: Nor do I approve of that goatish latitude of Lust which the Alcoran allows, for one Man to have eight Wives, and as many Concubines as he can well maintain; nor of another branch of their Law, That a Man should marry after such an Age under pain of mortal Sin, (for then what would become of me?) No, I would have every Man left at liberty in this Point, for there are Men enough besides to people the Earth.

But that Opinion of a poor shallow brain'd Puppy, who upon any cause of disaffection, would have Men to have a priviledge to change their Wives, or repudiate them, deserves to be hiss'd at rather than confuted, for nothing can tend more to usher in all confusion and beggary throughout the World; therefore that Wiseaker deserves of all other to wear a toting horn. In this Republick one Man should be contented with one Wife, and he may have Work enough to do with her; but whereas in other Commonwealths Men use to wear invisible Horns, it would be a wholesome Constitution, that they who upon too much jealousy and restraint, or ill usage of their Wives, or indeed not knowing how to use and man them aright, (which is one of the prime Points of masculine Discretion) As also they who according to that barbarous Custom in Russia, do use to beat their Wives duly once a Week: But especially they who in their absence coop them up, and secure their Bodies with locks, I say it would be a very fitting Ordinance in this new modell'd Commonwealth, that all such who impel their Wives by these means to change their Riders, should wear plain visible Horns, that Passengers may beware of them as they go along, and give warning to others,——Cornu ferit ille Caveto. For indeed nothing doth incite the mass of Blood, and muster up libidinous Thoughts more, than diffidence and restraint.
and

Moreover, in coupling Women by way of Matrimony, it would be a good Law, and consentaneous to Reason, if out of all Dowries exceeding 100*l*. there should be two out of every Cent. deducted and put into a common Treasury, for putting off hard-favour'd and poor Maids.

Touching Virginitie and the Vestal Fire, I could wish 'twere the worst Custom the Roman Church had, when gentle Souls, to endear themselves the more unto their Creator, do immure their Bodies within perpetual bounds of Chastity, dieting themselves, and using austerities accordingly, whereby bidding a farewell, and dying unto the World, they bury themselves alive as it were, and so pass their Time in constant exercises of Piety, and Penance Night and Day, or in some other employments of Vertue, holding idleness to be a mortal Sin: Were this cloyster'd course of Life meerly spontaneous and unforc'd, I could well be contented that it were practie'd in your new Republick.

But there are other kind of Cloysters in some Commonwealths, and among those who are accounted the wisest and best policed, which Cloysters are of a clean contrary Nature to the former; these they call the Courtesan Cloysters. And as in the other, some Females shut up themselves to keep the sacred Fire of pudicity and continence, so in these latter, there are some of the handsomest sorts of Females who are conniv'd at, to quench the flames of irregular lust, lest they should break into the lawful married Bed; 'tis true, Nature hath pour'd more active, and hotter Blood into the veins of some Men, wherein there are stronger appetites and motions, which which motions were not given by Nature to be a torment to Man, but to be turn'd into delight, health and propagation ; Therefore they to whom the gift of Continence is denyed, and have not the conveniency to have debita vasa, and lawful coolers of their own by way of Wedlock, use to extinguish their Fires in these Venerean Cloysters, rather than abuse their Neighbours Wives, and break into other Mens inclosures. But whether such a Custom may be conniv'd at in this your Republick, and that such a Common may be allow'd to them who have no Inclosures of their own, I leave to wiser Legislators than myself to determine, especially in South-east hot Countries, where Venerean titillation (which Scaliger held to be a sixth outward Sense, but ridiculously) is in a stronger degree, I say, I leave others to judge whether such a Rendezvouz be to be conniv'd at in hotter Climes, where both Air and Food, and the blood of the Grape do all concur to make one more libidinous. But it is a vulgar Error to think that the heat of the Clime is the cause of Lust ; it proceeds rather from adust choler and melancholy that predominate, which humours carry with them a salt and sharp itching quality.

The dull Hollander (with other North-west Nations, whose Blood may be said to be as Butter-milk in their Veins) is not so frequently subject to such fits of Lust, therefore he hath no such Cloysters or Houses for Ladies of Pleasure ; witness the Tale of Hans Boobikiu, a rich Boors Son, whom his Father had sent Abroad a Frying, that is, Shroving in our Language, and so put him in an Equipage accordingly, having a new Sword and Scarf, with a gold Hatband and Money in his purse, to visit handsome Ladies ; but Hans, not knowing where to go else, went to his Grandmothers House, where he fell a courting and feasting of her ; but his Father questioning him at his return where he had been a frying, and he answering that he had been at his Grandmothers, the Boor replied, Gods Sacrament, I hope thou hast not lain with my Mother : Yes, said Boobikin, Why should not I lye with your Mother, as you have lain with mine ?

Thus in conformity to your Desires, and the Task impos'd upon me, have I scribbled out this piece of Drollery, which is the way, as I take it, that your design drives at ; I reserve some Things till I see what others have done in the several Provinces they have undertaken, towards the settlement of your new Republick.

So with a thousand Thanks for your last hospitable Favours, I rest, as I have reason, and as you know me to be

Lond. Jan. 24.

Your own true Servant,

J. H.

VIII. To

VIII.

To Mr. T. V. Barister, at his Chamber in the Temple.

Cousin Tom,

I Did not think it was in the power of Passion to have wrought upon you with that Violence; for I do not remember to have known any (of so season'd a judgment as you are) lost so far after so frail a Thing as a Female; but you will say Hercules himself stoop'd hereunto, 'tis true he did, as appears by this Distich,

Lenam non potuit, potuit superare Leenam, Quem Fera non potuit vincere vicit Hera.

The saying also of the old Comick Poet makes for you, when he said, Qui in amorem cecidit pejus agit quam si saxo saliat, To be tormented with Love is worse than to dance upon hot Stones: Therefore partly out of a sense of your suffering, as well as upon the seriousness of your request, but especially understanding that the Gentlewoman hath Parts and Portion accordingly, I have done what you desir'd me, in these Lines, which though plain, short, and sudden, yet they display the manner how you were surpriz'd, and the depth of your Passion:

To Mrs. E. B.

*Apelles, Prince of Painters, did
All others in that Art exceed,
But you surpass him, for he took
Some Pains and Time to draw a look,
You in a trice and moments space
Have pourtray'd in my Heart your Face.*

I wish this Hexastick may have power to strike her as deep, as I find her Eyes struck you. The Spaniard saith there are four Things requir'd in a Woer, viz. to be Savio, Secreto, Selo and Sollicito, that is, to be Sollicitous, Secret, Sole and Sage: Observe these rules, and she may make herself your Client, and so employ you to open her Case, and recover her Portion, which I hear is in Hucksters hands.

So my dear Cousin, I heartily wish you the accomplishment of your desires, and rest upon all occasions

At your dispose, J. H.

IX. To

IX.

To Sir R. Williams, Knight.

S I R,

I Am one among many who much rejoyce at the fortunate wind-fall that happen'd lately, which hath so fairly rais'd and recruited your Fortunes. It is commonly seen, That Ubi est multum Phantasia (viz. ingenii) ibi est parum Fortuna, & ubi est multum Fortuna ibi est parum Phantasia; Where there is much of Fancy, there is little of Fortune; and where there is much of Fortune, there's little of Fancy. It seems that Recorder Fleetwood reflected upon one part of this saying, when in his Speech to the Londoners, among other Passages whereby he sooth'd and stroak'd them, he said, When I consider your Wit, I admire your Wealth. But touching the Latin saying it is quite convinc'd in you, for you have Fancy and Fortune (now) in abundance: And a strong argument may be drawn, That Fortune is not blind, by her carriage to you, for she saw well enough what she did, when she smil'd so lately upon you.

Now, he is the really rich Man who can make true use of his Riches, he makes not Nummum his Numen, Money his God, but makes himself Dominum Nummi, but becomes Master of his Penny: The first is the errand'd beggar, and slave that is; nay, he is worse than the Arcadian Ass, who while he carrieth Gold on his back, eats Thistles: He is baser than that fordid Italian Stationer, who would not allow himself brown Praper enough to wipe his posteriors.

Now, it is observ'd to be the Nature of Covetousness, that when all other Sins grow old, Covetousness in some fordid Souls grows younger and younger; hence I believe sprung the City Proverb, That the Son is happy whose Father went to the Devil; Yet I like the saying Tom Waters hath often in his Mouth, I had rather leave when I die, than lack while I live. But why do I speak of these Things to you, who have so noble a Soul, and so much above the Vulgar.

Your Friend Mr. Watts is still troubled with coughing, and truly I believe he is not to be long among us; for, as the Turk hath it, A dry Cough is the Trumpeter of Death: He presents his most affectionate Respects unto you, and so doth,

My Noble Knight,

Your ever obliged Servant, J. H.

X. To

X.

To Sir R. Cary, Knight.

S I R,

I Had yours of the 20th current, on St. Thomas's Eve, which was most welcome unto me; and (to make a seasonable comparison) yours are like Christmas, they come but once a Year; yet I made very good cheer with your last, especially with that Seraphick Hymn which came inclosed therewith, to usher in this Holy tide; and to correspond with you in some measure that way, I have return'd you another of the same Subject: For as I have observ'd, two Lutes being tun'd alike, if one of them be played upon, the other, though being a good way distant, will sound of itself, and keep symphony with the first that's played upon, (which whether it proceeds from the meer motion of the Air, or the emanation of Atoms, I will not undertake to determine; so the sound of your Muse hath scrue'd up mine, to the same Key and Tune, in these Ternaries:

Upon the Nativity of our Saviour.

1. Wonder of Wonders, Earth and Sky,
Time minglcth with Eternity,
And Matter with Immensity:

2. The Sun becomes an Atom, and a Star
Turns to a Candle, to light Kings from far,
To see a Spectacle so wondrous rare.

3. A Virgin bears a Son, that Son doth bear,
A World of Sin, acquitting Man's arrear,
Since guilty Adam Fig-tree leaves did wear.

4. A Majesty both infinite and just Offended was, therefore the offering must Be such, to expiate frail Flesh and Dust.

5. When no such Victim could be found,
Throughout the whole expansive Round,
Of Heaven, of Air, of Sea, or Ground.

6. The

6. *The Prince of Life himself descends
To make Astræa full amends,
And humane Souls from Hell defends.*

7. *Was ever such a Love as this,
That the Eternal Heir of Bliss
Should stoop to such a low Abyss.*

The Muse confounded with the Mystery, according to the subject Matter, ends with a question of Admiration.

So wishing you as heartily as to myself (according to the instant Season, and the old Complement of England) a merry Christmas, and consequently a happy new Year, I subscribe myself,

Your entirely devoted Servant,

St. Innocents-day,

1654.

J. H.

XI.

To J. Sutton, Esq;

S I R,

WHereas you desire my opinion of the late History translated by Mr. Wad, of the Civil Wars of Spain in the beginning of Charles the Emperors Reign. I cannot choose but tell you, that it is a faithful and pure maiden Story, never blown upon before in any Language but in Spanish, therefore very worthy your perusal: For among those various kind of Studies that your contemplative Soul delights in, I hold History to be most fitting to your Quality.

Now, among those sundry advantages which accrue to a Reader of History, one is, that no modern Accident can seem strange unto him, much less astonish him: He will leave off wondring at any Thing, in regard he may remember to have read of the same, or much like the same that happen'd in former Times; therefore he doth not stand staring like a Child at every unusual Spectacle, like that simple American, who, the first Time he saw a Spaniard on Horseback, thought the Man and the Beast to be but one Creature, and that the Horse did chew the rings of his bit, and eat them.

Now indeed, not to be an Historian, that is, not to know what Foreign Nations and our Forefathers did, Hoc est semper esse Puer, as Cicero hath it, this is still to be a Child, who gazeth at every Thing.

Thing. Whence may be inferr'd, there is no Knowledge that ripeneth the Judgment, and puts one out of his non-age sooner than History.

If I had not formerly read the Barons Wars in England, I had more admir'd that of the Leaguers in France: He who had read the near upon fourscore Years Wars in Low-Germany, I believe never wondred at the late thirty Years Wars in High-Germany. I had wondred more that Richard of Bourdeaux was knock'd down with Halbards, had I not read formerly that Edward of Caernarvon was made away by a hot Iron thrust up his Fundament. It was strange that Murat the great Ottomon Emperor should be lately strangled in his own Court at Constantinople, yet considering that Osman this Predecessor had been knock'd down by one of his ordinary Slaves not many Years before, it was not strange at all. The Blazing Star in Virgo 34 Years since, did not seem strange to him who had read of that which appear'd in Cassiopeia, and other Constellations some Years before. Hence may be inferr'd, that History is the great Looking-Glass through which we may behold with Ancestral Eyes, not only the various Actions of Ages pass'd, and the odd Accidents that attend Time, but also discern the different humours of Men, and feel the pulse of former Times.

This History will display the very intrinsicals of the Castilian, who goes for the prime Spaniard, and make the Opinion a Paradox, which cries him up to be so constant to his Principles, so loyal to his Prince, and so conformable to Government, for it will discover as much levity, and tumultuary Passions in him as in other Nations.

Among divers other Examples which could be produc'd out of this Story, I will instance in one: When Juan de Padillia an infamous Fellow, and of base Extraction, was made General of the People, among others there was a Priest, that being a great Zealot for him, us'd to pray publickly in the Church, Let us pray for the holy Commonalty, and his Majesty Don Juan de Padillia, and for the Lady Donna Maria Pacheco his Wife, &c. But a little after some of Juan de Padillia's Soldiers having quarter'd in his House, and pitifully plunder'd him, the next Sunday the same Priest said in the Church, Beloved Christians, You know how Juan de Padillia passing this Way, some of his Brigade were billeted in my House, Truly they have not left me one Chicken, they have drunk up a whole barrel of Wine, devour'd my Bacon, and taken away my Catalina, my Maid Kate; I charge you therefore pray no more for him. Divers such traverses as these may be read in that Story, which may be the reason why it was suppress'd in Spain, that it should not cross the Seas, or clammer over the Pyreneans to acquaint other Nations with their foolery and baseness; yet Mr. Simon Digby, a Gentleman of much Worth, got a Copy, which he brought over with him, out of which this Translation is deriv'd, though I must tell you by the by, that some Passages were commanded to be omitted, because they had too near an analogy with our Times.

So in a serious way of true Friendship, I profess myself,

Your most affectionate

London, Jan. 15.

Servant, J. H.

XII.

To the Lord Marquis of Dorchester.

My Lord,

Here is a sentence that carrieth a high sense with it, viz. Ingenia Principum fata Temporum, The fancy of the Prince is the fate of the Times; so in point of Peace or War, Oppression or Justice, Vertue or Vice, Prophaneness or Devotion, for Regis ad exemplum, But there is another saying which is as true, viz. Genius plebis est fatum Principis, The happiness of the Prince depends upon the humour of the People. There cannot be a more pregnant Example hereof, than in that successful and long-liv'd Queen, Q. Elizabeth, who having come as it were from the Scaffold to the Throne, enjoy'd a wonderful calm, (excepting some short gusts of Insurrection that happen'd in the beginning) for near upon 45 Years together: But this, my Lord, may be imputed to the Temper of the People, who had had a boistrous King not long before, with so many Revolutions in Religion, and a minor King afterwards, which made them to be govern'd by their fellow Subjects; and the Fire and Faggot being frequent among them in Queen Mary's Days, the Humours of the common People were pretty well spent, and so were willing to conform to any Government that might preserve them and their Estates in quietness. Yet in the Reign of that so popular and well-belov'd Queen, there were many traverses which trench'd as much, if not more, upon the Priviledges of Parliament, and the Liberties of the People, than any that happen'd in the Reign of the two last Kings, yet it was not their fate to be so Popular. Touching the first, viz. Parliament; in one of hers, there was a motion made in the House of Commons, that there should be a Lecture in the Morning some Days of the Week before they sat, whereunto the House was very inclinable: The Queen hearing of it sent them a Message, That she much wondred at their rashness, that they should offer to introduce such an Innovation.

Another Parliament would have propos'd Ways for the regulation of her Court, but she sent them another such Message, That she wondred wondred they being call'd by her thither, to consult of Publick Affairs, they should intermeddle with the Government of her ordinary Family, and to think her to be so ill an Housewife as not to be able to look to her own House herself.

In another Parliament there was a Motion made, that the Queen should entail the Succession of the Crown, and declare her next Heir; but Wentworth who propos'd it was committed to the Tower, where he breath'd his last; and Bromley upon a less occasion was clapp'd in the Fleet.

Another time the House petitioning that some Lords might joyne in private Committees with the Commoners, she utterly rejected it. You know how Stubbs and Page had their Hands cut off with a Butchers Knife and a Mallet, because they writ against the Match with the Duke of Anjou; and Penry was hang'd at Tyburn, though Allured, who writ a bitter invective against the late Spanish Match, was but confin'd for a short time; how Sir John Heywood was shut up in the Tower, for an Epistle Dedicatory to the Earl of Essex, &c.

Touching her Favourites, what a monster of a Man was Leicester, who first brought the Art of Poisoning into England? How many of her Maids of Honour did receive Claps at Court? Add hereunto, that Privy Seals were common in her Days, and pressing of Men more frequent, especially for Ireland, where they were sent in handfuls, rather to continue a War, (by the cunning of the Officers) than to conclude it: The three Fleets she sent against the Spaniard did hardly make the benefits of the Voyages to countervail the Charge; how poorly did the English Garrison quit Haure de Grace? And how were we bluffed for the Arrears that were due unto England (by Article) for the Forces sent into France? For Buildings, with all kind of braveries else that use to make a Nation happy, as Riches and Commerce, inward and outward, it was not the twentieth part so much in the best of her Days, (as appears by the Custom-House Book) as it was in the Reiga of her Successors.

Touching the Religion of the Court, she seldom came to Sermon but in Lent time, nor did there use to be any Sermon upon Sundays, unless they were Festivals; whereas, the succeeding Kings had two duly every Morning, one for the Household, the other for themselves, where they were always present, as also at private Prayers in the Closet, yet it was not their Fortune to gain so much upon the Affections of City or Country: Therefore, my Lord, the felicity of Queen Elizabeth may be much imputed to the rare Temper and Moderation of Mens Minds in those Days, for the pulse of the common People, and Londoners did beat nothing so high as it did afterwards, when they grew pamper'd with so long Peace and Plenty: Add hereunto, that neither Hans, Jocky, or John Calvin, had taken such footing here as they did get afterwards, whose humour is to pry and peep with a kind of malice into the carriage of the Court, and mysteries of State, as also to malign Nobility, with the Wealth and Solemnities of the Church.

My Lord, it is far from my meaning hereby to let drop the least aspersion upon the Tomb of that rare renowned Queen, but it is only to observe the differing Temper both of Time and People. The Fame of some Princes is like the Rose, which, as we find by Experience, smells sweeter after 'tis pluck'd; the Memory of others is like the Tulip and Poppy, which make a gay show, and fair flourish while they stand upon the stalk, but being cut down, they give an ill-favour'd scent: It was the happiness of that great long-liv'd Queen to cast a pleasing Odour among her People, both while she stood, and after she was cut off by the common stroke of Mortality; and the older the World grows, the fresher her Fame will be: Yet she is little beholden to any Foreign Writers, unless it be the Hollanders, and good reason they had to speak well of her, for she was the chiefest Instrument, who, though with the expence of much English Blood, and Bullion, rais'd them to a Republick, by casting that fatal Bone for the Spaniard to gnaw upon, which shook his Teeth so ill-favour'dly for Fourscore Years together. Other Writers speak bitterly of her for her Carriage to her Sister the Queen of Scots, for her ingratitude to her Brother Philip of Spain; for giving advice by her Ambassador with the great Turk to expel the Jesuits, who had got a Colledge in Pera, as also that her Secretary Walsingham should project the poisoning of the Waters of Douay; and lastly, how she suffer'd the Festival of the Nativity of the Virgin Mary, in September, to be turn'd to the Celebration of her own Birth Day, &c. But these stains are cast upon her by her Enemies; and the aspersions of an Enemy use to be like the dirt of Oysters, which doth rather cleanse than contaminate.

Thus, my Lord, have I pointed at some remarks, to shew how various and discrepant the humours of a Nation may be, and the genius of the Times, from what it was; which doubtless must proceed from a High all-disposing Power: A speculation that may become the greatest and knowing'st Spirits, among whom your Lordship doth shine as a Star of the first Magnitude; for your House may be call'd a true Academy, and your Head the Capitol of Knowledge, or rather an Exchequer, wherein there is a Treas-sure enough to give Pensions to all the Wits of the Time; with these Thoughts I rest,

Lond. Aug. 15.

My most highly honoured Lord,

Your very obedient, and ever obliged Servant, J. H.

XIII.

To Mr. R. Floyd.

Cousin Floyd,

THE first part of Wisdom is to give good Counsel, the second to take it, and the third to follow it; though you be young, yet you may be already capable of the two latter parts of Wisdom, and it is the only way to attain to the first: Therefore I wish you to follow the good Counsel of your Uncle J. for I know him to be a very discreet well weigh'd Gentleman, and I can judge something of Men, for I have studied many: Therefore if you steer by his Compass in this great Business you have undertaken, you need not fear Shipwrack. This is the advice of Lond. April 6.

Your truly affectionate Cousin, J. H.

XIV.

To my Reverend and Learned Countryman

Mr. R. Jones.

S I R,

IT is, among many other, one of my imperfections, that I am not vers'd in my maternal Tongue so exactly as I should be; the Reason is, that Languages and Words (which are chief Creatures of Man, and the Keys of Knowledge) may be said to stick in the Memory, like Nails or pegs in a wainscot Door, which use to thrust out one another oftentimes; yet the old British is not so driven out of mine, (for the Cask savours still of the Liquor it first took in) but I can say something of this elaborate and ingenious Piece of yours, which you please to communicate unto me so early; I cannot compare it more properly than to a basket of Posies gather'd in the best Garden of Flowers, the Sacred Scriptures, and bound up with such Art, that every Flower directs us where his Bed may be found: Whence I infer, that this Work will much conduce to the advancement of Βιβλιοστροφία, or Scripture Knowledge, and consequently to the publick Good; it will also tend to the honour of our whole Country, and to your own particular Repute: Therefore I wish you good success to make this Child of your Brain free denizon of the World.

Lond. Sept. 17.

J. H.

XV.

To J. S. Esq; at White-Fryers.

S I R,

THis new Piece of Philosophy comes to usher in the New Year unto you, drop'd from the Brain of the subtlest Spirits of France, and the great Personage, (the Duke of Espernon) though heterodoxal, and cross-grain'd to the old Philosophers. Among divers other Tenets, he holds, that Privatio is unworthy to be one of the three Principles of natural Things, and would put Love in the Place of it; but you know, Sir, that among other infirmities which Nature hath entail'd upon Man while he gropes here for Truth among the Elements, discrepancy of Notions, and desire of Novelty are none of the least.

Now touching this critical Tract, there's not any more capable to Censure it than yourself, whose Judgment is known to be so sound and Magisterial; let the pettiness of the Gift be supplied by the pregnancy of the Will, which swells with Mountains of Desires to serve you, and to shew in Action as well as in Words, how ready I would be

Lond. Jan. 2.

At your disposing, J. H.

XVI.

To the Earl of Lindsey, Great Chamberlain of England, at Ricot.

My Lord,

I Most humbly thank your Lordship for the noble Present you commanded to be sent me from Grimsthorp, where, without disparagement to any, I may say you live as much like a Prince as any Grandee in Christendom. Among those many Heroick Parts (which appear'd so much in that tough Battel of Kinton, where having all your Officers kill'd, yet you kept the Field, and preserv'd your wounded Father from the fury of the Soldiers, and from Death for the time; as also for being the inseparable Cubicular Companion the King took comfort in, in the height of his Troubles) I say, among other high Parts to speak you Noble, you are cry'd up, my Lord, to be an excellent Horseman, Huntsman, Forrester. This makes me bold to make your Lordship the Judge of a small Discourse, which upon a critical Dispute touching the Vocal Forrest that goes abroad in my Name, was impos'd upon me, to satisfy them who thought I knew something more than ordinary, what belong'd to a true Forrest.

There be three for Venerie or Venatical Pleasure in England, viz. a Forrest,

Forrest, a Chase, and a Park, they all three agree in one Thing, which is, that they are Habitations for wild Beasts; the two first lye open, the last inclos'd: The Forrest is the most noble of all, for it is a Franchise of so Princely a tenure, that according to our Laws, none but the King can have a Forrest; if he chance to pass one over to a Subject, 'tis no more a Forrest but frank Chase. Moreover, a Forrest hath the preheminance of the other two, both in Laws, in Offices, in Courts, and Kinds of Beasts: If any offend in a Chase or Park, he is punishable by the Common Law of the Land; but a Forrest hath Laws of her own to take cognizance of all Trespasses; she hath also her 'peculiar Officers, as Forresters, Verderers, Regarders, Agisters, &c. whereas a Chase or Park hath only Keepers and Woodwards: A Forrest hath her Court of Attachments, Swainmote Court, where matters are as pleadable, and determinable, as at Westminster-Hall. Lastly, They differ something in the Species of Beasts; the Hart, the Hind, the Boar, the Wolf, are Forrest Beasts; the Buck, the Doe, the Fox, the Matron, the Roe, are Beasts belonging to a Chase and Park.

The greatest Forrester they say that ever was in England, was King Canutus the Dane, and after him St. Edward, at which time Liber Rufus, the Red Book for Forrest-Laws was made; whereof one of the Laws was, Omnis Homo abstineat à Venariis meis super pœnam Vitæ; Let every one refrain from my Places of Hunting upon pain of Death.

Henry Fitz Empress, (viz. the second) did co-afforrest much Land, which continued all his Reign, though much complain'd of: But in King John's time most of the Nobles and Gentry met in the great Meadow 'twixt Windsor and Stains, to petition the King that he would dis-afforrest some, which he promised to do, but Death prevented him; but in Henry the third's Time the Chart. de Forresta (together with Magna Charta) were establish'd; so that there was much Land dis-afforrested, which hath been call'd pourliens ever since, whereof there were appointed Rangers, &c.

Among other innocent Animals which have suffer'd by these Wars, the poor Deer have felt the fury thereof as much as any; Nay, the very Vegetables have endur'd the brunt of it, insomuch, that it is not improperly said, That England of late is full of new Lights, her Woods being cut down, and so much destroy'd in most Places. So craving your Lordships pardon for this rambling piece of Paper, I rest,

My most highly honoured Lord,

London,
Aug. 3.

Your Obedient and ever obliged Servant, J. H.

XVII.

To Mr. E. Field, at Orleans.

S I R,

I N your last you write to me that you are settled for a while in Orleans, the loveliest City upon the Loire, and the best School for gaining pure Language; for as the Attick dialect in Greece, so the Aurelian in France doth bear the bell: But I must tell you, though you live now upon a brave River, which divides France well near in two Parts, yet she is held the drunkenest River in Christendom, for she swallows 32 other Rivers, which she disgorgeth all into the Sea at Nants; she may be called a more drunken River than Ebro in Spain, which takes her Name from Ebrio, according to the Proverb there, Me illamo Ebro porque de todas aguas bevo; I call myself Ebro because I drink of all Waters.

Moreover, though you sojourn now in one of the plentifullest Continents upon Earth, yet I believe you will find the People, I mean the Peasants, no where poorer, and more slavish; which convinceth two Errors, one of Aristotle, who affirms, that the Country of Gallia, though bordering upon Spain, hath no Asses; if he were living now, he would avouch the greatest part of the Inhabitants to be all Asses, they lye under such an intolerable burden of Taxes: The second Error is, that France is held to be the freest Country upon Earth to all People; for if a slave comes once to breath French Air, he is Free ipso facto, if we may believe Bodin, it being a fundamental Law of France, Servi peregrini, ut primum Gallia fines penetraverint liberi sunt, Let Stranger-Slaves as soon as they shall penetrate the Borders of France be Free: I know not what Priviledge Strangers may claim, but for the Native French themselves, I hold them to be under the greatest servitude of any other Nation. There is another Law in France which inhibits Women to rule; but what benefit doth accrue by this Law all the while that Women are Regent, and govern those who do rule? Which hath been exemplified in three Queen-mothers together: The Huguenots have long since voted the first two to Hell, to encrease the number of the Furies; and the Spaniard hath voted the third thither to make up the half dozen, for continuing a more violent War against her now only Brother, and with more eagerness than her Husband did.

So I wish you all happiness in your peregrination, advising you to take heed of that turbid humour of Melancholy, which they say you are too prone unto, for take this for a rule, that he who makes makes much of Melancholy, will never be rid of a troublesome Companion; So I rest,

Gentle Sir,

Lond. May 3.

Your most affectionate

Servant, J. H.

XVIII.

To the Lady E. Countess Dowager of Sunderland.

Madam,

I Am bold to send your Ladyship to the Country, a new Venice Looking-Glass, wherein you may behold that admired Maiden City in her true Complexion, together with her Government and Policy, for she is famous all the World over; Therefore, if at your Hours of leisure you please to cast your Eyes upon this Glass, I doubt not but it will afford you some Objects of Entertainment and Pleasure.

Moreover, your Ladyship may discern through this Glass, ah, this Glass, the Motions, and the very Heart of the Author, how he continueth still, and resolves so to do in what Condition soever he be,

Madam,

Lond. June 15.

Your most constant and dutiful Servant, J. H.

XIX.

To the R. H. the Earl of Clare.

My Lord,

A Mong those high Parts that go to make up a Grandee, which I find concentred in your Lordship, one is, the exact Knowledge you have of many Languages, not in a superficial vapouring Way, as some of our Gallants have now a-days, but in a most exact manner, both in point of Practice and Theory; this induc'd me to give your Lordship an account of a task that was impos'd lately upon me, by an emergent occasion, touching the Original, the growth, the changes, and present consistence of the French Language, which I hope may afford your Lordship some Entertainment.

There is nothing so incident to all sublunary Things as Corruptions and Changes; nor is it to be wondred at, considering that the Elements themselves, which are the Principles or Primitive Ingredients whereof they be compounded, are naturally so qualified: It were as easy a Thing for the Spectators Eye to fasten a firm shape upon a running Cloud, or to cut out a Garment that

but

but for a few Days together might fit the Moon, (who by privilege of her situation and neighbourhood predominates more over us than any other Cœlestial Body) as to find stability in any Thing here below.

Nor is this common frailty, or fatality rather, incident only to the grosser sort of Elementary Creatures, but Mankind, upon whom it pleas'd the Almighty to imprint His own Image, and make him as it were Lord Paramount of this Lower World, is subject to the same lubricity of Mutation; neither is his Body and Blood only liable thereunto, but the Ideas of his Mind, and interior Operations of his Soul; Religion herself, with the Notions of Holiness, and the formality of saving Faith not excepted, nay, the very faculty of Reason (as we find it too true by late experience) is subject to the same unstableness.

But to come to our present purpose, among other Privileges which are peculiar to Mankind, as Emanations flowing from the Intellect, Language is none of the least, and Languages are subject to the same fits of inconstancy and alteration as much as any Thing else, especially the French Language; nor can it seem strange to those, who know the airy volatile Humour of that Nation, that their Speech should partake somewhat of the disposition of their Spirit, but will rather wonder it hath receiv'd no oftner change, especially, considering what outward Causes did also concur thereunto; as that their Kings should make six several Voyages to conquer or conserve what was got in the Holy Land; considering also how long the English, being a People of another Speech, kept firm footing in the heart of France; add hereunto, the Wars and Weddings they had with their Neighbours, which by the long sojourn of their Armies in other Countries, caus'd by the first, and the Foreign Courtiers that came in with the second, might introduce a frequent Alteration: For Languages are like Laws or Coins, which commonly receive some change at every shift of Princes; or as slow Rivers by insensible alluvions take in and let out the Waters that feed them, yet are they said to have the same Beds; so Languages by a regardless adoption of some new Words, and manumission of old, do often vary, yet the whole bulk of the Speech keeps entire.

Touching the true, ancient and genuine Language of the Gauls, some would have it to be a dialect of the Dutch, others of the Greek, and some of the British or Welsh: Concerning this last Opinion, there be many Reasons to fortifie it, which are not altogether to be slighted.

The first is, that the ancient Gauls us'd to come frequently to be instructed here by the British Druides, who were the Divines and and Philosophers of those Times, which they would not probably have done, unless by mutual Communication they had understood one another in some Vulgar Language, for this was before the Greek or Latin came this side the Alps, or that any Books were written, and there are no meaner Men than Tacitus and Cesar themselves who Record this.

The second Reason is, that there want not good Geographers who hold, that this Island was tied to Gallia at first (as some say Sicily was to Calabria, and Denmark to Germany) by an Istmos or neck of Land from Calais to Dover; for if one do well observe the quality of the Cliffs on both shores, his Eye will judge that they were but one homogeneal Piece of Earth at first, and that they were flented and shiver'd asunder by some act of Violence, as the impetuous Waves of the Sea.

The third Reason is, that before the Romans conquer'd the Gauls, the Country was call'd Wallia, which the Romans call'd Gallia, turning W into G, as they did elsewhere, yet the Walloon keeps his radical Letter to this Day.

The fourth Reason is, that there be divers old Gaulick Words yet remaining in the French, which are pure British both for Sense and Pronunciation, as Havre, a Haven, which is the same in Welsh, derechef again, putaine a whore, arrain brags Money, prou an interjection of stopping, or driving of a Beast; but especially, when one speaks any old Word in French that cannot be understood, they say il parle Baragouin, which is to this Day in Welsh, White-bread.

Lastly, Pausanias saith, That Mark in the Celtick old French Tongue signifieth a Horse, and it signifieth the same in Welsh.

But though it be disputable whether the British, Greek, or Dutch was the Original Language of the Gauls, certain it is that it was the Walloon, (but I confine myself to Gallia Celtica) which when the Roman Eagle had fastned his Talons there, and planted 23 Legions up and down the Country, he did in tract of time utterly extinguish, it being the ordinary ambition of Rome wheresoever she prevail'd, to bring in her Language and Laws also with the Lance; which she could not do in Spain, or this Island, because they had Posts and Places of fastness to retire unto, as Biscay and Wales, where Nature hath cast up those Mountains as propugnacles of Defence, therefore the very aboriginal Languages of both Countries remain there to this Day. Now France being a passable and plain previous Continent, the Romans quickly diffus'd and rooted themselves in every part thereof, and so co-planted their Language, which in a short Revolution of Time came to be call'd Roman; but when the Franconians, a People of Germany, came afterwards to invade, and possess Gallia, both Speech and People

People was call'd French ever after, which is near 1300 Years since.

Now as all other Things have their degrees of growing, so Languages have before they attain a perfection: We find that the Latin herself in the times of the Sabins was but rude, afterwards under Ennias and Cato the Censor it was refin'd in twelve Tables; but in Cesar, Cicero and Salust's time it came to the highest pitch of Purity; and so dainty were the Romans of their Language then, that they would not suffer any exotick or strange Word to be enfranchiz'd among them, or enter into any of their Diplomas and publick Instruments of Command, or Justice; the Word Emblema having got into one, it was thrust out by an expresse Edict of the Senate, but Monopolium had with much ado leave to stay in, yet not without a large Preface and Apology: A little after, the Latin Tongue in the vulgarity thereof began to degenerate, and decline very much, out of which degeneration sprang up the Italian, Spanish and French.

Now, the French Language being set thus upon a Latin stock, hath receiv'd since sundry habitudes, yet retaining to this Day some Latin Words entire, as animal, cadaver, tribunal, non plus, qui, os, with a number of others.

Childerick, one of the first race of French Kings, commanded by publick Edict, that the 4 Greek Letters Θ χ Φ Ψ should be added to the French Alphabet, to make the Language more Masculine and strenuous, but afterwards it was not long observ'd.

Nor is it a worthless Observation, that Languages use to comply with the humour, and to display much the inclination of a People; the French Nation is quick and spriteful, so is his pronunciation; the Spaniard is slow and grave, so is his pronunciation: For the Spanish and French Languages being but branches of the Latin Tree, the one may be call'd Latin shortned, and the other Latin drawn out at length; as Corpus, Tempus, Caput, &c. are monosyllables in French, as Corps, Temps, Caps or Chef; whereas the Spaniard doth add to them, as Cuerpo, Tiempo, Cabeca; and indeed of any other, the Spaniard affects long Words, for he makes some thrice as long as they are in French, as of Levement arising, he makes Levantamiento; of Pensee a Thought, he makes Pensamiento; of Compliment he makes Complimiento: Besides, the Spaniard doth use to pause in his pronunciation, that his Tongue seldom foreruns his Wit, and his Brain may very well raise and superfoete a second Thought before the first be utter'd: Yet is not the French so hasty in his utterance as he seems to be, for his quickness or volubility proceeds partly from that concatenation he useth among his Syllables, by linking the Syllable of the precedent Word with with the last of the following, so that sometimes a whole Sentence is made in a manner but one Word, and he who will speak the French roundly and well, must observe this Rule.

The French Language began first to be polish'd, and arrive to that delicacy she is now come unto, in the midst of the Reign of Philip de Valois. Marot did something under Francis the first, (which King was a Restorer of Learning in general, as well as of Language;) but Ronsard did more under Henry the second: Since these Kings there is little difference in the Context of Speech, but only in the choice of Words, and softness of Pronunciation, proceeding from such wanton Spirits that did miniandize and make the Language more dainty and Feminine.

But to shew what Changes the French hath receiv'd from what it was, I will produce these few Instances in Verse and Prose which I found in some Ancient Authors: The first shall be of a Gentlewoman that translated Esop's Fables many hundred Years since, out of English into French, where she concludes,

Au finemen de cest' Escrit

Qu'en Romans ay tourne et dit;

Me nommer ay par remembrance;

Marie ay nom je suis de France;

Per l' amour de Conte Guillaume

Le plus vaillant de ce Royaume;

M' entremis do ce livre faire

Et de L' Anglois en Roman traire,

Esop appelle l' on cil Livre,

Qu'on translata et fit Ecrire;

De Grec en Latin le tourna,

Et le Roy Alvert qui l' ama,

Le translata puis en Angloiz,

Et je l' ay tourne en Francois.

Out of the Roman de la Rose I will produce this Example,

Quand ta bouche toucha lay moye,

Ce fut dont au Cœur jeus joye;

Sire Juge, donnes sentence

Par moy, Car, la pucelle est moye.

Two of the most ancient and approved Authors in French, are Geoffry de Villardovin, Marshal of Campagne, and Hagues de Bersy, a Monk of Clungy, in the Reign of Philippe Auguste, above 500 Years since, from them I will borrow these two ensuing Examples, the first from the Marshal, upon a Croisada to the Holy Land.

Seachiez que l' an 1188 ans apres l' incarnation al temps Innocent 3. Apostoille de Rome, et Philippe Roy de France, et Richard Roy d' Engleterre eut un Saint homme en France, qui et nom Folque de

de Nuilly, et il ere prestre, et tenoit le paroichre de la ville et ce Folque commença a parler de Biex, et nostre sire fit manits miracles par luy, &c.

Hugues de Bersy, who made the Guyot Bible, so much spoken in France, begins thus in Verse:

D'un siecle puant et horrible

M'estuet commencer une Bible.

Per poindre, et per ai guillonner

Et per bons exemples donner,

Ce n'ert une Bible bisongere

Ma's fine, et voire et droit uriere

Mironer ert a tontis gens.

If one would compare the English that was spoken in those Times, which is about 560 Years since, with the present, he should find a greater alteration.

But to know how much the Modern French differ from the Ancient, let him read our Common Law, which was held good French in William the Conqueror's Time.

Furthermore, among other Observations, I find that there are some single Words antiquated in the French, which seem to be more significant than those that are come in their Places, as Maratre, paratre, filatre, serourge, a step-mother, a step-father, a son or daughter in law, a sister in law, which now they express in two Words, belle mere, beau pere, belle sœur. Moreover, I find there are some Words now in French which are turn'd to a countersense, as we use the Dutch Word Crank in English to be well dispos'd, which in the Original signifieth to be sick; so in French, Cocu is taken for one whose Wife is light, and hath made him a passive Cuckold; whereas clean contrary, Cocu, which is the Cuckoo, doth use to lay her Eggs in another Birds Nest. This Word pleiger, is also to drink after one is drunk unto, whereas the first true sense of the Word was, that if the party drunk unto was not dispos'd to drink himself, he would put another for a pledge to do it for him, else the Party who began would take it ill; besides, this Word Abry deriv'd from the Latin apricus, is taken in French for a close place or shelter, whereas in the Original it signifieth an open free Sun-shine; they now term in French a free boon Companion, Roger bon temps, whereas the Original is rouge bon temps, reddish and fair Weather; they use also in France, when one hath a good bargain, to say, Il a joue a boule veue, whereas the Original is a bonne veue; A Beacon or Watch-Tower is call'd Beffroy, whereas the true Word is L'effroy; a travelling Warrant is call'd Passoport, whereas the Original is passee per tout; when one is grown hoarse, they use to say, Il a veu le loup, he hath seen the Wolf, whereas that effect of hoariness

hoariness is wrought in whom the Wolf hath seen first, according to Pliny, and the Poet:

——— Lupi illum videre priores.

There is one Saying or Proverb which is observable, whereby France doth confess herself to be still indebted to England, which is, when one hath paid all his Creditors, he useth to say, j'ay payé tous mes Anglois, so that in this, and other Phrases, Anglois is taken for Craencier, or Creditor; and I presume it had its Foundation from this, that when the French were bound by Treaty in Bretigny, to pay England so much for the ransom of King John, then Prisoner, the Contribution lay so heavy upon the People, that for many Years they could not make up the Sum: The occasion might be seconded in Henry the Eighth's time at the surrender of Bulloign, and upon other Treaties; as also in Queen Elizabeth's Reign, besides the Monies which she had disburs'd herself, to put the Crown on Henry the Fourth's Head, which makes me think on a passage that is recorded in Pasquier, that happen'd when the Duke of Anjou, under pretence of wooing the Queen, came over into England, who being brought to her presence, she told him, he was come in a good time to remain a pledge for the Monies that France owed her Father, and other of her Progenitors; whereunto the Duke answer'd, That he was come not only to be a Pledge, but her close Prisoner.

There be two other Sayings in French, which though they be obsolete, yet are they worthy the Knowledge; the first is, Il a perdue ses cheveux, he hath lost his Hair, meaning his Honour; For in the first race of Kings there was a Law call'd, Layloy de Cheveleure, whereby it was lawful for the Nobles only to wear long Hair, and if any of them had committed some foul and ignoble act, they us'd to be condemn'd to have their long Hair to be cut off as a mark of ignominy, and it was as much as if he had been fleuerdeliz'd, viz. burnt on the Back or Hand, or branded in the Face.

The other Proverb was, Il a quitte sa cienture, he hath given up his Girdle, which intimated as much as if he had become Bankrupt, or had all his Estate forfeited; it being the ancient Law of France, that when any upon some offence had that penalty of Confiscation inflicted upon him, he us'd before the Tribunal of Justice to give up his Girdle, implying thereby, that the girdle held every Thing that belong'd to a Mans Estate, as his budget of Money and Writings, the keys of his House, with his Sword, Dagger and Gloves, &c.

I will add hereunto, another Proverb which had been quite lost, had not our Order of the Garter preserv'd it, which is, Hony soit qui mal y pense, this we English, Ill to him who thinks ill, though the

the true Sense be, Let him be bewrayed who thinks any ill, being a Metaphor taken from a Child that hath bewray'd his Clouts; and I dare say there's not one of a hundred in France who understands this Word now a-days.

Furthermore, I find in the French Language, that the same fate hath attended some French Words, as usually attend Men, among whom some rise to Preferment, others fall to Decay and an undervalue; I will instance in a few, this Word Maitre was a Word of high esteem in former Times among the French, and applicable to Noblemen, and others in high Office only; but now 'tis fallen from the Baron to the Boor, from the Count to the Cobler, or any other mean Artisan, as Maitre Jean le Sauvetier, Mr. Jolin the Cobler; Maitre Jaquet le Cabaretier, Mr. Jemmy the Tapster.

Sire, was also appropriate only to the King, but now adding a Name after it, 'tis applicable to any mean Man upon the Endorsement of a Letter or otherwise. But this Word Souverain hath rais'd itself to that pitch of greatness, that it is applied now only to the King, whereas in times pass'd, the President of any Court, and Bayliff or Seneshal was us'd to be so call'd, Souverain.

Marshal likewise was at first the Name of a Smith, Farrier, or one that dress'd Horses, but it is climb'd by Degrees to that height, that the chiefest Commanders of the Gensdarmery and Militia of France are come to be call'd Marshals, which about 100 Years since were but Two in all, whereas now they are Twelve.

This Title Majesty hath no great Antiquity in France; for it began in Henry the second's time: And indeed the stile of France at first as well as of other Countries, was to Tutoyer, that is, to Thou, any Person that one spake unto, though never so high; but when the Commonwealth of Rome turn'd to an Empire, and so much Power came into one Mans hand, then, in regard he was able to confer Honour, and Offices, the Courtiers began to magnifie him, and treat him in the plural Number by You, and by degrees to deifie him by transcending Titles, as we read in Symmachus, in his Epistles to the Emperor Theodosius, and to Valentinian, where his stile to them is, Vestra eternitas, vestrum numen, vestra perennitas, vestra clementia, so that You in the plural Number with other Compliments and Titles, seems to have their first Rise with the Western Monarchy, which afterwards by Degrees descended upon particular Persons.

The French Tongue hath divers Dialects, viz. the Picardy, that of Jersey and Guernsey, appendixes once of Normandy, the Provencal, the Gascon, or the speech of Languedoc, which Scaliger would etymologize from Langue d'ouy, whereas it comes truly from Langue de God.

Got, in regard the Goths and Saracens who by their incursions and long stay in Aquitain, first corrupted the speech of Gallia; the Walloon is another dialect which is under the King of Spain: They also of Liege have a dialect of the French, which among themselves they call Romand to this day.

Touching the modern French that's spoken now in the King's Court, the Court of Parliament, and in the Universities of France, there had been lately a great competition which was the best; but by the learnedest, and most indifferent persons, it was adjudg'd, that the stile of the King's Court was the purest and most elegant, because the other two did smell, the one of pedantry, the other of chiquanery: And the late Prince of Conde, with the Duke of Orleans that now is, were us'd to have a Censor in their Houses, that if any of their Family spoke any word that favour'd of the Palace or the Schools, he should incur the penalty of an Amercement.

The late Cardinal of Richlieu made it part of his glory to advance Learning, and the French Language; among other Monuments he erected an University where the Sciences should be read and disputed in French for the ease of his Countrymen, whereby they might presently fall to the matter, and not spend time to study words only.

Thus have I presum'd to send your Lordship a rambling discourse of the French Language past and present, humbly expecting to be corrected when you shall please to have perused it: So I subscribe myself,

Lond. Octob. 1.

Your Lordship's thrice obedient Servant, J. H.

XX.

To Dr. Weames.

S I R,

I Return you many thanks for the additional you pleas'd to communicate unto me in continuance of Sir Philip Sidney's Arcadia, and I admir'd it the more because it was the composition of a young a spirit, which makes me tell you, without any compliment, that you are Father to a Daughter that Europe hath not many of her equals; therefore all those gentle Souls that pretend to vertue should cherish her: I have herewith sent you a few lines that relate to the work, according to your desire.

To Mrs. A. W.

If a Male Soul by Transmigration can Pass to a Female, and her Spirits Man,

G g

Then,

Then, sure, some sparks of Sidney's Soul hath flown
 Into your Breast, which may in time be blown
 To Flames, for 'tis the course of Enthean Fire
 To kindle by degrees, and Brains inspire:
 As Buds to Blossoms, Blossoms turn to Fruit,
 So Wits ask time to ripen and recruit;
 But yours gives Time the start, as all may see
 In this smooth piece of early Poesie,
 Which like sparks of one Flame may well aspire,
 If Phœbus please, to a Sydneyan Fire.

So with my very affectionate Respects to yourself, and to your choice Family, I rest London, Novemb. 9. Your ready and real
 Servant, J. H.

XXI.

To the incomparable Lady, the Lady M. Cary.

Madam,

I Have discover'd so much of Divinity in you, that he who would find your Equal, must seek one in the other World; I might play the Oracle, and more truly pronounce you the wisest of Women, than he did Pythagoras the wisest of Men: for questionless, that He or She are the wisest of all humane Creatures, who are careful of preserving the noblest part of them, I mean the Soul:
 They who prink, and pamper the Body, and neglect the Soul, are like one who having a Nightingal in his House, is more fond of the wicker Cage than of the Bird: or rather like one who hath a Pearl of an invaluable Price, and esteems the poor Box that holds it more than the Jewel; the Rational Soul is the Breath of God Almighty, she is his very Image, therefore who taints his Soul may be said to throw dirt in God's Face, and make his breath stink: The Soul is a spark of Immortality, she is a Divine Light, and the Body is but a Socket of Clay that holds it: In some this light goes out with an ill-favour'd stench; but others have a save-all to preserve it from making any snuff at all; Of this number, Madam, you are one that shines clearest in this Horizon, which makes me so much

Your Ladyship's truly devoted
 Servant, J. H.

London, Novemb. 3.

XXII.

To the Lord B. of Ro. at Knolls.

My Lord,

THE Christian Philosopher tells us, That a good Conscience is a perpetual Feast; and the Pagan Philosopher hath a saying,
 That a vertuous Man is always drunk: Both these sayings aim at one

one sense, viz. that an upright, discreet Man is always full of good Notions, and good Motions, his Soul is always in tune, and the Faculties thereof never jarring; he values this World as it is, a vale of trouble, and a valley of tears, full of encumbrances, and revolutions, and stands arm'd against all events: Si fractus illabatur Orbis.

While you read this you have your own character, for I know none more capable both for the practical part, as well as the Theory, to give Precepts of Patience, and prescribe Rules of Morality and Prudence to all Mankind: Your Mind is like a Stone-bridge over a rapid River, which though the Waters beneath be perpetually working, roaring and bubbling, yet the Bridge never stirs, pons manet immotus——; so among those monstrous mutations, and traverses that have lately happen'd you are still the same,

Mens immota manet.——

I receiv'd your last under the covert of Sir John Sackvil, to whom I present my affectionate Service, with a thousand thanks for that seasonable Present he pleas'd to send me, which will find me and my Friends some Employment, so desiring your Benediction, I conclude, and subscribe myself,

My Lord,

London, Decemb. 7.

Your truly Devoted
Servant, J. H.

XXIII.

To Sir W. Mason, Knight.

SIR,

I Present you with the second part of the Vocal Forrest; but before you make an entrance into the last Walk thereof, be pleas'd to take this short caution along with you, which tends to rectifie such who I hear are over-rash, and critical in their censure of what is there contain'd, not penetrating the main design of the Author in that Allegorical Discourse, nor in the quality of the Times, or the prudential Cautions, and Indifferencies that an Historical Piece expos'd to publick view should require, which may make them perchance to shoot their Bolts at Random, and with wry looks at those Trees; therefore let the discerning Surveyor, as he crosseth this last Walk take a short advertisement beforehand; that whatsoever he meets therein glancing on the Oak, consists of imperfect suggestions, foreign criticisms, and presumptions, &c. Now, every petty Sciolist in the Laws of reason can tell that presumptions were never taken yet for proofs, but for left-handed arguments, approaching rather the nature of cavillations than consequences.

Moreover, Apologs, Parables, and Metaphors, though press'd never so hard, have not the strength to demonstrate, or positively assert any Thesis; for as in Theology, the highest of Sciences, it is a received Principle, Scriptura Parabolica non est argumentativa, so this Maxim holds good in all other Composures, and Arts. 'Tis granted, that in the Walks of this Forrest there be some free and home expressions, drawing somewhat near to the nature of Satyrs, for otherwise it had been a vain superfluous curiosity to have spent so much oyl and labour in shrowding Realities under disguises, unless the Author had promised himself beforehand a greater latitude and scope of liberty to pry into some miscarriages, and solecismes of State; as also to question and perstringe some sorts of Actors, especially the Cardenian and Classican, who, as the whole world can witness, were the first raisers of those hideous tempests which powr'd down in so many showers of blood upon unfortunate Druina, and all her co-afforrested Territories.

Now, touching that which is spoken of the Oak in the last Walk, if any intemperate Basilean take exceptions thereat, let him know, that, as 'twas said before, most of them are but traducements, and pretensions; yet, it is a humane principle, (and will ever be so to the world's end) that there never was yet any Prince, (except one) nor will there ever be any hereafter, but had his frailties, and these frailties in Kings are like stains in the purest Scarlet, which are more visible: What are but motes in others, are as beams in them, because that being mounted so high, they are more expos'd to the eye of the World: And if the Historian points happily at some of those motes in the Royal Oak, he makes good what he promis'd in the entrance of the Forrest, that he would endeavour to make a constant grain of evenness and impartiality to pass through the whole bulk of that Arborical Discourse.

We read that there being a high feud 'twixt Cicero and Vatinius who had crooked bow-legs, Vatinius having the advantage of pleading first, took occasion to give a touch himself of his natural imperfection that way, that he might tollere ansam, that he might by way of prevention cut off the advantages and intention which Cicero might have had to asperse him in that particular; the application hereof is easie and obvious.

But if the sober-minded Reader observe well what is spoken elsewhere of the Oak throughout the body and series of the story, he will easily conclude, that 'twas far from the design of the Author out of any self or sinister ends to let any sower droppings fall from from these Trees to hurt the Oak; and give me leave to tell you, That he who hath but as much wit as may suffice to preserve him from being begg'd for a Fool will judge so.

Lastly, they who know any thing of the Laws of History, do well know, that verity and indifference are two of the prime virtues that are requisite in a Chronicler. The same answer may serve to stop their mouths who would say something, if they could tell what, against my Survey of the Signory of Venice, and dedicated to the Parliament of England, as if the Author had chang'd his Principles, and were affected to Republicks; whereas there's not a syllable therein but what makes for Monarchy: therefore I rather pity than repine at such poor Criticks, with the shallowness of their Judgments.

Thus much I thought good to intimate unto you, not that I mistrust your own censure, which I know to be candid and clear, but that if there be occasion you may vindicate

Your truly affectionate
Servant, J. H.

Lond. Apr. 4.

XXIV.

To the Right Honourable the Lady E. Savage, afterwards Countess Rivers.

Excellent Lady,

AMong those multitudes that claim a share in the loss of so precious a Lord, mine is not the least, O how willingly could I have measur'd with my feet, and perform'd a pilgrimage over all those large Continents wherein I have travell'd, to have repriev'd him! Truly Madam, I shall mourn for him while I have a heart beating in my breast; and though Time may mitigate the sense of grief, yet his Memory shall be to me, like his Worth and Virtues, everlasting: But it is not so much to be lamented that he hath left us, (it being so infinitely to his advantage) as that he hath left behind so few like him.

I confess, Madam, this is the weightiest cross that possibly could come to exercise your patience, but I know your Ladyship to be both Pious and Prudent in the highest degree, let the one preserve you from excess of sorrow, which may prove irreligious to Heaven; and the other keep you from being injurious to yourself, and to that goodly brave Issue of his, which may serve as so many living Copies of the Original.

God Almighty comfort your Ladyship, so prayeth,

Madam, Your most humble, and sorrowful servant, J. H.

London, Feb. 2.

XXV.

To the Right Honourable, John Lord Sa.

My Lord,

I Should be much wanting to myself, if I did not congratulate your lately descended Honours: But truly, my Lord, this congratulation is like a vapour exhal'd from a Soil overwhelm'd with a sudden Inundation, such is the state of my Mind at this time, it being o'ercast with a thick fog of grief for the Death of your incomparable Father.

I pray from the centre of my heart that you may inherit his high worth and vertues, as you do all things else, and I doubt it not, having discover'd in your nature so many pregnancies, and sparkles of innated Honour. So I rest in quality of London, Decemb. 10.

Your Lordship's most humble
Servant, J. H.

XXVI.

To Mr. J. Wilfon.

S I R,

I Receiv'd yours of the 10th current, and I have many thanks to give you, that you so quaintly acquaint me how variously the pulse of the Pulpiters beat in your Town: Touching ours here (by way of corresponding with you) I'll tell you of one whom I heard lately; for dropping casually into a Church in Thames-street, I fell upon a Winter-Preacher who spoke of nothing but of the Fire and Flames of Hell, so that if a Scythian or Greenlander, who are habituated to such extream cold had heard and understood him, would have thought he had Preached of Paradise, his mouth methought did fume with the Lake of Brimstone, with the Infernal Torments, and the thundrings of the Law, not a syllable of the Gospel, so I concluded him to be one of those who use to Preach the Law in the Church, and the Gospel in their Chambers, where they make some female Hearts melt into pieces: He repeated his Text once, but God knows how far it was from the Subject of his Preachment; he had also hot and fiery incitements to War, and to swim in Blood for the Cause: But after he had run away from his Text so long, the Spirit led him into a Wilderness of Prayer, and there I left him.

God amend all, and begin with me, who am

London, July 5.

Your assured Friend
to serve you, J. H.

XXVII.

To Sir E. S.

S I R,

I N the various courses of my wandring life, I have had occasion to spend some part of my time in litteral correspondences with divers, but I never remember that I pleas'd my self more in paying these civilities to any than to yourself; - for when I undertake this task, I find that my head, my hand, and my heart go all so willingly about it, the Invention of the one, the graphical office of the other, and the affections of the last are so ready to obey me in performing the work; work do I call it? 'tis rather a sport, my pen and paper are as a chessboard, or as your Instrument of Musick are to you when you would recreate your harmonious soul; whence this proceeds I know not, unless it be from a charming kind of vertue that your Letters carry with them to work upon my spirits, which are so full of facete and familiar friendly strains, and so punctual in answering every part of mine, that you may give the Law of Epistolizing to all Mankind.

Touching your Poet Lawreat Skelton, I found him (at last, as I told you before) skulking in Duck-lane, pittifully tatter'd and torn, and as the times are, I do not think it worth the labour and cost to put him in better clothes, for the Genius of the Age is quite another thing, yet there be some lines of his which I think will never be out of date for their quaint sense; and with these I will close this Letter, and salute you as he did his friend with these options.

*Salve plus decies quam sunt momenta dierum,
Quot species generum, quot Res, quot nomina Rerum,
Quot prati flores, quot sunt & in orbe colores,
Quot pisces, quot Aves, quot sunt & in Æquore Naves,
Quot volucrum Pennæ, quot sunt tormenta Gehennæ,
Quot cæli stellæ, Quot sunt miracula Thomæ,
Quot sunt virtutes, tantas tibi mitto salutes.*

These were the wishes in time of yore of Jo. Skelton, but now they are of London, Aug. 4.

Yours, J. H.

XXVIII.

To R. Davies, Esq;

S I R,

D I D your Letters know how truly welcome they are to me, they would make more haste, and not loyter so long in the way, for I did not receive yours of the second of June, till the first of July ; which is time enough to have travell'd, not only a hundred English, but so many Helvetian Miles, that are five times bigger, for in some places they contain forty furlongs, whereas ours have but eight, unless it be in Wales, where they are allowed better measure, or in the North parts where there is a way-bit to every mile : But that yours should be a whole month in making scarce 100 English Miles, (for the distance between us is no more) is strange to me, unless you purposely sent it by John Long the Carrier. I know being so near Lemsters Ore that you dwell in a gentle soil which is good for cheese as well as for cloth, therefore if you send me a good one, I shall return my Cousin your Wife something from hence that may be equivalent ; if you neglect me, I shall think that Wales is relapsed into her first barbarismes ; for Strabo makes it one of his arguments to prove the Britains barbarous, because they had not the Art of making Cheese till the Romans came : But I believe you will preserve them from this imputation again. I know you can want no good grass thereabouts, which, as they say here, grows so fast in some of your Fields, that if one should put his Horse there over night, he should not find him again the next morning. So with my very respectful commends to yourself, and to the partner of your couch and cares, I rest, my dear Cousin,

Lond. June 5.

Yours always to dispose of, J. H.

XXIX.

To W. Roberts, Esq;

S I R,

THE Dominical Prayer, and the Apostolical Creed, (whereof there was such a hot dispute in our last conversation) are two Acts tending to the same object of devotion, yet they differ in this, that we conclude all in the first, and ourselves only in the second, one may beg for another, but he must believe for himself, there is no man can believe by a deputy ; the Articles of the Creed are as the twelve signs in the Zodiack of Faith, which make way for the Sun of Righteousness to pass through the centre of our hearts, as a Gentleman doth wittily compare them : But what offence the Lord's Prayer, or the Creed have committed (together with the Ten Commandments) as to be as it were banished the Church of late years, I know not ; considering that the whole office of a Christian may be said to be comprehended in them, for the last prescribes us what we should do, the second what we should should believe, the third how, and what we should pray for: Of all the Hereticks that ever I heard of, I never read of any who bore analogy with these.

Touching other opinions, they are but old fancies newly furnished; there were Adamites in former times, and Rebaptizers: There were Iconoclastæ, destroyers of Images, but I never read of Stauroclastæ, destroyers of Crosses: There were also Agonizites, who held it a superstition to bow the knee; besides, there were those who stumbled at the Resurrection, as too many do now: There were Aerians also who malign'd Bishops and the Hierarchy of the Church, but we read those Aerians turn'd Arrians, and Atheists at last: The greatest Greek and Latin Fathers inveigh against those Aerians more bitterly than against any other: Chrysostom saith, Hereticks who have learnt of the Devil not to give due honour to Bishops; and Epiphanius saith, It is the voice of a Devil, rather than of a Christian, that there is no difference 'twixt a Bishop and a Presbyter, &c.

Good Lord, what fiery clashings we have had lately for a Cap and a Surplice! what an ocean of humane blood was spilt for Ceremonies only, and outward formalities, for the bare position of a Table! But as we find the ruffling winds to be commonly in Cimiteries, and about Churches, so the eagerest, and most sanguinary Wars are about Religion, and there is a great deal of weight in that distich of Prudentis,

*Sic mores produnt animum, & mihi credite semper
Junctus cum falso est dogmate cadis amor.*

Let the Turk spread his Alcoran by the sword, but let Christianity expand herself still by a passive fortitude, wherein she always gloried.

We live in a strange age, when every one is in love with his own Fancy, as Narcissus was with his Face, and this is true Spiritual Pride, the usherer in of all confusions; the Lord deliver us from it, and grant we may possess our Souls with patience, till the great wheel of providence turn up another spoke that may point at peace, and unanimity among poor mortals; in these hopes I rest

London, Jan. 5.

Yours entirely, J. H.

XXX.

To Howel Guyn, Esq.

My much endeared Cousin,

I Send you herewith according to your desires the British or Welsh Epitaph (for the Saxons gave us that new name, calling us Welshmen, or strangers in our own Country) which Epitaph was found in the West-Indies upon Prince Madoc near upon 600 years since:
Madoc

Madoc wif mw y die wed
Fawn genan Owen Gwyneth,
Ni funnum dir fy enridd oedd,
Ni da mowr ondy moroedd.

Which is English'd thus in Mr. Herbert's Travels,

Madoc ap Owen was I call'd,
 Strong, tall, and comely, not inthrall'd
 With home-bred Pleasure, but for Fame
 Through Land and Sea I sought the same.

This British Prince Madoc (as many Authors make mention) made two Voyages thither, and in the last left his Bones there, upon which this Epitaph lay. There be other pregnant remarks that the British were there, for there is a Promontory not far from Mexico, call'd Cape-Britain, there is a Creek call'd Gyndwor, which is in Welch White-water, with other words, as you shall find in Mr. Herbert's and others; they had also the sign of the Cross in reverence among them.

And now that I am upon British Observations, I will tell you something of this name Howell, which is your first, and my second name: passing lately by the Cloysters of the Abbey at Westminster, I step'd up to the Library that Archbishop Williams erected there, and I lighted upon a French Historian, Bertrane a Argentre Lord of Forges, who was President of the Court of Parliament in Rennes the chief Town of little Britany in France, call'd Armorica, which is a pure Welsh word, and signifies a Country bordering upon the Sea, as that doth, and was first coloniz'd by the Britains of this Island in the reign of Theodosius the Emperor, An. 387. whose Language they yet preserve in their radical words: In that Historian I found that there were four Kings of that Country of the name Hopell, viz. Howell the first, Howell the second, Howell the Great, (who bore up so stoutly against Aetius the famous Roman General,) and Howell the fourth, that were all Kings of Armorica, or the lesser Britany, which continued a Kingdom till the Year 874, at which time the Title was chang'd to a Dutchy, but Sovereign of itself, till it was reduc'd to the French Crown by Francis the first. There are many Families of quality of that name to this day in France; and one of them desir'd to be acquainted with me by the mediation of Monsieur Augieur who was their Agent for England. Touching the Castle of good King Howell hard by you, and other ancient places of that name, you know them better than I, but the best Title which England hath to Wales is by that Castle, as a great Antiquary told me: So in a true bond of Friendship, as well as of Blood, I rest, Lond. Oct. 8.

Your most Affectionate Cousin, J. H.

XXX,

XXX.

To Mr. W. Price at Oxon.

My precious Nephew,

There could hardly better news be brought to me, than to understand that you are so great a Student, and that having pass'd through the briers of Logick, you fall so close to Philosophy: Yet I do not like your method in one thing, that you are so fond of new Authors, and neglect the old, as I hear you do: It is the ungrateful genius of this Age, that if any Sciolist can find a hole in an old Author's coat, he will endeavour to make it much more wide, thinking to make himself some body thereby; I am none of those, but touching the Ancients, I hold this to be a good Moral Rule, Laudandum quod bene, ignoscendum quod aliter dixerunt: The older an Author is, commonly the more solid he is, and the greater teller of Truth: This makes me think on a Spanish Captain, who being invited to a Fish-dinner, and coming late, he sat at the lower end of the Table where the small fish lay, the great ones being at the upper end; thereupon he took one of the little fish and held it to his ear, his Comrades ask'd him what he meant by that? He answer'd in a sad tone, Some 30 years since my Father passing from Spain to Barbary was cast away in a storm, and I am asking this little fish whether he could tell any tidings of his body, he answers me, that he is too young to tell me any thing, but those old Fish at your end of the Table may say something to it, so by that trick of drollery he got his share of them: The application is easie, therefore I advise you not to neglect old Authors, for though we become as it were to the Meridian of truth, yet there be many Neoterical Commentators and self-conceited Writers that eclipse her in many things, and go from obscurum to obscurius.

Give me leave to tell you, Cousin, that your kindred and friends, with all the world besides, expect much from you, in regard of the pregnancy of your spirit, and those advantages you have of others, being now at the source of all knowledge: I was told of a Countryman who coming to Oxford, and being at the Towns-end, stood listning to a flock of Geese, and a few dogs that were hard by, being ask'd the reason, He answer'd that he thought the Geese about Oxford did gaggle Greek, and the Dogs barked in Latin; if some in the world think so much of those irrational poor creatures that take in University air, what will your friends in the Country expect from you who have the Instrument of reason in such a perfection, and so well strung with a tenacious Memory, a quick understanding, and rich invention, all which I have discover'd ver'd in you, and doubt not but you will employ them to the comfort of your friends, your own credit, and the particular contentment of

Lond. Feb. 3.

Your truly affectionate

Uncle, J. H.

XXXII.

To Sir K. D. in Paris,

S I R,

I Had been guilty of such an offence whereof I should never have absolv'd myself, if I had omitted so handsome an opportunity to quicken my old devotions to you: Among those multitudes here we resent your hard condition, and the protractions of your business, there is none who is more sensible that so gallant and sublime a soul (so much renowned throughout the World) should meet with such harsh traverses of fortune; for myself, I am like an Almanack out of date, I am grown an unprofitable thing, and good for nothing as the times run, yet in your business I shall play the Whetstone, which though it be a dull thing of itself, and cannot cut, yet it can make other bodies to cut, so shall I quicken those who have the managing of your business, and power to do you good, whensoever I meet them. So I rest

Lond. Sept. 2.

Your thirty years Servant, J. H.

XXXIII.

To Mr. R. Lee in Antwerp.

S I R,

A N acre of performance is worth the whole Land of Promise; besides, as the Italian hath it, Deeds are Men, and Words Women: you pleas'd to promise me when you shook hands with England to barter Letters with me; but whereas I writ to you a good while since by Mr. Simons, I have not receiv'd a syllable from you ever since.

The times here frown more and more upon the Cavaliers, yet their minds are buoy'd up still with strong hopes; some of them being lately in company of such whom the Times favour, and reporting some comfortable news on the Royalists side, one of the other answer'd, Thus you Cavaliers still fool yourselves, and build always Castles in the air; thereupon a sudden reply was made, Where will you have us to build them else, for you have taken all our Lands from us? I know what you will say when you read this, A pox on those true jests.

This tale puts me in mind of another; There was a Gentleman lately lately who was offer'd by the Parliament a parcel of Church or Crown Lands, equivalent to his arrears, and asking Counsel of a friend of his which he should take, he answer'd, Crown Lands by all means, for if you take them, you run a hazard only to be hang'd, but if you take Church-Lands you are sure to be damn'd, whereunto the other made him a shrewd reply, Sir, I'll tell you a tale; There was an old Usurer not far from London, who had train'd up a dog of his to bring his meat after him in a handbasket, so that in time the shag-dog was so well bred, that his Master us'd to send him by himself to Smithfield Shambles with a basket in his mouth, and a note in the bottom thereof to his Butcher, who accordingly would put in what joynt of meat he writ for, and the dog would carry it handsomely home; it happen'd one day, that as the dog was carrying a good shoulder of Mutton home to his Master, he was set upon by a company of other huge dogs, who snatch'd away the basket, and fell to the Mutton; the other dog measuring his own single strength, and finding he was too weak to redeem his Master's Mutton, said within himself, (as we read the like of Cryseippus's dog) nay, since there is no remedy you shall be hang'd before you have all: I will have also my share, and so fell a eating amongst them; I need not, said he, make the application unto you, 'tis too obvious, therefore I intend to have my share also of the Church-Lands.

In that large list of friends you have left behind you here, I am one who is very sensible that you have thus banish'd yourself; it is the high will of heaven that matters should be thus, therefore Quod divinitus accidit humiliter, quod ab hominibus viriliter ferendum; We must manfully bear what comes from men, and humbly what comes from above: The Pagan Philosopher tells us, Quod divinitus contingit homo a se nulla arte cispellet, There is no fence against that which comes from Heaven, whose decrees are irreverfable.

Your friends in Fleet-street are all well, both long-coats and short-coats, and so is Your inalterable Friend to love and serve you, J. H.

Lond. Nov. 9.

XXXIV.

To Sir J. Tho. Knight.

S I R,

There is no request of yours but is equivalent to a command with me; and whereas you crave my thoughts touching a late history publish'd by one Mr. Wilson, which relates the Life of King James,

James, though I know for many years your own judgment to be strong and clear enough of itself, yet to comply with your desires, and for to oblige you that way another time to me, I will deliver you my Opinion.

I cannot deny but the thing is a painful piece, and proceeds after a handsome method in drawing on the series and thread of the story, but it is easily discernable, that a partial Presbyterian vein goes constantly throughout the whole work, and you know it is the genius of that people to pry more than they should into the Courts and comportments of Princes, and take any occasion to traduce and bespatter them: So doth this Writer, who endeavours all along (among other things) to make the World believe that King James and his Son after him were inclin'd to Popery, and to bring it into England: Whereas I dare avouch, that neither of them entertain'd the least thought that way, they had as much design to bring in Prester-John as the Pope, or Mahomet as soon as the Moss; this conceit made the Writer to be subject to many mistakes, and misrepresentations, which so short a circuit as a Letter cannot comprehend.

Yet I will instance in one gross mistake he hath in relating a passage which concerns Sir Elias Hicks, a worthy Knight, and a fellow-servant of yours and mine. And he doth not only misrepresent the business, but he foully asperseth him with the terms of Unworthiness and Infamy; the truth of that passage is as followeth, and I had it from very good hands:

In the Year 1621. The French King making a general War against them of the Religion, beleaguer'd Montauban in Person, while the Duke of Espenon block'd up Rochel: The King having lain a good while before the Town, a cunning report was rais'd that Rochel was surrendred, this report being blown into Montauban, must needs dishearten them of Rochel, being the prime and tenablest propugnacle they had; Mr. Hicks happen'd to be then in Rochel, being commended by Sir George Goring to the Marquis de la force, who was one of them that commanded in chief, and treated Mr. Hicks with much civility, so far that he took him to be one of his domestick Attendants: The Rochellers had sent two or three special Envoys to Montauban to acquaint them with their good condition, but it seems they all miscarried, and the Marquis being troubled in his thoughts one day, Mr. Hicks told him, that by God's favour he would undertake and perform the service to Montauban; hereupon he was put accordingly in equipage; so after ten days journey, he came to a place call'd Moyssack, where my Lord of Doncaster, afterwards Earl of Carlile was in quality of Ambassador from England, to observe the French King's proceedings, proceedings, and to mediate a Peace 'twixt him and the Protestants: At his first arrival thither it was his good hap to meet casually with Mr. Peregrin Fairfax, one of the Lord Ambassador's retinue, who had been a former Comrade of his: Among other Civilities he brought Mr. Hicks to wait upon the Ambassador, to whom he had credential Letters from the Assembly of Rochel, acquainting his Lordship with the good state they were in; Mr. Hicks told him besides that he was engaged to go to Montauban as an Envoy from Rochel, to give them true information how matters stood: The Ambassador replied, That it was too great a trust to put upon so young shoulders: So Mr. Hicks being upon going to the French Army which lay before Montauban, Mr. Fairfax would needs accompany him thither to see the Trenches and Works, being come thither they met with one Mr. Tho. Webb that belong'd to the Marshal St. Gerand, who lodg'd them both in his own Hut that night; and having shew'd them the Batteries and Trenches the day after, Mr. Hicks took notice of one place which lay most open for his design, resolving with himself to pass that way to the Town: He had told Fairfax of his purpose before, who discovering it to Webb, Webb ask'd him whether he came thither to be hang'd; for divers were us'd so a little before: The next day Hicks taking his leave of Webb, desir'd Fairfax to stay behind, which he refusing, did ride along with him to the place which Hicks had pointed out the day before for his design, and there Fairfax left him; so having got betwixt the Corps de gard and the Town, he put spurs to his horse, and waving his pistol about his head, got in, being pursued almost to the Walls of the Town by the King's party: Being entred, old Marshal de la Force, who was then in Montauban, having heard his relations of Rochel, fell on his neck and wept, saying, That he would give 1000 Crowns he were as safely got back to Rochel as he came thither: And having staid there three weeks, he, in a sally that the Town made one Evening, got clear through the Leaguer before Montauban, as he had formerly done before that of the Duke of Espernon, and so recover'd Rochel again. But to return to Mr. Fairfax, after he had parted with Mr. Hicks he was taken Prisoner, and threatned the rack, but whether out of the apprehension thereof, or otherwise, he died a little after of a Fever at Moy-sack; though 'tis true that the Gazetts in Paris did publish that he died of the Torture, with the French Mercury since.

Mr. Hicks being return'd to London was question'd by Sir Ferdinando Fairfax for his brother's death, thereupon Mr. Webb being also come back to London, who was upon the very place where these things happen'd in France, Mr. Hicks brought him along with with him to Sir Ferdinand's Lodgings, who did positively affirm, that Mr. Hicks had communicated his design to Mr. Peregrin Fairfax, (and that he reveal'd it first to him) so he did fairly vindicate Mr. Hicks, wherewith Sir Ferdinand remain'd full satisfied, and all his kindred.

Whosoever will observe the carriage and circumstance of this action, must needs confess that Mr. Hicks (now Sir Elias Hicks) did comport himself like a worthy Gentleman from the beginning to the end thereof: The design was generous, the conduct of it discreet, and the conclusion very prosperous, in regard it preserv'd both Montauban and Rochel for that time from the fury of the Enemy; for the King rais'd his siege a little after from before the one, and Espernon from before the other; therefore it cannot be denied but that the said writer (who so largely entitles his book the History of Great Britain, though it be but the particular Reign of King James only) was very much to blame for branding so well a deserving Gentleman with Infamy and Unworthiness, which are the words he pleaseth to bestow upon him; and I think he would willingly recant, and retract his rash censure, were he now living, but Death press'd him away before the Press had done with his Book, whereof he may be said to have died in Childbed.

So presenting herewith unto you my hearty respects and love, endear'd and strengthen'd by so long a tract of time, I rest

Your faithful truly

Lond. Novemb. 9.

Servant, J. H.

XXXV.

To Mr. R. Lewis in Amsterdam.

Cousin,

I Found yours of the first of February in the Posthouse, as I casually had other business there; else it had miscarried, I pray be more careful of your directions hereafter. I much thank you for the avises you sent me how matters pass thereabouts: Methinks that Amsterdam begins to smell rank of a Hans Town, as if she would be independant, and Paramount over the rest of the confederate Provinces; she hath some reason in one respect, because Holland contributes three parts of five, and Amsterdam herself near upon the one moiety of those three parts to maintain the Land and Naval Forces of the States General: That Town likewise as I hear begins to compare with Venice, but let her stay there a while; yet she may in some kind do it, for their situation and beginning have been alike, being both indented with Waters, and both Fisher-Towns at first.

But I wonder at one news you write me, that Amsterdam should fall fall of repairing and beautifying Churches, whereas the News here is clean contrary; for while you adorn your Churches there, we destroy them here: Among others, poor Paul's look like a great Skeleton, so pitifully handled, that you may tell her Ribs through her Skin; her Body looks like the Hulk of a huge Portugal Carrack, that having cross'd the Line twelve times, and made three Voyages into the East-Indies, lies rotting upon the strand Truly, I think not Turk or Tartar, or any Creature except the Devil himself, would have us'd Paul's in that manner: You know that once a Stable was made a Temple, but now a Temple is become a Stable among us. Proh superi! quantum mortalia pectora Cæca, Noctis habent. —

There are strange Heteroclites in Religion now adays, among whom some of them may be said to endeavour the exalting of the Kingdom of Christ, in lifting it upon Belzebub's back, by bringing in so much Prophaneness to avoid Superstition. God deliver us from Atheism, for we are within one step of it, and touching Judaism, some corners of our City smell as rank of it, as yours doth there.

I pray be punctual in your returns hereafter, for as you say well and wittily, Letters may be said to be the chiefest Organs (though they have but paper Pipes) through which Friendship doth use to breath and operate: For my part, I shall not be wanting to set those Organs a working for the often conveyance of my best Affections unto you. Sir T. Williams, with his choice Lady, blow over through the same Pipe their kind respects unto you, and so do divers of your Friends besides; but especially, my dear Cousin,

Lond. Jan. 3.

Yours, J. H.

XXXVI.

To J. Anderson, Esq;

S I R,

YOU have been often at me (though I know you to be a Protestant so in grain, that all the Waters of the Tyber is not able to make you change colour) that I should impart unto you in Writing, what I have observ'd commendable and discommendable in the Roman Church, because I had eaten my Bread often in those Countries where that Religion is profess'd and practis'd in the greatest height. Touching the second part of your request, I need not say any Thing to it, for there be Authors enough of our Church to inform you about the Positions and Tenets wherein we differ, and for which we blame them: Concerning the first part, I will give you a short intimation of what I noted to be Praise-worthy, and imitable in point of Practice.

H h

The

The Government of the Roman Church is admirable, being modell'd with as much Policy as the Wit of Man can reach unto, and there must be Civil Policy as well as Ecclesiastick us'd, to keep such a World of People, of several Nations and humours in one Religion; though at first, when the Church extended but to one Chamber, then to one House, after to one Parish, then to one Province, such Policy was not so requisite. For the Church of Christ may be compar'd to his Person in Point of Degrees of growing; and as that Coat which serv'd him in his Childhood could not fit him in his Youth, nor that of his Youth when he was come to his Manhood, no more would the same Government (which compar'd to the Fundamentals of Faith (that are still the same) are but as outward Garments) fit all Ages of the Church, in regard those Millions of Accidents that use to attend Time, and the mutable Humours of Men; insomuch, that it was a wholesome caution of an ancient Father, Distinguas inter tempora, & concordabis cum Scriptura. This Government is like a great Fabrick rear'd up with such exact rules of Art and Architecture, that the Foundation, the roof, sides, and angles, with all the other parts have such a dependance of mutual support by a rare contingation, concinnity and indentings one in the other, that if you take out but one Stone it hazards the downfal of the whole Edifice. This makes me think that the Church of Rome would be content to part with, and rectifie some Things, if it might not endanger the ruin of the whole, which puts the World in despair of an Oecumenical Council again.

The Uniformity of this Fabrick is also to be admir'd, which is such, as if it were but one entire continued Homogeneous Piece; for put case a Spaniard should go to Poland, and a Pole should travel to the furthest part of Spain, whereas all other Objects may seem never so strange to them in point of Lodging, Language and Diet, though the Complexion and Faces, the Behaviour, Garb, and Garments of Men, Women and Children be differing, together with the very Air and Clime of the Place; though all Things seem strange unto them, and so somewhat uncouth and comfortless, yet when they go to God's House in either Countries, they may say they are there at home, for nothing differs there either in Language, Worship, Service or Ceremony, which must needs be an unspeakable Comfort to either of them.

Thirdly, it must needs be a commendable Thing that they keep their Churches so cleanly and Amiable, for the Dwellings of the Lord of Hosts should be so: To which end your greatest Ladies will rise before Day, sometimes in their night Clothes to fall a sweeping some part of the Church, and decking it with Flowers, as I heard Count Gondamar's Wife us'd to do here, at Ely-house Chappel; besides, sides, they keep them in constant Repair, so that if but a quarry of Glass chance to be broken, or the least Stone be out of Square, 'tis presently mended: Moreover, their Churches stand wide open early and late, inviting as it were all comers, so that a poor troubled Soul may have access thither at all Hours to breath out the pantings of his Heart, and the Ejaculations of his Soul, either in Prayer or Praise; nor is there any exception of Persons in their Churches, for the Cobler will kneel with the Count, and the Laundress gig by goll with her Lady, there being no Pews there to cause pride and envy, contentions and quarrels which are so rife in our Churches.

The comely prostrations of the Body, with genuflexion, and other Acts of Humility in Time of Divine Service is very exemplary: Add hereunto, that the Reverence they shew to the holy Function of the Church is wonderful, Princes and Queens will not disdain to kiss a Capuchins sleeve, or the Surplice of a Priest: Besides, I have seen the greatest and beautifullst young Ladies go to Hospitals, were they not only dress, but lick the Sores of the sick.

Furthermore, the conformity of seculars, and resignation of their Judgments to the Governours of the Church is remarkable; there are not such Scepticks and cavillers there as in other Places; they humbly believe that Lazarus was three Days in the Grave, without questioning where his Soul was all the while, nor will they expostulate how a Man who was born Blind from his Nativity, should presently know the shape of Trees, whereunto he tho't the first Men he ever saw were like, after he received sight: Add hereunto, that they esteem for Church Preferments, most commonly, a Man of a pious good Disposition, of a meek Spirit, and godly Life, more than a Learned Man, that is either a great Linguist, Antiquary or Philosopher; and the first is advanc'd sooner than the latter.

Lastly, They think nothing too good or too much for God's House, or for his Ministers, no Place too sweet, no Buildings too stately for them, being of the best Profession. The most curious Artists will employ the best of their Skill to compose Hymns and Anthems for God's House, &c.

But, methinks I hear you say, that you acknowledge all this to be commendable, were it not that it is accompanied with an odd Opinion, that they think to Merit thereby, accounting them Works of Supererogation.

Truly Sir, I have discours'd with the greatest Magnifiers of Meritorious Works, and the chiefest of them, made me this comparison, that the Blood of Christ is like a great Vessel of Wine, and all the Merits of Men, whether Active or Passive, were it possible, must be put into that great Vessel, and so must needs be made Wine, not that the Water hath any inherent Vertue of itself to make itself so, but as it receives it from the Wine.

It is reported of Cosmode Medici, that having built a goodly Church, with a Monastery thereunto annex'd, and two Hospitals, with other Monuments of Piety, and endow'd them with large Revenues, as one did much magnifie him for these extraordinary Works, for which doubtless he merited a high Reward in Heaven: He answer'd, 'Tis true, I employ'd much Treasure that way, yet when I look over my leger book of Accounts, I do not find that God Almighty is indebted to me one Penny, but I am still in the Arrear to him.

Add hereunto, the sundry ways of Mortification they have by frequent long Fastings and macerations of the Flesh, by their retiredness, their abandoning the World, and sequestrations from all mundane Affairs, their notable Humility in the distribution of their Alms, which they do not use to hurl away in a kind of scorn, as others do, but by putting it gently into the Beggars hand.

Some shallow-pated Puritan in reading this, will shoot his bolt, and presently cry me up to have a Pope in my Belly, but you know me otherwise, and there's none knows my intrinsicals better than you: We are come to such Times, that if any would maintain those Decencies and humble Postures, those Solemnities and Rites which should be practis'd in the Holy House of God, (and Holiness becomes his House for ever;) nay, if one passing through a Church should put off his Hat, there is a giddy and malignant race of People (for indeed they are the true malignants) who will give out that he is running post to Rome, notwithstanding that the Religion establish'd by the Laws of England did ever allow of them ever since Reformation began, yet you know how few have run thither: Nay, the Lutherans, who use far more Ceremonies symbolizing with those of Rome, than the English Protestants ever did, keep still their distance, and are as far from her now as they were at first.

England had lately (though to me it seems a great while since) the face and form, the government and gravity, the constitutions and comeliness of a Church; for she had something to keep herself handsome, she had wherewith to be Hospitable, and do deeds of Charity, to build Alms-Houses, Free-Schools and Colleges, which had been very few in this Island, had there been no Church Benefactors: She had brave degrees of Promotion to incite Industry, and certainly the conceit of Honour is a great encouragement to Vertue. Now if all Professions have steps of Rising, why should Divinity the best of all Professions be without them: The Apprentice doth not think it much to wipe his Masters shoes, and sweep the gutters, because he hopes one Day to be an Alderman: The Common Soldier carrieth hopes in his Knap sack to be one Day a Captain, or Colonel: The Student in the Inns of Court turns over Ployden with more Alacrity, and tugs with that crabbed Study of the Law, because he hopes one Day to be a Judge; so the Scholar thought his Labour sweet, because he was buoy'd up with hopes that he might be one Day a Bishop, Dean or Canon. This comely subordination of Degrees we once had, and we had a Visible conspicuous Church, to whom all other Reformists gave the upper Hand; but now she may be said to have crept into Corners, and fallen to such a contempt, that she dare scarce shew her Face: Add hereunto, in what various kinds of Confusions she is involv'd, so that it may be not improperly said, while she thought to run away so eagerly from Babylon, she is fallen into a Babel of all Opinions; insomuch, that they who came lately from Italy, say, how Rome gives out, that when Religion is lost in England, she will be glad to come to Rome again to find one out, and that she danceth all this while in a Circle.

Thus have I endeavour'd to satisfie your Importunity as far as a sheet of Paper could reach, to give you a touch what may be not only allowable but laudable, and consequently imitable in the Roman Church, for ———Fas est & ab Hoste doceri.

But I desire you would expound all with a sane Sense, where-with I know you abound, otherwise I would not be so free with you upon this ticklish Subject; yet I have cause to question your Judgment in one Thing, because you magnifie so much my Talent in your last; alas, Sir, a small Handkerchief is enough to hold mine, whereas a large Table-cloth can hardly contain that rich Talent which I find God and Nature hath entrusted you withal; in which Opinion I rest always,

Your ready and real

Servant, J. H.

Lond. July 3.

XXXVII.

To Dr. Harvey, at St. Lawrence Poultney.

S I R,

I Remember well you pleas'd not only to pass a favourable censure, but give a high Character of the first Part of Dodona's Grove, which makes this second to come and wait on you, which I dare say, for variety of Fancy is nothing inferiour to the first: It continueth an historical Account of the occurrences of the Times in an allegorical Way under the shadow of Trees, and I believe it omits not any material Passage which happen'd as far as it goes: If you please to spend some of the parings of your Time, and fetch a walk in this Grove, you may haply find therein some Recreation: And if it be true what the Ancients writ of some Trees, that they are Fatidical, these come to foretel, at leastwise to wish you, as the Season invites me, a good New Year, and according to the Italian Compliment, buon principio, miglior mezzo, ed ottimo fine, with these wishes of happiness in all the three degrees of comparison, I rest

Lond. Jan. 2.

Your devoted Servant, J. H.

XXXVIII.

To R. Bowyer, Esq;

S I R,

I Received your of the tenth Current, where I made a new Discovery, finding therein one Argument of your Friendship which you never urg'd before, for you give me a touch of my Failings in point of Literal Correspondence with you: To this give me leave to answer, that he who hath Glass Windows of his own, should take heed how he throws Stones at those of his Neighbours: We have both of us our Failings that way, witness else yours of the last of May, to mine of the first of March before; but it is never over late to mend: Therefore I begin, and do penance in this white sheet for what is pass'd; I hope you will do the like, and so we may absolve one another without a ghostly Father.

The French and Spaniard are still at it like two Cocks of the Game, both of them pitifully bloodied, and 'tis thought they will never leave, till they peck out one anothers Eyes. They are daily seeking new Alliances to fortifie themselves, and the quarrel is still so hot, that they would make a League with Lucifer to destroy one another.

For home News, the freshest is, that whereas in former Times there were complaints that Churchmen were Justices of the Peace, now the clean contrary Way, Justices of the Peace are become Churchmen; for by a new Act of that Thing in Westminster call'd now a Parliament, the power of giving in Marriage is pass'd over to them, which is an Ecclesiastick Rite every where else throughout the World.

A Cavalier coming lately to a Bookellers shop, desir'd to buy this Matrimonial Act, with the rest of that holy Parliament, but he would have them all bound in Calves Leather, bought out of Mr. Barebone's Shop in Fleetstreet.

The Soldiers have a great spleen to the Lawyers, insomuch that that they threaten to hang up their Gowns among the Scott's Colours in Westminster Hall; but their chiefest aim is at the regulation of the Chancery, for they would have the same Tribunal to have the Power of Justice and Equity, as the same Apothecaries shop can afford us Purges and Cordials.

So with my kind and cordial Respects unto you, I rest

Your entire and truly

Lond. Nov. 9.

affectionate Servant, J. H.

XXXIX.

To Mr. J. B. at his House in St. Nicholas's Lane.

S I R,

When I exchang'd Speeches with you last, I found (yet more by your Discourse than Countenance) that your Spirits were towards a kind of ebb by reason of the interruption, and stop which these confused Times have put to all mercantile Negotiation both at Home and Abroad: Truly Sir, when after a serious recollection I had ruminated upon what drop'd from you then, I extreamly wondred, which I should not have done at another, in regard since the first Time I had the advantage of your Friendship, I discover'd that you were naturally of generous and free-born Thoughts; I have found also, that by a rare industry you have stor'd up a rich stock of Philosophy, and other parts of prudence, which induc'd me to think that no worldly Revolution, or any cross Winds, though never so violent, no, not a Hurricane, could trouble the calm of your Mind; therefore to deal freely with you, you are not the same Man I took you for.

I confess 'tis a passive Age, and the stoutness of the prudentest and most Philosophical Men were never put to such a Trial: I thank God the School of Affliction hath brought me to such a habit of Patience, it hath caus'd in me such symptoms of Mortification, that I can value this World as it is, it is but a vale of Troubles, and we who are in it are like so many Ants trudging up and down about a Mole-hill; nay at best, we are but as so many Pilgrims, or Passengers travelling on still towards another Country: 'Tis true, that some do find the Way thither more smooth and fair, they find it flowry, and tread upon Camamel all along; such may be said to have their Paradise here, or to sail still in Fortunes sleeve, and to have the Wind in the poop all the while, not knowing what a Storm means; yet both the Divine and Philosopher do rank these among the most unfortunate of Men. Others there are, who in their Journey to their last Home do meet with Rocks and crags, with ill-favour'd floughs and bogs, and divers deep and dirty Passages; for my part, I have already pass'd through many such, and must expect to meet with more: Therefore, you also by your various adventures and Negotiations in the World must not think to escape them; you must make account to meet with encumbrances and disasters, with mischances and crosses. Now, 'twas a brave generous Saying of a great Armenian Merchant, who having understood how a Vessel of his was cast away, wherein there was laden a rich Cargazon upon his sole Account, he struck his Hand on his Breast and said, My Heart I thank God is still afloat, my Spirits shall not sink with the ship, nor go an inch lower.

But why do I write to you of patience and courage? In doing this, I do no otherwise than Phormio did when he discours'd of War before Hannibal: I know you have prudence enough to cheer up and instruct yourself; only let me tell you, that you superabound with Fancy, you have more of Mind than of Body, and that sometimes you overcharge the Imagination by musing too much upon the odd traverses of the World; therefore I pray rouse up your Spirits, and reserve yourself for better times, that I may long enjoy the sweetness of your Friendship, for the Elements are the more pleasing unto me, because you live with me amongst them. So God send you such tranquility of Thoughts as I wish.

April 5.

Your true Friend, J. H.

XL.

To Major J. Walker in Coventry.

S I R,

I Heartily congratulate your return to England, and that you so safely cross'd the Scythian Vale, for so old Gildas calls the Irish Seas, in regard they are so boisterous and rough. I understand you have been in sundry hot and hazardous Encounters, because of those many scars and cuts you wear about you, and as Tom Dawson told me, it was no less than a Miracle that none of them were Mortal, being eleven in all. It makes me think on a witty Compliment that Captain Miller put upon the Persian Ambassador when he was here, who shewing him many Wounds that he had receiv'd in the Wars against the Turk, the Captain said, That his Lordships skin after his Death would yield little Money, because it had so many holes in it.

I find the same fate hangs o'er the Irish, as befel the old Britains here, for as they were hem'd among the Welsh Mountains, so the Irish are like now to be all kennell'd in Conaught: We see daily

daily strange Revolutions, and God knows what the issue will be at last; howsoever, let us live and love one another, in which resolution I rest

May 2.

Entirely yours, J. H.

XLI.

To Mr. T. C. at his House upon Tower-hill.

S I R,

TO inaugurate a good and jovial New Year unto you, I send you a Mornings draught, (viz. a bottle of Metheglin.) Neither Sir John Barleycorn or Bacchus had any Thing to do with it, but it is the pure juice of the Bee, the laborious Bee, and King of Insects. The Druides and old British Bards were wont to take a carouse hereof before they entred into their Speculations, and if you do so when your fancy labours with any Thing, it will do you hurt; and I know your fancy to be very good.

But this Drink always carries a kind of State with it, for it must be attended with a brown Tost, nor will it admit but of one good draught, and that in the Morning; if more, it will keep a humming in the Head, and so speak too much of the House it comes from, I mean the Hive, as I gave a caution elsewhere; and because the Bottle might make more hast, have made it go upon these (Poetick) Feet:

J. H. T. C. Salutem, & annum Platonicum.

Non Vitis, sed Apis succum tibi mitto bibendum

Quem legimus Bardos olim potasse Britannos.

Qualibet in bacca Vitis Megera latefcit,

Qualibet in gutta Melis Aglaia ninet.

The juice of Bees not Bacchus here behold,

Which British Bards were wont to quaff of old;

The Berries of the Grape with Furies swell,

But in the Honey-comb the Graces dwell.

This alludes to a Saying which the Turks have, that there lurks a devil in every berry of the Vine. So I wish you as cordially as to me, an auspicious and joyful New Year, because you know I am

Your truly affectionate Servitor, J. H.

XLII.

To Sir E. S.

S I R,

AT my return to London, I found two of yours that lay in bank for me, which were as welcome to me as the New Year, and as pleasing as if two pendants of Orient Pearl had been sent to a French Lady: But your Lines, methought, did cast a greater lustre lustre than any such Muscle-heads, for they displayed the whiteness of a comely and knowing Soul, which reflecting upon my Faculties did much enlighten them, with the choice Notions I found therein.

I thank you for the Absolution you send me for what's pass'd, and for your other Invitation: But I have observ'd a Civility they use in Italy and Spain, not to visit a sick Person too often, for fear of putting him to waste his Spirits by talk, which they say spends much of the inward Man; but when you will have recover'd your self, as I hope you will do with the Season, I shall return to kiss your Hands, and your Feet also, could I ease you of that podagrical Pain which afflicts you.

I send you a thousand Thanks for your kind acceptance of that small New Years Gift I sent, and that you concur with divers other in a good Opinion of it. So I rest,

Lond. Feb. 18.

Your own true Servant, J. H.

XL.

To the truly honoured, the Lady Sybilla Brown, at her House near Sherburn.

Madam,

When I had the happiness to wait upon you at your being in London, there was a dispute rais'd about the ten Sybils, by one, who your Ladyship knows, is no great Friend to Antiquity, and I was glad to apprehend this Opportunity to perform the Promise you drew from me then, to vent something upon this Subject for your Ladyships Satisfaction.

Madam, In these peevish Times, which may be call'd the rust of the Iron Age, there is race of cross-grain'd People which are malevolent to all Antiquity; if they read an old Author it is to quarrel with him, and find some hole in his Coat; they flight the Fathers of the Primitive Times, and prefer John Calvin, or a Causaban before them all: Among other Tenets of the first Times, they hold the ten Sybils to be fictitious and fabulous, and no better than Urganda, or the Lady of the Lake, or such doting bel-dams; they stick not to term their Predictions of Christ to be meer mock Oracles, and odd arreptitious frantick Extravagancies; they cry out that they were forg'd and obtruded to the World by some officious Christians, to procure credit and countenance to their Religion among the Pagans.

For my part, Madam, I am none of this incredulous perverse race of Men, but what the current and concurrent Testimonies of the Primitive Times do hold forth, I give credit thereunto without any scruple.
the

Now, touching the Works of the *Sybil*s, they were in high request among the Fathers of the first four Centuries, insomuch that they us'd to urge their Prophecies for Conversion of Pagans, who therefore call'd the Christians Sybillianists, nor did they hold it a word of Reproach. They were all Virgins, and for Reward of their Chastity, 'twas thought they had the gift of Prophecy; not by any Endowment of Nature, or inherent humane Quality, or ordinary Ideas in the Soul, but by pure divine Inspirations, not depending on second Causes in sight; they spake not like the ambiguous Pagan Oracles in Riddles, but so clearly, that they sometimes go beyond the Jewish Prophets; they were call'd Siobule, that is, of the Counsels of God, Sios in the Eolic dialect being Deus: They were preferr'd before all the Chaldean Wizards, before the Bacides, Branchyde and others; as also before Tyresias, Manto, Matis or Cassandra, &c.

Nor did the Christians only value them at that height, but the most learned among the Ethnicks did so, as Varro, Livy and Cicero, the first being the greatest Antiquary, the second the greatest Historian, and the third the greatest Orator that ever Rome had, who speaks so much of that famous Acrostick that one of them made of the Name of our Saviour, which sure could not be the Work of a Christian, as some would maliciously obtrude, it being so long before the Incarnation.

But for the better discharge of my engagement to your Ladyship, I will rank all the Ten before you, with some of their most signal Predictions.

The *Sybil*s were Ten in Number, whereof there were five born in Europe, to wit, Sybilla Delphica, Cumæa, Samia, Cumana and Tyburтина, the rest were born in Asia and Africa.

The first was a Persian, call'd Samberta, who plainly foretold many Hundred Years before, in these Words, The Womb of the Virgin shall be the Salvation of the Gentiles, &c.

The second was Sybilla Lybica, who among other Prophecies hath this, The Day shall come that Men shall see the King of all living Things, and a Virgin Lady of the World shall hold him in her lap.

The third was Delphica, who saith, A Prophet shall be born of a Virgin.

The fourth was Sybilla Cumæa, born in Campania in Italy, who hath these Words, That God shall be born of a Virgin, and converse with Sinners.

The fifth was the famous Erythrae, born at Babylon, who compos'd that famous Acrostick which St. Augustine took so much Pains to to translate into Latin: Which begins, The Earth shall sweat signs of Judgment, from Heaven shall come a King who shall reign for ever, viz. in humane Flesh, to the end that by his presence he judge the World; A River of Fire and Brimstone shall fall from Heaven, the Sun and Stars shall lose their light, the Firmament shall be dissolv'd, and the Moon shall be darkned; a Trumpet shall sound from Heaven in woful and terrible manner, and the opening of the Earth shall discover confused and dark Hell, and before the Judge shall come every King, &c.

The sixth was Sybilla Samia, who saith, He being rich shall be born of a poor Maid, the Creatures of the Earth shall adore him, and praise him for ever.

The seventh was Cumana, who saith, That he should come from Heaven, and reign here in Poverty, he should rule in silence, and be born of a Virgin.

The eighth was Sybilla Hellepontica, who foretels plainly, That a Woman shall descend of the Jews call'd Mary, and of her shall be born the Son of God, and that without carnal Copulation, &c.

The ninth was Phrygia, who saith, The highest shall come from Heaven and shall confirm the Counsel in Heaven, and a Virgin shall be shew'd in the Valley of the Desarts, &c.

The tenth was Tyburina, born near Tyber, who saith, The invisible Word shall be born of a Virgin, he shall converse with sinners, and shall of them be despis'd, &c.

Moreover, St. Austin reciteth these Prophecies following of the Sybils; Then he shall be taken by the wicked Hands of Infidels, and they shall give him buffets on his Face, they shall spit upon him with their foul and accursed Mouths, he shall turn unto them his Shoulders, suffering them to be whip'd: He also shall be crown'd with Thorns, they shall give him gall to eat, and vinegar to Drink; then the vail of the Temple shall rend, and at mid-day it shall be dark night, &c.

Lactantius relateth these Prophecies of theirs, He shall raise the Dead, the Impotent and Lame shall go, the Deaf shall hear, the Blind shall see, and the Dumb speak, &c.

In fine, out of the Works of the Sybils may be deduc'd a good part of the Miracles and Sufferings of Christ, therefore, for my part I will not cavil with Antiquity, or traduce the Primitive Church; but I think I may believe without danger, that those Sybils might be select Instruments to anounce the dispensations of Heaven to Mankind; nor do I see how they do the Church of God any good service or advantage at all, who question the Truth of their Writings, (as also Trismegistus's Pymandra, and Aristeus, &c.) who have been handed over to Posterity as uncontrollable Truths for so many Ages.

Thus, Madam, have I done something of that task you impos'd upon on me touching the ten Sybils, whereunto I may well add your Ladyship for the Eleventh, for among other Things I remember you foretold confidently that the Scottish Kirk would destroy the English Church; and that if the Hierarchy went down, Monarchy would not be of long continuance.

Your Ladyship I remember foretold also, how those unhappy separatists the Puritans, would bring all Things at last into a confusion, who since are call'd Presbyterians, or Jews of the New Testament; and they not improperly may be call'd so, for they sympathize much with that Nation in a revengeful sanguinary humour, and thirsting after Blood; I could produce a cloud of Examples, but let two suffice.

There liv'd a few Years before the Long Parliament, near Clun Castle in Wales, a good old Widow that had two Sons grown to Mens Estate, who having taken the holy Sacrament on a first Sunday in the Month, at their return home they entred into a dispute touching the Manner of receiving it; the eldest Brother who was an Orthodox Protestant (with the Mother) held it was very fitting, it being the highest act of Devotion, that it should be taken in the humblest Posture that could be, upon the Knees; the other, being a Puritan, oppos'd it, and the dispute grew high, but it ended without much heat; the next Day being both come home to Dinner from their Business Abroad, the eldest Brother, as it was his Custom, took a nap upon a Cushion at the end of the Table that he might be more fresh for Labour; the Puritan Brother, called Enoch Evans, spying his Opportunity, fetch'd an Ax which he had provided it seems on purpose, and stealing softly to the Table he chop'd off his Brothers head; the old Mother hearing a noise, came suddenly from the next Room, and there found the Body and Head of her eldest Son both asunder, and reaking in hot Blood; O Villain, cried she, hast thou murder'd thy Brother? Yes, quoth he, and you shall after him, and so striking her down, he drag'd her Body to the threshold of the Door, and there chop'd off her Head also, and put them both in a bag; but thinking to fly, he was apprehended and brought before the next Justice of Peace, who chanced to be Sir Robert Howard, so the Murderer the Assizes after was condemn'd, and the Law could but only hang him, though he had committed matricide and fratricide.

I will fetch another Example of their Cruelty from Scotland; The late Marquiss of Montross being betrayed by a Lord in whose House he lay, was brought Prisoner of War to Edinburgh, there the common hangman met him at the Towns end, and first pull'd off his Hat, then he forc'd him up to a Cart, and hurried him him like a condemn'd Person, though he had not yet been arraign'd, much less convicted, through the great Street, and brought him before the Parliament, where being presently condemn'd, he was posted away to the Gallows, which was above 30 Foot high, there his Hand was cut off first, then he was lifted up by pulleys to the top, and then hang'd in the most ignominious Manner that could be; being taken down, his Head was chopp'd off and nail'd to the high Cross, his Arms, Thighs and Legs were sent to be set up in several Places, and the rest of his Body was thrown away and depriv'd of Christian burial. Thus was this Nobleman us'd, though one of the ancientst Peers of Scotland, and esteem'd the greatest Honour of that Country both at Home and Abroad. Add hereunto, the mortal Cruelty they us'd to their young King, with whom they would not treat unless he first acknowledg'd his Father to be a Tyrant, and his Mother an Idolatress, &c.

So I most humbly kiss your Hands, and rest always,

Madam,

Lond. Aug. 30.

Your Ladyships most faithfully devoted Servant, J. H.

XLIV.

To Sir L. D. in Paris.

Noble Knight,

YOURS of the 22d current came to safe Hand, but what you please to attribute therein to my Letters, may be more properly applied to yours in point of intrinsic Value; for by this correspondence with you, I do as our East-India Merchants use to do, I venture beads and other bagatels, out of the proceed whereof I have Pearl and other Oriental Jewels return'd me in yours.

Concerning the posture of Things here, we are still involv'd in a cloud of Confusion, especially touching Church Matters; a race of odd crack-brain'd Schismatics do croak in ever corner, but poor Things they rather want a Physician to cure them of their madness, than a Divine to confute them of their Errors; such is the height of their spiritual Pride, that they make it nothing to interpret every tittle of the Apocalyps, they make a shallow rivulet of it that one may pass over and scarce wet his Anles, whereas the greatest Doctors of the Church compar'd it to a deep Ford wherein an Elephant might swim. They think they are of the Cabinet Counsel of God, and not only know his Attributes but his Essence, which made me lately break out upon my Pillow into these Metrical Speculations.

I. If

1. *If of the smallest Stars in Sky
We know not the dimensity,
If those bright Sparks which them compose
The highest mortal Wits depose:
How then poor shallow Man can'st Thou
The Maker of these Glories know?*

2. *If we know not the Air we draw,
Nor what keeps Winds and Waves in Awe;
If our small Skulls cannot contain
The flux and saltness of the Main;
If scarce a Cause we ken below,
How can we the supernal know?*

3. *If it be a mysterious Thing
Why Steel should to the Loadstone cling;
If we know not why Jett should draw,
And with such kisses hug a Straw;
If none can truly yet reveal
How sympathetick Powders heal?*

4. *If we scarce know the Earth we tread,
Or half the Simples there are bred,
With Minerals and Thousand Things
Which for Man's Health and Food she brings;
If Nature's so obscure, then how Can we the God of Nature know?*

5. *What the Bat's Eye is to the Sun,
Or of a Glow-worm to the Moon,
The same is Humane intellect,
If on our Maker we reflect;
Whose Magnitude is so immense,
That it transcends both Soul and Sense.*

6. *Poor purblind Man, then sit thee still,
Let wonderment thy Temples fill;
Keep a due distance, do not pry
Too near, lest like the silly Fly
While she the wanton with the Flames doth play,
First fries her Wings, then fools her Life away.*

There are many Things under serious Debate in Parliament, whereof the results may be called yet but the imperfect productions

ons of a grand Committee, they may in Time come to the maturity of Votes, and so of Acts.

You write that you have the German Diet which goes forth in my Name, and you say that you never had more matter for your money; I have valued it the more ever since, in regard that you please to set such a rate upon't, for I know your Opinion is current and sterling: I shall shortly by T. B. send you a new History of Naples, which also did cost me a great deal of Oil and Labour.

Sir, if there be any Thing imaginable wherein I may stead or serve you here, you well know what Interest and Power you may claim both in the affections of my Heart, and the faculties of my Soul. I pray be pleas'd to present the humblest of Service to the noble Earl your Brother, and preserve still in your good opinion,

Your truly obliged

Servant, J. H.

XV.

To Sir E. S. Knight.

S I R,

NOW that the Sun and the Spring advance daily toward us more and more, I hope your health will keep pace with them, and that the all-searching beams of the first, will dissipate that fretful humour which hath confin'd you so long to your Chamber, and barr'd you of the use of your true supporters: But though your Toes be flugs, yet your Temples are nimble enough, as I find by your last of the 12th current, which makes me think on a speech of Severus the Emperor, who having lain sick a long time of the Gout at York, and one of his Nobles telling him that he wondred much how he could rule so vast an Empire, being so lame and unweildy, the Emperor answer'd, That he rul'd the Empire with his Brain, not with his Feet; so it may be said of you, that you rule the same Way the whole State of that Microcosm of yours, for every Man is a little World of himself.

Moreover, I find that the same kind of Spirit doth govern your Body, as governs the great World; I mean the Cœlestial Bodies, for as the Notions whereby they are regulated are Musical, if we may believe Pythagoras, whom the Tripod pronounc'd the wisest Man: So a true harmonious Spirit seems to govern you, in regard you are so naturally inclin'd to the ravishing Art of Musick.

Your Friends here are well, and wish you were so too, for my part, I do not only wish it, but pray it may be so, for my Life is the sweeter in yours, and I please myself much in being

March 1.

Your truly faithful Servant, J. H.

XLVI.

To Mr. Sam. Bon, at his House in the Old Jury.

S I R,

I Receiv'd that choice Parcel of Tobacco your Servant brought me, for which I send you as many Returns of Gratitude, as there were Grains therein, which were many, (and cut all methinks with a Diamond cut) but too few to express my acknowledgment; I had also therewith your most ingenious Letter, which I valued far more: The other was but a Potential Fire only reducible to Smoke; but your Letter did sparkle with actual Fire, for methought there were pure Flames of Love and Gentleness waving in every Line: The Poets do frequently compare Affection to Fire, therefore whensoever I take any of this Varina, I will imagine that I light my Pipe always at the Flames of your Love.

I also highly thank you for the Italian Manuscripts you sent me of the late Revolutions in Naples, which will infinitely advantage me in exposing to the World that stupendious piece of Story: I am in the arrear to you for sundry Courtesies more, which shall make me ever entitle myself

Holbourn,

June 3.

Your truly thankful Friend and Servant,

J. H.

XLVII.

To W. Sands, Esq;

S I R,

THE Calamities and Confusions which the late Wars did bring upon us were many, and manifold, yet England may be said to have gain'd one Advantage by it; for whereas before she was like an Animal that knew not his own Strength, she is now better acquainted with herself, for her Power and Wealth did never appear more both by Land and Sea: This makes France to cringe unto her so much: This makes Spain to purchase Peace of her with his Italian Patacoons: This makes the Hollander to dash his colours, and to vail his bonnet so low unto her: this makes the Italian Princes, and all other States that have any thing to do with the Sea, to court her so much: Indeed touching the Emperor, and the Mediterranean Princes of Germany, whom she cannot reach with her Cannons, they care not much for her.

Nor indeed was the true Art of governing England known till now, the Sword is the surest sway over all People, who ought to be cudgel'd rather than cajoll'd to Obedience, if upon a glut of Plenty and Peace they should forget it. There is not such a windy wavering thing in the World as the common People; they are got by an Apple, and lost for a Pear; the Elements themselves are not more inconstant; so that it is the worst Solecism in Government for a Prince to depend meerly upon their Affections: Riches and long Rest makes them insolent and wanton. It was not Tarquin's wantonness so much as the Peoples, that ejected Kings in Rome. It was the Peoples Concupiscence, as much as Don Rodrigo's Lust, that brought the Moors into Spain, &c.

Touching the Wealth of England, it never also appear'd so much by publick Erogations, and Taxes, which the long Parliament rais'd: Infomuch, that it may be said the last King was beaten by his own Image more than any thing else. Add hereunto that the World stands in admiration of the Capacity and Docibleness of the English, that Persons of ordinary Breeding, Extraction and Callings should become Statesmen and Soldiers, Commanders and Counsellors, both in the Art of War, and Mysteries of State, and know the Use of the Compass in so short a Tract of Time.

I have many Thanks to give you for the Spanish Discourse you pleas'd to send me, at our next Conjunction I shall give you an account of it, in the interim I pray let me have still a small corner in your Thoughts, while you possess a large room in mine, and ever shall while

Jam. Howell.

XLVIII.

To the R. H. the E. of S.

My Lord,

Since my last, that which is the greatest Subject of our Discourses and Hopes here, is the Issue of our Treaty with the Dutch; It is a Peace that hath been a good while on the Anvil, but it is not hammer'd yet to any Shape. The Parliament likewise hath many things in Debate, which may be call'd yet but Embryos, in time they may be hatch'd into Acts.

The Pope they write hath been of late dangerously sick, but hath been cur'd in a strange way by a young Padoua Doctor, who having kill'd a lusty young Mule, clapp'd the Patients Body naked in the Paunch thereof, by which gentle fomentation he recover'd him of the tumors he had in his Knees and elsewhere. Donna Olympia sways most, and hath the highest Ascendant over him, so that a Gentleman writes to me from Rome, that among other Pasquils this was one, Papa magis amat Olympiam quam Olympum: He writes of another, That the Bread being not long since grown scant, and made courser than ordinary by reason reason of the Tax his Holiness laid upon Corn, there was a Pasquil fix'd upon a corner-stone of his Palace, Beatissime Pater fac ut hi lapides fiant panes; O blessed Father, grant that these Stones be made Bread. But it was an odd Character that our Countryman Doctor B. gave lately of him, who being turn'd Roman Catholick, and expecting a Pension, and having one day attended his Holiness a long time about it, he at last broke away suddenly; a friend of his asking why? He replied, It is to no purpose for me to stay longer, for I know he will give me nothing, because I find by his Physiognomy that he hath a Negative Face. 'Tis true, he is one of the hard-favouredst Popes that sat in the Chair a great while; so that some call him, L'Homme de tre pele, The Man with three Hairs, for he hath no more Beard upon his Chin.

St. Mark is still tugging with the great Turk, and hath bang'd him ill-favouredly this Summer in Dalmatia by Land, and before the Dardanelli by Sea.

Whereas your Lordship writes for my Lustra Ludovici, or the History of the last French King and his Cardinal, I shall e'er long serve your Lordship with one of a new Edition, and with some Enlargements: I humbly thank your Lordship for the favourable, and indeed too high a Character you please to give of my Survey of Venice; yet there are some who would detract from it, and (which I believe your Lordship will something wonder at) they are Cavaliers, but the shallowest and silliest sort of them; And such may well deserve the Epithet of Malignants. So I humbly kiss your Hands in quality of

Your Lordship's most obedient and ever obliged Servant,

J. H.

XLIX.

To the Right Honourable the Earl Rivers, at his House in Queenstreet.

My Lord,

THE least Command of yours is enough to set all my Intellectuals on work, therefore I have done something, as your Lordship shall find herewith, relating to that gallant Piece call'd the Gallery of Ladies, which my Lord Marquis of Winchester (your Brother) hath set forth.

Upon the glorious Work of the Lord Marquis of Winchester.

1. The World of Ladies must be honour'd much,
That so sublime a Personage, that such
A Noble Peer, and Pen should thus display
Their Virtues, and expose them to the day.
2. His Praises are like those coruscant Beams
Which Phæbus on high Rocks of Chrystal streams;
The Matter and the Agent grace each other,
So Danaë did when Jove made her a Mother.
3. Queens, Countesses, and Ladies, go unlock
Your Cabinets, draw forth your richest Stock
Of Jewels, and his Coronet adorn
With Rubies, Pearl, and Sapphires yet unworn.
4. Rise early, gather Flowers now in the Spring,
Twist Wreaths of Lawrel, and fresh Garlands bring,
To crown the Temples of this high-born Peer,
And make him your Apollo all the Year:
And when his Soul shall leave this earthly Mine,
Then offer Sacrifice unto his Shrine.

I send also the Elegy upon the late Earl of Dorset, which your Lordship spake of so much when I waited on you last; And I believe your Lordship will find therein every inch of that noble Peer characteriz'd inwardly and outwardly.

An Elegy upon the most accomplish'd and Heroic Lord, Edward, Earl of Dorset, Lord Chamberlain to His late Majesty of Great Britain, and Knight of the most Noble Order of the Garter, &c.

Alluding
to

The Quality of the Times,
His admired Perfections,
His goodly Person,
His ancient Pedigree,
His Coat of Arms crested with a Star,
The Condition of Mortality,
The Passion of the Author closing with an Epitaph.

Lords

Lords have been long declining (we well know)
And making their last Testaments, but now
They are defunct, they are extinguish'd all,
And never like to rise by this Lord's Fall ;

A Lord, whose Intellectuals alone
Might make a House of Peers, and prop a Throne,
Had not so dire a Fate hung o'er the Crown,
That Priviledge Prerogative should drown :

Where-e're he sat he sway'd, and Courts did awe,
Gave Bishops Gospel, and the Judges Law,
With such exalted Reasons, which did flow
So clear and strong, that made Astrea bow
To his Opinion ; for where he did side
Advantag'd more than half the Bench beside.

But is great Sackville dead ? Do we him lack,
And will not all the Elements wear black ?
Whereof he was compos'd, a perfect Man
As ever Nature in one Frame did span,
Such high-born Thoughts, a Soul so large and free,
So clear a Judgment, and vast Memory,
So Princely hospitable, and brave Mind,
We must not think in haste on Earth to find,
Unless the Times would turn to Gold agen,
And Nature get new Strength in forming Men.

His Person with it such a State did bring,
That made a Court as if he had been King ;
No Wonder, since he was so near akin
To Norfolk's Duke, and the great Maiden-Queen.

He Courage had enough by conquering one,
To have confounded that whole Nation :
Those Parts which single do in some appear,
Were all concentred here in one bright Sphere :

For Brain, Tongue, Spirit, Heart, and Personage,
To mold up such a Lord will ask an Age.
But how durst pale white-liver'd Death seize on
So dauntless and Heroic a Champion ?

{ Yes, to dye once is that uncancell'd Debt
Which Nature claims, and raiseth by Eschet
On all Mankind, by an old Statute past
Primo Adami, which will always last Without Repeal, nor can a second Lease
Be had of Life, when the first Term doth cease.

Mount, noble Soul, among the Stars take Place,
 And make a new one of so bright a Race
 May Jove outshine, that Venus still may be
 In a benign Conjunction with Thee,
 To check that Planet which on Lords hath pour'd,
 And such malign influxes lately pour'd;
 Be now a Star thyself, for those which here
 Did on thy Crest, and upper Robes appear;
 For thy Director take that Star we read
 Which to thy Saviour's Birth three Kings did lead.

A Corollary.

THus have I blubber'd out some Tears and Verse
 On this Renowned Hero, and his Hearse,
 And could my Eyes have dropt down Pearls upon't,
 In lieu of Tears, God knows, I would have don't;
 But Tears are real, Pearls for their Emblems go,
 The first are fitter to express my Wo:
 Let this small Mite suffice, until I may
 A larger Tribute to his Ashes pay.
 In the mean time this Epitaph shall shut,
 And to my Elegy a Period put.

Here lies a Grandee by Birth, Parts, and Mind,
 Who hardly left his Parallel behind;
 Here lies the Man of Men, who should have been An Emperor, had Fate or Fortune seen.

Totus in lachrymas solutus

sic singultivit,

J. H.

So I most humbly kiss your Lordship's Hands, and rest in the highest Degree of Service and Affection ever most ready

London, Decem. 20.

At your Lordship's Command,

J. H.

L. To

L.

To T. Herris, Esq;

S I R,

Yours of December the tenth I had the second of this January, and I account it a good Augury that it came so seasonably to usher in the New Year, and to cheer up my Thoughts, which your Letters have a Virtue to do always whensoever they come, they are so full of quaint and copious quick Expressions. When the Spaniards at their first coalition in the West-Indies did begin to mingle with the Americans, that silly People thought that those little white Papers and Letters which the Spaniards us'd to send one to another, were certain kind of Conjurers or Spirits that us'd to go up and down to tell Tales and make Discoveries: Among other Examples, I remember to have read one of an Indian boy sent from a Mexico Merchant to a Captain, with a basket of Figs, and a Letter, The boy in the way did eat some of them, and the Captain after he had read the Letter, ask'd him what became of the rest? whereat the boy stood all astonish'd; and being sent with another basket a little after to the same Party, his maw began to yern again for some of the Figs, but he first took the Letter and clapt it under a great Stone hard by, upon which he sat while he was eating, thinking thereby that the Spirit in the Letter could not discover him, &c. Whether your Letters be Spirits or no, I will not dispute, but I am sure they beget new Spirits in me, and quod efficit tale illud ipsum est magis tale; If I am possess'd with Melancholy, they raise a Spirit of Mirth in me; if my Thoughts are contracted with Sadness, they presently dilate them into Joy, &c. As if they had some subtil invisible Atoms whereby they operate, which is now an old Philosophy newly furbish'd, and much cryed up, that all natural actions and motions are perform'd by emission of certain Atoms, whereof there is a constant Effluvium from all elementary Bodies, and are of divers Shapes, some angular, others cylindrical, some spherical, which Atoms are still hovering up and down, and never rest till they meet with some Pores proportionable, and cognate unto their figures, where they acquiesce: By the expiration of such Atoms the Dog finds the Scent as he hunts, the Pestilence infects, the Loadstone attracts Iron, the Sympathetick Powder or Zaphyrian Salt calcin'd by Apollinean heat, operating in July and August till it come to a lunar Complexion; I say, by the virtue and intervention of such Atoms, 'tis found that this said Powder heals at a distance without topical applications to the place affected. They who are of this Opinion hold that all sublunary Bodies operate thus by Atoms, as the heavenly Bodies do by their Influences. Now, it is more visible in the Loadstone than any other Body, for by help of artificial Glasses a kind of mist hath been discern'd to expire out of it, as Dr. Higmore doth acutely, and so much like a Philosopher observe. For my part, I think it more congruous to Reason, and to the course of Nature, that all Actions and Motions should be thus perform'd by such little atomical Bodies, than by Accidents and Qualities, which are but notional things, having only an imaginary Subsistence, and no Essence of themselves at all, but as they inhere in some other. If this Philosophy be true, it were no great absurdity to think that your Letters have a kind of atomical energy which operates upon my Spirits, as I formerly told you.

The Times continue still untoward and troublesom; Therefore now, that you and I carry above a Hundred Years upon our Backs, and that those few Grains of Sand which remain in the brittle Glasses of our Lives are still running out; It is time, my dear Tom, for us to think on that which of all future things is the most certain, I mean our last Removal, and Emigration hence to another World. 'Tis time to think on that little hole of Earth which shall hold us at last. The time was, when you and I had all the fair Continent of Europe before us to range in; we have been since confin'd to an Island, and now Lincoln holds you, and London me; we must expect the day that Sickness will confine us to our Chambers, then to our Beds, and so to our Graves, the dark silent Grave, which will put a Period to our Pilgrimage in this World: And observable it is, what Method Nature doth use in contracting our Liberty thus by Degrees, as a worthy Gentleman observes.

But though this small bagfull of Bones be so confin'd, yet the noblest Part of us may be said to be then set at Liberty, when having shaken off this slough of Flesh, she mounts up to her true Country, the Country of Eternity, where one moment of Joy is more than if we enjoy'd all the Pleasures of this World a Million of Years here among the Elements.

But till our threads are spun up, let us continue to enjoy ourselves as well as we can, let those Grains I spoke of before run gently by their own Motion, without jogging the Glass by any perturbation of Mind, or musing too much upon the Times.

Man's Life is nimble and swift enough of itself without the help of a Spur, or any violent Motion; therefore he spoke like a true Philosopher, who excepted against the Title of a Book call'd de statu vite, but he should rather have entitl'd it de cursu vite; for this Life is still upon the Speed.

You

You and I have luckily met abroad under many Meridians; when our Course is run here, I hope we shall meet in a Region that is above the wheel of Time; and it may be in the Concave of some Star (if those glorious Lamps are Habitable.) Howsoever my Genius prompts me, that when I part hence I shall not downwards, for I had always soaring Thoughts being but a Boy, at which time I had a mighty desire to be a Bird, that I might fly towards the Sky.

So my long-endear'd Friend, and Fellow-Traveller, I rest

Yours verily and invariably,

Holbourn,

Jan. 10.

J. H.

To

You and I have luckily met abroad under many Meridians;
 when our Course is run here, I hope we shall meet in a Region that is above the wheel of Time; and it may be in the Concourse of which time I had a mighty desire to be a Bird, that I might fly towards the sky.

To the Sagacious Reader.

U*T clavis portam, sic pandit Epistola pectus;
 Clauditur Hæc cera, clauditur Illa sera.*

As Keys do open Chests,
 So Letters open Breasts.

Τ Ε Λ Ο Σ.

Gloria Laus Deo Saeculorum in secula sunt.

A Doxological Chronogram including this present Year, MDCLV.
 and hath Numeral Letters enough to extend to the Year Nineteen Hundred Twenty Seven, if it please God this World should last so long.

An Extract of the Heads of the choicest Matters that go inter- woven 'mongst the Letters of the First Volume.

The First Section.

	Page.
O f Abusers of Familiar Letters.	1
O f Somerset's Fall and Buckingham's Rise.	3
Mistress Turner executed in yellow starch at Tyburn, and Sir Gervas Elways on Tower-Hill, his memorable caution against swearing, and the Lord William of Pembroke's noble act to his Lady and Children.	4
Sir Walter Rawleigh's sorry return from Guiana, Count Gondamar's violent Prosecution of him, and a facetious Tale of Alphonso King of Naples, &c.	5, 6
Of the Study of our Common Law, and what Genius is aptest for it.	3
The true manner of the Surrender of the cautionary Towns Flushing and Brill.	16
The Force of Letters.	18
A Letter of Love.	22
Some choice Observations of Amsterdam.	7, 10, 11
Of the University of Leyden, and a Clash 'twixt Arminius and Baudius.	12
Of Grave Maurice Prince of Orange, and of his regular Course of Life.	14
Of Antwerp, and her Cittadel.	17
Of France, Normandy, and the City of Rouen.	19, 20
Of Paris, and an odd Mischance that befel a Secretary of State there.	23
	Of

The Index of the First Volume.

Of Luines the Favorite.	24
An exact Relation from an Eye-witness of the Assassinate committed on the Person of Henry the Great.	25
His rare Perfections, and divers witty Speeches of his.	26
An exact Relation of the Monstrous Death of the Marquis of Ancre by an Eye-witness.	28
Of St. Maloes and the Province of Britany , the Vicinity of their Language with the Welsh .	30
Of Rochel , and the Humours of the People.	ibid.
The strong Operations of Love, and a facetious Tale of the Duke of Offuna's .	32
Of the Pyrenean Hills.	ibid.
Of the noble City of Valentia , and various Effects of the Sun.	34
Of Alicant , and the Grapes thereof.	35
Of Carthagena .	ibid.
Of Scylla and Charybdis , Mount Ætna , and the vulgar Greek, &c.	37, 38
Of the admirable City of Venice , her Glass Furnaces, with a Speculation rais'd thereon, her renowned Arsenal and Treasury, her Age and Constitution, her famous Bucentoro , with a Philosophical Notion arising thence, &c.	from 38 to 54
Of the Virtue of Letters.	45
A Letter of Gratitude.	ibid.
Some witty Sayings of Spaniards .	57
Some witty Observations of Rome , the Manner of creating Cardinals.	52
Of Foreign Travel.	53
Of the gentle City of Naples .	55
A Saying of King James .	57
A Resemblance 'twixt the old Lombards and the Welsh .	ibid.
A witty Saying of Lewis the 11th.	59
Of Florence , Genoa , Luca , &c.	60
Of Milan and the Duke of Savoy .	61
Of the Italian Tongue.	ibid.
Of the Humour of the Italian .	62
Of the hideous Mountains the Alps , and of Lions in France .	62, 63
Of Geneva , and a strange thing that happen'd at Lions .	63, 64
The six famous Verses made of Venice .	60
A notable magnanimous Speech of a Turk .	48

The Second Section.

M Y Lord Bacon's Opinion of Monsieur Cadenet the French Ambassador about little Men.	65
---	----

The Index of the First Volume.

Two Letters of Endearments.	66
A notable Saying of the Lady Elizabeth .	67
Of Sir Robert Mansell's Return from Algier .	68
Queen Anne's Death, and the last Comet.	69
Marq. of Buckingham made Lord Admiral, &c.	75
The beginning of the Bohemian Wars.	67
The Palsgrave's undertaking that Crown.	68
Prague lost.	ibid.
Spinola's going to the Palatinate , the manner of taking Oppenheim , and the unworthiness of the Marq. of Ansback the German General.	72
The strange Wonder in Holland , of a Lady that brought forth as many Children as Days in the Year, &c.	74
Of the sailing Waggon.	ibid.
An elaborate Survey of the Seventeen Provinces, the Ground of their Quarrel with the Spaniard , the Difference of Government, and Humours of People.	from 77 to 88
The Difference 'twixt the Flemin , Walloon , and Hollander .	87
The last French King's Piety to his Mother.	90
Phlebotomy much used in France .	93, 94
A Congratulatory Letter for Marriage.	88
A Satyrical Play in Antwerp about the Prince Palsgrave's Proceedings.	89
Wars 'twixt the French King and the Protestants.	91, 92
A famous Speech of St. Lewis .	92, 93
Of the French Favorites Luines , and his two Brothers Cadenet and Brand .	105
The strange Story of the Maid of Orleans , and how the English were reveng'd of her.	96, 97
A facetious Passage of the Duke of Espernon .	97
The Opinion of a French Doctor of English Ale.	94
The French Pollette.	ibid.

The Third Section.

G ondamar's first Audience about the Spanish Match, and the ill Augury that befell.	100
Sir Henry Montague made Lord Treasurer; a facetious Question ask'd him.	ibid.
Cautions for travelling Italy .	161
King James his sharp Answer to the Parliament from New-market about the Spanish Match, &c. Gondamar's facetious Speech of my Lady Hatton .	102, 103
Of the Synod of Dort .	104
Archbishop Abbot's Disaster to kill a Keeper, &c.	107

The Index of the First Volume.

The French King's Proceedings against the Protestants, and the death of Luines .	105
Of the Infanta of Spain, and her two Brothers.	111
The bold manner of Petitioning the King of Spain.	ibid.
Some commendable Qualities of the Spaniards.	ibid.
Of the old Duke of Lerma .	ibid.
Material things of the Match.	112
The witty Speech of the Marquis of Montesclares .	114
Of Count Mansfield 's notable retreat to Breda his chiefest exploit.	115
Of our Prince his Arrival at the Court of Spain, his Usage there, and some Passages of Gondamar .	116, 117
Of his Comportment in courting the Lady Infanta , &c.	118, 119
A witty Saying of a Spanish Woman.	118
Of their baiting of Bulls with Men.	124
Verses upon the Prince his wooing.	121
The monstrous manner of Osman the great Turk's death, with some Observations thereon.	125, 126
Of his ominous Dream, and the Grand Visier 's Prediction to Sir Thomas Roe .	127, 128
A Discourse 'twixt our Prince and the King of Spain.	129
Of our Prince his Departure thence.	131
How matters stood after his Departure.	ibid.
Preparations made for the Wedding-day.	133
The Earl of Bristol 's Audience upon his receiving a new Commission.	164
Probabilities that the Spaniard intended a Match with England.	133
My Lord Paget 's witty Speech in Parliament.	134
Of the Bishop of Halverstadt .	135
The notable Plot the two Spanish Ambassadors invented to demolish the Duke of Buckingham .	136
The high Proffers that were made the Earl of Bristol , if he would stay in Spain.	135
Of the manner of the Proceedings of the Spanish Match by way of comparison.	137
The Breach of the Spanish Match by a Philosophical comparison.	138
An Abstract of the Spanish Monarchy, of its Growth, of the Soil, and the Humour of the Inhabitants,	from 140 to 146
Of things happen'd at the Siege of Berghen op Zoom . A pleasant tale of a lame Captain.	147
Of the Virtue of Familiar Letters.	148
Of that stupendious Monument the Escorial .	149
Of the late famous Duke of Osuna , divers Passages.	150
Of

The Index of the First Volume.

Of writing by Cyphers.	151
A memorable Passage of the Jesuits.	ibid.
A facetious Tale of a Soldier.	152
This third Section contains divers intrinsical Passages more, of the Treaties both of Match and Palatinate.

The Fourth Section.

O F the Jewels that were left in the Court of Spain, to be presented at the Betrothing-day.	153
Of the Fruitfulness of Friendship.	154
Of Count Mansfelt.	155
An exact Relation of his late Majesty's Death by an Eye-witness.	157
Of my Lord Verulam after his Fall.	159
Cautions for Marriage.	ibid.
The disastrous Death of young Prince Frederick.	161
Of the Treaty of a Match with France, and of Cardinal Richelieu.	162
How lively Letters represent the inward Man.	163
The Capitulation of the Match with France.	164
Of Monsieur's Marriage.	165
The rare Perfections of the late Marchioness of Winchester.	ibid.
Of Grave Maurice's Death, and of the taking of Breda.	167
The sorry Success of our Fleet to Cales under the Lord Wimbledon.	169
Some Advertisements to the Duke of Buckingham before the Parliament.	170
The true Nature of Love.	171
Of Count Mansfelt.	172
Cardinal Richelieu's first Rise.	162
A facetious Saying of the Queen of France touching Count Mansfelt.	172
A clashing 'twixt Buckingham and Bristol.	ibid.
A Comparison 'twixt the Infanta and the Daughter of France.	174
A facetious Pasquil in Rome.	173
The speedy Conclusion of the French Match, and a facetious tale of the Pope.	ibid.
Her Majesty's Arrival in England.	174
The Dissolution of the Parliament at Oxon, and of the Lord Keeper Williams.	175
Of the Renvoy of her Majesty's French Servants, &c. to Rome.	177
The Reasons alledged for Lone-Monies.	178

The Index of the First Volume.

A memorable Example in the Person of a Spanish Captain, how strangely a sudden Conceit may work within us. 179, 180

The Fifth Section.

A Northern Letter.	112
A Our Breach with France, and our ill Success at the Isle of Rets.	185
The Lord Denbigh's sorry Return from before Rochel.	186
Of the Wars in Italy about the Dutchy of Mantoua.	184
A circumstantial Relation of the Duke of Buckingham's Death by an Eye-witness.	187
The Lord of Lindsey's Return from before Rochel, the taking and dismantling of her by the French King.	188
Colonel Gray's quick Device to save his Life out of a Salt-pit.	188
A methodical Incitement for an Oxford Student.	189
Of the taking the great Royal Ship, the Holy Spirit of the French, by Sir Sackvil Trever.	190
A dehortary Letter from Swearing, with Examples of all sorts.	191
A Hymn thereupon.	194
The Properties of a Footman.	196
Of Ben. Johnson's Genius.	198
Of tardy Courtesies.	200
Some amorous Sonnets of Black Eyes, &c.	201, 202
A Check against the Habit of Drinking.	205
A Poem upon the British Language.	206
A witty Reply to Sir Edward Cook by a Countryman.	199
A Character of Sir Posthumus Hobby.	200
The first Rise of the Lord Strafford.	ibid.
The King of Sweden's first rushing into Germany.	207
The King of Denmark's ill Success against Tilly, and the favourable Peace he obtained.	ibid.
Of a ragged illegible Hand.	208
The proud Inscription the French King left upon a triumphant Pillar, on one of the Alpian Hills.	209
Of Sir Ken. Digby's Exploits against the Venetian Galeasses, &c.	210
A Jeer put upon Sir Tho. Edmonds being Ambassador in France.	ibid.
Another Jeer of the French Ambassador.	211
Of Sir Thomas Wentworth's violent rising up.	ibid.
Of the King of Sweden's monstrous Progress, his clashing with the English and French Ambassadors.	214
A Letter of Thanks.	213
A Description of an Olla podrida.	215
A	Of

The Index of the First Volume.

Of the Spanish Inquisition.	218, 219
The Death of the Queen-Dowager of Denmark , his Majesty's Grandmother, the richest Princess of Christendom, &c.	216

The Sixth Section.

A N exact Relation of the Earl of Leicester's Embassy to the King of Denmark and other Princes.	227
Some remarkable Passages in the Danish Court.	222
Of Hamburgh and the Hans Towns, their beginning, and the famous Quarrel they had with Queen Elizabeth .	223, 224
The marvellous resemblance of Holstein Men with the English , &c.	226
The King of Sweden's Death related by an Eye-witness, his aversion to the English , &c.	231
The Palsgrave's Death.	229
The late Pope's Compliance with him.	230
A strange Apparition happen'd in the West about a dying Gentleman.	232
Of Noy the Attorney, and of Ship-money.	233
Of the Lord Weston's Embassy to Italy , and a clashing 'twixt my Lord of Holland and him.	ibid.
The Queen-Mother's, and Monsieur's retirement to Flanders .	239
A Chrystmass Hymn.	236
Of the Condition of the Jews squander'd up and down the World, how they came to be so cunning and hateful, from whence they expect their Messias, &c.	236, 237, 238
Of Platonick Love.	239
The sudden Comfort of Letters.	240
Of a strange Patent given a Scotch-man .	ibid.
Of Attorney Noy's death, and the odd Will he made, &c.	241
The Arrival of the Prince Elector, and of Prince Rupert to England , their Designs.	242
Monsieur steals from Brussels .	243
A Herald of Arms sent from France to denounce War against Spain .	242
Of Mountmorency's Death.	243
A memorable Example of the Force of Affection in the Person of a French Lady.	244
Of Peter Van Heyn's mighty Plate Prize, &c.	245
Of Judgments fallen upon disobedient Children.	247
The Earl of Arundel's Return from the German Diet.	ibid.
Lorraine taken by the French .	248
Of Translations.	ibid.

The Index of the First Volume.

The young Prince Elector's ill Success in Germany, and Prince Rupert taken Prisoner, &c.	250
The most tragical Death of the Earl of Warfuzes at Liege.	251
Upon Ben. Johnson's Death.	252
A Method in Devotion.	252, 253, 254, 255
Razevil come from Poland Ambassador.	246
The Scotch Commanders returning from Germany, flaunt at the English Court.	ibid.
Of the Sovereign of the Sea, her Dimensions and Charge.	236
Of King Edgar his mighty Naval Power, and lofty Title, &c.	ibid.
Of the Heat and Medicinal Virtue of the Bath.	277
The Splendor of the Irish Court.	259
Of a memorable Passage in Suidas touching our Saviour.	260
Of Edinburgh.	261
A Dispute 'twixt a Vintner and a Shoemaker about Bishops.	ibid.
Of that furious Naval Fight 'twixt Oquendo and the Hollanders in the Downs.	268
Of Chymistry.	284
The Revolt of Catalonia, and the utter Desection of Portugal from the Spaniard.	265
The doleful casting away of Captain Limmery's Ship, valued at 800,000 Pounds.	266
Of an hideous Serpent found in a young Gentleman's Heart in Holbourn, and other ill-favoured Auguries.	ibid.
Of monstrous prophane Epithets given the French Cardinal.	268
Some facetious Passages of the old Duke of Espernon.	269
Of Comfort in Captivity.	271
Of a miraculous Accident happen'd in Hemelen in Germany.	272
Of the Calamities of the Times.	ibid.
Of Self-examination.	274
Of Merchant-Adventurers.	275
Of the late Pope's Death, and the Election of this by the Spanish Faction, his Propensity to Peace, and the Impossibility of it.	277
Marquis Pawlet his ingenious Motto.	278
Of the Ape of Paris applied to these times.	383
Of Affliction.	ibid.
Of a true Friend.	208
Of a strange People lately discover'd in Spain.	281
Of Moderation and Equanimity.	282
Of the Fruits of Affliction.	283
Of Wiving.	284, 285

An Index of the principal Matters contained in the Second Volume of Familiar Letters.

E ncouragements to hasten a Business.	187
A strange Disparity 'twixt a married Couple.	ibid.
The power of the Pen.	288
Advice against Detraction.	ibid.
Of the general Infirmities of Men.	289
Of natural Corruption.	290
Of the Passions of Love, and the Humour of Women.	ibid.
Of a Clash that happen'd 'twixt Leo the tenth, and the French King, and their witty Answers and Replies.	292
The Saying of Robert Grosthead Bishop of Lincoln , touching the Pope.	ibid.
Advice to Silence.	ibid.
A Letter of Thanks, and forgiving Injuries.	293
Of Religion in general.	294
Of the Religion of the Jews , and their several Sects.	295
Of Christianity, and the Difficulties that attend it.	297
England one of the first Christian Countries.	ibid.
The Cause of the first Division 'twixt the Eastern and Western Churches.	299
Of the Eastern Church.	ibid.
The Extent of Christianity.	ibid.
The lamentable Decay of Christianity in Afric .	303
Of Mahometism, with the Beginning and Policy thereof.	300
The reverend Opinion the Turks have of Christ, and the Virgin Mary .	ibid.
The vast Extent of Mahometism.	301
The Concurrence of the Turk with the Christian and Jew .	302
Of the Pagans or Heathens Religion, and their Extent.	303
The best Sort of Pagans.	304
The Degrees how Philosophy did propagate itself.	305
A Comparison in point of Extent 'twixt all Religions.	307
Some Advice for a young Traveller.	308
Of Vain-glory.	309
Of the Arrogance of the Romans .	ibid.
Advice to a young Soldier.	ibid.
A Letter of Advice to give over a Business.	310
Of Secretary Walsingham , and Secretary Cecil .	312

The Index of the Second Volume.

A rare Comparison of Charles the Emperor.	313
The Mulberry a Pattern of Wisdom.	ibid.
Of the falling off of Catalonia and Portugal from the King of Spain .	315
Of extravagant Humours.	ibid.
A Letter of Reprehension for Silence.	316
Of the Virtue of Letters.	ibid.
Advice to be careful in Epistolizing.	ibid.
An amorous Poem.	317
An Apology for not answering a Letter.	321
Of a monstrous new Island sprung up in the Atlantic Sea.	ibid.
Of the fearful Earthquakes in Italy .	ibid.
Of Genoa , Venice , &c.	ibid.
A Letter of Love.	322
A Letter of friendly Respects.	ibid.
The Difference 'twixt Prosperity and Adversity.	327
A Letter of Recommendation for a Servant.	328
What a supernumerary Servant is like to.	ibid.
Of the Abuse of a great Picture taken at Arundel .	330
Of Crosses and Troubles.	333
Of Chymical Knowledge.	334
Of the Peace 'twixt Spain and Holland .	ibid.
A Letter of Condolence and Mortality.	337
The Author's Apology for himself.	ibid.
The French Satyr of Queen Elizabeth .	339
Of the exorbitant Liberty of Printing.	330
Of Post Pigeons.	ibid.
Private Contemplations of the Author upon divers Objects.	341
A Remedy against Melancholy.	343
Of the Wines of Spain , Italy , France , and Germany .	350, 351
Of the Nile Water.	349
Of Metheglin , Mead and Braggot , Cyder and Perry .	351
How the Germans drink Healths.	392
A strange Tale of some Dutch Drunkards.	ibid.
Of Tongues in general.	ib. &c.
Of the British Tongues and her Dialects.	354
The Irish a Dialect of the Welsh .	355
Welsh Words found in America .	ibid.
The Ground of the Appellation of English-men .	ibid.
For his gross Error at the beginning of the Book of Martyrs.	ibid.
When the English Tongue took footing in Scotland .	ibid.
Of the German Tongue, and the Extent of it.	356
Some Persian Words consignant with the Dutch .	ibid.
Of the Slavonic Language, her Dialects, and vast Extent of it.	ib.
	Above

The Index of the Second Volume.

Above all other Languages the Slavonic hath two Characters.	ibid.
A Charter of Alexander the Great, yet extant upon the Walls of a Church in Prague .	ibid.
Of the Greek Tongue, her Growth and Progress.	358
The pitiful Decay of the Greek Tongue.	359
How strangely the Greeks are degenerated above all other Nations.	ibid.
The ancient monstrous Extent of the Greek Tongue.	ibid.
Of the Latin Tongue, and her Degrees of Perfection.	360
The Greek always more esteem'd than Latin in the East and West.	361
How the Latin did refine herself.	ibid.
Of the sundry barbarous People that invaded Italy .	362
Of Italian , Spanish , and French Languages.	363
Of the Arcadians .	364
Where to find the true ancient Speech of any Country.	ibid.
Of the Mother-Tongue of Europe .	366
A Philosophical Reason of the Diversity of Tongues.	367
Of the vast Extent of the Arabian Tongue.	ibid.
Of the Hebrew .	ibid.
Languages subject to corruption and change as other things.	368
Of Sir Walter Rawleigh's Voyage to Guiana , and a Judgment upon it.	ibid.
A facetious Tale of the Earl of Kildare .	374
Of my Lord Carleton .	ibid.
A facetious Tale of a Spanish Soldier.	375
Friendly Wishes.	ibid.
A Comparison 'twixt the case of the King of England with other Kings.	376
A Letter of Respects to a Lady.	378
A Caution not to neglect the Latin for any vulgar Language.	ib.
Of Praises to God, and how they are the best Oblations.	379
A facetious Tale of Henry the Fourth of France .	381
America only free from Mahometism .	386
The Alcoran brought in by the Alfange .	300
Arabic the sole Language of the Alcoran .	ibid.
Of the black Bean in Mahomet's Heart.	289
Of Vanity of Beauties.	288
The Mendicant Friars make a kind of amends for the Excesses of the Cardinal and Bishops.	291
Of borrowing and buying of Books.	317
Canary the best of Wines.	351
Christianity more subject to Variety of Opinions than any other Religion, and the Cause thereof.	296, 297

The Index of the Second Volume.

Advice from attempting a Business.	310
Reputation like a Venice-Glass .	309
A Fable of Fire, Water, and Fame.	ibid.
A facetious Tale of a Soldier.	ibid.
Of Delay in Business.	312
Of Dispatch.	ibid.
Of Matches 'twixt England and Spain .	ibid.
The vertue of Money.	315
A famous Saying of Captain Talbot .	ibid.
Of a hard intricate Business.	ibid.
A Letter of Reprehension for careless writing.	317
Some amorous Stanza's.	ibid.
A Letter of Gratitude.	318
An Apology for Women.	319
Of good and bad Women.	320
Of free Courtesies.	ibid.
A Courtesie may be marr'd in the Mode.	ibid.
An Apology for Silence.	321
A Tale of a Neapolitan Confessor.	ibid.
A new Island discover'd hard by the Terreras .	ibid.
Of the Hill Vesuvius .	ibid.
Some Rarities of Venice .	322
Of the Genouese .	321
Of our Indian Mariner.	ibid.
Grunnius Sophista's last Will.	323
The Author's last Testament.	324
Of Melancholy.	325
A facetious Tale of a Porter.	326
A modest Reply to a Letter of Praise.	ibid.
A Letter of Patience.	327
Of Chymistry.	ibid.
Of the Diseases of the Times.	338
A Letter of Recommendation.	ibid.
Of superfluous Servants.	ibid.
An Advice to travel.	328
Of reading of Books.	ibid.
Of Partiality of News.	330
The History of Conanus and the 11000 Virgins mistaken.	ibid.
Of Prisoners.	331
The Author's Epitaph.	ibid.
Advice to a Cambridge Scholar.	332
A Letter of Comfort.	333
The Effects of Imprisonment.	ibid.
Of Chymistry.	334
	Of

The Index of the Second Volume.

Of Dunkirk .	335
A Letter of State.	ibid.
A Tale of the late Queen of Spain .	336
The Turks Prayer.	ibid.
Of Nature, Fate, and Time.	337
A Consolatory Letter.	ibid.
A modest Reply to a Letter Encomiastic.	ibid.
A Letter of Reprehension for not writing.	338
Of Queen Elizabeth pro & con.	339
How the Spaniards charge her.	ibid.
Of futilous Writers.	340
Of speeding Letters.	ibid.
A Letter of Meditation.	ibid.
The Advantage of Marriage.	343
A Letter of Complement to a Lady.	ibid.
A Hymn to the Blessed Trinity.	ibid.
St. Austin's Wish in a Hymn.	345
Of fearing and loving of God.	346
A large Discourse of all sorts of Beverages that are us'd on Earth.	348
	ibid.
Of all sorts of Wines.	ibid.
The Riddle of the Vineyard-man.	346, 347
Of German and Greek Drinkers.	353
Of the pitiful Condition of England .	374
A Congratulatory Letter from Travel.	378
Of Prayer and Praise.	379
Of the Excise.	381
A Tale of Monsieur de la Chatre .	ibid.
The Power of Letters.	382
Some Spanish Epitaphs.	383
Of French Lawyers.	385
A Letter Consolatory to a sick Body.	ibid.
Stanza's of Mortality.	382
Of the Passion-Week.	383
A Letter Congratulatory for Marriage.	385
A Caution for imparting Secrets.	384
A Letter of Intelligence.	315
Of Autology.	387
A Letter of Consolation.	388
Self-travel one of the ways that leads us to Heaven.	389

An Index to the Third Volume of Familiar Letters.

OF the Use of Passions.	391
Passions like Muscovia Wives expect to be check'd.	ibid.
The Conquest of ones self the greatest point of Valour.	ib.
Of the Wars of Venice .	392
The fearful Commotions of Naples .	ib.
The horrid Commotions in Ethiopia .	ib.
Strange Revolutions in China .	ib.
The monstrous Insurrections in Muscovia .	ib.
A Prophecy of Holland .	393
A Letter of Correspondence.	ib.
Letters compared to Ecchoes.	394
Of Heaven.	ib.
Endearments of Love.	ib.
Of the Presbyter and his first Rise.	395
Of Calvin and his profane Applications.	ib.
Of Geneva .	ib.
King James call'd Presbytery a Sect .	ib.
Redemption the Blessing paramount.	396
The Eucharist the prime Act of Devotion.	ibid.
A Hymn upon the Holy Sacrament.	ib.
A Rapture.	401
The happiest Condition of Life.	402
Opinion the great Lady that rules the World.	ib.
Conceit the chiefest thing that makes one happy.	ib.
Of the strange Monster in Scotland .	ib.
The uncertain State of a Merchant Adventurer.	ib.
A Mariner scarce to be ranked among the Living.	ib.
A rich City like a fat Cheese, subject to Maggots.	ib.
Congratulation to a married Couple.	403
Of Tobacco, and the Virtue of it.	ib.
A strange Cure wrought upon my Lord Scroop by a Pipe of Tobacco.	ib.
The way to know how much Smoke there is in a Pound of Tobacco.	404
Of Doctor Thorius Pærologie.	405
The different modes of taking Tobacco.	ib.
A Distich of Tobacco.	ib.
Of Learning in general.	ib.

The Index of the Third Volume.

Handicrafts-men may well be term'd Learned Men.	405
A wholesome piece of Policy of the Chineses .	406
A Tale of Bishop Grosthed .	ib.
A mere Scholar a useless thing.	ib.
A facetious Tale of Thomas Aquinas and Bonaventure .	ib.
A Speech of Alexander Hales .	ib.
The general itching after Book-learning hurtful to England .	407
Gun-powder and Printing about a time, and both hurtful.	ib.
The true learned Men.	408
A Jeer upon the common Lawyer.	ib.
Of the Physician.	ib.
Pope Adrian's Speech.	ib.
Of the Lunary World.	409
Antiquity cannot privilege an Error.	ib.
Novelty cannot prejudice Truth.	ib.
Of the Antipodes.	ib.
The Method how God pours down his Blessings.	410
The following Day wiser than the foremost.	ib.
The Cadet older than his elder Brother.	ib.
Of Experience.	ib.
The prime Philosophers held there was a World in the Moon.	ib.
A notable Comparison.	ib.
What kind of Creatures are thought to be in the Body of the Sun.	411
Of Galileo's Glass.	412
The Turks Opinion of the Sun.	ib.
The Earth the basest of Creatures.	ib.
Of Trismegistus .	ib.
The Prerogatives of Man.	ib.
A Letter of Complement to a Lady.	413
Of Friendship.	413
Of Fortune's Wheel.	414
The Power of God.	ib.
What Use France hath made of Scotland .	415
An Italian Saying applicable to England .	ib.
The old Plot of the Jesuit now done in England .	ib.
A Letter of Congratulation from foreign Travel.	ib.
What a Traveller must carry home with him besides Language.	416
'Tis probable the Spaniard will be too hard for the French .	ib.
A Letter complaining of the hard Condition of England .	ib.
Another of the Miseries of the Time.	417
A Conjunction 'twixt Spain and France the wholesom'st for Christian dom.	419
A Letter of Endearment.	420
	Of

The Index of the Third Volume.

Of Paul's Church .	ibid.
Of Translations.	421
The English and Italian compar'd.	ib.
Translations like Wines taken off the Lees, and pour'd into Bottles.	ib.
How the English Language grows rich.	ib.
What is chiefly expected from a faithful Translator.	ib.
Of Prophecies.	423
The strange Prediction of Noſtredamus .	ib.
Some wonderful Prophecies of the Welſh Bards reflecting upon these times.	ib.
A Prophecy of White-Hall .	423
A Prophecy for the Soldier.	ib.
Of Witches.	425
How perverse Men must be used in Disputation.	ib.
All Nations enacted Laws against Witchcraft.	ib.
The Act of Parliament in England against Witches.	ib.
The Imperial Law against Witches.	ib.
The Judaical and Roman Law against Witches.	ib.
Noſtredamus his notable Prediction reflecting upon England .	ib.
A notable Story of Charlemain .	ib.
St. Auſtin and Danaus his Opinion of Witches.	426
Olaus Magnus his Opinion of King Ericus case, that could command the Winds.	ib.
Of the Oracles.	ib.
A memorable Story out of Plutarch .	ib.
The Oath that Witches use to take.	ib.
The famous Tale of Frier Louis in France .	ib.
Of Rutterkin the Witch that enchanted my Lord of Rutland's children.	427
A Letter of friendly Endearments.	428
England cured of the King's-Evil.	ib.
Of Difference in Opinion.	429
Difference in Opinion should not dissolve the Bonds of humane Society.	ib.
One of the special Priviledges of God Almighty.	ib.
Themistius his Opinion touching the Worship of the Creator.	ib.
Of spiritual Pride, the greatest engine the Devil useth to destroy People.	430

An

An Index of the chiefest Passages in the Fourth Volume of Familiar Letters.

A	Page.
O F the Abuses of the Times.	494
Of the Angel and the Anchorite.	435
Q. Artemisia made her Body her Husband's Sepulchre.	441
The Advantages of History.	448
The Americans at first thought a Man on Horseback was all but one Creature.	ib.
Aristotle's Error, holding there were no Asses in France .	456
Of the Apostolical Creed.	472
Antiquity to be preferred before Novelty.	457
A Rule to read old Authors.	459
An acre of Performance more than the whole land of Promise.	476
Armorica in France planted by the Welsh Britains .	456
Of the Analogy 'twixt Amsterdam and Venice .	462
Amsterdam smells rank of a Hans Town .	ib.
Of an Armonian Merchant.	468
The Author's Opinion of the World.	469
The Advantages England hath had by the late Wars.	501
B
Brennus the Britain the first Foreigner Rome felt.	432
The Beasts proper to a Forrest, to a Chase, to a Park.	455
Bodin touching the Freedom of the French .	456
The British held to be the first Language of France .	458
British Words found in France to this day.	460
The Britains held barbarous by Strabo , because they could not make Cheese.	472
We must believe for ourselves, and beg for others.	472
Of Bishops by Chrysostom and Athanasius .	473
A British Prince first Discoverer of the West-Indies .	473
Of Babel and Babylon .	485
C
Courtesies compar'd by the French .	433
A Comparison of the present case of England .	434
Divers Comparisons touching the Frame of the World.	ib.
Of Cuckolds.	442
Of the Chineses incestuous custom.	ib.
Of Courtisans.	443
The Cause of Lust in Southern People.	444
Of Counsel.	453

The Index of the Fourth Volume.

A Complement about a Present.	454
Canutus a great Forrester, his strict Laws.	455
The Word Crank abus'd in English .	462
A Censure of the Times.	467
A Censure of some things in the Roman Church .	472
D
Doctor Dale 's merry Mistake.	432
His witty Answers to Q. Elizabeth and the Spanish Ambassadors.	433
Of a devout Lady.	ib.
A dry Cough the Trumpeter of Death.	446
Divers Remarks upon Queen Elizabeth 's Reign.	452
The Duke of Espernon would have Love to be the third Principle.	454
The Dialects of the French .	445
Deeds Men, Words Women.	476
Of Degrees in the Church.	467
The Devil lurks in Grape Berries.	489
E
The Elementary World made of repugnant Ingredients.	434
Of Queen Elizabeth .	450
Of the Earl of Lindsey .	454
Emblema thrust out of Rome by a special Diploma.	460
A Welsh Epitaph found in America .	474
Sir Elias Hicks vindicated of the Aspersions cast upon him by Wilson .	460
Of Equity and Justice.	487
An Elegy upon Edward Earl of Dorset .	505
Of the Earl of Clare .	457
F
Fasting, as Morning Spittle, kills Dragons and Devils.	437
Of the Female kind. 441 Against Females.	ib.
The Fame of some Princes like the Rose, of others like the Poppy.	452
The Prerogatives of a Forrester over a Chase.	455
France a plentiful Country, but the People poor.	456
Four Kings in Armorica call'd Howell .	ib.
Of the French and Spaniard .	486
Of English Natures.	502
The French Peasants mere Asses.	456
G
Galen 's Course in sleeping in the Afternoon.	431
Galen Clerk of Nature's Cabinet.	ib.
Of Church-Government.	484
	Of

The Index of the Fourth Volume.

Of good Works.	483
Of the grand Cosmo de Medici .	484
Of the Gallery of Ladies.	504
Gallia first call'd Wallia .	459

H

Of the Hermit and the Angel.	435
How the Hugonots of France do fast.	439
How to govern Women.	440
Of History.	449
Of Sir Elias Hicks and Fairfax before Montauban .	478
The horrid Assassinate committed by a Puritan in Wales .	494
The History of Wilson censur'd.	458

I

An Invitation to correspond by Letters.	431
The manner of the Jewish Fast.	438
In the Church of Rome some things commendable.	482
Justices of Peace made Church-men.	486
Of King John .	456
Juan de Padilla a Spanish Rebel.	449
Of the Irish Seas.	471

L

Letters the Larum-Bells of Love.	431	Of Lent.	438
Of a Lover in Prose and Verse.	445
The Earl of Leicester brought in first the Art of poysoning.	451
The Loire a drunken River.	456
A Letter of Condolement.	469
A Letter of Congratulation.	470
Letters compar'd to Organ-pipes.	463
A Letter of Comfort.	487	A Letter of Thanks.	507
A Love Sonnet.	445
Lutherans nearer Rome than the Protestants.	482

M

Of a Miser.	446
Of a memorable Passage in the Civil Wars of Spain .	449
Of the Lord Marquis of Dorchester .	450
Melancholy an ill Companion.	456
Majesty an upstart Word for Greatness.	445
Of Mortification.	469
Of Metheglin in Prose and Verse.	489
The Malice and Cruelty of the Presbyterians.	493
Montrose pitifully Butcher'd in Scotland .	494
Of the Marquis of Winchester .	503

N

Of a Noddy that writ a Book of Wiving.	442
Of	Of

The Index of the Fourth Volume.

Of Nuns.	453
New Heresies are but old ones furbish'd.	473
News from Rome , 503. Of a negative Face.	ib.
Of the Neatness and Decencies of the Roman Church .	482

O

Of the French Liberty .	456
Of the French Language .	458
Of the Mutability of Tongues.	ib.
Of the Original, progress, and Perfection of the French Tongue .	ib.
Of the Latin Tongue .	460
Of the Duke of Orleans .	464
Of Sir Philip Sidney .	ib.

P

Of Patience by way of Comparison.	448
The Pen the Ambassadors chiefest Tool.	432
Of Providence.	436
Of powdring the Hair by the Gallants of the times.	439
Of the Preachments of these times.	452
Of the Poet Skelton .	ib.
Of Paul's Church .	463
Of the common People.	501
Divers Pasquils from Rome .	502
The Pope strangely cured.	ib.
A Philosophical Poem.	494
A Poem for observing Lent .	438
Of a hellish-natur'd Puritan.	494
A Poem upon Christmas-day.	447
Of Presumption in Search of Divine Knowledge.	494
Of Pourlieus .	455

Q

The great Advantages of the Quill.	432
Queen Zenobia's Chastity.	441
A Queen of England's notable love to her Husband.	ib.
Of the three last Queen-Mothers of France .	456

R

A Ring made with art to awaken one in the Night.	432
How the Russians use their Wives.	443
Rules for a Woer.	445
Of Cardinal Richelieu .	465
Of the Roman Church .	483

S

A high Speculation consisting of many parts.	435
Scaliger's Error.	444
The Spaniards as light as other Men.	449
Of	Of

The Index of the Fourth Volume.

Of the Spanish and French Languages.	460
Spanish Latin lengthen'd, French Latin shorten'd.	ib.
Sovereign an upstart Word for Greatness.	464
Of the Sayings of the ten Sybits .	490
The Sword the surest Sway.	501
Of the Strength and Wealth of England .	ib.
Of the sympathetick Powder.	507
Of the shallowness of humane Brain.	494

T

The true way of Fasting.	437
The Temper of the People, the Happiness of the times.	451
The Abuse of some French Proverbs.	462
Two witty Tales.	470
Two weighty Sayings.	ib.
Some Trees fatidical.	486
The Turks Saying of Wine.	489
A Tale of an Indian Boy.	507

V

Verses upon Fasting.	438
Of Venice .	457
A Vindication of some things in the Second Part of Dodona's Grove.	448
How Vatinius took his Advantage of Cicero .	442
A Vindication of some things in the Survey of Venice .	469
Of the Uniformity of the Roman Church.	482

W

A witty saying of Henry the Great of France .	439
A witty passage of a Turkish Ambassador.	ib.
A witty saying of the Lady Barbara the Empress.	441
A witty passage of a Cook in Westminster .	442
A witty Tale of Hans Boobikin .	444
Of Wit and Wealth.	446
A witty Saying of Fleetwood the Recorder.	ib.
A witty Comparison.	ib.
Two weighty Latin Sayings.	450
A witty Saying of New Lights.	455
Words have their Rise and Fall as Men.	462
Witty Comparisons of the Soul.	466
A witty Saying of Wales .	453
A witty Tale of a Spanish Captain.	457

F I N I S.

1500. -
5.8.83

18137

Werkstätte

usheim

bei Günzburg

1500. -
5.8.83

18137

Mehrwerkstätte
Mühlheim
bei Günzburg

1500. -
5.8.83

18137

Maschinenwerkstätte
Mühlheim
bei Gänzburg

1500. -
5.8.83

18137

Lehrwerkstätte
Mühlheim
bei Günzburg

1500. -
5.8.83

18137 ehrwerkstätte

usheim
n bei Günzburg

1500. -
5.8.83

18137 ehrwerkstätte

usheim
n bei Günzburg

1500. -
5.8.83

18137 ehrwerkstätte

shelma
bei Günzburg

Howell, James,

Epistolae Ho-Eliae Familiae Letters, Domestick and Foreign. Divided into four books, Partly Historical, Political, Philosophical. Upon Emergent Occasions

London 1713

P.o. angl. 576 f

urn:nbn:de:bvb:12-bsb10753050-8